Elections office seeks poll workers

The Citrus County Supervisor of Elections office is looking for an additional 50 poll workers to fill positions for the 2020 Primary and General elections.

To meet the new Florida guidelines, applicants who are bilingual and able to understand, speak, write and read English and Spanish fluently are encouraged to apply.

Poll workers are paid for working and for all training.

To apply, go to the elections website at www.votecitrus.com, click on Poll Worker for further information and to complete the online application.

CMH seeks plasma for COVID-19 study

Citrus Memorial Hospital is part of a national study to determine if plasma from convalescent, or recovered, COVID-19 patients may benefit individuals currently hospitalized with severe or life-threatening cases of the virus. As part of the effort, the hospital is seeking eligible volunteers to donate plasma to help current patients in need.

To date, there is no proven therapy for individuals who are diagnosed with COVID-19, but there is a long history of successful viral infection treatment using convalescent plasma. After someone is infected with a virus like COVID-19 and recovers, their blood contains antibodies that their immune system produced to help them fight off the virus. By infusing this plasma into patients who are facing severe cases of COVID-19, their immune system might more effectively be able to fight the virus.

People who tested positive for COVID-19 and have since tested negative can help by donating plasma through LifeSouth.

Commission chides Smith

Board votes to admonish one of its own for comments about county staffer

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff writer

Citrus County commissioners formally scolded colleague Jimmie T. Smith on Tuesday for critical public comments he made about a county department director.

By a 4-1 vote, commissioners approved a resolution from Commissioner Ron Kitchen Jr., who said it places the county on record as opposing Smith's criticism of employees who work for County Administrator Randy Oliver and not the board. Smith voted no.

The county has an ordinance prohibiting commissioners from interfering with county staffers. Only the county administrator and county attorney work directly for the board.

Jimmie T. Smith county commissioner.

"This applies to all of us," Kitchen said.

Commissioners in June were critical of Smith's comments on social media and in the Citrus County Chronicle regarding land development director Joanna Coutu and the county's handling of development applications.

Smith, who is on the

Aug. 18 ballot for re-election, didn't mention Coutu by name and said he didn't call for her dismissal. But, he said Tuesday and during the Chronicle's virtual political forum that he wouldn't be disappointed if she was fired.

Commissioners said that crossed a line.

"When you go after employees with false allegations, it puts us in the crosshairs," Commissioner Scott Carnahan said, referring to a comment Smith wrongly attributed to Coutu, but was actually said by someone else.

Smith defended his actions.

"My statements are based on input from citizens," he said.

Commissioner Jeff Kinnard said, while he shares Smith's concerns about county permitting, he went about it the wrong way.

Crystal River Council members voted for the city to start regulating and

Florida urges US Supreme Court to keep stay on felon voting

BOBBY CAINA CALVAN
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The state of Florida is urging the U.S. Supreme Court to reject a bid by voting rights advocates to lift a stay on a lower court's ruling that allowed Florida felons to regain the right to vote, regardless of unpaid fines and other financial obligations.

Earlier this month, the Atlanta-based 11th Circuit Court of Appeals agreed to review a ruling in May by a Tallahassee federal district court judge that ordered the state to give hundreds of thousands of felons access to the ballot box under a voter-approved initiative known as Amendment 4.

The appellate court has scheduled a hearing on the matter for Aug. 18, the same day as Florida's primary. The deadline to register for that election is July 20.

In its written response filed Tuesday, lawyers for Republican Gov. Ron DeSantis, argued that "all Floridians will be irreparably harmed if the district court's patently erroneous injunction is reinstated, enabling hundreds of thousands of ineligible voters to take part in the upcoming elections, one of which is only a month away."

The case could have broad implications in a state that is expected to play a pivotal role in the presidential race. An estimated 774,000 disenfranchised felons represents a significant bloc of voters, should they be allowed to cast ballots.

Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas, one of the high court's most conservative members, is handling the request.

It was unclear how quickly he will make a decision, but voting rights advocates say there is urgency in the matter because of next week's registration deadline for the August elections.

In 2018, Florida voters overwhelmingly approved Amendment 4, which returned voting rights to most Florida felons who had completed their sentences. But who could vote came under immediate question when DeSantis signed into law last year a Republican-crafted bill that stipulated that, in addition to time served, all legal financial obligations such as unpaid fines and restitution would also have to be settled before a felon can be eligible to vote.

Voter rights advocates immediately sued the governor and the state.

In his ruling in May, District Court Judge Robert Hinkle said Florida lawmakers had devised a "pay-to-vote system," and he ordered the state to allow many Florida felons to vote — regardless of any outstanding legal debts.

Hinkle's ruling said state elections officials couldn't possibly review the hundreds of thousands of voter registration applications that could arrive ahead of the state's August primary and the November presidential vote. During earlier court proceedings, he called it an "administrative nightmare."

DeSantis appealed Hinkle's ruling, and the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in its entirety agreed to hear the governor's appeal and to stay the lower court ruling.

Amendment 4 permanently bars convicted murderers and rapists from voting, regardless of financial debts.

"That's just not the right approach," he said. "The avenue for change is through the administrator."

Board Chairman Brian Coleman supported the resolution only after Kitchen agreed to remove specific reference to Smith's newspaper columns because he hadn't read them.

Smith said after the vote the resolution won't stop him from offering his opinion.

"I've learned certain people in government can do things and get away with it," he said.

Asked specifically if he plans more public criticism of Coudu, he said: "I think I've made my point."

Jail staff tests positive for COVID-19

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

COVID-19 has made an appearance at the Citrus County Detention Facility.

Ryan Gustin, spokesman for the jail's private management firm CoreCivic, said Monday, July 13, 2020, three jail staff tested positive for the virus; one was reported last week, two July 13.

"Any of our employees that have not yet returned to work are recovering at home and are in regular communication with their health care providers," Gustin said.

CoreCivic, formerly Corrections Corporation of America, employs 155 people at the county jail, which can house around 760 inmates, Gustin said, noting he could not provide current inmate populations.

Citrus County Administrator Randy Oliver said July 13 one inmate tested positive for the novel coronavirus.

Oliver said the inmate was not booked into the jail for a county offense, did not contract the virus while at the jail and is not at the facility.

In addition to housing county inmates, CoreCivic also houses inmates from the U.S. Virgin Islands and inmates in the custody of U.S. Marshals.

Oliver said the inmate tested negative for COVID-19 before being transferred from the jail for an outside medical procedure, but tested positive prior to his return. The inmate can't return to the jail until he tests negative again, Oliver said.

According to the Florida Department of Corrections as of July 13, 2,591 inmates and 827 staff members have tested positive in its state prisons and probation offices; 29 inmates have died.

Citrus County, as of July 13, reported 576 COVID-19 cases, 62 hospitalizations and 15 deaths, according to the Florida Health Department.

In short supply

Several Florida hospitals in need of COVID-19 drug

CHRISTINE SEXTON
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio said Monday he had received reports from several Florida hospitals in the previous 24 hours about a potential shortage of a key drug that has been used to help patients battling COVID-19.

"I am in contact with federal officials in hopes of addressing this matter immediately," Rubio, R-Fla., said in a statement posted on his Twitter account.

Rubio's remarks came as Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis told reporters at a Miami news conference that a supply of remdesivir had been sent to several hospitals across the state. DeSantis did not specify where the supply came from, though New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo said Friday he was sending a shipment to Florida.

Appearing with Miami Dade County Mayor Carlos Gimenez and Jackson Health System CEO Carlos Migoya, DeSantis said that a delivery of remdesivir had been "dropped" to Florida hospitals over the weekend.

"That was a request because even though they were due a shipment at the end of this week or next week, they wanted to have enough because they were using it. The physicians like it, and with the uptick of people in the hospitals, (it) was needed," DeSantis said Monday. "We are obviously going to work to make sure that supply is replenished as much as we can going forward."

Cuomo announced Friday that New York was going to send enough remdesivir to the state to treat 280 coronavirus-infected patients until a federal shipment arrived.

"When New York was climbing the COVID mountain with no end in sight and resources were scarce, we were incredibly moved by the generosity of states around the country that stepped up to provide supplies and medical personnel in our time of need," Cuomo said in a prepared statement. "I said at the time that we would return the favor if and when other states needed help. Today, on behalf of all New Yorkers, we will deploy remdesivir to help Florida care for patients as it waits for further supply from the federal government. We will stand by our fellow Americans every step of the way as our nation fights COVID-19 together."

Remdesivir is an experimental drug being used to treat COVID-19 patients. The supply shortage comes as Florida hospitals face record numbers of COVID-19 admissions. The state reported 9,194 additional COVID-19 cases Tuesday, bringing the total to 291,629 since the pandemic began.

The Florida Department of Health also notified hospitals July 1 that the remdesivir supply was exhausted and temporarily shut down the portal hospitals used to request the drug. But new supplies were made available to hospitals the following day.

Floral City man attempts to elude deputies

JEFF BRYAN
Managing editor

America runs on Dunkin, and so does Tyler Mathias Fisher while allegedly trying to evade Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputies.

Tyler Fisher

According to Fisher's arrest report, the Floral City 43-year-old was apprehended by deputies Sunday, July 12, 2020, while leading them on a pursuit from Inverness to Homosassa, all while carrying a dozen doughnuts on his motorcycle's handlebar.

Deputies arrested Fisher on charges of fleeing law enforcement officers, resisting an officer without violence, possessing a controlled substance, and driving without a valid license.

Fisher's bond was set at $8,500.

According to the arrest report, Sgt. Evan Marshall was traveling west on State Road 44 near Sough Tighe Drive in Inverness, when he observed a black motorcycle with no license plate.

Marshall activated his lights and sirens as the driver, later identified as Fisher, led the sergeant on a series of turns through a residential neighborhood.

Fisher's speeds reached between 60 and 70 mph when Marshall backed off the pursuit, the report stated.

Lt. Ray Fischer, who was in the area driving an unmarked SUV, caught up to Fisher and followed him without activating his cruiser's lights and sirens, according to the report.

Fischer watched Fisher run a red light, and Marshall remained a 1/4-mile behind his lieutenant as they followed Fisher to the 6800 block of West Country Club Drive in Homosassa.

Fisher tried to hide the motorcycle behind a house, the report stated, as Fischer pulled up to the residence. As the lieutenant excited his vehicle, Fisher dropped his box of doughnuts and ran away.

Marshall slipped while chasing Fisher, but was able to catch up to Fisher, hold him at gunpoint and order him to the ground, according to the arrest report.

While Fisher ran, he dropped a black backpack, which deputies searched, finding a baggie in his wallet containing Fentanyl.

Fisher told deputies he saw Marshall trying to pull him over; however, he did not want to get in trouble again, the report stated.

Court records show Fisher's license was suspended November 2019 in reference to support delinquent and failure to pay traffic fines.

Tom Bergeron, Erin Andrews exit 'Dancing With the Stars' With the Stars'

NEW YORK — The dance has ended for "Dancing With the Stars" hosts Tom Bergeron and Erin Andrews.

ABC said in a statement that the show is looking to "embark on a new creative direction" and host Bergeron "departs the show with our sincerest thanks and gratitude for his trademark wit and charm that helped make this show a success."

No replacements were named.

Bergeron has hosted "Dancing With the Stars" since its premiere in 2005.

He took to Twitter to announce his departure. "It's been an incredible 15-year run and the most unexpected gift of my career," he wrote. "I'm grateful for that and for the lifelong friendships made."

Last year, Bergeron made waves when he expressed his unhappiness that former White House press secretary Sean Spicer was among the contestants for the fall season.

Bergeron tweeted that he earlier told producers he hoped the new season would be a "joyful respite from our exhausting political climate" and urged them not have any "divisive bookings." Producers apparently disagreed. "We can agree to disagree, as we do now, but ultimately it's their call," Bergeron wrote.

Former contestants tweeted their goodbyes, with Bindi Irwin saying that spending time with Bergeron "was one of my favorite parts" of the show and Lea Thompson saying there's no show without Bergeron. "They might as well cancel it."

The finale that season —

This combination photo shows "Dancing With the Stars" co-hosts, Tom Bergeron, left, and Erin Andrews who will not be returning to the popular celebrity dance competition series. ABC said in a statement that the show is looking to "embark on a new creative direction."

No. 28 — ended with Hannah Brown and Alan Bersten taking the trophy but scored a new low in total viewers among the show's previous finales. Still, the show was the most watched program on broadcast television with 7.7 million total viewers.

The network on Monday also said farewell to Andrews, who originally competed as a contestant back in 2010 and returned as co-host in 2014. "Her signature sense of humor has become a hallmark of the show," the statement read.

'Empire' actor arrested in Arizona, accused of abusing wife

GOODYEAR, Ariz. — "Empire" actor Bryshere Gray has been arrested in Arizona on accusations of abusing his wife, police said.

The Goodyear Police Department said 26-year-old Bryshere Gray was booked into jail Saturday, KPNX-TV reported.

The woman had visible injuries when she flagged someone down to ask for help near Gray's home in the Phoenix suburb of Goodyear, saying her husband had assaulted her, police said. She told emergency responders that Gray had strangled her, and she was taken to a hospital, authorities said.

Gray refused to leave his home when police arrived but was arrested after SWAT and crisis negotiators responded, police said.

Gray, who played Hakeem Lyon on the Chicago-based TV show, was pulled over in Chicago in 2019 after authorities said a temporary license plate didn't match the 2014 Rolls Royce he was driving. He was arrested on a misdemeanor registration charge and ticketed.

"Empire," which ran for six seasons on Fox, aired its series finale in April.

Justices order more arguments on medical marijuana law

JIM SAUNDERS
The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — In a highly unusual move, the Florida Supreme Court on Tuesday ordered a second round of arguments in a battle about whether the state has properly carried out a 2016 constitutional amendment that broadly legalized medical marijuana.

Justices heard arguments in May in a lawsuit filed by Florigrown, a Tampa-based firm that has challenged the constitutionality of a 2017 law that was designed to carry out the constitutional amendment. The case centers on parts of the law related to the licensing of companies to operate in the medical-marijuana industry.

But the Supreme Court on Tuesday issued an order scheduling another round of arguments Oct. 7 on an issue that was not a focus of the first hearing — whether the 2017 law is what is known as an unconstitutional “special” law.

Justices signaled after the first hearing that they were interested in the “special” law issue, asking Florigrown and the Florida Department of Health to file additional briefs on the issue. But the court rarely brings back parties for a second round of arguments in cases.

The Florida Constitution bars “special” laws that, generally, are intended to benefit specific entities. Florigrown, which has unsuccessfully sought a medical-marijuana license, contends that parts of the 2017 law improperly limited the firms that could take part in the industry.

“This (Supreme) Court has repeatedly held that the controlling question in evaluating whether a law is an unconstitutional special law is whether the class in the law is ‘closed.’” Florigrown lawyers wrote in their additional brief filed June 17. “Here, the classes are so clearly closed, the Legislature might as well have named the licensees in the statute.”

But lawyers for the Department of Health, which administers the medical-marijuana system, contended in a May 27 brief that the 2017 law “ultimately establishes a comprehensive and unified statutory system for the statewide licensure and regulation” of medical-marijuana firms, which are known in state parlance as medical marijuana treatment centers.

“(The) statute did not create a closed universe of licensed MMTCs (medical marijuana treatment centers),” the state brief said. “The MMTC licensure statute, viewed properly as a comprehensive and unified whole, does not provide a benefit to private corporations that others — like Florigrown — do not or cannot also receive.”

The Department of Health appealed to the Supreme Court after lower courts sided with Florigrown. A panel of the 1st District Court of Appeal last year upheld part of a temporary injunction issued by a Leon County Circuit Judge Charles Dodson, who found that the 2017 law conflicted with the constitutional amendment. Dodson’s temporary injunction required state health officials to begin registering Florigrown and other medical-marijuana firms to do business, but the judge’s order was put on hold while the state appealed.

■ Eligible businesses are those that were closed or severely restricted by government action. Examples include bars, restaurants, barber shops and nail salons.

■ These must be businesses with a commercial storefront in Citrus County, including Crystal River or Inverness.

■ Businesses must have up to 35 full time employees, or the part-time equivalent. They need to have been in business since at least Feb. 29.

■ Not eligible:

businesses deemed “essential” that did not close; nonprofits, publicly traded companies; home-based businesses.

■ The county has a CARES Act hotline: 352-527-5449.

The county has identified about 650 businesses that meet the base eligibility requirement that they were ordered closed by government action. The cities of Crystal River and Inverness are included in the program, which the county will oversee.

Commissioners say they expect more than $1 million will still be available once the 30-day application process concludes.

Commissioners said they may then expand the eligibility or reconsider applicants who are denied; the county must spend all the money by Dec. 31 or return it.

Also Tuesday, commissioners voted 4-1 to continue the local state of emergency after Gov. Ron DeSantis extended Florida’s state of emergency until Sept. 8. Commissioner Jimmie T. Smith voted no. The declaration allows Citrus to receive federal reimbursement for coronavirus-related expenses.

Frink originally set Aug. 7 as the measure's deadline, but council members said the city's push for regulations shouldn't be rushed.

"The situation is out of control right now and it's not managed at all," Mayor Joe Meek said. "It's a good plan, but I do want to be responsible moving forward."

"There's still a lot of preparation that needs to be done," Councilman Ken Brown added. "We're going to force the businesses to adapt."

Frink said there are eight paddlecraft businesses permitted to use city launches.

Citizen members of the city's Waterfronts Advisory Board (WAB) shared similar concerns with Frink when he presented his initial plan to them July 6.

WAB members gave their 5-0 OK for Frink to bring a plan forward to council, but not without including solutions for Kings Bay Park's treacherous paddlecraft launches and other issues Frink said staff would address as measures unfold.

"The plan was not ready to go," WAB Vice Chair Phillis Rosetti told council members July 13.

Dave Perry, owner of Hunter Springs Kayak, told council he was in favor of a comprehensive plan to regulate the paddlecraft industry within the city.

"However, I do not support a plan saying, 'We'll figure it out as we go,'" he said. "There are way too many questions I have left unanswered ... it needs a little more time to be developed."

Frink told council city staff will look into how to make Kings Bay Park's rocky shoreline safer around the paddlecraft launches.

The city would also modify Northwest Third Street, the roadway leading into Kings Bay Park, into a one-way loop, allowing business to drop off customers without causing too much obstruction.

Several fenced-in corrals will be built at the park for businesses to store paddlecraft gear at a monthly lease of $750 if they have a brick-and-mortar storefront, and $1,500 if they are based online.

Council agreed no business transactions will take place at the corrals, meaning customers can't pay for rented paddlecraft there.

Council's vote also directs city staff to create a fee structure by the end of 2020 for commercial paddlecraft launches at Kings Bay Park, charging at least $7.50 per vessel.

Councilman Pat Fitzpatrick and Councilwoman Cindi Guy said the fee rate is fair, especially if revenues, as Frink said, go toward maintaining city parks and paying staff to monitor launches.

Other, more longterm measures include renovating a storage shed at Kings Bay Park into a paddlecraft welcome center, creating a kayak-safety video and installing directional signage on King's Bay.

In other action, the Council:

■ Voted 5-0, authorizing Meek to execute an easement agreement between the city and J&B of Citrus, LLC to construct a portion of the Crystal River Riverwalk boardwalk on the shoreline of The Crab Plant property.

Frink told council he's meeting July 14 with the owners of Charlie's Fish House to secure the Riverwalk's final easement agreement.

The entire Riverwalk is about 75% completed, traveling from Northwest Second Avenue to King's Bay Park.

■ Council voted 5-0 to approve a tentative millage rate of 4.8, which is unchanged from the city's current millage rate and is anticipated to bring in $2.3 million in ad valorem revenues.

Additional public hearings to adopt a final city millage rate and budget for the 2020-21 fiscal year were also scheduled for Sept. 14 and 28, 2020. Council has a budget workshop set for Thursday, July 16, 2020.

■ Council voted 5-0 to approve a $993,583 interlocal agreement with the Citrus County Sheriff's Office to provide law enforcement services in the city from Oct. 1, 2020, to Sept. 30, 2021.

This is a 3%, or roughly $29,000 increase from last year's contract.

Sheriff Mike Prendergast told council the increase was due to personnel adjustments related to the city's hirings of additional community resource deputies, merit raises and retirement/insurance rate increases for his employees.

■ County Building Department Director Carl Jones told council Crystal River has until Jan. 15, 2021, to adopt and comply with the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA's) new Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM) showing increase storm flooding levels for the city.

FIRMs are part of FEMA's National Flood Insurance Program and map out zones of various flooding risks to help building officials, insurance adjusters and property owners figure out if construction codes or flood-insurance policies need to be added or changed.

Jones said current base-flood elevations — or how high floodwaters are expected to rise during the 100-year flood — will increase throughout the city, requiring more flood-resistant building codes and upping flood-insurance rates.

Fed official warns about slowing US economy

CHRISTOPHER RUGABER
AP economics writer

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Governor Lael Brainard warned Tuesday that the U.S. economy appears to be slowing after an initial burst of recovery and called for the Fed to take aggressive steps to bolster growth.

Brainard said that hiring and consumer spending bounced back more strongly than expected in May and June. But that rebound mostly reflected a rapid reopening of restaurants, bars and other businesses in many states, she said, and those reopenings have since caused ongoing spikes in viral infections that could reverse much of that progress.

Brainard is an influential

“dove” on the Fed’s board, which means she typically prioritizes keeping interest rates low to support jobs and worries less about inflation. She said that a worsening viral outbreak now or in the fall could cause a “double-dip” recession in which the economy shrinks again after expanding.

“Rolling flare-ups or a broad second wave of the virus may lead to widespread social distancing—whether mandatory or voluntary—which could weigh on the pace of the recovery and could even presage a second dip in activity,” Brainard said. “Some high-frequency indicators tracked by Federal Reserve Board staff ... suggest that the strong pace of improvement in May and the first half of June may not be sustained.”

Epstein associate denied bail

LARRY NEUMEISTER AND TOM HAYS
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jeffrey Epstein’s former girlfriend, Ghislaine Maxwell, will remain behind bars until trial after she was denied bail Tuesday as a risk to flee rather than face charges she recruited girls for the financier to sexually abuse more than two decades ago.

Two Epstein accusers implored the judge to keep the British socialite detained after she pleaded not guilty to the charges during a video court hearing in Manhattan.

U.S. District Judge Alison J. Nathan said even the most restrictive form of release would be insufficient to ensure Maxwell would not flee, particularly now that she knows a conviction could result in up to 35 years in prison.

As the judge explained her reasoning for denying bail, Maxwell dropped her head repeatedly, appearing dejected. At one point, she appeared to wipe a tear from underneath one eye as she sat alone in a room at the Metropolitan Detention Center in Brooklyn, where she has been housed since last week.

Maxwell, 58, has been held without bail since her July 2 arrest at her million-dollar New Hampshire estate, where prosecutors say she refused to open the door for FBI agents, who busted through to find her in an interior room. Her lawyer, Mark S. Cohen, told the judge that Maxwell was in her pajamas and had followed security protocol calling for her to retreat to her room if any disturbance occurred outside.

The judge rejected Cohen’s claim that Maxwell was hiding from the public and the media after getting threats rather than investigators when she bought a $1 million mansion late last year.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Alison Moe said Maxwell posed as a journalist, “Jen Marshall,” when she purchased the New Hampshire estate.

“She has the ability to live off the grid indefinitely,” Moe said, citing Maxwell’s wealth and extensive international ties.

She said Maxwell was vague about her finances after her arrest because “she cannot remember off the top of her head how many millions of dollars she has.”

And she rejected Cohen’s contention that prosecutors were engaging in “spin” by twisting facts to portray his client in the worst light.

“It is not dirt. It is not spin,” Moe said. Prosecutors, she said, planned to hold Maxwell accountable for “chilling conduct” when Maxwell recruited at least three girls, one as young as 14, for Epstein to abuse between 1994 and 1997.

In this Aug. 13, 2019, file photo, pedestrians walk through the gates of Harvard Yard at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass. Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology filed a federal lawsuit July 8, 2020, challenging the Trump administration's decision to bar international students from staying in the U.S. if they take classes entirely online this fall. On Tuesday, the administration rescinded the rule.

Administration rescinds rule on foreign students

Announced at start of hearing

COLLIN BINKLEY
AP education writer

BOSTON — Facing eight federal lawsuits and opposition from hundreds of universities, the Trump administration on Tuesday rescinded a rule that would have required international students to transfer or leave the country if their schools held classes entirely online because of the pandemic.

The decision was announced at the start of a hearing in Boston brought by Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. U.S. District Judge Allison Burroughs said federal immigration authorities agreed to pull the July 6 directive and “return to the status quo.”

A lawyer representing the Department of Homeland Security and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement said only that the judge's characterization was correct.

The announcement brings relief to thousands of foreign students who had been at risk of being deported from the country, along with hundreds of universities that were scrambling to reassess their plans for the fall in light of the policy.

Under the policy, international students in the U.S. would have been forbidden from taking all their courses online this fall. New visas would not have been issued to students at schools planning to provide all classes online, which includes Harvard. Students already in the U.S. would have faced deportation if they didn't transfer schools or leave the country voluntarily.

Immigration officials issued the policy last week, reversing earlier guidance from March 13 telling colleges that limits around online education would be suspended during the pandemic. University leaders believed the rule was part of President Donald Trump's effort to pressure the nation's schools and colleges to reopen this fall even as new virus cases rise.

The policy drew sharp backlash from higher education institutions, with more than 200 signing court briefs supporting the challenge by Harvard and MIT. Colleges said the policy would put students' safety at risk and hurt schools financially. Many schools rely on tuition from international students, and some stood to lose millions of dollars in revenue if the rule had taken hold.

Harvard and MIT were the first to contest the policy, but at least seven other federal suits had been filed by universities and states opposing the rule.

Harvard and MIT argued that immigration officials violated procedural rules by issuing the guidance without justification and without allowing the public to respond. They also argued that the policy contradicted ICE's March 13 directive telling schools that existing limits on online education would be suspended “for the duration of the emergency.”

The suit noted that Trump's national emergency declaration has not been rescinded and that virus cases are spiking in some regions.

Immigration officials, however, argued that they told colleges all along that any guidance prompted by the pandemic was subject to change. They said the rule was consistent with existing law barring international students from taking classes entirely online. Federal officials said they were providing leniency by allowing students to keep their visas even if they study online from abroad.

O'Neal, who lives in the Orlando area, was traveling on Interstate 75 near Gainesville on Monday when he saw the woman pull onto the side of the road, the Alachua County Sheriff's Office said on a Facebook post.

He stayed with the woman until deputies arrived.

In the video posted to Facebook, deputies thanked O'Neal for his assistance. The driver is heard telling deputies that the tire blew out, forcing her to pull over and that O'Neal stopped to help.

Rays like chances in shortened season

Eyeing back-to-back playoff berths

FRED GOODALL
AP sports writer

ST. PETERSBURG — The Tampa Bay Rays like their chances of returning to the playoffs and reject the notion that winning the World Series during a season shortened by the coronavirus pandemic would be less impressive than capturing a title under normal circumstances.

"This season counts. It counts just as much as any other," defensive whiz Kevin Kiermaier said.

"You've got 30 teams right now with the same record, just the way we show up in spring training," the three-time Gold Glove centerfielder added. "You usually play 162 games. But if every team is asked to play 60 games in 66 days, then we all have the same opportunity."

Coming off consecutive 90-plus win seasons, as well as their first postseason appearance since 2013, the cost-conscious Rays have already shown they're capable of competing with teams with much larger payrolls.

Kiermaier said there's no reason to believe he and his teammates can't win it all.

Charlie Morton, Blake Snell and Tyler Glasnow head a pitching rotation with the potential to be one of the best in baseball.

The offense could be more potent, too, following the addition of Japanese slugger Yoshitomo Tsutsugo, outfielder Hunter Renfroe and infielder/

Associated Press

Tampa Bay's Charlie Morton throws July 8 during baseball practice in St. Petersburg.

designated hitter Jose Martinez.

"Each and every year you win as many ball games as you can ... you hope that you're fortunate to lift up that trophy in the end. We know how hard and difficult that is, but it's very attainable," Kiermaier said.

"And once again, I don't care if there's an asterisk next to World Series champs 2020. The asterisk gives you a little description down below: 60 games played due to coronavirus," Kiermaier added. "I'll take that any day of the week. My teammates will, too. ... There's going to be a lot of excuses thrown around by a lot of different players and teams. We're going to try to limit those around here."

NEW LOOK

Tsutsugo signed a $12 million, two-year contract in free agency after batting .272 with 29 homers and 79 RBIs in Japan last season. Renfroe (33 homers, 89 RBIs in 140 games with Padres) and Martinez (.269, 10, 42 in 128 games with Cardinals) add some thump to the middle of a retooled lineup that lost catcher Travis d'Arnaud and outfielders Tommy Pham and Avisail Garcia.

DYNAMIC ARMS

In addition to having one of the strongest rotations in the AL, the Rays have an abundance of young, talented arms in the bullpen.

Manager Kevin Cash's creative use of openers and "bullpen days" was an integral part of winning 90 and 96 games the past two seasons. Eleven different pitchers earned at least one save in 2019, and the shortened season will pose new challenges.

"Our history has shown we're going to continue to find ways to utilize and get the best matchups we see fit for pitchers," Cash said.

"I'm definitely excited for what we're going to be able to accomplish this year," Snell the 2018 AL Cy Young Award winner, said. "It's a team full of talent."

ROOKIES TO WATCH

Tsutsugo, 28, is making his major league debut after 10 seasons with Yokohama of Japan's Nippon Professional Baseball Organization. He's the fourth Japanese-born player in Rays history, joining Hideo Nomo, Akinori Iwamura and Hideki Matsui.

Top prospect Wander Franco, a 19-year-old switch-hitting shortstop, is part of Tampa Bay's 60-man pool and may get a chance to contribute, too. With the minor league season canceled because of the pandemic, the Rays hope the experience will be beneficial to his development.

"The talent is visible. There aren't many guys across baseball that possess the talent he has," Rays general manager Erik Neander said.

"It's on us to make sure, as he continues to develop and mature, that he's fully ready to go when he hits the big stage," Neander said. "We're not going to force anything, we're not going to throw any additional expectations on him. We just want to make sure we do right by him."

Wells Fargo tumbled after the nation's largest mortgage lender said it lost money for the first time since the Great Recession. San Francisco-based Wells said it lost $2.4 billion in the second quarter, its worst quarter since the height of the housing crash in 2008. Wells set aside $8.4

BAY BEAUTIFICATION

Riverwalk future is bright

The Riverwalk in Crystal River will continue and will be completed.

For more than 30 years the concept of building the Riverwalk around King’s Bay has been the top civic improvement identified by citizens. More than half of the project has already been completed and the work continues.

Gov. Ron DeSantis is on board with the effort and originally included $200,000 in this year’s budget to help complete it. But those funds were part of $1 billion in budget reductions the governor had to make because of the economic thrashing the COVID-19 pandemic has put on the Sunshine State.

The loss of the $200,000 hurts, but it is not going to stop the effort to complete the waterfront project. The land portion of the Riverwalk is done and property agreements are now being finalized. In fact, all documents for waterfront property rights have now been signed but for one.

The city, the county and funds from the BP Oil Cleanup Fund have been used to get the project this far. The state’s reversal on the funding hurts, but considering Florida’s current struggles, it’s not a huge deal.

We are confident that Crystal River city manager Ken Frink and the council can piece together the final funding to make this project happen. With Crystal River becoming the epi-center of tourism in the region, it is critical for visitors to have enjoyable access to King’s Bay. Many of our seniors do not own a boat or have the ability to jump in a kayak or on a paddle board to enjoy the views.

A relaxing stroll along the Riverwalk will be exactly the right kind of entertainment for a large portion of our population.

The Riverwalk will also serve as a mechanism to tie the waterfront to the Main Street portion of Crystal River and help make it a thriving and connected business district.

We are confident that a completed Riverwalk is a vision that will be completed by the current city administration. Those final dollars will be found and the completion of the Riverwalk will be the realization of a goal three decades in the making.

THE ISSUE:

State funding for Riverwalk cut back.

OUR OPINION:

Project still has the support it needs to be completed.

Political signs an eyesore

The biggest eyesore to me in Citrus County, literally — besides the trash on our roadways that is never cleaned up — is all these political signs that are gathered around. That’s one of the biggest eyesores that stand out. If the candidate really wants the job, they should go out there cold canvassing. They can wear a mask and gloves, hand out buttons or whatever and tell people what they’re really for, not just put a sign up. Do it the old-fashioned way. Go out and earn it.

Drug addict families suffer, too

I was calling in regard to the sheriff’s candidates. I’m looking at the papers for advice and things to do. ... We would like to let you know, us family members of the drug addicts or people that have used drugs, we hurt, we cry and we don’t know what to do. They have ruined our lives and the Citrus County Sheriff’s Office needs to learn and understand we are not the bad people. We cry; our lives hurt. Please do not take us as somebody that’s breaking the law. We need somebody to help us. And, please — this has never been discussed — why are not your deputies wearing cameras?

Thanks for turning in phone

I lost my phone at Walmart two days ago and I was in a frenzy. Someone picked it up and took it to the service desk and I don’t know who it was — they didn’t leave a name or anything — and I just want to tell them thank you so much for this. This little phone may not look like much, but it’s a lifeline for us and I thank you so much for picking it up and being honest and taking it to the service desk. Thank you very much.

Prepare early with sandbags

At the end of each hurricane season, we consult with our local government stakeholders to collectively ask how we can improve our emergency response to meet the needs of the community. Based on their professional knowledge, previous lessons learned, and from examining how other communities responded to disasters, we modify our local plans to prepare, respond, and recover from emergencies.

 GUEST COLUMN

This format can be applied to individual homeowners as well. How did you, your home and your property fare? Take an honest look in the mirror and ask yourself how you can improve your preparedness. For coastal homeowners, I would like to suggest including sandbags or other flood protection products.

We know that water will damage the exterior and interior of your home. The best way to avoid this type of damage is to take proactive preventive measures. Do not wait to obtain sandbags for your home. The time to get your sandbags is now. Please do not rely on the county to provide you sandbags. Statutorily, there is no obligation for the county to provide the public with sandbags. This has been done as a courtesy and will continue to be; however, the county will not open sandbag sites until there is a local state of emergency declared.

The use of sandbags is a simple but effective way to prevent or reduce flood water damage. Properly filled and placed sandbags can act as a barrier to divert moving water around, instead of through homes. Sandbag construction does not guarantee a water-tight seal but is satisfactory for use in most situations. Bags and sands are relatively inexpensive and can be found in any major local hardware or box stores.

The biggest threat to sandbags is the water itself. The durability in longer-term flood conditions coupled with the materials that the bag is made of may degrade the sandbag more quickly. However, these disadvantages do not outweigh the need amidst a flood. It is important to know how to deploy sandbags — for added protection, covering them with plastic sheeting to limit water penetration further.

To residents who reside on the west coast of Citrus County and the Withlacoochee River, I encourage you to make a small investment in protecting your home and property by preparing early with sandbags. The low cost now can save you a huge expense later. Thanks for providing coronavirus testing

A huge thanks to all of the people who were working with the county to provide tests for the coronavirus today during the periodic torrential rains. While it was warm out, after one gets drenched, it is no longer warm. The workers never stopped doing their jobs and remained pleasant throughout. Thank you all!

Representatives not representing Representative government? In the July 13 Chronicle, an article reported that all eight Republican candidates for county commissioner said they would oppose a mandatory face mask ordinance. In a side column on the same page, the results of a Chronicle poll showed that 74% of respondents were in favor of mandatory wearing of masks because they protect the public from asymptomatic virus carriers. Let me rephrase: 74% of the responding public are in favor of masks versus 0% of those who wish to represent them. Interesting.

How hard is wearing a mask?

Because no one knows if he or she has the virus, they are putting others at risks by not wearing a mask inside stores or restaurants or by not social distancing outside.

We are all someone’s son or daughter, mother or father, grandmother or grandfather, niece or nephew, husband or wife.

And if someone dies because someone did not wear a mask, a lot of folks will be sad.

Can’t we all put our differences aside and love thy neighbor? How hard can it be to wear a mask outside your home and know you were not the person responsible for the lose of someone’s loved one?

Kayak launch plan taking shape

After listening to the Crystal River City Council webinar Monday night, several points were crystal clear. Everyone from residents to business owners agree, something must be done to control the congestion of paddle boards and kayaks on our waterways. It was agreed that it is a dangerous situation and that all of the traffic is quickly going to destroy our beautiful river. Hunter Springs Park launch is overwhelmed and a hub of activity, as it currently serves as a main launch for nonmotorized vessels and is a popular place for families to swim and picnic. The parking lot is jammed with people!

City Manager Ken Frink presented the city’s proposal to the council. This proposal involves moving all commercial paddle craft to the Kings Bay Park launch. A host of concerns were addressed, such as dropoff of craft, traffic, distance to walk to the park, sales transactions occurring on-site, local brick and mortar businesses having priority over out of town businesses, fees, a process for revoking the privilege of the launch if rules are not followed, hours of operation, signage, and an actual startup date to begin implementation of the proposal.

The original startup date was Aug. 7, however, after much discussion, the council felt that the startup should be pushed back to Aug. 17.

While a great deal of time and effort went into this proposal, a lot more work is ahead. As a resident who lives on the water next to Hunter Springs, I’m thrilled at the prospect of less paddle craft choking the run. Now I will watch Northeast Third Street, as my neighbors and I must use a small part of the roadway that will be used for the new launch site. I don’t envy the folks who have the job of putting this all into a working entity to ensure that this is a smooth and safe operation for all of the stakeholders.

There will be another city council meeting before all of the working parts of the new launch will be put into motion. Fortunately, we have active and concerned council members who are watching both of the parks in question. I feel confident that they will support our community. And a huge thank you to our City Manger Ken Frink for taking the reins on the start of correcting the situation on our waterways.

Crippen will be accountable

I vote religiously and I always study each candidate running thoroughly. I rarely vote for the lesser of two evils. I am not a partisan junkie either, I vote my conscience. With that said, Patrick Crippen, in my opinion, will perform the requirements of the function efficiently, with knowledge, dedication, integrity, passion and compassion for all. Don't settle for less.

Patrick has a background both in law enforcement and corporate administration. Both should be a prerequisite to lead this agency. A leader has to have excellent people skills and the ability to adapt their leadership style to mesh with the personalities of different employees and other personnel from external governmental agencies. No public function is completely autonomous, and no other candidate running for sheriff has had this valuable exposure.

Employees are the backbone of any organization and once properly trained, we need to retain them. Our county cannot continue to train good employees to seek employment elsewhere. Patrick Crippen has the utmost respect for our deputies. They live here, they are one of us. We need a sheriff who completely appreciates their contribution to our safe community. Patrick Crippen is a proven leader; he has the know-how that will boost employee morale, productivity and loyalty. Everyone stands to benefit in the long run, because training is not cheap.

During these uncertain times, we need to rethink how to best select our leaders to keep up with the changing times. Patrick understands the needs of our community, he is someone who will listen to the citizens — he is one of us. He also believes in complete transparency and accountability. Vote for a candidate that has deep roots in our community.

Before spending revenue, he will first ask, "Is this good for the citizens? Is this program effective and efficient? Is this fiscally responsible for the taxpaying citizens of Citrus County?" He will be accountable and professional, while representing all citizens. Patrick has worked tirelessly to gain our support; he will do the same as sheriff. Four years is a long time to rethink our choices. A lot can happen and we should pick wisely when we have the chance.

Please vote for Patrick Crippen for Citrus County Sheriff.

Davis will be a proactive leader

I am writing because local elections are very important. I believe how people act before they decide to run for office is a good indication of how they will act after they are elected. I would like to tell you about Holly Davis, who is running for county commission. I first met Holly when she introduced herself to us when we moved to Citrus County two years ago. Holly helped organize a neighborhood gathering so we could meet our wonderful neighbors, she promoted the local businesses and even took us on several excursions to see the beauty of Citrus County. I quickly realized how much Holly cares about people when she helped our elderly neighbor, who she just met, by taking him to medical appointments and bringing him meals.

Citrus County is where Holly's mother was born, where Holly grew up and was a cheerleader at the local high school. It is also where I had the pleasure to meet her father, Capt. Tom Davis. To Holly, Citrus County is her home. Holly believes we need to be proactive and not reactive for the inevitable changes due to the Suncoast Parkway extension. I hope you will take the time to go to Holly's website, hollydavisforcitrus.com and review her vision to benefit businesses and citizens of Citrus County. We need a change in leadership, and I hope you will join me in voting Holly Davis for county commissioner.

He is stable, conservative and a proven leader who is interested in serving the entire community for the benefit of all in the community. Vote Mel Eakley for sheriff!

Children succeed because of Himmel

I am writing to stress the importance of keeping Sam Himmel as our school superintendent. I want to be sure the public is aware of how much she does for our community. She builds such positive relationships with so many. I'm relieved to have someone who knows what she is doing as our school district's leader while my children have been attending. We need her to continue in this important role so our children can continue to succeed.

My husband and I own a local business, JM Gibson Mechanical, and we greatly appreciate how Sam Himmel strives to put instructional systems in place, like dual enrollment at WTC and career tech courses in our high schools, allowing kids the opportunity to be educated in various trades. This is crucial in helping our community and small businesses like ours.

Prendergast cares about the county

I'm writing this letter to show my support for Sheriff Mike Prendergast. I have had the pleasure of meeting him and to say I was impressed by his professionalism and dedication to the office he serves is an understatement. This man has had quite a distinguished military career, followed up by working for the people of Florida while serving as the Florida Director of Veterans Affairs. He had his choice of where to continue his career and lucky for all of us he chose to continue it here, serving as the sheriff of Citrus County. He has proven time and time again to have been the right choice without question. The effect he has had on cleaning up the drug problem in this county is beyond amazing. I feel so much safer knowing our deputies, under Sheriff Prendergast's command, are doing their best to keep our community safe. With the world we are living in being so unstable, it's a comfort to see the amount of force available to protect our citizens. It is for all of these reasons that in this upcoming election Sheriff Prendergast will once again have my vote.

I encourage all those who plan to vote, and I hope it is the majority of voters, to take into consideration all this man has done for this county, upholding his office in the most dignified manner. He truly cares about the people and has our county's best interests at heart. He is a people person and has such compassion and empathy. I am impressed by his never-ending determination to make our county a better place to raise children, as well as keeping them safe in this chaotic time. This is the type of person I want as my sheriff.

Man killed by police after mask dispute

GRAND LEDGE, Mich. — A Michigan sheriff's deputy on Tuesday fatally shot a man suspected of stabbing another man who had challenged him about not wearing a mask at a convenience store, police said.

The shooting occurred in Eaton County, southwest of Lansing, about 30 minutes after the stabbing at a Quality Dairy store, state police Lt. Brian Oleksyk said.

A sheriff's deputy spotted the man's vehicle in a residential neighborhood and shot him when he got out of his car and tried to attack her, Oleksyk said.

The man, Sean Ruis, was holding a screwdriver and knives, Eaton County Sheriff Tom Reich said.

Ruis, 43, of Grand Ledge, who worked at the Michigan Department of Transportation, died at a hospital. He was suspected of stabbing a 77-year-old man inside the store when he was confronted about not wearing a mask, Oleksyk said.

The stabbing victim was in stable condition at a hospital.

Man charged with murder for killing three in car crash

NORMAN, Okla. — The man accused of killing three student athletes after he crashed into a high school cross-country team outside a suburban Oklahoma City school has been charged with second-degree murder, an upgrade from initial manslaughter charges.

Court records show that murder charges were filed Monday against Max Leroy Townsend, 57, of Tuttle, Oklahoma. He's accused of crashing into members of the cross-country team at Moore High School as they ran outside their school in February. Townsend had previously pleaded not guilty to manslaughter.

Police have said Townsend was drunk, driving nearly 80 mph in a 25-mph zone when he crossed two lanes of traffic onto a sidewalk and crashed into the runners.

"The clerk handed me the $20 ticket by mistake. He offered to exchange it for me but something told me to keep it. I am sure glad I did!" the man said in a statement.

First federal execution in years

Another set for Wednesday

MICHAEL BALSAMO

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — The federal government on Tuesday carried out its first execution in almost two decades, killing by lethal injection a man convicted of murdering an Arkansas family in a 1990s plot to build a whites-only nation in the Pacific Northwest.

The execution of Daniel Lewis Lee came over the objection of the victims' relatives and following days of legal delays, reviving the debate over capital punishment during a time of widespread social unrest. And the Trump administration's determination to proceed with executions added a new chapter to the national conversation about criminal justice reform in the Relatives of Lee's victims sued to try to halt it, citing concerns about the coronavirus pandemic, which has killed more than 135,000 people in the United States and is ravaging prisons nationwide.

Critics argued the government was creating a manufactured urgency for political gain. One of Lee's lawyers, Ruth Friedman, said it was "beyond shameful that the government, in the end, carried out this execution in haste."

South Africa surpasses the UK in confirmed virus cases

JOHANNESBURG — South Africa has surpassed the UK in its number of confirmed coronavirus cases. That's according to a Health Ministry statement and data compiled by Johns Hopkins University researchers.

New cases reported Tuesday gave South Africa the world's eighth-highest number of confirmed cases at 298,292, which represents nearly half of all the confirmed cases on the African continent.

Florida deaths surge

Vaccine research moves forward

FORT LAUDERDALE — Florida surpassed its daily record for coronavirus deaths Tuesday amid rising global worries of a resurgence, even as researchers announced that the first vaccine tested in the U.S. had worked to boost patients' immune systems.

Florida's 132 additional deaths topped a state mark set just last week. The figure likely includes deaths from the past weekend that had not been previously reported.

The new deaths raised the state's seven-day average to 81 per day, more than double the figure of two weeks ago and now the second-highest in the United States behind Texas.

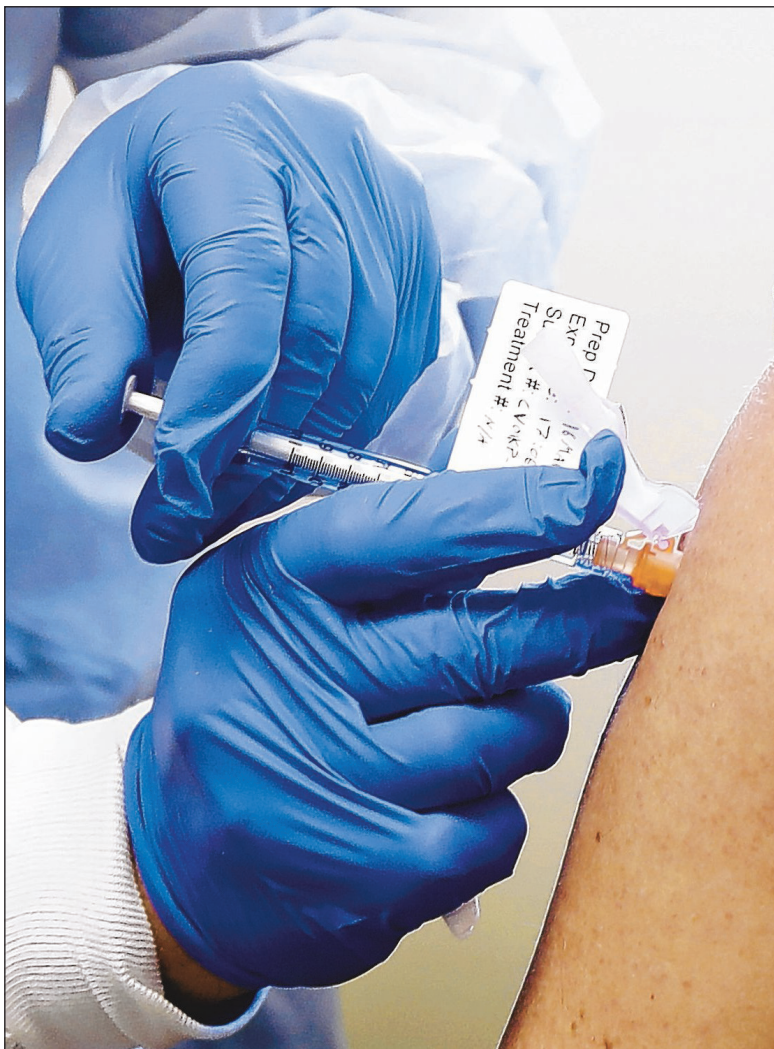

The worrisome figures were released just hours before the news about the experimental vaccine, developed by the National Institutes of Health and Moderna Inc.

"No matter how you slice this, this is good news," Dr. Anthony Fauci, the U.S. government's top infectious disease expert, told The Associated Press.

Key final testing of the vaccine will start around July 27, tracking 30,000 people to prove if the shots really work in preventing infection. Tuesday's announcement focused on findings since March in 45 volunteers.

Biden unveils $2 trillion climate plan

ALEXANDRA JAFFE,
 ELLEN KNICKMEYER
 AND WILL WEISSERT
 Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del. — Joe Biden released a $2 trillion plan Tuesday aimed at combating climate change and spurring economic growth in part by overhauling America's energy industry, with a proposal to achieve entirely carbon pollution-free power by 2035.

"These are the most critical investments we can make for the long-term health and vitality of both the American economy and the physical health and safety of the American people," Biden said during remarks to reporters near his home in Wilmington, Delaware.

Biden acknowledged that the economy is in "crisis" because of the COVID-19 pandemic, but said it offers "an incredible opportunity, not just to build back to where we were before, but better, stronger, more resilient and more prepared for the challenges that lie ahead."

The plan marks his latest effort to build out a legislative agenda with measures that could animate progressives who may be skeptical of Biden, who waged a more centrist campaign during the Democratic primary.

It reflects ideas embraced by some of Biden's more progressive allies during the primary, like Jay Inslee, whose campaign centered on the issue of climate change. But it doesn't go as far as the Green New Deal, the sweeping proposal from progressives in Congress that calls for achieving net-zero greenhouse gas emissions across the economy by 2030.

Biden's plan does align with a climate bill spearheaded by House Speaker Nancy Pelosi in reducing emissions to zero by 2050, however. And it goes farther than that bill on achieving a carbon-neutral power sector. House Democrats' proposal sets a 2040 deadline for that goal, while Biden's aims to achieve it five years faster.

In the plan, Biden pledges to spend $2 trillion over four years to promote his energy proposals, a significant acceleration of the $1.7 trillion over 10 years he proposed spending in his climate plan during the primary.

The proposal doesn't include specifics on how it would be paid for. Senior campaign officials who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss strategy said it would require a mix of tax increases on corporations and the wealthy and deficit spending aimed at stimulating the economy.

Walking down memory lane

Hello again. Waiting, waiting, waiting ... reflecting and remembering the plays at the Art Center, the concerts, the fundraising projects, photographing the volunteers along the volunteer path, sharing the moments, wondering when we will be together again. I sit here just being “in the moment” with glimpses, thinking, thinking, thinking about moments when sunrises and sunsets brighten my kitchen table’s bouquets of flowers from my rosebush, the dew upon them as I picked them. The birds that greet me with their morning songs welcoming me to the gift of yet another day as I reach for the Chronicle in its bright yellow receptacle by the road.

It has been said that memory is a form of immortality and that the people we remember continue to be a part of our daily thoughts and their influence is always with us.

I cherish the memory of Miss Anna Wiley. She was a member of our Crystal River United Methodist Church. A tiny lady, but one who was filled to the brim with enthusiasm and vitality. I still recall how she often spoke of “deepening” into the truths of the Scriptures and I have her Bible with encouraging and affirming passages she underlined.

She lived on Crystal Street near the middle school and in her late 90s still enjoyed walking to our former downtown church, which is behind the First Baptist Church on Citrus Avenue.

Every Thursday, she had an after-school Bible study for preteens. Once a year she conducted athletic contests on the church lawn with prizes for the children and afterward they enjoyed a hot bowl of soup that had been simmering on the church kitchen’s stove. Each child had contributed the ingredients: a potato, a carrot an onion, celery, etc.

Miss Anna had never married, but loved children and often babysat for young mothers’ children. She had a small “lending library” in her tiny home long before we had our public libraries and church libraries available. Surely her influence remains with us and with the children she adored.

The memory of Horace and Pauline Allen are in my memory bank each time I’m out on the Key Training Center campus for the monthly board meetings. They contributed greatly to the Key through its inception and steady growth; property, serving on the board, participation in supportive events. Board members looked forward to our board installation dinners’ prized coconut cake that Pauline baked. Horace served on the school board and Pauline drove a school bus for years. A dedicated couple who shared from the heart.

Walking down memory lane through my columns with you each week as I wait for the times I can spotlight the events we champion all around the community to return is a blessing beyond measure. As Bob Hope always said: “Thanks for the memories.”

Ruth Levins participates in a variety of projects around the community. Let her know about your group’s upcoming activities by writing to P.O. Box 803, Crystal River, FL 34423.

Floral City Garden Club masks up to make a difference

There is no moss growing under the feet of the Floral City Garden Club members. That is because during these times that the club is not holding meetings, they are out their village tending to the numerous landscaped areas they have created.

Members spent several days in June and are adding more days in July to weeding and mulching. That layer of mulch will provide an important barrier for the weeds and retainer of moisture for the plants this summer. When the last bag was spread, 16 of the club members had worked for 15 hours and had placed 75 — yes, 75 — bags of mulch in the three major gardens downtown.

The oldest garden that has been maintained by the club is the Floral City Community Memorial Garden initiated in 1993 and dedicated in 1996. “There are no names, only memories,” is the slogan for this well-established area between the Floral City Library and the City Garden Club members. That is because

The garden features the first in-ground labyrinth constructed in Citrus County. It is open 24/7 without charge. Donations in memory of loved ones may be made to the club and are recorded in the Memorial Book retained in the library for review.

The Floral City Gateway Sign and landscaping dedicated in October of 2003 was one of the “actions” from the 2001 Floral City Vision Action Plan. It was a joint project with the county (who constructed the stone sign structure), the Floral City Heritage Council (who created and maintains the wooden sign portion) and the Garden Club (who designed, planted and maintains the landscaping). After Hampton’s Trailside Bike Shop created a mural on their wall facing the trail, the club moved the garden in 2006 to the area and added roses. Enacting safety strategies

MetroCreative

In response to COVID-19, Boys & Girls Clubs have opened our doors on June 1 to a fraction of students who need services. And, Boys & Girls Clubs of Citrus County has enacted various measures to help ensure their safety.

Boys & Girls Clubs of Citrus County takes COVID-19 precautions

Special to the Chronicle

Boys & Girls Club of Citrus County (BGCC) exists to identify and fill gaps in the community, and to ensure that every child is set up for success in life. BGCC has the geographical footprint, facilities, capacity and child care knowledge to address the community's needs to support local families.

Though BGCC has the capacity and desire to serve Citrus County youths, COVID-19 has challenged club policies, procedures and resources to serve children who need it most.

In response to COVID-19, Boys & Girls Clubs have opened our doors on June 1 to a fraction of students who need services.

Boys & Girls Clubs of Citrus County has enacted various safety measures that include:

- Temperature checks upon drop-off;
- daily health questioning of both staff and students;
- six-foot distancing inside buildings;

- extensive cleaning;
- a ratio of one staff member per nine students in classrooms;
- frequent hand washing and;
- mandatory face masks for students and staff.

Though staff works diligently to keep members and employees safe, BGCC also realizes the precariousness in the spread of the virus and aren't naive to the fact that the Boys & Girls Clubs could one day be affected.

Boys & Girls Clubs of Citrus County is the only place that some of the families in our community can turn to when schools are closed.

BGCC is diligently monitoring the pandemic and will continue to operate as long as are able to provide a safe environment for our young people and staff.

As always, BGCC places the safety of our youths and staff at the highest level.

If community members have additional questions, or want to get involved in supporting our mission of serving Citrus County's young people, contact Travis Anderson, CEO of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Citrus County at 352-621-9225.

Make a monetary donation by texting BGCCITRUS to phone number 41444 or by visiting www.BGCCITRUS.org.

Legacy for future nurses

The College of Central Florida Foundation recently announced a $88,756 planned gift to establish the Frances M. Lowe Endowed Nursing Scholarship at CF.

The donor, Frances Lowe, was a resident of Inverness. Lowe had a passion for education expressed by her interest to help future generations achieve their dreams of becoming nurses. Staff from the CF Foundation met with her and her advisor to discuss how the Foundation may help her achieve her goal. After a tour of the College of Central Florida's Citrus Campus nursing lab and a few more conversations, Lowe committed to create the endowed nursing scholarship at CF through a generous gift through her will.

Lowe passed away in September 2019 with an intent to help others well into the future through education.

If you are interested in providing a legacy gift to the College of Central Florida, one way to do so is to include the CF Foundation in your will. Planned gifts help ensure that students will have the necessary funds to transform their lives through education. For more information about including the CF Foundation in your will, contact Traci Mason, mason@CF.edu or 352-873-5808, or visit www.CF.edu/foundation.

Mini Fact:
Federal and state governments may work together, especially during crises such as the coronavirus pandemic.

Article III

Article III of the Constitution is about the judicial branch (the courts). It has three sections.

Section 1

Judicial power will rest in the Supreme Court and the other courts.

Section 2

This section establishes rules about what kinds of cases the Supreme Court can consider. Some disputes can go directly to the highest court, while others must be heard on appeal, or after they've gone through lower courts.

This section also guarantees Americans a trial by jury in criminal court.

Section 3

Section 3 explains what the delegates meant by treason: bringing war against the United States or helping enemies of the country.

As we have been learning in this series, the men who wrote our Constitution were very concerned about power. They knew that our country's first laws, the Articles of Confederation, did not give the national government enough power. (The Articles of Confederation were the laws that united the states together after the Revolution.) The articles had given too much power to the states.

In many ways, each state acted like a separate country. Strong national laws that were fair to everyone were needed to bind the country together.

The writers of the Constitution set up what is called a federal system of government. It divides powers between the national government and the state governments.

As an American, you are a citizen of both the United States and the state in which you live.

Reserved powers

Under our federal type of government, the states are free to keep certain powers. Some limits were put on the U. S. government in the Bill of Rights of 1791.

10th Amendment

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

The 10th Amendment makes it very clear that the powers not given to the national government are reserved, or saved, for the states.

For example, states have the power to set up a system to educate their people. But states are denied the right to print their own money and to make treaties with other governments.

Both the U.S. and state governments are given the power to:

- collect taxes.
- borrow money.
- take private property for public use after paying a fair price.

In 2005, Betty Debnam, creator of The Mini Page, worked closely with the National Archives in Washington, D.C., to create a nine-part series of issues about our U.S. Constitution. This is the sixth issue in the series, which will continue once a month until Election Day 2020.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I am beside myself. I am tired and frustrated. I married my husband over 17 years ago. He is 11 years older than me. When we married, he had a teenage son. Shortly after we married, his son, in his senior year, decided to go live with his mother on the other side of the world. He would keep in touch with his dad by phone and visit once a year.

DEAR ANNIE

When my husband and I retired, we decided to move closer to his son, but we were still a long drive away. We gave up everything to move there. My husband is in his 80s. He is not in good health. He can no longer travel the distance to see his son.

His son has a nice family with a couple of children and a good job. When we first moved here, they would come to visit on occasion. But now, it is far fewer visits. I have asked his son on several occasions to just call his dad, maybe once a week. But for some reason, he couldn't do that.

We send them gifts on all of their birthdays and special occasions. We never hear from them if they received the gifts or if they liked them — and there's never a thank-you note. Only after I would email them, asking if they received the items, did they respond. My husband has called his son several times and left messages. He never calls back.

I've watched my husband as he has cried several times over this situation. It pains my heart to see how this wears on my husband. When he was raising his son, his son was the world to him. Now, he feels his son hates him. Not a day goes by that he does not go into a tirade about his son's neglect.

He says he doesn't want anything to do with them. When he dies, he doesn't even want me to notify him. He made me promise to take his son out of our will when he dies. We have argued about this on several different occasions. I don't think he really means this. His son is his only living relative. I used to make excuses for his son, but I'm tired. I can't do it anymore. Help. — At My Wits' End

Dear At My Wits' End: I am so sorry that you and your husband, and your stepson, are all going through this. Your stepson clearly has some animosity toward your husband that needs to be addressed. Instead of addressing it head-on, and talking through the issues, he is avoiding his father to prevent having a relationship.

It's no wonder that he is doing that because your husband's response to his son's withdrawal was the same reaction. He said to cut him out of the will and to not even tell his son when he dies. Like father, like son.

The only way to stop this cycle is for the two of them to have an open and honest conversation about their feelings. Although it can be painful to talk about hurtful things, once you do, it feels much better in the long run, and you can begin to understand the other person's point of view.

Encourage your husband to reach out to his son, one on one, and tell him how much you love him. Hopefully, they can work things out. To work through his resentment and hurt, your husband could always try therapy. It is easier to face emotions with a trained professional.

auction began with three passes around to him. West leads the diamond king. How should declarer plan the play?
It is the modern style to open one no-trump when balanced with the right point-count, even with a five-card major. When North responded with a transfer bid, South jumped to three spades, a superaccept, promising at least four-card support, a doubleton somewhere and not a minimum opening.
Declarer was faced with five potential losers: one spade, two hearts and two diamonds. He needed a winning spade finesse and a good heart guess.
After ducking the first trick and taking West's diamond-jack continuation with his ace, South led the spade queen: king, ace. Declarer drew the missing trump, cashed his club winners and exited with his third diamond. West took that trick and shifted to a low heart. What did declarer do? Why?
It was time to recall the auction and — repetition from yesterday — to count the high-card points. West had already shown up with 9 points in spades and diamonds. If he also had the heart ace, he would have opened the bidding as dealer. So, South called for dummy's heart jack, hoping that West had started with 11 points, not 9.
