Penny Clymer hadn't planned on having a lakefront home at the Singing Forest Mobile Home Park in Floral City.

But that's exactly what she and her neighbors have right now. Recent heavy rains flooded the park/ pond area in front of their homes and now the water is roughly 8 feet from her back porch.

She's one of the lucky ones. Her neighbors on the other side of the park have water up to their homes and must use four-wheel drives to get out or rely on the generosity of neighbors to bring them food and other supplies.

Making matters worse, the floodwater is right up to the park's wasteinto the station, residents could have untreated water in their backyards and it becomes a health issue.

To fortify the station, residents have placed sandbags around it. But they worry that a few more heavy afternoon thunderstorms will be too much for the flooded water. This has been going on for at least a week-and-a-half.

We just keep getting more water and more rain and there's no place for it to go," said Clymer, U.S. health officials Wednesday, Aug. recommended Americans get COVID-19 booster shots to shore up their protection.

Boost it or lose it

PERRONE AND MIKE STOBBE Associated Press

WASHINGTON U.S. health officials Wednesday announced plans to dispense COVID-19 booster shots to all Americans to shore up their protection amid the surging delta variant and signs that the vaccines' effectiveness is slipping.

The plan, as outlined by the chief of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other top health authorities, calls for an extra dose eight months after people get their second shot of the Pfizer or Moderna vaccine. The doses could begin the week of Sept. 20.

"Our plan is to protect the American people, to stay ahead of this virus," CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky said as the agency cited a raft of studies suggesting that the vaccines are losing ground while the highly contagious variant spreads.

Katie West doesn't feel slighted.

"I'm glad it wasn't my children, my sons-in-law or my grandchildren," West told the Chronicle. "That would have made me feel cheated. I'm glad it was me and not them that got ... cancer."

By the time the 62-year-old former middle school teacher was diagnosed with colon cancer in 2019, she probably already had the disease for a couple years. She had been tested years before but she wasn't due for another exam for a few more years.

The road for treatment was a long one for West's stage four cancer that had spread to her liver. But she tries not to think about whether tumors persist and hide after each round of chemotherapy treatment.

"It's not always in my head. This is just how I live my life now. I try not to think about it. It would consume me," she said.

But she remembers when she first learned of her diagnosis; how little she knew of the disease that claims 53,000 lives in the United States every year;

"My biggest concern is the residents," Stroud said. "We've done everything we know to do. We're looking for guidance.

Stroud said there are 200 mobile homes at the park: About 150 people are living there now and another 50 are still wintering somewhere else. The facility is limited to people 55 and older. She said Bedrock will visit the park every day to monitor the situation. Two weeks ago, residents were playing shuffleboard in the park. Today, the court is under water. The bridge leading to a gazebo is sticking up from deep water. The blue metal benches recently installed for residents to relax on are submerged. Police tape cordons off the flooded areas.

The water has come up in the last two days, said Dale Bennett, vice president of facilities with Bedrock.

"We're hoping it will come down," he said.

Portable toilets on the way?

What can be done to resolve the issue?

NOTICE OF BOCC SPECIAL MEETING TO CONDUCT A PUBLIC HEARING TO IMPOSE AND PROVIDE FOR COLLECTION OF NON-AD VALOREM ASSESSMENTS

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency through the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System Stormwater permitting program implemented by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection has mandated Citrus County, Florida to implement and fund a comprehensive stormwater management program. A new and dedicated funding source is needed to maintain compliance with these requirements. Accordingly, the Citrus County, Florida Board of County Commissioners ("Board"), will conduct a public hearing during a Special Meeting at 1:00 p.m. on September 9, 2021, in Room 100 of the Citrus County Courthouse, 110 North Apopka Avenue, Inverness, Florida, to consider the imposition of Stormwater Service Assessments in the unincorporated area of the County, as shown above.

In accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, persons needing a special accommodation or an interpreter to participate in this proceeding should contact the County Administrator's office, 3600 W. Sovereign Path, Suite 267, Lecanto, Florida 34461, (352) 527-5210, at least two days before the meeting. If you are hearing or speech impaired, dial 7-1-1, 1-800-955-8771 (TTY) or 1-800-955-8770 (v), via Florida Relay Service. If you need a Spanish Translator, please make arrangements with the County by telephone within two days of the publication notice at (352) 527-5370. Si necesita un traductor de español por favor haga arreglos con el Condado dentro de los dos dias de la notificatión de la publicación a 352-527-5370

All affected property owners have a right to appear at the hearing and to file written objections with the County. All written objections to the non-ad valorem assessments must be filed with the Board of County Commissioners within twenty (20) days of this notice. Please include your name, parcel number, and the reason you object to the assessment on all written objections. Address all written objections as follows: Citrus County BOCC, Attn: Land Section, 3600 W. Sovereign Path, Suite 205, Lecanto, Florida 34461. Any person wishing to appeal any decision of the Board with respect to any matter considered will need a record of the proceedings and may wish to ensure that a verbatim record of the proceedings is made.

The Stormwater Service Assessments will fund the County's cost to provide Stormwater Management Services in the unincorporated area of the County. The Stormwater Service Assessments are based upon the estimated amount of stormwater runoff generated by impervious surface on the property. Impervious surfaces include the roof top, patios, driveways, parking lots and similar areas. The County has determined that the median single-family residence in the Stormwater Management Area includes 4,182 square feet of impervious surface, which is defined as the "equivalent stormwater unit value" or "ESU Value." The annual Stormwater Service Assessment rate for the upcoming Fiscal Year will be $58.84 for each Net ESU.

Failure to pay the Stormwater Service Assessment will cause a tax certificate to be issued against the assessed property which may result in a loss of title to your property.

Generally, the number of ESUs were calculated individually for each parcel of property by dividing the impervious surface area by 4,182 square feet. If a property owner applies and qualifies, credits for privately maintained Stormwater mitigation facilities and other factors affecting the quantity or quality of Stormwater runoff will be applied, resulting in an assignment of Net ESUs. A more specific description is set forth in the Initial Assessment Resolution adopted by the Board on July 13, 2021. Copies of the Initial Assessment Resolution and the preliminary assessment roll are available for inspection at the Board of County Commissioner's Administrative Office, Room 232, located at the Citrus County Courthouse, 110 North Apopka Avenue, Inverness, Florida.

Additional information about the Stormwater Service Assessment, including the mitigation credit application for a privately maintained stormwater management facility is available at https://www.citrusbocc.com/stormwater

If you have any questions, please contact the County at (352) 527-5373.

More county kids get 'blessed'

Supplemental food program provides

NANCY KENNEDY Staff writer

Citrus County Blessings has added 30 more kids to bless each weekend with supplemental takehome food.

Two local Voluntary Pre-K (VPK) programs, Carter Street Head Start in Inverness and Koala Tee Academy preschool in Floral City, were added this past March, and there's room for more, said Christina Reed, Blessings executive director.

Currently, Citrus County Blessings serves every public school in the area, plus four private schools: Seven Rivers Christian School, Solid Rock Academy, Inverness Christian Academy and Saint John Paul II.

They also serve the Renaissance Center, CREST and Pace Center for Girls.

That's a fluctuating total of between 1.550 and 1.650 students during the school year.

"There are a lot of VPKs in our county, and we'd been tossing around the idea of including them for a couple of years, how we would implement it, making sure we had the resources to do it,' Reed said. Disney World tweaks face mask policy, optional for outdoors

ORLANDO — Walt Disney World is tweaking its face mask policy. Starting Thursday, the theme park resort in Florida will allow visitors to choose whether or not to wear face coverings in outdoor lines, outdoor theaters and outdoor attractions. Masks had been required previously.

Face coverings will remain optional in outdoor common areas. They will still be required for visitors age 2 and up at all indoor locations, such as restaurants, theaters and transportation with the exception of ferry boats.

Disney World closed for two months last year at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic and reopened more than a year ago with strict safety guidelines that involved masking, social distancing and crowd limits.

More Than 1 Million Seniors Have Taken Advantage of This "Retirement Secret"

With home prices soaring and interest rates at all-time lows, there's never been a better time to consider a reverse mortgage

Tt's a well-known Lfact that for many older Americans, the home is their single biggest asset, often accounting for more than 45% of their total net worth. And with interest rates still near all-time lows while home values remain high, combination creates the perfect dynamic for getting the most out of your built-up equity.

But, many aren't taking advantage of unprecedented period. According to new statistics from the mortgage industry, homeowners senior in the U.S. are now sitting on more than 8.05 trillion dollars* unused home equity.

Home Values at All Time Highs

Not only are people living longer than ever before, but there is also greater uncertainty in the economy. With home prices back up again, ignoring this "hidden wealth" may prove to be shortsighted when looking for the best long-term outcome. All things considered, it's not surprising that more than a million homeowners have already used a government-insured Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) loan to turn their home equity into extra cash for retire-

It's a fact: no monthly mortgage payments are required with a government-insured HECM loan; however, the borrowers are still responsible for paying for the maintenance of their home, property taxes, homeowner's insurance and, if required, their HOA fees.

Today, HECM loans are simply an effective way for homeowners 62 and older to get the extra cash they need to enjoy retirement.

Although today's HECM loans have been improved to provide even greater financial protection for homeowners, there are still many misconceptions.

Available if You Still Owe on Your Home or Owe Nothing

For example, a lot of people mistakenly believe the home must be paid off in full in order to qualify for a HECM loan, which is not the case. In fact, one key advantage of a HECM is that the proceeds will first be used to pay off any existing liens on the property, which frees up cash flow, a huge blessing seniors living on a fixed income. Unfortunately, many senior homeowners who might be better off with a HECM loan don't even bother to get more information because of rumors they've heard.

In fact, a recent survey by American Advisors Group (AAG), the nation's number one HECM lender, found that over 98% of their clients are satisfied with their loans.

While these special loans are not for everyone, they can be a real lifesaver for senior homeowners — especially in times like these. Use the Extra Cash

Wild horses clash on July 16, 2021, near U.S. Army Dugway Proving Ground, Utah. Horses from this herd were later rounded up as federal land managers increased the number of horses removed from the range during a historic drought. They say it's necessary to protect the parched land and the animals themselves, but wild-horse advocates accuse them of using the conditions as an excuse to move out more of the iconic animals to preserve cattle grazing.

> 'It's really unfortunate the Biden administration continues to scapegoat the horses while giving a pass to livestock that have a greater impact on public lands," said Suzanne Roy, executive director of the American Wild Horse Campaign.

The Bureau of Land Management oversees almost a quarter-billion acres of public land, primarily in the West, and is tasked with managing the wild horse population. It's planning to remove some 6,000 horses, mostly from What were seeing here Nevada, Oregon, Wyoin the West gives some in- ming and Colorado, by Oc- their livestock, they've tober — a 50% increase even helped the horses from last year. Eventually who drink it too, said sity who studies wild need to cut the number of man for the National Catwild horses by two-thirds to keep things in balance.

"In many places where wild horses and burros roam, virtually no vegetation was produced in the spring and early summer growing seasons," said Jason Lutterman, spokesman for the National Wild Horse and Burro Program in Reno, Nevada. The Biden administration has announced reforms aimed at ensuring that captured horses put up for adoption do not eventually end up in slaughterhouses, but advocates worry problems could persist as long as the government offers a $1,000 adoption incentive.

Wild-horse advocates acknowledge that lack of forage and water can be an issue in some areas, but they argue removals

Onaqui are unnecessary.

"The BLM has a drought trump card, and they use it sometimes when they want to take range," Greg Hendricks, director of field operations.

Advocates want to leave the horses on the range and instead administer fertility treatments to limit the size of the herd without roundups that can be costly and tough on the animals. One horse died during the Onaqui roundup. Fertility treatments are used, but require new doses at least annually and can be difficult to administer because they require horses to be tracked down and darted one at a time, Messmer said. Cattle ranchers, meanwhile, say they've made voluntary changes to reduce grazing on federal lands. By hauling water to drought-stricken areas for tlemen's Beef Association.

The number of sheep and cattle that graze on leased public land is far larger than the number of wild horses, Messmer said. A key difference, though, is that livestock are part of the U.S. economy. "Americans like their McDonald's burgers. They like their Big Macs. They like all of those things, and all of those things have beef as part of it," he said.

Eventually, land managers want to double the number of removals, a step they say is essential across 10 Western states in the coming years. Wild horses are federally protected, so the plan, if approved by Congress, would increase costs to an annual high of about $360 million.

Pair accused of burglary

Allegedly stole $20K worth of property

Collin

O'Neill

HANNAH SACHEWICZ Staff writer

A Citrus County man and woman were accused of collectively stealing almost $20,000 worth of property from a local home, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

Collin O'Neill, 29, was arrested and charged with burglary of an unoccupied residence and grand theft. Bond totaled at $12,000. Heather Moon, 31, was arrested and charged with burglary of an occupied residence. Bond was set at $10,000.

On Aug. 14, deputies responded to an alleged burglary. The victim said she arrived at her home and saw a silver Volkswagen sedan parked in her driveway.

According to the report, the victim saw two individuals taking property from her home. She told deputies the home is owned by her and her husband, neither of whom gave anyone permission to enter the home or remove any property.

The woman showed deputies a video of a short white male and a black female entering the Volkswagen. It also reportedly showed miscellaneous tools in the trunk of the car. The following items were reported missing from the home: junction box, pressure washer, two weed eathedge trimmer attachment, tire iron, pruning shears, tape measurer, shovel, two tires, gas can, pick axe and sledge hammer. The total value of the stolen items was $1,250. As deputies conversed with the woman, they reportedly saw the described Volkswagen and passengers slowly drive by. Deputies approached the vehicle and removed O'Neill and Moon.

The woman told deputies that facility staff.

Moon was wearing her dress. When deputies opened the trunk of the vehicle, they located the missing tools.

O'Neill and Moon were read their Miranda rights and transported to the Citrus County Detention Facility for booking and receiving.

On Aug. 15, deputies made contact with both victims at O'Neill's Homosassa residence to categorize other alleged stolen items.

The recovered items included a KTM 360CC dirt bike motorcycle, a Bostich 6-gallon electric air compressor, an ammo can filled with assorted baseball cards and a Workforce brand tile saw. The value totaled at $18,510.

Deputies spoke to O'Neill's mother, who alleged the victims' property started appearing at her residence and was brought by O'Neill. When questioned, O'Neill told his mother the items were given to him by the victims.

According to the report, deputies made contact with O'Neill, who was already in custody for the alleged burglary. They read him his Miranda warnings, he was arrested and turned back over to detention

The first boosters would go to people in highpriority groups that received the initial U.S. vaccinations: nursing home residents, health workers and those with underlying health conditions. Health officials are likely to rec-

Stocks take late turn lower

Marking 2nd straight loss

DAMIAN J. TROISE Zaccarelli, chief invest-AND ALEX VEIGA Associated Press

Wall Street Wednesday, sending the S&P 500 to its second straight loss after a five-day winning streak.

The benchmark index fell 1.1%, its biggest decline since mid-July. The selling accelerated in the final hour of trading, with technology, health care, financial and industrial companies weighing down the index the most.

Only the index's consumer discretionary sector, which includes a mix of companies that rely on consumer spending, rose as investors bid up shares in Lowe's and other big retailers that reported better-than-expected quarterly results. Even so, the S&P remains within 80 points of its all-time high set on Monday.

The market didn't react much initially to the afternoon release of the minutes from the Federal Reserve's latest policy meeting, which confirmed that central bank policymakers have made no firm decision about when to start unwinding their support measures for the economy, which has been steadily recovering from the pandemic recession.

The surge this summer of virus cases because of the highly contagious delta variant now hangs over the broader market and is blurring the view on the economy's continued recovery. The path of the virus and its impact and job growth could be a month. factor in the Fed's decision making

The S&P 500 index fell 47.81 points to 4,400.27. The Dow Jones Industrial Average slid 382.59 points, or 1.1%, to 34,960.69. The Nasdaq composite lost 130.27 points, or 0.9%, to 14,525.91.

Small company stocks also fell, sending the Russell 2000 index down by 18.39 points, or 0.8%, to 2,158.78.

The yield on the 10-year Treasury note rose to 1.27% from 1.25% late Tuesday.

The minutes from the Federal Reserve's policy meeting last month, released at 2 p.m. Eastern, showed that Fed officials discussed the idea of beginning to taper the Fed's extraordinary support for the U.S. economy later this year, though they stopped short of a firm decision on a timetable.

They also concluded that the economic recovery from the pandemic recession was moving closer to achieving the central bank's goals on inflation and employment. As a result, the Fed is edging toward an announceparing the pace of its Treasury and mortgage bond buying, which now

Wall Street's biggest worry is that the Fed will end its easy money policies earlier than expected to combat inflation, which would put some drag on the U.S. economy in its recovery. Investors will be looking for more clues as to the Fed's moves next week, at the central bank's annual conference Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Beyond watching the Fed, investors sized up quarterly report cards from retailers, which are among the last industries to issue results this earnings season.

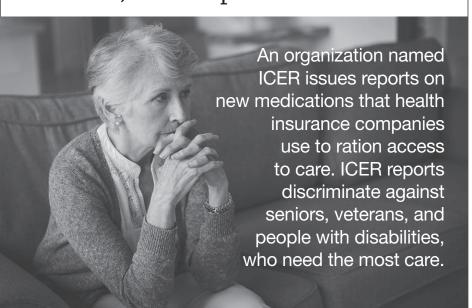

Lowe's Cos. jumped 9.6% for the biggest gain in the S&P 500 after the home improvement chain gave investors a strong sales forecast. TJX Cos. rose 5.6% after the parent of T.J. Maxx, Marshalls and other stores beat analysts' second-quarter profit and forecasts.

State should do more for manatees

I'm calling in reference to the article, "Manatee woes continue," in Friday's, Aug. 6, Chronicle (Page A3). This may sound stupid and I have to admit I haven't researched this, but it seems that many of these animals are dying because they don't have enough food, and seagrass is a primary source of food for the manatees. Is there any way that the state could come up with something to feed them in place of the seagrass? I'm not sure if they're federally protected anymore, but we know how important the manatee is for Florida. Well, it's just a thought. Maybe there's something that we could provide for them to take the place of the seagrass.

Homosassa speeders a problem

I read with great interest the letter in Sunday's paper titled "Douglas Street is like a racetrack." I could not agree more with every word written. The fact is that the residents on Douglas Street have been complaining about the speeders literally for years and years.

Sadly, the sheriff's office simply doesn't think the problem is big enough to dedicate the necessary resources to fix the issue. While it is true that no one has died yet on this racetrack, it is only a matter of

What did happen though was that in June of 2020 a speeding vehicle left the roadway and hit two of our vehicles that were parked in our driveway. The resulting damage totaled more than $40,000.

The real kick in the teeth was that because of Florida law, the driver only had $10,000 worth of liability coverage. This accident cost us $12,000 out of pocket. Several well placed speed bumps along Douglas raceway would have likely prevented this accident or at least minimized to save lives The letter "Getting better educated on COVID" left out important principles of mask wearing. Masks are a key measure to suppress transmission and save lives. They work better if they are not limited to the vulnerable because even fully vaccinated, apparently healthy, young people can transmit COVID if they have an asymptomatic infection.

Masks key measure

The letter said that the COVID vaccine cannot be mandated because some have underlying medical conditions that make them harmful. But Florida has vaccine requirements — with medical exemptions permitted — for day cares, preschools, and schools through the 12th grade.

In summary, masks have benefits beyond protecting the wearer and there might be a justification for COVID

Action speaks louder than words

We are truly fortunate in our wonderful country that we have been given the right to criticize, speak our opinion and yes, actually speak falsehoods. And the best yet, we are not even held accountable for just the mere words without action.

So how much courage does it take to spew our words and thoughts, and really not be held accountable? MLK (Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.) had such courage, to not only speak and march, but to convince America that we need to look at the content of the character of the person, not just the color of their skin. A young Swedish gal didn't just spew words, she took her story and conviction to the United Nations to push the debate for climate change. She also had courage. They not only spoke and gave opinions but actually acted to cause positive outcomes.

By the way, I don't remember seeing any opinions from our courageous first responders or the tireless work by the workers at the fallen condo in Florida. Just courage and action.

Perhaps the largest group of speech makers, newsmakers, talkers and opinion leaders would be the United States Congress. They are great at giving interviews and opinions but fail tragically at getting anything done for the people they serve and put them in their lofty chambers. It takes little energy and courage to only opine. They seem to be efficient at convincing constituents to keep them seated, literally, but not standing up and making progress.

So today I am able to find many false narratives and outright lies on social media. The First Amendment is extremely wide open with exceptions, of course, for a number of unlawful issues. But the real issue I am concerned with is people criticizing without going a step farther and really making a difference by taking action and not hiding behind a social medial platform, and simply spewing hate and notions. So many folks will read this and say, bull.

I am entitled to my opinion and allowed to criticize my government. You certainly are, I say. And if you find comfort in hiding behind your written words without really being active, without coming to the forefront and putting those words in action like other courageous Americans/veterans who actually did see action, so be it.

Militants violently disperse rare protest

AKHGAR, KATHY BAN-NON AND JON GAMBRELL Associated Press

militants attacked protesters Wednesday in Afghanistan who dared to take down their banner and replace it with the country's flag, killing at least one person and fueling fears about how the insurgents would govern this fractious nation.

While the Taliban have insisted they will respect human rights, unlike during their previously draconian rule, the attack in Jalalabad came as many Afghans were hiding at home or trying to flee the country, fearful of abuses by the loosely controlled militant organization. Many people have expressed dread that the two-decade Western experiment

Board to review Fulton

KATE BRUMBACK Associated Press

ATLANTA — Georgia's State Election Board on Wednesday took a step toward a possible eventual takeover of elections in the state's most populous county under a process outlined in the state's sweeping new voting law.

The board voted unanimously Wednesday to approve a bipartisan, three-person review panel to investigate the handling of elections in Fulton County, a Democratic bastion that includes most of the city of Atlanta.

The county has long been a target for Republicans. Their attacks increased after former President Donald Trump claimed without evidence that fraud in the county contributed to his narrow loss in the state. An independent monitor appointed by the State Election Board found no evidence of fraud or malfeasance.

GOP lawmakers last month asked the state board to appoint the performance review panel, initiating the process that could allow the Republican-controlled state board to replace the county's board of registration and elections with an administrator it chooses.

Fulton County accounts for about 11% of the state's electorate and President Joe Biden won nearly 73% of votes cast there in the November election. The county is about 45.5% white, 44.5% Black and about 7.6% people of Asian descent, according to U.S. Census data.

The members of the review panel approved by the state board are: Stephen Day, a Democratic appointee to the Gwinnett County election board; Ricky Kittle, a Republican appointee to the Catoosa County election board; and Ryan Germany, general counsel for the secretary of state's

FLAIR FOR FOOD

Pisto manchego is a colorful combination of sautéed summer vegetables that is Spain's answer to French ratatouille.

Spain's answer to ratatouille

CHRISTOPHER KIMBALL
Milk Street

In the kitchens of a trendy Madrid dinner theater called Florida Retiro, chef Joaquin Felipe introduced us to pisto manchego, a colorful combination of sautéed summer vegetables that is Spain's answer to French ratatouille.

The fresh taste of the vegetables had come through — finely chopped bell peppers, tomato, onion, eggplant and zucchini, each ingredient still intact. The fruitiness of good olive oil acted as a binder without producing a greasy porridge. And the buttery, grassy flavor of curls of manchego cheese elevated this dish above a mere side. Simply delicious.

For the version in our book "Milk Street Tuesday Nights," we suggest topping it with a poached or fried egg for a quick but tasty main course.

The flavorful tomato juices make crusty bread almost obligatory, but the dish also would pair wonderfully with rice or a baked potato. We liked the effect of using one red and one yellow bell pepper, but you could use just one color. Just don't use the seedy core of the zucchini, as it turns soft and mushy with cooking.

The result was a lesson in contradictions. Simple yet trendy. Oil-infused, not oily. Delicate yet basic. What a good pisto manchego should be.

Back-to-school surprises

T's been hanging in the balance for days, even weeks. For some people in church, anticipation mounted at the thought of home-schooling our children this term, for others with multiple children, it looked like a tall order.

We talked, we weighed pros and cons. Our children, who loved school last year, declared they would like to have school at home this year. In my heart I wanted to teach them more than I could ever tell, yet I realized that daily my time was already stretched to the max as I did my best to care for our six young children and squeeze in house work where I could. I wondered when I would write the dered when I would write the column.

I know that many of you have been forced to home-school this past year with COVID. Really now, I cannot imagine what it was like for you, especially for you who were balancing a job and home-schooling children, all in one.

For me, my entire life revolves around our children day and night, so it's not like I have another job to juggle, (besides writing to all of you, and I do not consider it a job at all. You all have become friends and family). The young girl who had planned to teach our lower

The young girl who had planned to teach our lower grades this fall started courting this summer. Concerned that she would not have adequate energies to put in school while entering this new phase in her life, she opted to not teach while dating. Though we hated to see her go, we released her knowing that she made the wiser choice.

As we pursued various options on who could teach the lower grades in her place, each door closed. Finally, we questioned if perhaps having the children being taught at home by their mothers could be the thing to do for the upcoming term.

I told God how much I wanted to teach my children and have them with me whole days, and yet how I didn't know how I could manage doing it. I simply left it in His hands. Julia hoped we wouldn't find anyone to teach

With Daniel being on the school board, he made more calls than I could count, and discussed more options than I could tell. Still nothing materialized.

Last week we spoke with a young girl from Ohio, whom we idealized as a Godly example and a dedicated teacher at heart. It was our last attempt; if this was to fall through, home-schooling was the next option. Once more we prayed earnestly for God to have His way. She promised to get back with an answer first of the week.

This afternoon I had a surprise waiting for me when the children and I came home from being at a tea party. Jumping off the cart, I tied up the pony and headed toward the barn where Daniel was working on his old Ferguson tractor.

"Well, do you want to know what her answer was?" he asked

I gasped, "Did she call?" Daniel's teasing grin

"She said she would've liked to teach, but didn't feel God leading her in that direction."

Shrighing with delight at the thought of tone

Shrieking with delight at the thought of teaching my children, I forgot that I was not a little girl myself, as I sprinted toward the children. Stooping down I caught both Julia and Austin in my arms.

"You're going to be my students!" I declared, looking into their eager faces.

In a moment Hosanna was there, too. Though she hadn't been impressed earlier about the idea of having kindergarten at home, she was obviously shifting gears

So here we are, getting all geared up for the term; no, we do not expect an easy term without difficulties to work through, but I do trust that the same guide that has brought us so far won't drop us, as long as we keep crying out to Him.

And as Daniel always says, "If we expect things to go perfectly or just as we want them to, we will become disappointed and frustrated." So with that in mind, we'll take the first step of school at home and we will keep you posted on how it's turning out.

Now here I am, it's 11:30 at night, I'm too wound up to sleep. You know, just maybe I did discover when to do the column, even when I'm a home-schooling mom! OK, who's going to have a midnight snack with me? Well, I won't be cooking to much right now, but I do know one thing, I'm hungry for onion rings, so that it will be tomorrow night for dinner!

Summer's bounty

Corn, zucchini, tomatoes: Making the most of fresh food

KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

ere we are, in the belly of summer. Time to make the most of the season's bountiful produce before it's gone! So let's talk about three glorious workhorses of the late-summer vegetable garden, farm stand or kitchen: tomatoes, corn and zuechini

Anyone with a garden is working feverishly to make use of their tomatoes and zucchini, and anyone with access to a farmer's market is likewise piling up those items, along with fresh sweet corn.

Tips (and a recipe) on how to enjoy the best of late summer and have no produce regrets as the air turns crisper:

TOMATOES

Tomatoes are botanically a fruit, but we mostly treat them like a vegetable in the kitchen. Either way, they're as versatile as it comes.

Heirloom tomatoes are non-cross-pollinated; farmers take seeds from the best plants and grow new ones, selecting for traits like juiciness, size, color or taste. Thus, heirloom tomatoes are often (not always) more flavorful and definitely more diverse than traditional tomatoes. Plus they have cool names like Cherokee Purple, Brandywine, Green Zebra, Black Krim and Mr. Stripey.

Whether heirloom or hybrid (what you'll find at most markets), all tomatoes should be firm, yet have some softness when you press them. Avoid those with cracks or cuts, brown spots and bruises (but don't toss a tomato for those reasons — just cut out the mushy parts, and use the rest).

The most flavorful tomatoes are usually the ones with the best fragrance near the stem.

Orange and yellow tomatoes are generally less acidic than red, so milder in flavor. Varieties of cherry tomatoes have higher sugar concentrations and are therefore sweeter than larger tomatoes. Yellow and orange cherry and grape tomatoes tend to be sweeter than their red counterparts.

Raw tomatoes are of course central to salsa, gazpacho, bruschetta, no-cook tomato sauce, panzanella, caprese salad, and green, grain and pasta salads of all kinds. A thick slice goes a long way on a burger or sandwich. A simple cherry tomato salad rounds out any summer meal.

any summer meal.

Cooked, they turn into fresh tomato sauce, top pizzas, and add flavor to stews, soups and chilis. Think about simply roasting tomatoes as a side dish. And even before they ripen, consider sizzling up some fried green tomatoes, maybe served with green goddess dressing?

Tomatoes are best when stored at room temperature (away from the sun). They continue to ripen on the counter, so place them stemside down to prevent rotting. Tomatoes tend to get more mealy in the fridge than when stored at room temperature, but if they are getting too soft, refrigerate to keep them a few more days.

k k

ZUCCHINI AND SUMMER SQUASH

Like tomatoes, zucchini and summer squash are technically in the fruit family, though cookingwise they are most often treated as a vegetable. The flavors of zucchini and yellow summer squash are similar, with the yellow versions being a little blander, and sometimes less firm in texture.

Choose squash between 6 and 8 inches long and no more than 2 inches in diameter, firm to the touch, with smooth, taut skin. Smaller squash tend to be less mealy and/or fibrous, and more flavorful. However, the larger ones can be shredded and used in recipes like zucchini bread and muffins, or can be hollowed out and stuffed.

Kitchen SMARTS

KATIE WORKMAN/Associated Press

A variety of fruits and vegetables are displayed at a farmers market in Milford, Conn.

Zucchini and summer squash are usually simply cooked — sauteed or steamed, sometimes fried, though they also can be stuffed and baked. They can be used in stews, soups, pastas and chilis to easily add bulk and nutrition. They are a great addition to kebabs, and also make great gratins.

Raw, they provide heft and crunch to salads. Use smaller squash in uncooked preparations.

Zucchini and summer squash can be stored in the fridge for several days, depending on how firm they were when you got them.

The popularity of the spiralizer has put zucchini noodles (or zoodles) in the spotlight. They can be used instead of pasta, either raw or lightly cooked. The smooth, brightly colored skin is usually left on and is quite pretty.

Zucchini and summer squash put forth a flower on each end of the vegetable, and it's also edible. These flowers might be used raw in salads, sauteed, or stuffed and fried.

CORN

While few people grow their own corn, piles of ears are teetering at the supermarket or farm stand this time of year.

If possible, buy corn the same day you plan to cook it. Choose ears with firm, taut kernels (peel back the top of the busks to check back the top of the husks to check), with no shriveling, browning or rotting. If you are going to keep corn for a few days, store it in the fridge, preferably with husks on.

A quick dunk in boiling water is the first stop for most of us cooking corn, and it's hard to improve on the sweet crunch of a lightly cooked piece of corn on the cob (maybe with a melting pat of butter). But once we've had our fill of simply cooked corn, there are lots of ways to put those kernels to use.

Use a heavy, sharp knife to slice the kernels from the cobs, and then saute them in a bit of butter, alone or with other vegetables. Try using cooked or even fresh uncooked kernels in salads, such as potato salads, bean salads or salsas. Or make corn fritters, again with corn as the solo star or combined with another vegetable (hello again, zucchini!).

Perhaps a corn pudding? Corn chowder? A hot cheesy dip?

And don't let the summer end without grilling up some of those sweet ears, either plain or maybe elevated with a creamy sauce and some cheese as Mexican Street

 About 1/2 cup vegetable or canola oil to pan fry the fritters

Place the corn in a large pot and add about 1 inch of water. Cover the pot, bring the water to a simmer over medium-high heat, and simmer for about 4 minutes until the corn is just barely cooked and hot. Remove the

When the corn is cool enough to handle, slice the kernels off with a heavy, sharp knife. You should have about 3 cups. Dice the zucchini into 1/4-inch cubes. You should have about 1 cup.

In a large bowl combine the cream, eggs, shallots, flour, cayenne, and salt and pepper. Stir in the corn and zucchini. Let the batter sit for 20 to 30 minutes at room temperature.

In a large skillet, pour in enough vegetable oil to be about 1/4-inch deep in the pan — you want a nice thick layer on the bottom for pan frying the fritters, but you're not deep frying them. Line a plate with paper towels. Heat the oil over medium high heat until shimmering, and a drop of batter added to the pan sizzles.

Spoon in the batter by the tablespoonful, and cook for about 2 minutes until browned and crisp on the bottom. (They can splatter a bit, stand back!) Flip with a spatula and cook for another 1 or 2 minutes, until browned and crisp on the other side. Transfer the cooked fritters to the paper towels, give them a sprinkle of salt, and let them sit for a minute.

Serve hot, and keep frying them up until the batter is gone, adding more oil as you need it, and refreshing the paper towels as they absorb oil.

Rookie QBs had impressive NFL debuts

Fueling more hype

ROB MAADDI AP pro football writer

Justin Fields outshined his fellow firstround quarterbacks in their preseason openers.

Trevor Lawrence, Zach Wilson, Trey Lance and Mac Jones also made a positive impression in their debuts. So did Jordan Love, who isn't a rookie but didn't take a snap last year.

A few series against backups, thirdstringers and future practice squad guys won't determine much about any young player but a strong start is better than a poor one.

"We all want him to play really well," Bears coach Matt Nagy said of Fields. "That's a good thing for him to go out and preseason performances, most coaches put more stock into practices than games, especially the joint sessions against other clubs.

Fields, the fourth QB selected in the NFL draft at No. 11 overall, was 14 of 20 for 142 yards in just over two quarters of action for Chicago against Miami's reserves.

He made impressive throws outside the pocket and overcame a fumble during a scramble following a spin move.

The former Ohio State star had no problem adjusting to the game speed.

"It was actually kind of slow to me, to be honest," Fields said.

It'll get much faster, especially when the games count. Nagy plans to start veteran Andy Dalton in Week 1 regardless of how well Fields performs in the preseason. Dalton is expected to take more snaps against Buffalo on Saturday.

ST. PETERSBURG — Ryan Yarbrough came off the COVID-19 injured list and worked five scoreless innings as the AL East-leading Tampa Bay Rays handed the Baltimore Orioles their 14th consecutive loss, 8-4 on Wednesday night.

Without fans, international teams

ANDREW DESTIN Associated Press

The Little League World Series is back. There won't be international teams or 22,000 fans in the stands when the championship rolls around, but the tournament in South Williamsport, Pennsylvania, is set to start Thursday.

The coronavirus forced the cancellation of the tournament in 2020, and this year, the delta variant surge resulted in Little League tournaments for several older age groups being scrapped. But what most fans understand as the Little League World Series, featuring 10- to 12-year-old players, will take place over the next week and a half, with the championship set for Lamade Stadium on Aug. 29.

"It won't be the same as what they've seen on TV and from years past, but I told them, 'I don't care if there's 10,000 people or 10, you shouldn't have any problem getting up to play here," said Dustin Radar, manager of Nebraska's Hastings Little League team, the top club in the Midwest region.

"I think they're just really excited for the opportunity."

Though there won't be fans packing the hill at Lamade Stadium, those close to the players can still see them in action. Each team will receive 250 game passes to distribute to friends, families and community members.

Instead of splitting 16 teams into U.S. and international brackets, Little League's championship tournament will feature strictly American squads in 2021 because of COVID-19 and the international travel

THIS DATE IN BASEBALL

1909 — The Philadelphia Phillies were rained out for the 10th consecutive day, a major league record.

1921 — Detroit's Ty Cobb got his 3,000th career hit at age 34, the youngest player to reach that plateau. The milestone hit was a single off Elmer Myers of the Boston Red Sox.

1934 — Moose Solters of the Boston Red Sox hit for the cycle in an 8-6 loss to the Detroit Tigers at Fenway Park.

1951 — Eddie Gaedel, a 65-pound midget who was 3-foot-7, made his first and only plate appearance as a pinchhitter for Frank Saucier of the St. Louis Browns. Gaedel wearing No. 1/8 was walked on four pitches by Detroit Tigers pitcher Bob Cain and then was taken out for pinch-runner Jim Delsing. The gimmick by Browns owner Bill Veeck was completely legal, but later outlawed.

1965 — Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds no-hit the Cubs 1-0, in 10 innings in the first game of a doubleheader at Chicago. Leo Cardenas homered in the 10th for the Reds.

1969 — Ken Holtzman of the Cubs blanked the Atlanta Braves with a 3-0 no-hitter at Wrigley Field. Ron Santo's three-run homer in the first inning provided the Cubs' offense.

2007 — Johan Santana finished with a franchise-record 17 strikeouts in eight innings to help Minnesota edge Texas 1-0.

Connecticut hoops recruit signs to play for Miami

CORAL GABLES — Guard Benslev Joseph, widely considered the top recruit in Connecticut, has signed to play for the Miami Hurricanes.

The 6-foot-1 Joseph is a graduate of Putnam Science Academy in Putnam, Connecticut. He spent 2019-20 at Cushing Academy in Ashburnham, Massachusetts, where he averaged 15.4 points, 7.2 rebounds and 6.8 assists.

Joseph also considered offers from Boston College, Georgetown, Marquette and Providence. He's the third high school player to sign with Miami in the class of 2021, joining guards Nisine Poplar and Jakai Robinson.

The Hurricanes have also signed transfers Jordan Miller from George Mason and Charlie Moore from DePaul.

A's Bassitt out of hospital after being hit by liner

OAKLAND, Calif. — Oakland Athletics ace Chris Bassitt has a broken bone in his cheek that will need surgery to repair but he sustained no eye damage after being struck on the side of the head by a line drive.

Bassitt was taken to the hospital after getting hit by a ball from Brian Goodwin's bat in the second inning of a 9-0 loss to the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday night. The veteran right-hander has shown no signs of a concussion and a scan of his brain was normal, though Bassitt can't recall everything that happened during the ordeal.

A's athletic trainer Nick Paparesta said the pitcher is in "really good spirits, doing well" a day later, even with his right eye still swollen shut.

Bassitt tweeted his appreciation Wednesday for the support he has

"From the bottom of my heart, I'd like to thank the (at)whitesox and (at)Athletics staff, front offices, and owners. The support my family and I've received has been overwhelming. I'd also like to thank Rush University Medical Center and their staff. God is good. Can't wait to get back!" Bassitt wrote. "We're all incredibly grateful that Chris is doing as well as he is today. It was an awful thing to have to watch," general manager David Forst said. "Also for our players and our staff to be there on the field as well. We're thinking about everything that the team went through last night. Chris had incredible care from the second Nick reached him on the mound to everybody at the stadium and ambulance and the hospital, we're very grateful for the care that he got. But also just very aware that Chris and everyone else has been through something pretty traumatic here."

Bauer to invoke the Fifth in restraining order case

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Trevor Bauer intends to invoke his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination and will answer no questions in the case of a woman seeking a five-year restraining order against him, his attorney said in court Wednesday.

Bauer's lawyer Shawn Holley told a judge the only questions he will answer are "his name and what he does for a living," and cited a pending criminal investigation by police in Pasadena, California.

The legal team seeking the order for a woman who says Bauer choked her into unconsciousness and punched her in two sexual encounters said that Bauer was the last remaining witness they intended to call at the hearing.

Holley asked Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Dianna Gould-Saltman to allow Bauer to avoid taking the stand entirely, as defendants in criminal cases do.

This year, each U.S. region's champion and runner-up moved on, instead of just the champ. Other teams, like Florida's Martin County North Little League, took advantage of the expanded U.S. bracket. Manager Mark Rodgers' team finished runner-up to Tennessee's Nolensville Little League.

For Rodgers' team, preparing for the tournament while adhering to COVID-19 guidelines was no easy chore.

"We practiced on three different fields. We did nothing together as a team, except a little bit of infield-outfield. We kept everybody apart because where we live, COVID was all "I think Little League is doing the around us," Rodgers said. C.C. Colton was a well-educated English cleric who was known primarily for his eccentricities. He wrote, "Falsehood is never so successful as when she baits her hook with truth, and no opinions so fatally mislead us, as those that are not wholly wrong; as no watches so effectually deceive the wearer as those that are sometimes right.'

In bridge, a psychic bid is likely to mislead your partner. During the play, you hope only to mislead the opponents about your holding.

Changing the subject for a moment, you are on lead against a small slam with an ace in your

Sometimes, you lead the ace and the slam makes; whereas if you had led something else, you would have beaten the slam. Alternatively, you don't lead the ace and the slam makes; whereas if you had led the ace, you would have beaten the slam.

Which is more likely? English expert Terence Reese. whose opinion was respected, thought the latter was more likely. So, if in doubt, lead your ace at trick one. Here, West, an acolyte of Reese (that's a pun, the main bidding system in England being Acol), started with the ace and another

Now South had to play the trump suit without loss. He knew the odds: Cash the ace and king, hoping the queen drops. That was about to work — until East threw a wrench-shaped card into the works. When the spade five was led off the dummy at trick three, East played his queen!

Not guessing that East was a prestidigitator, South, believing the queen to be a singleton, continued with a low spade to dummy's nine. East, with his adrenaline flowing, produced the 10 to defeat the slam.

ear Annie: I am in my late 50s, the proud mother of two grown men who have families of their own. I've been successful in my career and always accomplished whatever I set my mind to. But I always had a secret. I have ADHD. I was diagnosed in my late 20s. I never told anyone aside from my husband because it's so embarrassing. But the condition has affected my life in so many painful ways. For decades, I t o o k ADHD medication prescribed my by psychiatrist and, with the help of this medication, was able to keep my life under control. But about five years ago, I lost my job and my employer-provided medical coverage. I had to go on state medical insurance, which wouldn't cover the dosage I'd been prescribed for the previous 20 years.

As a result, I've not been able to have the dosage I need in order to lead a productive life. My income has plummeted. I'm making about a third of what I used to make, when I'm able to hold down a job at all.

I saw another psychiatrist who told me the dosage that I needed wouldn't be approved. They made me feel like a drug user. But this narcotic is a legal drug to me. It doesn't get me high. It slows me down so I can function.

At my last job, I was having trouble grasping the new systems they were teaching me. I asked for a little bit more training. I was let go because they didn't feel like I could keep up.

In addition to my career and financial struggles, over the past few years, my marriage has suffered significantly.

I have two questions for you: How do I make myself feel worthy again? I just feel dumb. Secondly, what do I tell prospective employers about why I was let go?

I can't tell them that my previous employer thought I was too slow.

ADHD has controlled my life. I want to fight back, for my livelihood as well as my dignity. — Severely Struggling

Dear Severely: First, know your rights. ADHD is recognized as a disability under the Americans with Disabilities Act, meaning people diagnosed with it may be entitled to accommodations in schools and workplaces. I recommend checking out the article "Your Workplace Rights with ADHD" on www.additudemag.com to learn more.

Additionally, if you haven't done so already, have your previous doctor release your medical records to your new doctor to demonstrate that you were on the higher dosage for many years. In the meantime, continue taking the lower dosage prescribed by your new Medication is a major component of ADHD treatment, but counseling can also be helpful. It can inform healthy coping mechanisms for living with the disorder in a world not particularly well-suited for it. See what therapy you might have access to under your current insurance, or look for therapists who offer sliding-scale payment at www. psychologytoday.com.

Lastly, quit seeing ADHD as the enemy. It might make life more difficult in a world not particularly well-suited for the neurodivergent, but it doesn't make you defective.

I encourage you to try virtual support groups through the Attention Deficit Disorder Association (add.org/addavirtual-programs) and Children and Adults with Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (www.chadd.org/ affiliate-locator).

NEVER ACCEPT A CHECK FOR MORE THAN YOU ASK.

FORD BUS FOR SALE E-450 Ford, 2015, 23 passenger 113K mi $14K (352) 422-7170 *SCAM ALERT***

How to Avoid a Fake Check Scam

INSIST ON CASH

 Don't accept a check for more than the selling price. You can bet it's a scam.

Inform the Buyer that you'll wait two weeks before sending any merchandise.

• Never use money from a check to send gift cards, money orders, or wire money to strangers or someone you just met. Many scammers demand that you send money through money transfer services like Western Union or MoneyGram, or buy gift cards and send them the PIN numbers. Once you wire money, or give someone the gift card PINs, it is like giving someone cash. It's almost impossible to get it back.

Toss offers that ask you to pay for a prize. If it's free, you shouldn't have to pay to get it.
