Feinstein joins call for Santa Anita to suspend racingARCADIA — U.S. Sen. Dianne Feinstein has joined the California Horse Racing Board in calling for Santa Anita to immediately suspend the remainder of its meet after the deaths of two more horses

A total of 29 horses have now died since the track opened for the season in December. The current meet is scheduled to end June 23.

The California Democrat said Monday that "something is seriously wrong," whether it's the track surface or problems involving training or medication. She said no one seems to know, yet training and racing continues.

"How many more horses need to die before they act?" she asked, referring to management at the Arcadia racetrack.

Santa Anita has enacted a series of reforms aimed at improving safety but despite its efforts the deaths have continued except during one six-week stretch in which no horses died. 'After extensive consultation among all partners, Santa Anita Park will stay open through the end of its meet to see these reforms through," said a statement attributed to track owner The Stronach Group, the Thoroughbred Owners of California and California Thoroughbred Trainers. The groups say since reforms have been enacted, catastrophic injuries at the track have decreased by 50% in racing and by over 84% in training.

"To be clear, there are no acceptable losses and every day we work toward ending all serious injuries," the groups said. "But the reality is that our improvements and changes have been effective. The groups say a detailed and serious epidemiological investigation of all track accidents is underway.

The state racing board has recommended that the track suspend the rest of the meet. However,

Santa Anita management has chosen to continue The CHRB doesn't have the authority to suspend

a race meet or remove race dates from a current meet without the approval of the track operator or without holding a public meeting that requires 10 The racing board recommended that Santa Anita suspend racing but allow horses to continue training, believing it would provide the industry extra time to fully implement announced safety initiatives. The California State Senate has passed Senate Bill 469 that would authorize the racing board to suspend a track's license in order to protect the health and safety of horses and riders. Feinstein urged the state Assembly to pass the bill as soon as Tony Parker announces retirement

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Four-time NBA champi-

on Tony Parker's impressive career is over.

Parker announced Monday he's retiring from basketball after 18 seasons in the NBA. The 37-yearold guard said on Twitter it was an emotional deci-"It's with a lot of emotion that I retire from basketball, it was an incredible journey!" Parker tweeted. "Even in my wildest dreams, I never thought I would live all those unbelievable moments with the NBA and the French National Team. Thank you for Parker played 17 seasons for the San Antonio

Spurs and made the postseason every year of his career before joining the Charlotte Hornets last season and missing the playoffs. He was selected to the All-Star team six times and was named second-team All-NBA three times. Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said he's loved

Parker for a long time and praised him for an "amazing career. a blessing to be with him since was 19 years old," Popovich said on a USA Basketball conference call Monday. "I have watched him develop as a player and human being and as a business man. Parker started 1,151 regular-season games and averaged 15.5 points and 5.6 assists per game. He also played in 226 playoffs games, averaging 17.9 points and 5.1 assists. He won NBA titles with the Spurs in 2003, 2005, 2007 and 2014. He was named NBA Finals MVP in Parker had one year left on his contract with the Hornets but was not a major part of Charlotte's rotation late last season. He hinted after the season that he might be done playing, so the retirement announcement did not come as a surprise. Hornets general manager Mitch Kupchak con-path he laid out for international stars have no equal," Kupchak said in a statement. "I'm grateful for the year he spent with us here in Charlotte and we wish him the best as he moves on to the next chapter of his life.'

PEBBLE BEACH — It was a chance to check out the nuances and seek out the subtleties of one of America's true cathedrals of golf while potentially setting themselves up for success at the U.S. Open a few months down the road.

As is their custom, Rickie Fowler and Justin Thomas both passed.

Two of America's brightest voung stars have rarely found time to fit the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am, played as a regular stop on the PGA Tour each February, into their schedules. And even though they knew the U.S. Open was returning here this week, they made no changes in their plans for 2019. To me, I look at Pebble as not necessarily a place that, the more you play it, the more you have an advantage," said Fowler, the popular 30-year-old who is still in search of his first major title. "It's a pretty straightforward golf There is truth to that — Pebble is 100 years old this year, no mystery to anyone who plays the game for a living, regardless of whether they make the annual tour stop or not.

fact that Pebble Beach at the sunshiny, USGA-infused U.S. Open in June is nothing like the damp, often-waterlogged tournament in February, makes the trip to the pro-am something less than mandatory.

But still.

There are enough quirks to the course — the postcard-sized greens, the approach shot over a chasm of Pacific Ocean on No. 8, the bumpy poa annua putting surfaces, the redesigned par-5 14th — that a competitive round or two across one of the world's most iconic layouts certainly couldn't hurt.

And one could argue that the of his rare tee shots, back in 2014,

on the tiny par-3 that juts into the ocean and is among the most photographed golf holes in the world. "It was blowing about 30 (mph) and it was raining. It was 90-something yards, and it wasn't very fun. You can have some interesting rounds out here.'

> Much is made of the list of players who have won the U.S. Open on what is viewed as an iconic U.S. Open course: Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson, Tom Kite, Tiger Woods and Graeme McDowell. Of those five, all had played at least 10 competitive rounds at Pebble before their victories; all but McDowell had previously won the pro-am.

None of which factored into the thinking of either Fowler or

Though the pro-am format of the tournament that began as Bing Crosby's celebrity-studded clambake can turn 18 holes into a 6-hour ordeal, both players view it as a matter of scheduling more than anything.

Fowler said he did think about playing this year. But a sponsorship deal takes him to Torrey Pines for the Farmers Insurance Open in late January, and he loves playing Phoenix the week after that.

"So I thought about it, but ... it wasn't something that I didn't think fit in," he said.

Thomas, meanwhile, has bigger concerns than course knowledge.

He missed six weeks, including last month's PGA Championship, with a wrist injury that he insists is fully healed. The injury forced some juggling of his schedule; he played the Canadian Open last week, then jetted down to Pebble. As of late Monday afternoon, he had not played a practice hole.

Sure, he said, it's always nice to learn new things about a golf

"I feel like I know Augusta better than, or just as well as, anyone in the world," Thomas said. "But every time I play, I learn something else."
