Charles Arnoldi: Untitled 1990, pen and gouache on brown chipboard

Charlotte Jackson Fine Art, 554 S. Guadalupe St., 505-989-8688
David Chickey, publisher of Radius Books, curates Charles Arnoldi: Looking Back, Moving Forward in advance of Radius' forthcoming release Charles Arnoldi: Paper. Arnoldi is known for large-scale pieces. However, his lesser known, small-scale works on paper, featured in the exhibit, are fully-realized, complex compositions that incorporate hard-edge abstraction, linear, and curvilinear forms. The show is on view through Oct. 10.

Mary Silverwood: Chaco Series No. 52 2006, pastel

Ventana Fine Art, 400 Canyon Road, 1-800-746-8815
The landscapes of Barry McCuan and the architectural pastels and landscapes of Mary Silverwood (1932-2011) make up Sunlit Splendor, a vibrant exhibition of two distinctive but related visions. "Composition and color are the most important aspects of my paintings," wrote Silverwood. "I draw upon the shades and tones of nature, but I like to exaggerate them, dramatizing the emotional exuberance that the landscape conveys to me." McCuan's plein-air paintings, too, are inspired by the innate beauty of nature and he works close to sunset and sunrise to capture distinctive qualities of light and color. The show opens with a 5 p.m. reception on Friday, Sept. 18.

Bill Georgenes: Nightscape #3 1993, acrylic on canvas

Santa Fe Community College Visual Arts Gallery, 6401 Richards Ave., 505-428-1501
Santa Fe-based artist Bill Georgenes' paintings are dense, abstract, patterned compositions rendered in a multitude of colors. His figurative mixed-media sculptures are collected into compact reliefs. Unity & Multitude, an exhibition of the artist's recent works as well as selections from throughout his career, is on view through Oct. 22.

Courtney M. Leonard: Artifice 2015, hand-built ceramic using micaceous clay

Studio Central, 508 Camino de la Familia, 505-974-6122
Local artists Frank Buffalo Hyde, Courtney M. Leonard, and Marina Eskeets team up with artists David Sloan and Shane Nichols for coLAB3: Manifest, the third in a series of exhibits based on artistic collaboration. The show, made up of small ceramic works, opens Friday, Sept. 18 with a 5 p.m. reception. Visitors can also view Axle Contemporary's current exhibit Slices of Wonder, as Axle's mobile gallery is parked in front of Studio Central during the reception. Buffalo Hyde also gives painting demonstrations at the Railyard from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 20, as part of the AHA Festival of Progressive Arts.

EXHIBITIONISM

A PEEK AT WHAT'S SHOWING AROUND TOWN

Mark Horst: Children Playing Ring Around the Rosie 2 2015, oil on canvas

Canyon Road Contemporary Art, 403 Canyon Road, 505-983-0433

Mark Horst's figurative paintings capture tender moments of domesticity, family life, and play that transcend time and place. His paintings, often depicting day-to-day scenes in developing nations, have a sense of the ephemerality of life. "I've tried to paint them with a kind of fierceness — by letting the image speak its beauty without veiling it in sentiment or prettiness," he writes. The exhibit Mark Horst: A Fierce Beauty opens Friday, Sept. 18, with a 5 p.m. reception.
