Oil Heritage Festival gets into the groove

July 24 — 30, 2015

Oil Heritage is a crowd pleaser

Festival's theme is a celebration of the '60s

By LEISEL KOBER
Staff writer

The annual Oil Heritage Festival is back with more food, crafts and concerts in downtown Oil City.

"It's always exciting to see the same events come back again and again," said Susan Williams, executive director of the Venango chamber of commerce.

The four-day event kicked off Thursday with celebrations like the annual Children's Parade.

There was music and fun activities for all ages at the Central Avenue Plaza on opening night of the festival, including the FLEX Ice Cream Social and a concert by Mostly Brass.

"I really do think it's just the combination of that old-town festival in the plaza (that draws crowds)," Williams said.

Thursday's events ended with a bluegrass concert by Border Ride.

The Artisan and Fine Arts Crafts Festival is sure to bring crowds to Seneca Street today and Saturday, Williams said.

"We have more craft vendors this year than we have in several years," she said.

Williams pointed out a new addition to this year's lineup is a wine vendor that will set up shop in Pipeline Alley offering wine tastings during the craft festival.

"(It has) a possibility that it could grow in future years if it goes well," Williams said.

"We get really good feedback from our crafters, particularly how well treated (they are) and the hospitality," Williams said. "We hope (crafters) go away having lots of sales, but that seems to be secondary to their experience."

Throughout the festival Oil Heritage art shows will be taking place in the National Transit Annex Building.

Many favorite events like the St. Stephen Church Heritage Festival and the parade return for this year's Oil Heritage Festival.

Williams said there will be a dedication ceremony at noon today to celebrate the completion of a city park at the location of the former Brody block.

"It'll be a thank you to all of those who sponsored and supported (the Town Square)," Williams said.

The Oil City Firefighters 5K will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. The location for the run has changed from the bike trail back to West First Street.

"Last year we moved it to the bike trail and by popular demand we moved it back," Williams said. "It's a much better place for spectators."

The Oil Heritage Festival parade will step off at 5 p.m. Saturday with about 60 entries so far, Williams said earlier this week.

Williams said the parade will highlight this year's theme, which is a celebration of 50 years ago — the 1960s.

"Fifty years ago," she said. "We look back and think, 'Ah, those were the days,'" Williams said.

The theme is also shown on the annual festival button with the image of oil droplets in the shape of a flower. People can purchase buttons at headquarters on Seneca Street or at various businesses.

Brooke Kellogg will serve as the new emcee for the Oil Heritage Festival.

Music during the festival will be provided by local bands Route 8 and Two for Flinching tonight and Lawyers, Guns and Money on Saturday night. The bands will play at Justus Park.

"We are proud to have the Carl-Brozowski Bandshell host two nights of concerts," Williams said.

There will be fireworks at dusk Saturday.

Grandma John's polish picnic at Steven's and Standard Memorial Park will return to the schedule. It is set for 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday.

The annual raft race will start at 11 a.m. Sunday. Participants will start at Henry's Bend and float down the Allegheny River to Justus Park.

"The raft race is always fun," Williams said.

The annual car and motorcycle cruise will be held from noon until 4 p.m. Sunday along Seneca Street.

Polish food and music will be featured at the final event of the festival. The Polish Festival will be held at Justus Park on Sunday night.

"I don't know how anyone could come down and think there isn't something to do," Williams said.

Art show scheduled July 31

Artist Sam Roberts will hold a solo show from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, July 31, at the Blue Tree Studio in Oil City. The show is titled "Sincerely Yours."

Roberts, a fine arts painting and drawing major at Montserrat College of Art, is working as an intern with local artist Margaret Brostrom.

His work consists of portraiture, landscape, figurative and abstract pieces.

"I draw inspiration from my own life experiences, the people I've met, family and friends and places I've visited that I've come to call home," Roberts said.

"In coming to Oil City I was baffled at how open, relaxing and rural the area was," he said. "This seemed like a perfect place to work."

The show will consist of a mix of people and places from Massachusetts and Oil City.

Roberts said although his pieces consist of people who he has come to know and has built relationships with, he realized that it is not the exact same experience for the viewer.

"I try to make the piece have that general feel of what that person represents," he said. "I try not make the person too distinct in terms of who they are exactly, but distinct enough for the viewer to relate to the role of what that person plays and the mood the piece gives off."

Musical

COOK FOREST — The Knox Community Theatre, Act I, will present "Something's Afoot" at 8 p.m. today and Saturday, at the Sawmill center's Verna Leith Theatre.

About the show: A zany, entertaining musical that takes a satirical poke at Agatha Christie mysteries and musical styles of the English music hall in the 1930s, the tale is set at Lord Rancour's isolated country estate. During a raging thunderstorm, 10 people are stranded on an island, where one by one they're picked off by cleverly fiendish devices. As the bodies pile up in the library, the survivors frantically race to uncover the identity and motivation of the cunning culprit.

Directed by Rae Saver (Lettie), the cast includes John Greenawalt (Flint), Laura Blake (Tweed), Clark Wise (the Colonel), Beth Saylor (Grace), Liz Saver (Hope), Claire Saylor (the Doctor), Eli Busch (Clive), Adam Pastorik (Nigel), and Jonah Landfried (Geoffrey), who assume they are invited to enjoy a quiet weekend in the country. The ensuing mayhem builds to a surprising conclusion.

Tickets are $15 and are available by calling (814) 927-5275.

Battle background

Remagen, Germany, is a small town located on the West bank of the Rhine River. Its layout and size are very similar to Tidioute and Rhine River is similar in size to the Allegheny River. The terrain features of Remagen, Germany, look very much like the Allegheny Region, with the rolling mountains, deep valleys and several ridges. The bridge at Remagen was named after a German hero, thus the name Ludendorff Bridge which was about 700 feet long. Just a little longer than the Tidioute Bridge which is 551 feet in length. The German Ludendorff Bridge was the only bridge across the Rhine River that was captured by American forces during World War II.

It was 1945, the allied forces were on the offense and the German army was in full retreat. Lead elements of the 9th Armored Division arrived on a hill overlooking Remagen and the Ludendorff Bridge. Lt. Timmerman lead the column assigned to capture the town. To their surprise they found the bridge intact with the German army still retreating across it. The bridge at Remagen was the last remaining bridge on the Rhine River. Either the advancing allied armies or the retreating German army had destroyed all of the other bridges on the River.

Orders were to "Capture the Bridge." Lt. Timmerman's column led by a company of Infantry, advanced into the lightly defended village and quickly made their way to the bridge. Between 3 and 4 p.m. the Germans were on the other side of the Rhine River and they detonated the charges that were already in place. These explosives blew, lifting the bridge off its foundation. When the smoke cleared the bridge was still intact and still standing. History was made that day and the following day as a sign was placed on the bridge that read, "Cross the Rhine with Dry Feet, Courtesy of the 9th Armored Division." Ten days later the bridge collapsed, killing many of the combat engineers who were trying to repair the bridge. Hundreds of G.I.'s were killed and wounded fighting to protect this bridge.

Movie Review: 'Ant-Man'

Small-scale hero provides big-scale fun

Second chances are not opportunities to waste in "Ant-Man," an exciting blend of superhero adventure and heist film from director Peyton Reed. Bringing one of Marvel Comics lesser-known characters to the screen, the story follows Scott Lang (Paul Rudd), a disgraced engineer recently out of prison who wants to be the hero his daughter already believes he is.

In need of work, Scott agrees to a final heist at the home of scientist Hank Pym (Michael Douglas). But instead of money, he finds an old costume that allows him to shrink to the size of an insect. Impressed with his abilities, Hank and his daughter, Hope (Evangeline Lilly), recruit Scott to become the Ant-Man, and take on a final mission: Steal back Hank's shrinking research from company rival Darren Cross (Corey Stoll), to prevent the technology from falling into the hands of evil men.

Taking a step back from the global scale of Marvel's other films such as "The Avengers," "Ant-Man" focuses on the interactions between its characters, using precise dialogue to convey their emotions. The film's strength lies in the natural performances of its cast. The most enjoyable, realistic moments occur any time Rudd, Douglas, and Lilly share the screen. The three combine strong, well-written lines with engaging characterizations, blending both humor and tragedy.

What follows is a narrative scale that mainly focuses on one character: Rudd's Scott Lang as he is forced to don the Ant-Man suit due to extenuating circumstances. The world is not in danger this time; instead Scott's immediate life is at threat. The writers portray him as a "typical" protagonist, the everyman you could find running a cash register, and display his intelligence and clever thought process. This set-up crafts a believable character with actions and goals the audience can find relatable.

However as soon as the writers throw in references to Marvel's other films, in an attempt to tie the series' various superheroes together, the story's flow comes to a grinding halt. "Ant-Man," up to these tiresome moments of name dropping and cameos, runs with a fun and exciting pace aided by great direction. But these connecting threads weaken the structure and feel awkward. More attention should have been placed on Stoll's Cross, who comes across as an extremely one-sided villain.

The writers try to expand Cross' backstory through comparisons with Douglas' character, Hank, however this characterization effort is abandoned in favor of a money-driven antagonist. But despite these flaws in an otherwise solid narrative, the film remains an engaging, character-driven spectacle with some of the most unique action scenes committed to screen. Audiences are given the opportunity to shrink to the size of an ant with the hero, and discover a world bigger than they ever knew.

Marvel's "Ant-Man" from director Peyton Reed is an entertaining downsize from the studio's heftier superhero titles. Taking a smaller approach instead of a global one, Reed is able to guide an engaging cast including Paul Rudd and Michael Douglas. The film succeeds with smart dialogue and well-rounded characters, where second chances can bring about the ultimate redemption.

My grade: 7 out of 10 stars.

Bazaar to raise funds for stained-glass work

MONROE — St. Mark's United Church of Christ in Monroe, Beaver Township, will hold a two-day Christmas in July bazaar from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. today and Saturday.

As part of the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the church, parishioners planned the two-day fundraiser to offer area residents the opportunity to purchase items that might not be found during the traditional Christmas rush, according to the Rev. Nancy Flick Dunmire.

"We promote the joy of Christmas to be celebrated all year through; Christ has been born. He lives in our hearts as much in July as he does in December," Dunmire added.

She pointed out that parishioners have worked very hard to create items that inspire joy. "This has been a labor of love for those who crafted blankets as part of their outreach ministries for cancer and other shut-in patients. We serve people who are lonely as well as those at nursing homes."

The event also includes silent auctions and food will be available for purchase.

Proceeds will go toward restoration of the historical stone church's eternity-themed stained-glass window.

"It was installed in 1922. Time has come to renew this work," Dunmire said.

The church is located at 131 Monroe Church Road which runs north from Route 338 in the village of Monroe, between St. Petersburg and Knox.
