Thunder's Paul George has shoulder

OKLAHOMA CITY — Thunder All-Star Paul George has had a procedure to repair a small labrum tear in his left shoulder. A Thunder spokesman made the announcement

George had surgery to repair a partially torn tendon in his right shoulder about a month ago. It was announced at that time that he would have the additional procedure at a later date. Both shoulders hampered him in the final two months of the season. His timetable for recovery remains the same — his status will be evaluated before the start of the up-

George is a finalist for the NBA's Most Valuable Player and Defensive Player of the Year awards. He ranked second in the league with 28 points per game and led the league with 2.21 steals per contest.

Thome, Martinez to manage revamped All-Star Futures Game

NEW YORK — Hall of Famer Jim Thome and Dennis Martinez will be the managers in a revamped All-Star Futures Game at Cleveland on In its 21st year, the game is switching formats and will match American League prospects against young players from NL teams. Previously, a world team faced U.S. players. In addition, the game is being shortened from nine innings to seven, which was the length in the initial Futures Game in 1999. The commissioner's office said Wednesday that Thome will lead the AL team and Martinez the NLers. Both are former Indians players. The U.S. has won 13 of 20 Futures Games, including eight of the last nine.

Raiders picked to be featured on 'Hard Knocks³ ALAMEDA - Oakland Raiders coach Jon Grud-en will be a TV star once again.

HBO announced Tuesday that the Raiders will be featured on the network's "Hard Knocks" show in training camp this summer that gives a behind-thescenes look at an NFL team. Gruden spent nine seasons as the lead analyst on ESPN's "Monday Night Football" before returning to the sideline for a second stint as Raiders coach last year. Now he will likely be a star of the 14th edition of this reality show. "Everybody wants to be a Raider," owner Mark

Davis said. "Now they'll find out what it takes to The Raiders made several high-profile additions this offseason that made them an attractive team for the show in their final scheduled season in Oakland before a planned move to Las Vegas. They hired another former TV analyst as general manager in Mike Mayock, traded for big-play receiver Antonio Brown and signed controversial free agents Vontaze Burfict and Richie Incognito. Oakland also had three first-round draft picks in Clelin Ferrell, Josh Jacobs and Johnathan Abram, as well as quarterback Derek Carr. Gruden had expressed reservations about being on the show but the Raiders were one of five teams who could be forced to do the show because they didn't make the playoffs the past two seasons, didn't have a new coach and hadn't done the show the past NFL Films will send a 30-person crew to training camp in Napa to shoot more than 1,750 hours of footage for the series with access to meeting rooms, training rooms, living quarters and practice fields. "They do a really good job of staying out of your way," said defensive coordinator Paul Guenther, who was on the staff in Cincinnati when the Bengals were featured on the show. 'You can see, kind of, what's going to be on the show. I think the positive thing is you find out a lot about your team and the coaches on the staff that, Hey, when the camera is on you are you going to be a different guy or a different player or if you're not.' Because really after the third day, you don't notice, you're so used to having them around that you just go about your business. The other teams that were eligible were San Francisco, Washington, Detroit and the New York Giants. The first of five episodes will air Aug. 6. Defiant Semenya to IAAF: Catch dopers,

MONTREUIL, France — After another winning run, a defiant Caster Semenya on Tuesday urged track's governing body to drop its pursuit of female runners with high testosterone levels and instead focus on catching dope cheats. Speaking after winning a 2,000-meter race on the outskirts of Paris, the South African again made clear that she will refuse to medicate to bring down her testosterone levels, to comply with hugely controversial rules pushed by the IAAF.

"I'm not an idiot. Why will I take drugs? I'm a pure athlete. I don't cheat. They should focus on doping, not us. I'm never going to take drugs," the twotime Olympic champion over 800 meters said.

Another athlete affected by the rules, Francine Niyonsaba, also responded with a defiant "No!" when asked after the race if she would medicate.

Koepka facing long odds for U.S. Open By DOUG FERGUSON Associated Press

PEBBLE BEACH — Brooks Koepka should already have enough motivation for this U.S.

At stake is a shot at a U.S. Open record not touched in 104 years — three straight victories by Willie Anderson. On his mind was a Fox

Sports preview that Koepka interpreted as another example of him not getting the credit he deserves, another chip on his broad shoulder, another chance to prove everyone wrong. "A bunch of people on Twitter I think tagged me in it — in the promo - and I guess they were amazed that I wasn't in it," Koepka said Tuesday. "I just clicked on the link and watched it. Just kind of shocked. They've had over a year to kind of put it out. So I don't know. Somebody probably got fired over it - or should. Was it a slight?

Fox had four U.S. Open pro-mos, three of which included Koepka, one of them devoted entirely to Koepka and the history he can match. The other was entirely about Tiger Woods, the Masters champion who returns to the scene of his record 15-shot victory at Pebble Beach.

Koepka wasn't clear about what shocked him. If there is any cause for a beef in the Woods promo, it was talk about passing the torch to the next generation and showing images of Rory McIlroy, Dustin Johnson and Jordan Spieth - but no Koepka. The good news for Koepka?

He says it's getting harder for him to hide when he's out in public. He can feel eyes on him when he walks into a restaurant, and he's not sure why all the fuss.

"I just view myself as a regular guy, just like everybody else," he said. "And I just happen to be really good at golf. And that's it." It was hard not to notice, maybe even appreciate, the interview room. Only six people attended his pre-tournament press conference last year at Shinnecock Hills when he was the defending champion, although it was late on a Wednesday afternoon. This time, it was hard to find six empty seats.

Koepka has everyone's attention at Pebble Beach. He has won four of his last eight majors, a stretch of success only Woods, Jack Nicklaus and Ben Hogan have equaled in the era of four majors. Even so, it's another name that enters the equation this Koepka recalls seeing Anderson's name on a building in Scot-he won his second U.S. Open. By then, Koepka was vaguely aware that the Scottish-born Anderson had won the U.S. Open in 1903, 1904 and 1905. "I just try to put that in the back of my mind," Koepka said in a tone nearly as flat as his heart rate. "It's just another golf tournament. I have to go out and do what I'm supposed to do. It's going to be a tough test this week — we all know that.'

Four players have had a shot at three straight U.S. Open titles since then. None came particularly close. The most recent opportunity fell to Curtis Strange in 1990 at Medinah, where a 68 brought him within two shots of the lead until he faded to a 75 in the final round and tied for 21st.

"He says it's another day, another round, another tournament," Strange said. "It's not. It's the U.S. Open. He's going for three in a row. But of anyone I've seen who walks the walk. it's Brooks Koepka. He goes about his business in a professional way every day."

Koepka realizes history is against him, and not just because it has been 104 years since U.S. Open.
