Thanksgiving is just around the corner, and all of us at Wintek hope you enjoy the holiday! Everyone’s Thanksgiving traditions differ; if that’s there are any one we all thank about over the holiday, it’s finding something good to watch. Sometimes you’re in a hurry dinner and need a show to watch as you cook. Perhaps you just need a few minutes of something so you can occupy yet another another something else going on in your life at the moment. A viewing party is an essential part of your family. Whatever you need to watch this Thanksgiving, Wintek won’t let you bring it. Thanks to our partnership with MyBundleTV, you can get free personalized recommendations for streaming content based on movies and shows you like and the- services you use. Even if you’re traveling — and temporarily leaving behind the comfort of your home—MyBundleTV’s internet service — MybundleTV is a great tool anyone can use to see what’s now and what’s popular on Netflix, HBO Max, Amazon Prime Video, Hulu, Apple+, Disney+, etc.

Be the hero of your holiday and register for free at mybundle.tv to populate your long- awaited wish list. Want a few suggestions to get started? Check out Wintek’s November streaming picks below!

• The Mountain They Fell (Netflix) is a star- studded Western featuring a primarily Black cast.
• Jeremy Renner and Tatiana Steilknork star in “Handsome” (Disney+), a story that explores the same themed universe as Loki.
• Adapted from the Tony Award-winning play, “The Humans” (Showtime) might make you feel better about your own Thanksgiving.
• “King Richard” (HBO Max) will star Smith as the father to tennis prodigies Venus and Serena Williams.
• “The Shrink Next Door” (AppleTV+) reunions Paul Rudd and Will Forte in a darkly comic story about the relationship between a celebrity psychiatrist and his long-suffering patient.
• “The Harder They Fall” (Netflix) is a star- studded Western featuring a primarily Black cast.
• Jeremy Renner and Hailee Steinfeld star in “Hawkeye” (Disney+), a streaming series that continues the epic Marvel universe odyssey.
• “The Humans” (Showtime) might make you feel better about your own Thanksgiving.
• “King Richard” (HBO Max) will star Smith as the father to tennis prodigies Venus and Serena Williams.

Bike officers offer tips for two-wheeled, pedestrian safety

BY JILLIAN ELLISON
Exponent Advertising Department

As the number of wheeled vehicles has increased on campus, shared spaces with pedestrians and cars has become more tricky to navigate. But there are plenty of tips for cyclists and pedestrians to stay safe.

Geoff Carlson and Wilcher Smith are two Purdue University Police Department (PUPD) officers who were assigned to full-time bike patrol in August of this year. In fact, a number of officers have been certified to support the increasing number of wheeled traffic and pedestrianism on campus.

Carlson said the number one violation they see cyclist make is running stop signs. “Running a stop sign on a bicycle is no different than running a stop sign in a car,” Carlson said. “The rule is the same as it is for motorists. We carry registration forms with us so we can get people registered.” Carlson said, “It goes a long way if your bike is stolen, because it gives us a lot of information. If we find a bike, we have the ability to get it back to that person.”

Carlson said there are tips for bike on campus should register the bike with PUPD. “We carry registration forms with us so we can get people registered,” Carlson said. “It goes a long way if your bike is stolen, because it gives us a lot of information. If we find a bike, we have the ability to get it back to that person.”

“Now there has been an increase in cyclists on campus in recent years, integrated into roadways and within campus. It’s a much better system, and the focus has become heavy on pedestrians now as well,” like the closure of “Third Street to Veterans,” said, “a pedestrian priority zone.” “We needed to keep up with the demand, because there are so many things sharing the roadways and intersections now. You’ve got robots, scooters, skateboards, motorized couches… you just have to be alert and aware of your surroundings.”

Winter makes for skidier conditions, and Carlson said his advice for cyclists is the same for motorists. “Be aware of the conditions. If you don’t feel safe doing it, don’t do it. Snow can get dangerous as long as you abide by traffic laws as well,” Smith. “We’re here to promote safety for cyclists, too, which we can’t get enough of on campus. If you feel better about your own Thanksgiving. (Continued on page 2)