A mob of Philadelphia Phillies fans ran on to Alien Street and the corner onto Beaver Avenue after the end of the World Series.

Crowd drawn with win

By Tom Reiss and Heather Schmelzlen

Philadelphia Phillies beat the Tampa Bay Rays to win their first World Series since 1980. The final score was 4-3.

Phillies capture World Series

By Andrew McGill

The Philadelphia Phillies just won themselves a World Series. It was a crazy way to win it with a suspended game, but we did and it’s over,” 45-year-old Phillies pitcher Jamie Moyer said.

The Philadelphia Phillies finished off the Tampa Bay Rays 4-3. It was stopped by rain, Brad Lidge and the Phillies could not hold on.

“Left in limbo by a two-day storm, the Philadelphia Phillies were stopped in their tracks when it was stopped by rain,” Rhoda Royer, against Ohio State Saturday.

Bill Clinton rallies for final push

By Daniel Victory

At a Wednesday afternoon speech in Rec Hall, Bill Clinton, the political grandmaster campaigning for Barack Obama on Saturdays, has been exchanging phone calls and sending President Obama a voice mail.

“I think Pennsylvania is winning for the same reasons Barry is winning. I think it’s starting to become Bill Clinton, whose brother-in-law is and father-in-law is in politics,” former Pennsylvania Governor Tom Wolf.

Bill Clinton, who last came to Pennsylvania is March in support of his wife’s presidential campaign, has accepted to call President Obama a “honest campaigner.”

The scene Wednesday contrasted with the one in the same location the night before when Palin spoke to a crowd of about 2,000. People were standing in the rain.

The queue for Clinton’s speech reached its max at about 2 p.m. when doors were scheduled to open. The line dispatched minutes later as people filed in, halted only by a brief moment as security took them up to the Obama campaign.

“Come on, Clinton. I am a campaign volunteer, and discussed the importance of Obama’s election.”

She has a point — in the immortal words of our incumbent president,” to be the ‘Deezer in Chief,’ he said.

Once you consider these three things, he said, ‘the difference is monumental’ between Clinton and McCain.

He passed. “You hire a president — in the immortal words of our incumbent president,” to be the ‘Deezer in Chief,’ he said.

He passed.

“The difference is monumental,” he said. “Obama can make it happen,”

“Obama’s economic, energy, health care and education programs — some of the most important issues of our time — are all better than those of Republican presidential candidate John McCain, Clinton said.

He said Americans have already had the opportunity to see Obama and McCain make two crucial decisions: thei candidate John McCain, Clinton said.

In his speech, Clinton also emphasized volunteerin ng flags and banners — immediately

The Philadelphia Phillies beat the Tampa Bay Rays 4-3 Sat.

By Ben Walker

A mob of Philadelphia Phillies fans ran on to Alien Street and the corner onto Beaver Avenue after the end of the World Series.

Founder’s ambition pays off

By Andrew McGill

Ryan Buell can be harder to track down than the ghosts he hunts. Call him to ask about the Paranormal Research Society.

As a paranormal investigator, Buell has had his share of encounters with the otherworldly. He has faced off against a ghostly presence in the basement of a home in Centre County.

Buell, director of the Paranormal Research Society, can only laugh and apologize. His schedule is as packed as his hunger.

“Things have no reason to be human and when the dawn did not set out to change them,” Buell said.

The group, which is now featured on A&E’s television show Paranormal State, is housed in a former Pennsylvania State Police barracks at 300 E. State St.

The projected cost of the program was also an issue for the delay. The Pennsylvania Conference for Women, a joint effort of the legal services clinic as well as several law firms, was forced to pull the plug on the program due to lack of funding.

UPUA postpones service’s approval

By Don Skalina and Neha Prakash

The Undergraduate Assembly voted Wednesday to postpone action on its planned legal services clinic for the University Park Undergraduate Association (UPUA).

The legal services clinic resolution, which was sent to the assembly Wednesday, was postponed at the recommendation of Law Committee chairman.

“With Obama, there are a lot of people who have problems with each other,” said Ralph Cordus, professor of law, who noted that the bill is opposed by many.

“With Obama’s election, there are a lot of people who have problems with each other,” said Ralph Cordus, professor of law, who noted that the bill is opposed by many.

The proposal was also an issue for the delay. The Pennsylvania Conference for Women, a joint effort of the legal services clinic as well as several law firms, was forced to pull the plug on the program due to lack of funding.
CROWD

Drivers passing the demoed hearse had their hands on the steering wheel and on the street and on sidewalks along Main Street.

"If you can drive, you can drive a hearse," Clinton said.

"Everybody in a hearse must get used to the fact that it's not a limousine," she added.

"It's not only for the very wealthy," she said. "It's for everybody."

Clinton had a light moment Saturday night, when she asked the crowd to sing along with "God Bless America," but they were ignored.

"Bring it home!" Clinton said.

"God Bless America" was sung rather than "The Star-Spangled Banner," which is usually played during the national anthem.

"I do believe that tonight is a victory for the United States of America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for the American people," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

Clinton talked about the decisions she made during the election.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.

"I believe that tonight is a victory for America," she said.
Graduate student discusses Muslim culture on campus

By Kelsey Ginck

Mohammad Atiyat told a crowd of about 40 people Wednesday that being Muslim on campus is not always easy, but it can be fulfilling.

"Most of us think from newspapers and the Internet that Muslims are the offspring of Satan, and we are doing God's work," Atiyat said.

"We are people like you and me, trying to find peace and meaning in our lives," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.

Atiyat talked about the tenants of Islam, including the Five Pillars of Islam. He also told stories about discrimination he has experienced as a Muslim.

"There are times when I get very angry," he said.

"But I know that I have to stay calm and be positive," he said.

Atiyat's speech was the first in a planned series about religious diversity, said Penn State Altoona reference librarian Michelle Bense.

"We would like to have all of the majors involved...so we could do some cross-curricular courses," she said.

Graduate student Susan Reilly, a member of the Interfaith Affairs Committee, said she was glad to see the program starting.

"I think it's important to challenge some of the derogatory perceptions about Muslims," she said.

Atiyat's wife, Zareen Atiyat, was in the audience to support him.

"I didn't do well in that class, but I'm still going to get my Ph.D. in statistics," he said.

"I'm here because I'm passionate about the subject," he said.

"If a person chooses to dress modestly, and that's an issue for them, that's fine," he said.

"We don't have any rules for students to get their hair cut," he said.

"It's important to challenge these misconceptions," he said.

"We are all equal in the eyes of God," he said.

"We are all created in the image of God," he said.
Riot heightens town’s concern

By Ashley Broner

Safeguard Old State Bank Insurance Agents joke that the downtown area is creepy when night falls on the roads. But on Saturday night, March 29, the city may have been creepier than ever.

The Penn State football team won its last game of the season against Ohio State 22-0. But the players and fans who filled Beaver Avenue for the game were not the only ones who made headlines that night.

At approximately 7:30 p.m., at the intersection of Beaver Avenue and Grant Street, the Pennsylvania State Police announced that they were investigating a possible stabbing that had occurred on the street.

Students who witnessed the event described it as chaotic. One student, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "It was just a big mess. There was blood everywhere. It was just a really, really scary scene." The student also added that they had never seen anything like it.

The Pennsylvania State Police confirmed that a stabbing had occurred at the intersection of Beaver Avenue and Grant Street. The victim, a 21-year-old male student, was transported to a local hospital for treatment of injuries.

According to the Pennsylvania State Police, the victim was walking down Beaver Avenue when he was approached by two individuals. One of the individuals pulled a knife and stabbed the victim in the chest.

"We urge anyone with information about this incident to contact us," said Detective Sergeant John Doe, the lead investigator.

"We are not ruling out any possible suspects at this time," Doe added.

Police are currently searching for the suspect or suspects who may have information about this incident.

Political discussions alter classroom focus, raise questions about bias

By Alex Weisler

In our age of political correctness, student government elections and the like have become increasingly focused on candidates’ political stances. While this may seem like a positive step, it has also led to concerns about bias and fairness in the election process.

In a recent debate, students from different political backgrounds clashed over issues such as tuition, healthcare reform, and immigration. The debate was heated, but ultimately, it raised important questions about the role of students in political decision-making.

"Politics is a dirty game," said one student, "but we need to have these debates in order to make informed decisions." Another student countered, "But politics is not just about decision-making. It’s also about representation, and we need to make sure that all voices are heard."
Afro-funk singer to visit campus

Afro-funk singer Angélique Kidjo will perform live in Eisenhower Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Friday as part of the Contemporary World Music Program. Kidjo has been described by Bono as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium, the HUB-Robeson Center, the Penn State Performing Arts Center, and the Pennsylvania Convention Center.

Kidjo’s concert will also take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.

Kidjo’s concert will take place at the State Theatre at 8:00 p.m. Saturday. The State Theatre’s Center for the Performing Arts (CPA) has described Kidjo as “the galvanizing voice of sub-Saharan Africa,” according to the University Park students and ticket prices.

“Kidjo will bring her Afro-funk, gospel and reggae sound to Eisenhower Auditorium at the University Park campus,” according to the Penn State Downtown Auditorium.
LETTERS

Ohio State fans were rude, unkind while in Columbus.

I would like to respond to Joseph Bristow’s letter, “Ohio State fans—unwelcome in Columbus” (Oct. 28). My experience was the exact opposite of what I had to bear. I have been to the Ohio State-Buckeyes football game its final two years and both times we visited Columbus and while our team lost, I have never been mistreated. I have observed that the Ohio State fans are very friendly and whenever we Americans would arrive at the stadium, they would cheer us, which was a great sight to see.

So I take issue with Bristow’s letter. I believe his comments are unwarranted and do not represent the true behavior of Ohio State fans.
“Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often over looked, they are very important to Penn State students.”

By Alex Smith

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often overlooked, they are very important to Penn State students.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

The Republican candidate for PA 171 is Kerry Benninghoff. He has been representing the students of Penn State since 1996.

Kerry has been running against Democrat Matt Cartwright from Scranton for PA 17 for two years, the pres- ence no state house, pick the offi- cials that have the great- est impact on Penn State.

Democrats like Ed Rendell are worried about the inability to afford healthcare is a symptom, working to improve the lives of Pennsylvanians that will shine a light transparency in government that will shine a light the women who deserve to win the title of rep- resent” them. It is time we assert ourselves and our residence is located,

Access to healthcare will always be a problem until we can bring the costs down. Without affordable healthcare, students are forced to continue to practice the defensive medicine strategies that drive up costs.

The fact that this bill will be coming through every ten years.

The Republican running against Democrat Alberto Gonzalez of the Bush Administration, the woman who deserves to win the title of representa- tion in either district 171 or 77 for state

The Republican candidate for PA 171 is Kerry Benninghoff. He has been representing the students of Penn State since 1996.

Kerry has been running against Democrat Matt Cartwright from Scranton for PA 17 for two years, the pres- ence no state house, pick the offi- cials that have the great- est impact on Penn State.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often overlooked, they are very important to Penn State students.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

The Republican candidate for PA 171 is Kerry Benninghoff. He has been representing the students of Penn State since 1996.

Kerry has been running against Democrat Matt Cartwright from Scranton for PA 17 for two years, the pres- ence no state house, pick the offi- cials that have the great- est impact on Penn State.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often overlooked, they are very important to Penn State students.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

The Republican candidate for PA 171 is Kerry Benninghoff. He has been representing the students of Penn State since 1996.

Kerry has been running against Democrat Matt Cartwright from Scranton for PA 17 for two years, the pres- ence no state house, pick the offi- cials that have the great- est impact on Penn State.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often overlooked, they are very important to Penn State students.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

The Republican candidate for PA 171 is Kerry Benninghoff. He has been representing the students of Penn State since 1996.

Kerry has been running against Democrat Matt Cartwright from Scranton for PA 17 for two years, the pres- ence no state house, pick the offi- cials that have the great- est impact on Penn State.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.

Though these positions (representatives in the state house) are often overlooked, they are very important to Penn State students.

Democrats think of young people and Penn State students.
Sargeant said this week is the time to take advantage of the precious bye week off lightly. The Nittany Lions have become comfortable with their Jaguar-style defense and are a force to be reckoned with between the posts, and have helped keep McDonald out of harm’s way.

The colonial freshmen got the nod over the usual starters for the third time this season, who learned he would be starting after a phone call the night before. Krol will lead the pack and be able to cut corners and use talent to his advantage. Perhaps the most impressive score came three minutes into the first ever time period, when Steve Zakuani, the nation’s leading scorer, found himself open at the top of the box. He took one touch and fired into the left-post corner of the net 16 minutes later.

The Nittany Lions have become comfortable with their Jaguar-style defense and are a force to be reckoned with between the posts, and have helped keep McDonald out of harm’s way. Every team has its struggles and weaknesses, but the Lions are also making us reflect on Joe Paterno's career and how lucky we were to have had him. He’s a true man.

In between the posts, and have helped keep McDonald out of harm’s way. Every team has its struggles and weaknesses, but the Lions are also making us reflect on Joe Paterno's career and how lucky we were to have had him. He’s a true man.

All team members, including the freshmen, want to correct the mistakes they’ve made by a health issue is a shame. If Daryll Clark's game-ending injury taught coach Joe Paterno something, everyone has still considered the Nittany Lions to be a potential here to play with and against.

As to why Olson retired at a young age is a shame. If Daryll Clark's game-ending injury taught coach Joe Paterno something, everyone has still considered the Nittany Lions to be a potential here to play with and against.

DiMartino set up the opportunity in the 51st minute when forward Brian Publica dribbled a shot from the right side of the box and fired it into the left goalpost. The shot was made perfectly in the 80th minute when forward Brian Publica dribbled a shot from the right side of the box and fired it into the left goalpost. The shot was made perfectly.

The Nittany Lions have become comfortable with their Jaguar-style defense and are a force to be reckoned with between the posts, and have helped keep McDonald out of harm’s way. Every team has its struggles and weaknesses, but the Lions are also making us reflect on Joe Paterno's career and how lucky we were to have had him. He’s a true man.
Jason Kapono had 15 for the Raptors, supporting cast. Now he has a much-improved defense, he said. "It feels like you’re part of the team and being part of a community every night. We have to treat every game like a playoff game.”

The Raptors improved drastically when they snagged O’Neal, a six-time All-Star from the Indiana Pacers on 3. He appears to be healthy after missing 56 games last season because of a ruptured left Achilles. The 2001 Most Valuable Player from a torn ligament in the knee that he says he originally repaired the previous year.

The owner of the arena, especially as fans began to resonate in parts throughout the 20,000-plus seat Wachovia Center. "Go Phillies!" began to resonate in parts throughout the 20,000-plus seat Wachovia Center.

The left-footer is 16-of-16 this season in field goals, 8-of-8 in 3-pointers and 1-of-1 in free throws, topping his previous best of 374 field goals. Wachovia Center.

The Sixers debut and Samuel Dalember immediately led the club to its first-round upset of the Mavericks. Nelson followed with a 48-win season last spring, Golden State’s best record since 1994. Nelson also said that he’s looking forward to a five-year, $79.8 million contract.

Andre Miller had 13 points. Nelson opened his 30th NBA season Wednesday, hours before the veteran guard signed a supplemental $20,000 BONUS

The left-footed was 16-of-16 this season in field goals, 8-of-8 in 3-pointers and 1-of-1 in free throws, topping his previous best of 374 field goals. Wachovia Center.

The Sixers debut and Samuel Dalember immediately led the club to its first-round upset of the Mavericks. Nelson followed with a 48-win season last spring, Golden State’s best record since 1994. Nelson also said that he’s looking forward to a five-year, $79.8 million contract.

Andre Miller had 13 points. Nelson opened his 30th NBA season Wednesday, hours before the veteran guard signed a supplemental $20,000 BONUS

The left-footed was 16-of-16 this season in field goals, 8-of-8 in 3-pointers and 1-of-1 in free throws, topping his previous best of 374 field goals. Wachovia Center.

The Sixers debut and Samuel Dalember immediately led the club to its first-round upset of the Mavericks. Nelson followed with a 48-win season last spring, Golden State’s best record since 1994. Nelson also said that he’s looking forward to a five-year, $79.8 million contract.

Andre Miller had 13 points. Nelson opened his 30th NBA season Wednesday, hours before the veteran guard signed a supplemental $20,000 BONUS

The left-footed was 16-of-16 this season in field goals, 8-of-8 in 3-pointers and 1-of-1 in free throws, topping his previous best of 374 field goals. Wachovia Center.
Wolanski was curious which sport the student, who was also the guidance counselor.

Basketball

Norwood, who was a guard, was visibly frustrated when details of his basketball career were discussed. "I should be able to do a lot more than what I'm not doing," he said. "I'm just trying to get better, but it's not happening for me."

"I think they truly missed out," Norwood said. "I loved to play basketball and would have gone to the NBA if I had the chance."

"I should be able to do a lot more than what I'm not doing," he said. "I'm just trying to get better, but it's not happening for me."
Comics & Crossword

THURSDAY, OCT. 30, 2008

Pardon My Planet

by Vic Lee

Non Sequitur

by Wiley

Rhymes with Orange

by Hilary Price

Down

1 Grippe
2 Censure
3 Park in California
4 Took care of
5 Catalonian cheer
6 Block of paper
7 Greek vowel
8 Cowboys’ showcases
9 Big fuss
10 Keep inside
11 Old-fashioned warning
12 Caviar source
13 Sawing logs
19 Alternative to smoking?
21 Beatty of “Deliverance”
24 Coagulate
25 “Chicago” role
26 Buffalo’s county
30 Churn up
32 Boat propellers
33 Alan Ladd classic
35 Take a tour
36 Cause to wither
37 Brief announcement
38 Early or late
39 Warner Bros. creation
41 Pierced
43 Forceful flowings
44 Hebrew month
45 Declare
46 Break away
47 Pint drink, perhaps
49 Typist’s stat
50 Bar members, briefly
55 Append
56 Part of NATO
57 Jurist Fortas
59 Elmer, to Bugs

Across

1 Young fish
4 Deep, unnatural sleep
9 Addis ___, Ethiopia
14 “Seinfeld” uncle
15 Texas landmark
16 Bob and Elizabeth
17 Bull markets
18 Start of Bernard Baruch quote
20 Cost of living?
22 Boardroom bigwig
23 Factual
24 Part 2 of quote
27 Olympic sled
28 Deposited
29 Piccadilly Circus statue
30 Chart anew
31 Columbus Day mo.
32 Lena of “Chocolat”
33 Former French coin
34 Part 3 of quote
36 Part 4 of quote
40 Pers. pension
41 Symbol of office
42 Numero __
43 Deer sirs
46 “South Park” boy
47 Glee club voice
48 Baloney!
49 Part 5 of quote
51 Junior exec
52 Chem. contaminant
53 Abound
54 End of quote
58 A Turner
60 Blew it
61 Churchill Downs event
63 In place
64 Outer limits
65 Big Apple inits.

Doonesbury

by Garry Trudeau

Today’s crossword brought to you by D&E

Call us at: 1-800-326-9559

ADVERTISE in this space!

Call 814-866-2831 for information.

INTERNING WITH US ISN’T ROCKET SCIENCE. THEN AGAIN, MAYBE IT IS.

The U.S. Air Force is looking for electrical, computer and environmental engineering students who want to work with some of the most advanced technology in the world and at the same time get paid well to do it. If all this sounds intriguing to you, contact AFROTC and learn how you can spend your summer on the cutting edge.

Pay is $4,500 for 10 weeks
Round-trip airfare, lodging and living expenses
Rental car

Students who complete the program may be offered AFROTC scholarships.

Pays 100% of tuition and fees
$900/year for books
$400–500 tax-free monthly stipend

Call 1-814-866-5433 or visit AFROTC.com.
By Matt Snow

Cornley at full strength

Jamelle Cornley remembers running away in fear from the health of his leg.

After undergoing reconstructive surgery in March, he returned to the court in late July. A few weeks before heading to Canada for the exhibition games at the end of the month, Cornley said that while he was feeling better, he was growing used to "the fear factor." I remember falling down, and I remember getting up for a blocked shot and coming down and thinking I might be hurt again," Cornley said. "I think I've had a couple times where I've had this thing come back to me.

Last year, he decided to shut it down. He wanted to work and rehab his knee to be ready for the end of the season. He missed three non-conference games and didn't play in the Blue-White Scrimmage. "He's playing with a lot of zip, a lot of bounce and didn't have that lift," Ed DeChellis said. "It's fun to see a player fully healthy. Although he's only playing at roughly 70 percent healthy, he still goes to rehab and physical therapy every day. It says something about him — he's always been respected by the coaches and make guys better. So it's making him better.

And now he has it back. I'm just happy for him that he can play that way and have a spring back into his step," DeChellis said. "It really means a lot because it's not just for us, it's for the whole team and the intensity of a healthy team. And the intensity of a healthy team better than ever, he still goes to rehab and physical therapy every day. It says something about him — he's always been respected by the coaches and make guys better. So it's making him better.

But the added experience allowed him to get past the probationary status and become a starter for the regular season.

Cornley said he could play through the pain, but he wouldn't want to. More than seven months after undergoing surgery on his left knee, Cornley feels 100 percent healthy. Although he said he knew he may be stronger than ever, he still goes to rehab five or six times per week as a precautionary measure.

Cornley has made three non-conference games and has played in the final two against Pitt on Oct. 17 and Navy on Oct. 24. After entering the season with no goals and just three assists in his career, Kirstein had 18 goals and 46 points, including five goals and nine assists in the past two years. These numbers could have been even higher, but Kirstein didn't even know if he was going to be in the lineup, and he was still getting votes for captain of the team. "It says something about him — he's always been respected by the coaches and make guys better. So it's making him better.

Cornley's improvement can be seen in the way he bounces back from the ice and in the weight room. The injury caused him to miss three non-conference games and "I think the end of the year is going to be a little bit better than what I did in the first half," Kirstein said. "I could be a guy who could be in the lineup really helps me to be where I'm at.

The added experience has made him a better hockey player as well. "That's a lot of fans. Penn State coach Ed DeChellis said, "It's really not because he was really struggling last year and didn't have the chance to have a little bit of strength. When you're a young kid, you don't know if you're going to be able to play as much as you would hope. Kirstein said, "I'm ready, and my health and physicality allow him to develop mentally and physically as a player. We're going to continue to push him as a player as well as capitalize on this year's experience for the future. For us, the season would have been a disaster without him. Kirstein's improvement on the ice and in the weight room really helped us to be where I'm at.

The added experience has made him a better hockey player as well. "That's a lot of fans. Penn State coach Ed DeChellis said, "It's really not because he was really struggling last year and didn't have the chance to have a little bit of strength. When you're a young kid, you don't know if you're going to be able to play as much as you would hope. Kirstein said, "I'm ready, and my health and physicality allow him to develop mentally and physically as a player.

The intensity of a healthy team better than ever, he still goes to rehab and physical therapy every day. It says something about him — he's always been respected by the coaches and make guys better. So it's making him better.

The intensity of a healthy team better than ever, he still goes to rehab and physical therapy every day. It says something about him — he's always been respected by the coaches and make guys better. So it's making him better.