The Jefferson United Methodist Church Annual Pumpkin Patch has been treating rather than tricking the church congregation and the Baton Rouge community for almost five years.

Pumpkin patch chairman Carol Bourgeois said the money raised by selling the pumpkins fund the various missions and mission trips the church supports. The pumpkins are raised on a Native American reservation in New Mexico and then are loaded on huge conveyors to be transported to the Baton Rouge patch.

"I think we had something like 22,000 pounds of pumpkins this year," Bourgeois said.

In this classic Halloween favorite, the jolly children of the Peanuts cast embark on Halloween adventures while Linus and his blue blanket await the arrival of the "Great Pumpkin" in the pumpkin patch near his house. The movie is filled with timeless comedic moments centered around a silly plot that includes Snoopy flying his dog house as though he were the Red Baron and crashing it near the party the children are attending.

While music is the most important aspect of Voodoo, fashion has to be a close second.

Festivals give visitors the opportunity to try daring trends or dress up from the normal, day-to-day outfits.

However, whatever outfits you plan to sport, make sure they're comfortable. Try on what you're considering, and throw a little music festival in your bedroom. Walk, dance, sit — do everything you'll probably be doing during Voodoo. Also, make sure to accessorize the outfit with comfortable shoes and noncumbersome jewelry.

If the outfit passes the mini-festival test, it should be a good fit for Voodoo.

Next, don't afraid to be daring.

Voodoo lands on Halloween weekend, which means anything goes. If you want to wear a costume, do it. If you want to stick to what you'd normally

While clothing can be creative and fun, comfort should be the first thing to think about when planning a Voodoo outfit.

The hardest part of picking a wardrobe for a concert festival is finding the perfect mix of what looks good and what's comfortable enough to wear in a group of sweaty, jumping people for several hours.

Obviously, you want to be fashionable because a concert is a major social event. At the same time, there's nothing worse than being hot and miserable when you're trying to enjoy a band that you've been looking forward to seeing all year.

There are, however, a few ways in which a festivalgoer can maintain their sense of style while remaining cool and comfortable.

This is particularly easy for men.

Board shorts are one of the best options. These are swimsuit-style shorts, usually worn by surfers, that are a little less casual than typical swim trunks.

Board shorts often have a lot of pattern and design options with front and back pockets for
