Arena Football League closes team operations; future unclear PHILADELPHIA — The Arena Football League

is closing its business operations in its six local markets, calling it a "difficult, but necessary decision."

The league hasn't decided what the next step will

"We have not yet made the final determination that it will be necessary to suspend all League operations, but we expect that decision to be made within the next few weeks," Commissioner Randall Boe said in a statement Tuesday night. He says the decision to close team services and business operations in the local markets was caused by "extensive legacy liabilities" and a recent multimillion-dollar lawsuit filed against the indoor league by its former insurance carrier. But, he said, "We are exploring every possible avenue to continue bringing AFL football to our fans." Boe told the Albany Times-Union the AFL could evolve into a traveling league modeled after the sixteam Premier Lacrosse League, which just completed its first season and has plans to return next year.

The Arena Football League was founded in 1987 by Jim Foster, a former NFL executive. The fastpaced game is played on a 66-by-28 yard field, about one-fourth the size of an NFL field. Franchises are Albany, New York; Atlantic City, New Jersey; Baltimore; Columbus, Ohio; Philadelphia and Washing-

DURHAM, N.C. — The biggest winner in the aftermath of Stephen F. Austin's shocking upset of No. 1 Duke might be the fundraising effort for the family of the player who hit the game-winning layup.

A thankful Nathan Bain was still in "disbelief" Wednesday about the contributions more than his clutch basket. Since the end of the game, the two-month-old GoFundMe page set up to help Bain's family in the Bahamas rebuild from Hurricane Dorian damage had raised $88,281 and counting shortly after 7 p.m. EST Wednesday. It's a massive spike from the roughly $2,000 it had raised before Tuesday night's stunning result became the talk of college basket-To put that number in per-

Austin pocketed from Duke for coming to Cameron Indoor Stadium and playing the game in the first place. SFA's guarantee from the game was $85,000, a school spokesman said. Bain said Wednesday the donation totals had "skyrocketed" when he checked the website sev-
