WENDY GIVENS

This body of work has been influenced by a Ralph Waldo Emerson quote:
*Live in the sunshine,
Swim the sea,
Drink the wild air*

* Please note, each of the three paintings shown are a detail from larger paintings to be unveiled.

CHUCK GUMPERT

Lush, varied, mixed media layers of oil, acrylic, ink, and graphite commingle to create organic elements and gestural mark making - evoking nature's elements with depth and energy. I really enjoy when different materials coalesce on the abstract surface in a series of “purposeful happy accidents.”

PENNY FORREST

Penny Forrest is a visual story teller exploring themes of the spaces and lives people create for themselves with a goal of painting a calmer, more beautiful life into existence.

RICHARD NEVELS

The woods I sculpt are rare finds. Discovering what looks simply like gray, weathered wood is actually an entire forest in hiding. Bringing out the beauty of the grain and unusual growth formations to sculpt a box is a dream come true.

New Exhibit Expressions in Glass

Three artists explore the natural world through the lens of contemporary art glass

Jen Fuller, Mandala detail, pate de verre glass

New Artist Jen Fuller
Pâte de verre glass botanicals
For this show Jen Fuller creates complex Mandalas from delicate botanical and insect forms that have been cast in glass. Each piece is hand molded from an original specimen and cast in layers of colored frit. Her modern pâte de verre technique is like sand-painting into a mold, rendering hyper-real sculptures from kiln-formed glass.

Guest artist Mel Archer

Fused glass landscapes

Bend artist Mel Archer is most interested in the collusions of color, pattern and texture in his layered glass compositions. His painterly style uses broken glass, fused in a kiln to in a variety of sizes. Frit powder, granular pieces, and narrow rods of broken glass meld together to achieve soft watercolor like gradations. Archer's landscape based works celebrate the translucent and reflective nature of the glass medium.

Mel Archer, "Blue Heron" fused glass

Joshua Rodine

Blown glass vessels & sculpture

Joshua Rodine is inspired by the beauty of the Pacific Northwest, but also by its destructive power such as wildfires, volcanoes, and earthquakes. The natural process of growth and decay are continually a source of focus in his work. Rodine's techniques include using molten color glass rods, spinning glass threads around a piece, or taking shards of color and inlaying them into the artwork. His cold-working processes consist of sandblasting to finely etch the glass surface, and battuto to carve or engrave the glass.

Mary Lyn Gough, Vivid Vision

Floral Fantasies at the Cannon Beach Gallery

The Cannon Beach Gallery is proud to announce our May Flowers show. This art exhibition highlights spring and the magical cycle of nature's rebirth. Artists Mary Lyn Gough, Dorota Haber – Lehigh, Mary Suzanne Garvey, and Lisa Sofia Robinson capture the fleeting charm of spring-time with floral fantasies.

Mary Lyn Gough is an enthusiastic gardener and watercolor artist. Gough find the complexities in nature, the shapes, textures, colors, shapes, and patterns to be a source of inspiration. The close perspective of her work creates an immersive experience for the viewer. This collection of watercolors is luscious, inviting and vibrant - you might just have to stop and smell the roses. Dorota Haber – Lehigh holds a Diploma in Botanical Illustration from Society of Botanical Artists in UK, degrees in Art and International Studies with a focus on indigenous cultures, and a master's degree in teaching. Born in Poland, Dorota's love for nature began when as a child she accompanied her grandparents on mushroom hunting forays, spent hours in her parents and grandparents gardens, hiked summers in Tatra mountains and foraged for wild herbs and fruit. In her art she explores the idea of interconnectedness and fragility of our ecosystems, ecological diversity and species codependence. Mary Suzanne Garvey is an artist, massage therapist, craniosacral therapist, yoga instructor, meditation guide and art journal workshop facilitator. Mary believes in the healing power of the creative process and has devoted the past decade to painting and writing. Finding the transformational effect creativity can do wonders for the body and soul. Lisa Sofia Robinson is in constant search for the best way to interpret ideas of who she is and how she sees the world. Visual arts break through the boundary of words, creating a rich textural language of its own. Working in mixed media, collage and acrylic paint
