Burns Hargis talked with The Daily O'Collegian Editorial Board on Wednesday about his plans for the university.

• OSU President Burns Hargis sat down with the O'Colly on Wednesday to talk construction, beer, parking and football.

FROM STAFF REPORTS

What are some of the things the administration is doing to cope with the largest freshman class in OSU history?

We think about that a lot. The acute problem is the residence halls. I think we can add faculty. You can't just do it instantly, though. We have classroom space, though it is not ideal. You can make sufficient use of those classrooms...What's difficult is the residence halls because you can't just magically wave your wand and have a new residence hall. So we're going to have to come up with some kind of strategy, one being that seniors can't live in the dorms. I don't know how many beds that frees up, it may not be enough. I do think it's very important for freshmen and sophomores, if they want to, to live in the dorms... We are going to do something with Kerr-Drummond in the next two or three years, and we will build a dorm where the current track facility is, but that's two or three years off.

What's your opinion on the Westwood Neighborhood Association's restrictions that are being implemented west of campus?

We just want Westwood to remain a viable neighborhood. It's a very important neighborhood. We don't want to happen there what happened on the north side of campus. To do that, it's important to have families living there. Certainly, students can still live there, but students are transitory. They're not going to be there very long. They don't own those places. So consequently, you want to be sure that the integrity of the neighborhood is honored and respected. We were very much in favor of the Westwood rules and regulations. Actually, Stillwater had a lack of restrictions that you commonly see in college towns. While it may have created some inconveniences, that's part of growing up. Life gets more inconvenient

What's your favorite beer?

I'm not a big beer drinker, honestly. I don't really drink enough to have a favorite. But, you know, I'm a pretty normal guy, so I'm probably a Bud Light guy.

What are your predictions for the football season?

I think we'll be a lot better than people think we are. I think the only reason we've been marked down is because we have a new quarter-back. And I think in almost every other area, we're already better than we were. That sounds kind of silly when you think about how we had Brandon Weeden throwing to Justin Blackmon. But I think overall, defensively and a lot of other positions, we're a lot stronger. I'd love to have those two back. But I think Wes Lunt is going to be a lot better as a freshman than people think he will be. He just has that demeanor about him. He kind of exudes confidence.

With all the construction going on around campus, is there a plan to make OSU's campus more bike friendly?

The answer is yes. My goal has been to get cars off campus as much as possible. And that's still my goal. But we do need to build more bike lanes. And people need to respect that it is a bike lane. Heck, I've walked on the bike lane and almost been run over. So we need to figure out the best way to do that. And I'd like to see a lot more of that in the City of Stillwater as well. With the parking problems, bikes become a real good option.

Have you spoken with Wes Lunt yet?

No, I haven't spoken with him yet. I'm anxious to, though. I'm sure I would enjoy it. I was impressed with his performance Saturday, but I'm anxious to see what happens in Tucson.

Football player misses court date Wednesday

• Defensive tackle Christian Littlehead pleaded guilty to possession of drug paraphernalia in February.

27, for possession of drug paraphernalia and received a six month deferred sentence, according to court documents.

The state attorney filed an application on Aug. 15 to accelerate Littlehead's deferred sentence after he was charged with assault and battery in Cherokee County in March, according to the application.

The assault and battery charge was dismissed the same day the application was filed.

Littlehead is punishable up to one year in prison, a fine of $1,000 or both if Stano finds him to be in violation of his probation.

In May, Littlehead was arrested in Tahlequah for public intoxication when police received a noise complaint, according to the report.

Littlehead must appear in court at 1:45 p.m. Friday or the warrant will be issued, an employee at the Payne County Clerk's Office said.

Poling's picks: Video Music Awards

By JAMES POLING
Senior Sports Reporter

The MTV Music Video Awards are upon us, the annual event where Britney Spears can kiss Madonna, Lady Gaga dresses up like a man and Kanye West will let you finish your speech after reminding everyone about those "Single Ladies."

Here are my predictions, as well as who I think should win, for Thursday's award ceremony (MTV, 7 p.m.).

Video of the Year

Who will win: Rihanna feat. Calvin Harris—"We Found Love"

Who should win: Gotye feat. Kimbra—"Somebody That I Used To Know"

"We Found Love" will win because it appears to be a short story on Rihanna's past relationship with Chris Brown. Everyone (unfortunately) knows about the story, and it portrays it well while having great animations for an upbeat song.

But "Somebody That I Used To Know" has 313 million views on YouTube, which is more views than the number of people living in the United States. Plus, it took 23 hours of body painting Gotye and Kimbra based on an art resembling the album cover that was inspired by Gotye's father. What else does it take to win this award?

Best New Artist:

Who will win: Carly Rae Jepsen—"Call Me Maybe"

Who should win: Carly Rae Jepsen—"Call Me Maybe"

"Hey, I just heard you, and this is crazy, but here's my video, so vote me maybe." Wow, I just made a parody of the chorus and it probably is already stuck in your head. Catchy.

In other unrelated news, this is the first time in about five years Wiz Khalifa isn't nominated for this award. Finally, someone got the memo about the definition of "new."

Best Pop Video

Who will win: One Direction—"What Makes You Beautiful"

Who should win: Rihanna feat. Calvin Harris—"We Found Love"

I think fun.'s "We Are Young" would have been the dark horse here, but ripping up a stuffed horse definitely lost it PETA's support. Maroon 5's "Payphone" would be the runaway favorite for most unrealistic video of the year.

The other two videos, Justin Bieber's "Boyfriend" and One Direction's "What Makes You Beautiful," are the two I have issues with. My entire life I've been told women only liked older guys because they were more mature. Now they are going GaGa (no Lady pun intended) over these boys who are barely legal. Our generation sucks.

Best Rock Video

Who will win: The Black Keys—"Lonely Boy"

Who should win: The Black Keys—"Lonely Boy"

Process of elimination time: All that Linkin Park's "Burn It Down" was, was a camera rotating around a motionless band. Coldplay's "Paradise" and Imagine Dragons "It's Time" tried to develop somewhat of a plot, but my only reaction was a sarcastic, "Cool story, bro."

Jack White's "Sixteen Salines" is a little kid revolution, but they killed White at the end of the video (spoiler alert) and thus ruined any hypothetical chance of a White Stripes reunion.

Therefore, congrats to The Black Stripes for using one camera shot of a guy getting his groove on to their song. Sometimes keeping it simple wins you a MTV award.

Best Hip-Hop Video

Who will win: Jay-Z and Kanye West—"Nias in Paris"

Who should win: Jay-Z and Kanye West—"Nias in Paris"

Not only is "Paris" the greatest mainstream hit this century, the editing in the video was one of the most amazing feats I've seen. It used a live performance and added a mix of Photo Booth effects to make everyone's jaw drop in awe.

This pick is a runaway despite being in what I think is the strongest group of nominees. Hopefully it won't be awkward when Jay-Z accepts the award and Kanye takes the mic to say, "Mercy" was one of the best videos of all-time."

Best Male Video

Who will win: Frank Ocean—"Swim Good"

Who should win: Frank Ocean—"Swim Good"

So I have to pick between two depressing videos ("Swim Good" and "Climax"), Justin Bieber, Drake and Rihanna holding each other and a hungover Chris Brown dancing next to a panda mask guy (PETA just called again).

I give the edge to Ocean, who decided to drive next to an ocean (coincidentally) for the first two minutes to make the scenery at least nice before being depressing.

Best Female Video

Who will win: Rihanna feat. Calvin Harris—"We Found Love"

Who should win: Katy Perry—"Part of Me"

This is going to be the award where every sane person will mutter as the envelope is opened, "Please not Starships." Please not 'Starships'.

Picking Katy Perry was extremely difficult for me. I try not to let looks decide my picks, but it's hard not to with Perry after "California Gurls" where she almost showed her... well, never mind. But "Part of Me," despite a strong message, was the anti-"California Gurls," with Perry cutting off most of her hair. Then again, it should win because it wasn't "Starships."

Nology fest shows off latest technology

By SALEAH BLANCAFLOR

Student Union Reporter

Yesterday, the Student Union was filled with the latest technology gadgets from the hottest vendors around.

Nology Fest, which had the purpose of promoting technology through interactivity and education, kicked off at 10 a.m. in the Student Union Atrium with numerous vendors that had booths set up for people to come up and test their products and sign up for raffle tickets to win free merchandise. The vendors present were Moshi, The Douglas Stewart Co., Kicker, Dell and many more. OrangeTech, the host of the event, also had its own booth set up and gave away several products from headphones to iPhone cases and iPads.

OrangeTech supervisor Chris Peters said several people came to the Atrium to check out the booths.

"It was a very busy and exciting day," Peters said. "It was very popular with the classes. Meridian Tech brought over a big group of over a hundred high school students to attend."

At the event, there was an NCAA and Call of Duty tournament that went on throughout the day.

"Semi-finals and finals of the tournaments will be hosted in the plaza of the Union sometime later on in the week depending on the players' schedules," Peters said. "The winner will be announced on the Facebook page and be able to claim their prize later on."

One of the vendors present at Nology Fest was nuCourse Distribution, which has more than 100 product lines. Jayce Ralph, higher education sales representative for nuCourse, came all the way from South Beach, CA., to interview students about ways OrangeTech can improve their products and to showcase their newest merchandise.

"One of our premiere items is LifeProof," Ralph said. "It's an iPhone case that you can drop into water or drop in the sand. You can pretty much do anything to it, except set it on fire and it will be protected."

Christine Grundmann, a mechanical engineering super senior, was one of the students who stopped by the event and won an anti-glare visor at the Moshi booth and said she enjoyed meeting with all the different vendors.

"I liked the event and if they do it again next year like the, I feel like it would be a lot bigger," Grundmann said. "Technology is definitely something that students will always be interested in."

Bryson Baker, the manager of OrangeTech, said he was happy with the turnout of people and thinks people are more aware of what it does.

"I think we've raised peoples' awareness about OrangeTech," Baker said. "A lot of people didn't know what we were or what we were about or had to offer, but now we're really on their spectrum."

He said wants Nology Fest an event that will continue in the future.

"We received a lot of feedback from the vendors to make this better for next year," Baker said. "So I'm hoping it could be an annual thing."

SNAP helps city maintenance

By ZACH COLE

Student Services Reporter

If there is a problem in Stillwater, put down the phone and get on the Internet.

The City of Stillwater recently launched an online service request form to better serve its residents' maintenance needs. Many cities have such online request forms already in place.

What is unique about the Stillwater Needs Assistance Program is that it is interactive. Residents are able to post maintenance problems online and track progress on a Google Map. Anyone can view pending or previous requests on the website.

It is not possible for the city to be aware of all the myriad problems that are a daily issue for any city maintenance crew, which is why the system is in place.

City spokesperson Sherry Fletcher said the city wanted more feedback from its residents.

"Oftentimes, we don't know that there is a problem," Fletcher said.

The website can more efficiently handle service requests than a call center, provided residents are aware of the service.

Dorothy Nixon, a retired staff member at the College of Arts and Sciences was vaguely familiar with the new service.

"I'd probably call the city rather than (use SNAP)," Nixon said.

The city is targeting a more tech-savvy crowd. It plans to roll out a mobile version of the service request site in the coming months.

Solomon Throckmorton, an Oklahoma State alumnus, said he was not aware of SNAP.

"If the problem was severe enough and it was necessary I would rather use SNAP (than call the city)," Throckmorton said.

The city has not experienced a shift in the way that residents make service requests since the release of the system. The city is trying to spread awareness of the availability of SNAP through its YouTube channel (youtube.com/CityofStillwaterOK), cable channel (Suddenlink 23) and the city website (http://stillwater.org/snap).

OSU forward reflects on her commitment

CORIE WILKENSEN/O'COLLEGIAN

Megan Marchesano dribbles the ball at Cowgirl Soccer Complex. Marchesano has 21 career goals at Oklahoma State, which is the most in OSU history.

By JARED EMERSON
Sports Reporter

A simple conversation with her father: that's what it took for forward Megan Marchesano to decide to attend Oklahoma State and join the Cowgirl soccer team.

Marchesano, a Bixby native, said she wanted to get out of Oklahoma. Although Oklahoma State was interested in her, she had visited Pepperdine, UCLA and other schools in California.

Her club soccer team, the Lonestars Soccer Club '91, was playing in a tournament in California when the talk began with her dad.

"He told me 'It would be so awesome if you could go out here, but I'm never going to be able to see you play,'" Marchesano said. "That really made the decision for me. I'm really close to my family.

"My parents have been such a big part of my life. It was my junior year when I decided I wanted to stay close to home and obviously Oklahoma State was a great program and a great school so it was a good fit."

Marchesano joined the Cowgirls in 2009 and immediately made an impact, playing in 17 games her freshman season and scored her first of her 21 career goals against SMU.

She said the transition from high school to college is difficult for some student athletes because more is expected at the collegiate level.

Luckily for Megan, she said there were older members of the team who set a good example on and off the field.

"I really looked up to (former Oklahoma State player)

Sierra Strawser a lot," Marchesano said. "She was a senior when I was a freshman and she went to my high school in Bixby. Sierra always made good grades and always did well on the field. She was a great person and great player."

Fast-forward three years and it's Marchesano's turn to set the example. She is the active leader in career goals and assists for the Cowgirls, with 21 and 15. The 15 assists puts her in the top 10 in school history.

Coach Colin Carmichael said her success is a product of the hard work she's put in every year.

"She worked so hard in the offseason, in the weight room and on her fitness," Carmichael said. "She's a stronger kid—you can look at her and see a difference physically. She's developed into a really aggressive forward. She's able to hold the ball better for us, and I just think all around she's become a better player."

Marchesano she says one of her favorite goals was her sophomore year in the NCAA Tournament.

The Cowgirls were playing Duke for the right to advance to the Elite Eight.

Marchesano said her ankles had been bothering her and she didn't start, but when Carmichael asked her to go in, she was ready.

"He put me in, and I think it was maybe five to 10 minutes I got the ball and end up beating three defenders and scoring our first goal," Marchesano said. "I remember being so proud of myself because I could have sat there and made excuses."

When people think of forwards, goal scoring comes to mind, and Marchesano has done plenty of that. But her assist total is something Carmichael said is more telling of Marchesano.

"You never put a number on it, because you can create a ton of goals without actually scoring," Carmichael said. "But the fact she has a ton of assists and goals really speaks for how hard she works and how active she is up front."

Marchesano's impact is not limited to the score sheet, either. She was named one of the Cowgirls' four captains, as well as stepped into the vocal leadership role vacated with the loss of Melinda Mercado and a few other seniors.

"When you have a lot of new girls coming in, there are a lot of people trying to figure out what's going on," Marchesano said. "You have to talk with them and work with them and be able to have that positive mentality to help. I think when you have that it kind of spreads around the team.

"So if I can be vocal and help them out in some way, they can help each other and hopefully that spreads and helps us become better as a team."

When Marchesano joined the Cowgirls, they had just completed their third straight season with an NCAA appearance. Although the program was consistent, it was not recognized as elite.

Since then, Oklahoma State has turned into a regular presence in the later rounds of the NCAA Tournament and is a familiar sight near the top of the rankings in the country.

Marchesano said her favorite thing about playing for OSU has been turning the team into a national contender every year.

She said the team should take pride in that not everyone on the team is part of a national team, but everyone worked hard to get the program where it is.

"To be able to watch each year as the team improves, and see how much the individuals have improved and the program has shifted in the past few years," Marchesano said. "That's probably the most exciting part. That's something we'll be able to look back on and be like, 'Man, we did that, that was our team, that was really cool.'"

Daily Horoscope

By Nancy Black
Tribune Media Services (MCT)

Today's Birthday (09/06/12). This year is great for your career. Get clear about what you want and ask for it. Let go of stuff you don't need. Family and friends keep you grounded. An autumn discovery tempts you to a course of study.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) -- Today is a 5 -- For about five weeks, you're even luckier than usual, and your artistic creativity increases. Keep concentrating on your studies. Make a romantic promise that you'll enjoy fulfilling.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) -- Today is a 7 -- You should be able to see clearly what needs to be done ... no need to be overwhelmed. Now is a good time for making money, so brainstorm ideas. Maintain objectivity, if possible.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) -- Today is a 5 -- Conditions are excellent for expansion now in a loving context. For about four weeks, your curiosity will be more insatiable than usual. Trust your heart to lead you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) -- Today is a 6 -- Gather up the harvest as quickly as possible, with some help. It'll be easier to make money for the next few weeks, but don't buy toys yet. It's not a good time to travel.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) -- Today is a 6 -- Romance awaits, and you're especially good-looking during this period. Answer the call of the wild. You have willing helpers nearby; rely on them. Listen for feedback.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- Today is a 6 -- You'll have sweeter dreams for the next few weeks. Fantasies abound and are achievable. Don't reveal your secrets all at once. There's beauty in anticipation. Get into action.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) -- Today is a 5 -- You're very popular, but your social life could cause a problem at home. Your career could benefit from the new contacts you make. Balance.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) -- Today is a 6 -- New opportunities arise over the next three weeks. Take a few days to store away provisions, as many as you can. Then go rejuvenate an old bond.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) -- Today is a 5 -- For the next month, it's easier to get away. All is not as it appears, however. Negotiate a trade. New possibilities develop while this lasts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- Today is a 7 -- Easier on more work, and make no expensive promises. It's easier to save now. Get family to help. You have more together than you do apart.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) -- Today is a 7 -- For the next five weeks, delegate as much as possible. Investigate long-term partnerships. Don't fall for a trick; look beyond attractive results. Instead, seek balance. Compassion increases.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) -- Today is a 6 -- Work is more fun and gets easier for the next few weeks. You're very attractive now. You don't have to know everything yet. Your past work speaks well for you.
