Worner Named Senior Vice President at First State Bank

Lee Garlach, Chairman of First State Bank, recently announced that Keith Worner has been named Senior Vice President, Commercial Banking Division Manager. Keith is responsible for First State's commercial banking division.

Keith Worner

Keith joined the bank in 2015 after serving middle market business and commercial clients in the St. Louis metro area.

While in St. Louis, Keith also volunteered with Rise Community Development, an organization providing capacity-building technical assistance and training to community development organizations, government agencies and institutions in the Greater St. Louis area.

Keith earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Northern Iowa and his MBA from St. Louis University. At UNI, Keith was also a pitcher on the Northern Iowa baseball team.

Keith's wife, Jennifer (Larsen) Worner, is a general dentist in practice with her father, Christopher Larsen, on 41st Street in Moline. Keith and Jennifer reside in Coal Valley.

"We are pleased to have Keith lead our team of commercial bankers, who provide best-in-class commercial banking products and services to the Quad Cities area," said Garlach. "Our growth continues because of our core values: (1) Direct access to the bank's decision makers who are some of the best business and mortgage bankers and advisers in the industry; (2) The first bank in the region to bring the latest cutting edge technology in banking to its customers; and (3) Innovative and responsible financial solutions to enable clients access to the funding they need to make their dreams become reality."

First State Bank opened its doors as a commercial bank 112 years ago in 1904. Today, the bank operates with ten banking centers located in communities throughout central and western Illinois and eastern Iowa including Bettendorf, Peoria, Pekin, Macomb, Monmouth, Carthage, LaHarpe, Hamilton, Blandinsville and Colusa, Illinois.
