BEST PLACE FOR PIZZA

They say there's no such thing as a free lunch, and unless there's a giveaway involved, they're probably right. But they never said that there's no such thing as a $1 lunch. Partially because that's a horrible saying, but also because it's simply untrue.

No, this is not a drill; and no, you're not reading fake news. HotBox Pizza is bringing back $1 Slice Day on April 19.

Promotions like this and tasty and affordable pizza are why readers voted HotBox Pizza the Best Pizza on campus again this year.

AJ's Burgers started out as two guys who had high expectations of what college students wanted to eat.

Growing up, they indulged in Chicago's traditional style of dining: good 'ol burgers, hot dogs and Italian beef. Two specialties that are vital to their menu are the garlic cheeseburger and seasoned waffle fries. The remaining portion of the menu was decided by taking inspiration from Chicago's classic cuisine. They have also added new twists such as tangy barbecue and buffalo sauces to traditional chicken sandwiches and wings.

BEST PLACE TO DANCE

The Neon Cactus has been starting off Boiler Weekends on a Thursday for over two decades. Drive up State Street hill in the early evening any Thursday and you will see groups of students and residents alike walking down the hill with bright neon mugs in hand to spend the night dancing, singing and enjoying great drink specials all night long. One of the largest club venues in the Greater Lafayette area, the Neon Cactus has been providing great live entertainment, dancing and activities for students and community members since 1992, when it opened its doors as a country themed dance club.

After a decade of being open, the owners – Jim and Sheila Cochran – realized that to better meet the needs of Purdue students and all of its guests, the format was changed to focus on popular dance and rock music, and the expansion and continuation of the longest running live act in the area, Bruce “The Piano Man” Barker in the Rusty Bucket Piano Bar!

The owners and management continually focus on meeting the needs of the diversity of the area's population, providing themed nights such as Latin Night, EDM nights with visiting national and local DJ acts, and country nights to get back to their roots. Community and University involvement also plays a large part in developing their scheduled events, supporting multiple student and community fundraisers by raising thousands of dollars each year for these groups with cup sales and special fundraisers.

With over 22,000 square feet of space guests can dance all night in the main room to one of 3 in-house DJs, or get SOCIAL! with Bruce in

Chocolate factory comes to northern Indiana city

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — A city in northern Indiana will get a new chocolate production facility and two museums, one with chocolate exhibits and artifacts.

The South Bend Tribune reported that South Bend Chocolate Co. will purchase more than 70 acres of undeveloped land from the city for $1. The purchase agreement being considered requires the company to spend at least $5 million within five years to develop the buildings, totaling at least 60,000 square feet. The agreement will be discussed by the city's Redevelopment Commission at its regular Thursday meeting.

Company president Mark Tarner said he hopes to break ground within a year or two, after receiving approval from the Federal Aviation Administration. The site is close to South Bend International Airport.

Tarner will eventually close an existing production plant and small chocolate museum on Sample Street. The historic building housing the old plant limits the automation needed to be competitive. Once the new location opens and Sample Street closes, Tarner said he expects to hire a larger workforce.

"Wait 'til you see this; it's going to be good," Tarner said. "I hope we'll provide some new vision for jobs and growth on the west side of South Bend."

Tarner founded the company in 1991 and now has 13 company-owned stores in northern Indiana. There are also four franchised locations in Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Harry Potter play works magic with 9 wins at Olivier awards

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON — J.K. Rowling's boy wizard bewitched the page and the screen, and stage sequel "Harry Potter and the Cursed Child" cast its spell at British theater's Olivier Awards on Sunday. "Cursed Child" won a record nine prizes, including best new play, at Britain's equivalent of Broadway's Tonys.

Hilariously repetitive comedy "Groundhog Day" was named best new musical.

The plot for the Harry Potter play picks up 19 years from where Rowling's last novel left off.

It depicts Harry and his friends as adults and follows the adventures of their offspring at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry.

Written by Jack Thorne from a story co-written by Rowling, it has been a critical hit and box-office behemoth since opening in July at London's Palace Theatre, and plans are afoot to send it to Broadway next year.

But star Jamie Parker, who won the best-actor prize for playing the adult Harry, said success — and the embrace of Potter fans — had not been a foregone conclusion.

"There was so much potential for cynicism and skepticism surrounding a production which could have been very tightly controlled and industrial and commercially minded," Parker said.

But talent, hard work and oodles of stage magic prevailed.

"I'm just so pleased and proud that the entire team are being celebrated," Parker said backstage during the ceremony at London's Royal Albert Hall.

The show dominated Sunday's awards, scooping prizes for sets, lighting, sound, costumes, best director for John Tiffany and three acting awards, as well as best play.

Parker beat rivals including Ian McKellen and Ed Harris to the best-actor prize. Noma Dumezweni took the supporting-actress prize for playing the grown-up Hermione Granger, and Anthony Boyle was named best supporting actor as Scorpius Malfoy, son of Harry's childhood enemy Draco Malfoy.

Swaziland-born Dumezweni said she was honored to play Hermione, one of Rowling's most beloved characters. Some had questioned the casting of a black actress in the role, played onscreen by Emma Watson — though Rowling pointed out that Hermione's race is never specified in the books.

"So many young actors and actresses come up to me and say, 'I'm so pleased that you're playing her. I'm so pleased that I can see a version of myself onstage,'" Dumezweni said. "So I am very, very privileged to do that."

The play has drawn thousands of first-time theatergoers to the West End, and Thorne said he hoped it would be "like a gateway drug that will get people involved in theater."

In other categories, Billie Piper was named best actress for playing a woman whose desire for a baby leads to tragedy in "Yerma" at the tiny Young Vic.

The play, adapted by Simon Stone from a Federico Garcia Lorca drama, was named best revival.

Piper beat nominees including Glenda Jackson for "King Lear" and Ruth Wilson for "Hedda Gabler."

"Groundhog Day," which began life at London's Old Vic and is now previewing on Broadway, was named best new musical. The show by Tim Minchin and Danny Rubin wittily reworks the much-loved 1993 movie about a cynical weatherman doomed to repeat the same day over and over again.

Andy Karl was named best actor in a musical for his performance in the lead role, made famous onscreen by Bill Murray.

Former "Glee" star Amber Riley was named best actress in a musical for a powerhouse performance in "Dreamgirls," and her co-star Adam J. Bernard was named best supporting actor in a musical. Best supporting actress in a musical was Rebecca Trehearn for "Show Boat."

Composer Andrew Lloyd-Webber saw two of his musicals take awards. The child rockers of "School of Rock The Musical" won the prize for outstanding achievement in music, while an open-air production of "Jesus Christ Superstar" in London's Regent's Park was named best musical revival.

Actor-director Kenneth Branagh received a special award for his contribution to theater during the black-tie ceremony.

Named for the late British actor Laurence Olivier, the prizes honor achievements in London theater, musicals, dance and opera. Winners in most categories are chosen by a panel of stage professionals and theatergoers.

The Oliviers have become an increasingly glitzy affair in recent years, awarded at a ceremony studded with musical numbers. Sunday's event had the added boost of radiant sunshine for a positively summery red carpet.

Celebrities walking the carpet and handing out trophies included "Star Wars" actor John Boyega, Oscar winner Mark Rylance, "The Good Wife" star Cush Jumbo and "Hamilton" creator Lin-Manuel Miranda.
