NEWS BRIEFS

Citrus County COVID-19 cases

According to the Florida Department of Health, three positive cases were reported in Citrus County since the latest update.

No new deaths were reported, for a total of 420.

To date in the county, 10,159 people have tested positive (including 85 non-residents).

One new hospitalization was reported, for a total of 659 hospitalized.

Totals reflect preliminary reports received by the state, and are subject to revision.

Gas prices continue climb

For the first time in three years, Florida gas prices are averaging more than $2.90 per gallon, according to an AAA report.

Drivers are paying an average $2.91 per gallon, the highest daily average price since May 2018, AAA said. Florida gas prices have increased by more than 70 cents since Jan. 1, 2021. In March alone, the state average increased 30 cents.

The upward trend was largely driven by tightening global crude supplies and market optimism that widespread vaccinations will boost fuel demand, AAA said.

"The good news for motorists is that gas prices could soon begin to slip lower," said AAA spokesman Mark Jenkins.

Clerk warns of jury duty scam

Con artists are trying to take advantage of trials restarting in local courtrooms by going after potential jurors.

Citrus County Clerk of Court Angela Vick issued a warning Monday, March 22, urging people to be aware of recent jury duty scams.

According to a news release from Vick's office, scammers impersonating court clerks, law enforcement or other government officials have been calling citizens to say a warrant was issued for their arrest because they missed jury duty.

Fraudsters then demand payment from their targets, claiming the money will stop the arrest warrant.

Here are some important tips from the clerk's office to help protect against jury duty scams:

Court clerks do not call or email people for missing jury duty or court appearances, and they won't request payment.

Communications from court clerks are sent only through the U.S. mail.

Arrest warrants are not issued for failing to report for jury duty; however, a judge may issue a summons or subpoena for someone to show in court to explain their absence.

Do not open emails or attachments within if they were sent from an unfamiliar source.

Do not provide unfamiliar callers or emailers with personal information or payments.

For more information, visit the Citrus County Clerk of Courts website at citrusclerk.org/jury or call 352-341-6405.

Locals trek to Tallahassee

Annual pow-wow with state officials smaller this year due to COVID-19

MICHAEL D. BATES
Staff writer

It's time for Citrus County Legislative Days once again and, even though the pandemic has changed some of the normal proceedings, it is still a great opportunity for local government and community leaders to travel to the state Capitol to try and secure funding for needed projects here at home.

"It will look very different this year but I think it will be successful," said Ardath Prendergast, chamber vice president of operations and the Business Retention and Expansion program.

For one thing, only about 45 people are going to all or part of the doings on Wednesday and Thursday, compared to the normal 100 or so. The chamber typically char- ters a bus to take the contingent to Tallahassee, but COVID-19 put a stop to that.

This year, again because of COVID, movement within the Capitol has been restricted. Instead, smaller local groups will meet state officials in various spots in downtown Tallahassee.

Other changes: The Senate side of the Capitol is closed completely to visitors, according to Prendergast. The House side is open by appointment only to one person at a time who must be accompanied by a staff member from entrance to exit, with no "wandering" or "storming" of the halls, Prendergast said.

Local recalls glory days at the drag strip

A pair of strokes might have stolen a few memories.

But for Dennis Walter Petersavage, it hasn't taken them all.

He remembers the smell of the fuel, the roar of the engine.

He recalls the adrenaline rush, barreling down the strip at speeds of upward of 270 miles per hour.

"Adrenaline does it every time," he quipped.

He recants the wins and the losses.

"Competition makes the world go around," Petersavage said after retiring with between "18 to 20 career victories" under his belt. "Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose," he explained. "You keep coming back. Sooner or later, you win."

You might not, however, remember the name Dennis Walter Petersavage; but if you're a fan of the National Hot Rod Association (NHRA), you are more than likely to remember the name Denny Savage.

The 75-year-old who lives at Always There Assisted Living & Memory Care in Citrus Springs was a journeyman driver, taking the keys to a ride whenever he was handed them. He caught his break as a mechanic, he explained.

Report: AstraZeneca vaccine effective

WASHINGTON — AstraZeneca reported Monday that its COVID-19 vaccine provided strong protection among adults of all ages in a long-anticipated U.S. study, a finding that could help rebuild public confidence in the shot around the world and move it a step closer to clearance in the U.S.

In the study of 30,000 people, the vaccine was 79% effective at preventing symptomatic cases of COVID-19 — including in older adults. There were no severe illnesses or hospitalizations among vaccinated volunteers, compared with five such cases in participants who received dummy shots — a small number, but consistent with findings from Britain and other countries that the vaccine protects against the worst of the disease.

AstraZeneca also said the study's independent safety monitors found no serious side effects, including no increased risk of rare blood clots like those identified in Europe, a scare that led numerous countries to briefly suspend vaccinations last week.

FDOH keeping eyes peeled for possible COVID surge

BUSTER THOMPSON

Local health officials are keeping their eyes open for any sustained increase of COVID-19 infections as variants continue to spread and cases trend upward in almost two dozen states.

Reported contractions of the novel coronavirus in Citrus County have varied day-by-day, according to the Florida Department of Health in the county (FDOH) on Monday, March 22, with average daily transmissions hovering at around 20 over the past two weeks.

"The health department is always concerned when we see a sustained increase of COVID-19 cases," FDOH spokeswoman Audrey Stasko said, "however, the reported cases have fluctuated daily, so it is hard to say what we are seeing other than COVID-19 is still spreading in our community."

According to NHRA writer Phil Burgess, Petersavage drove for greats of the sport like Roland Leong, Farkonas-Coil-Minick and Joe Pisano, and more than a dozen others. He was at the wheel of famed cars such as the Hawaiian, the Chi-Town Hustler and Powers Steel.

Petersavage, who served in the U.S. Army, caught his break in the sport in the late 1960s after moving to California from Seattle, Washington.

"I drove a long time," he said, patting his Wally, flashing a smile and giving a thumbs up. "I did a lot of street racing; that's how I got my start."

His biggest and best year on the NHRA circuit came in 1978 when he landed a full-time ride with John Powers, an Arizona businessman, in the Powers Steel car with Dan Geare as crew chief.

He didn't win the championship in 1978, but Petersavage captured the one-day of the Olympics of Drag Racing at Great Lakes Dragaway crown while laying claim to three IHRA national event wins and the IHRA championship.

But the biggest victory of the NHRA season came in July at the Summernationals.

According to NHRA excerpts from Burgess, Savage beat George Johnson in round one, Al Segrini in round two, and John Lombardo in the semis with a best of 6.12. Ed McCulloch, however, who Petersavage had bested in the early rounds at the Winter Nationals, had run as quick as 6.09 in beating Bob Pickett in round one and was the heavy favorite in the final round, but his American Home Shield Arrow went into a wheel stand that cost him the race as Petersavage raced on to the title for his first Wally, a coveted trophy in NHRA circles.

"Speed and acceleration," Petersavage said to his success that year. "I just figured it out ... I got tired of getting my ass kicked, I finally started winning. There's nothing like winning; nothing beats winning. Except losing. You can't be a winner ... without learning how to lose."

Petersavage raced against many of the greats of the era as well as the sport, including Shirley Muldowney, Conrad "Connie" Kalitta, "Big Daddy" Don Garlits and John Force, whose career blossomed in the late 1980s and took off in the 1990s.

"I had a lot of favorite drivers, a lot of them," Petersavage said, mentioning Kalitta, who had joined forces with Muldowney in the 1980s. "He was a good driver, fearless, just like Shirley."

His career continued well into the 1980s, when Petersavage decided it was time to retire full time, when he secured a job at Gainesville Speedway.

"Damn right it was time," he said. "I miss it."

Petersavage still follows the sport, including the drivers he competed against and the newer class of drivers.

"(The cars) keep getting better all of the time; so do the drivers," he said. "The guys who are still alive, still racing, still have a place in my heart, because they don't give up. Like Garlits, he'll probably live forever."

So, too, will Savage's name in the NHRA records books.

Citrus County recorded a total 10,159 COVID-19 cases as of Monday — an increase of 142 over the week, at an average of 20 cases a day, according to the FDOH.

Citrus County's average positivity rate — the number of positive results out of total COVID-19 test results — also increased from 5.90% to 6.54% since March 8.

Health officials want to keep positivity rates below 10%.

Stasko said the health department typically sees an increase of cases following events of mass travel or gatherings, like spring break, which is March 27-31 for the Citrus County School District.

Since starting school Aug. 20 for the 2020-21 school year, the school district recorded 624 cases — 179 staff, 445 students — as of March 19, an increase of 14 since March 15.

"We are also seeing more and more people becoming relaxed with the precautions such as mask wearing and social distancing," Stasko said. "All of these have the potential to contribute to an increase of COVID-19 cases."

As of Monday, according to the FDOH, 659 county residents have been hospitalized for COVID-19

— an increase of four since March 15 — and three more locals died from the disease over the week, increasing the county's death count to 420.

Long-term care facilities in the county have documented a total of 1,450 cases, up two since March 15, according to the FDOH.

COVID-19 data from the FDOH is subject to change as epidemiological investigations reveal new information on cases.

A Florida Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA) report from Monday stated Citrus County had 23 people in hospitals with a primary diagnosis of COVID-19, up 17 from March 15.

There were also 38% of hospital beds available in the county, according to the AHCA, and 15% of local adult intensive care units were open.

Nationwide, infections have plateaued after decreasing from a winter surge, with roughly 20 states reporting increases, according to Johns Hopkins University data from Monday.

U.S. health officials are also expressing concern over the spread of COVID-19 variants, viral mutations scientists have been studying to better understand their transmissibility and deadliness.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Florida held the nation's highest count of reported COVID-19 variants on Sunday, at 1,070 (16% of the total variant cases in the U.S.), ahead of Michigan's 617.

Variant B.1.1.7, which originated in the U.K., is the dominant of Florida's three documented variants types, accounting for 97% of the state's variant cases and roughly 0.05% of its total COVID-19 cases.

As of Monday, three variant cases have been reported in Citrus County, Stasko said. A spokesperson for the state health department did not respond to the Chronicle's request to specify the county's reported variant types.

"While variants are being detected and reported at a higher rate, we suspect that there will be less virus circulating thanks to vaccine roll-outs," Stasko said. "Vaccinating as many people as possible will help in slowing the spread of this virus."

Almost one in four Americans have received at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccination, according to the CDC, with 13.5% of the U.S. population fully vaccinated.

According to Johns Hopkins, 12.74% of Florida's population has been fully vaccinated against COVID-19. Monday marked the first day the state began offering COVID-19 vaccinations for its residents over the age of 50.

On Monday, according to the FDOH, 39,873 Citrus County residents have been inoculated, an increase of 4,481 since March 15, and 21,930 locals completing their entire one- or two-dose series — 14.7% of the county's population.

To people skeptical of getting vaccinated, the local health department said the benefits far outweigh the risks of getting seriously ill from COVID-19.

"These vaccines have undergone the most intensive safety monitoring in our country's history," Stasko said. "We encourage those who are skeptical to talk with their friends, family and people they trust about their experience getting the vaccine and to take a closer look at the information they are sharing and basing their decision from."

Haven't been vaccinated yet? Continue to practice these precautions to help curb the spread of COVID-19:

Wear a mask; avoid crowds; stay at least six feet away from others you don't live with; stay home if unwell; wash hands often; cover coughs and sneezes; and disinfect and clean often.

About 160 roads targeted for resurfacing

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

North Elcam Boulevard is one of many roadways within Citrus County that are scheduled to be paved. It is one of the 159 roads the county plans to resurface in the months ahead.

County commission rates, lists worst roads on need of repair throughout Citrus County

MICHAEL D. BATES
Staff writer

Citrus County has 2,400 miles of roads and 159 of those roads are scheduled for resurfacing. The work is being done thanks to the $4 million allocated in fiscal year 2020-21 funding. County commissioners set a policy of using gas tax money to resurface roads based on road rating and density, according to County Administrator Randy Oliver. The county's rating system goes from 1-10, with a newly resurfaced road getting a 1 and a road that needs to be completely reconstructed a 10. The density is calculated as the number of homes per length of road. The current county policy is to create a list of roads rated as 7 or higher and then sort them by density. Based on this formula, if two roads were of an equal length, the one with the most homes would be paved first. In addition to gas tax-funded roads, some Citrus Springs Municipal Services Benefit Unit (MSBU) funds are being used to specifically resurface roads within Citrus Springs, which has 25% of the roads in the county. The road resurfacing for the MSBU funding is from worst-to-best. Oliver said there are many roads in Citrus Springs with a rating of 9 and it has 25% of the roads.

Oliver said the board typically budgets $3 million each year toward road resurfacing. This year $4 million was budgeted. Engineers estimate $8 million to $9 million per year is necessary to get on a 20- to 25-year cycle. The contractor has four months from the "notice to proceed" to complete a resurfacing project, Oliver said. All the roads on the current list will get resurfaced and more will be added if funding permits, he said. The idea of a half-cent sales tax to get more money was broached at County Commissioner Ruthie Schlabach's recent town-hall meeting.

Elton John opens his Oscar night party to all this year

Attending Elton John's long-running Oscar-night party has always been one of the hardest tickets to get. Now you can go — if you have $20.

The Elton John AIDS Foundation is inviting everyone to an hourlong, virtual pre-show Oscar party special hosted by Neil Patrick Harris and with a performance by Dua Lipa.

Tickets for the April 25 event are $19.99 and are available via Ticketmaster. Proceeds will go to young people at risk and living with HIV all over the world.

The foundation is one of the leading independent AIDS organizations in the world. One of its fundraising highlights is the star-studded Oscar viewing show, with a dinner and an auction. This time, a pre-show will be available to ticket buyers.

The special will be hosted four times in four different time zones and each will accommodate 100,000 viewers, meaning a total of 400,000 ticket buyers are allowed access.

"Now more than ever, we need to ensure that one pandemic does not override another, and we cannot forget the 38 million people living with HIV globally who need our care, love and support so we hope everyone joins us for this special one of a kind Oscar Pre-Party," John said in a statement.

Judge: Newspaper can delay statement on Meghan case

LONDON — A British newspaper doesn't have to run a front-page statement about the Duchess of Sussex's legal victory until it has had the chance to challenge the order, a judge ruled Monday.

The former Meghan Markle, 39, sued publisher Associated Newspapers for invasion of privacy and copyright infringement over five February 2019 articles that reproduced large portions of a letter she wrote to her father, Thomas Markle, after her marriage to Prince Harry.

Judge Mark Warby ruled in Meghan's favor last month. He ordered the newspaper to publish a front-page statement highlighting the duchess's legal victory, and said the statement should also run on the MailOnline website for a week.

The judge said Monday that the statement could be put on hold while Associated Newspapers asked the Court of Appeal for permission to challenge his earlier rulings.

"The defendants are entitled to ask the Court of Appeal to look at their grounds and decide if those points justify the grant of permission to appeal," the judge said.

'Borat,' 'Promising Young Woman' win Writers Guild Awards

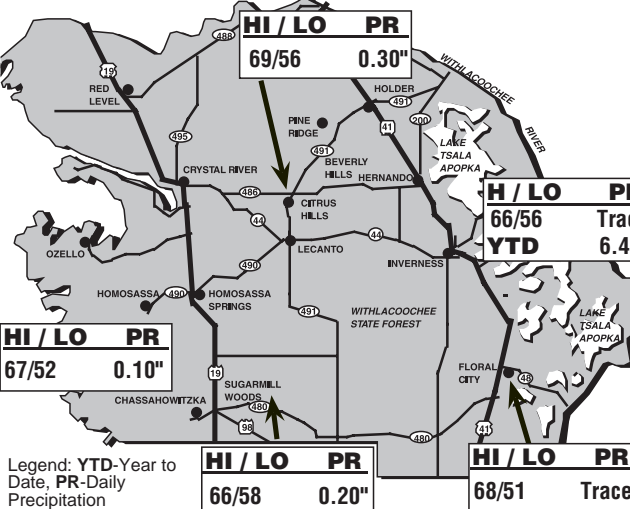

NEW YORK — Sacha Baron Cohen's "Borat Subsequent Moviefilm" was partly improvised and scripted by nine writers, but it still walked away Sunday night with one of the Writers Guild Awards' top honors, best adapted screenplay.

At the guild's virtual, pre-recorded 73rd annual awards, the biggest winners were a pair of awards-season dark horses. Best original screenplay went to the script for "Promising Young Woman," by writer-director Emerald Fennell. The film, which is nominated for five Oscars including best picture, triumphed over Aaron Sorkin's "The Trial of the Chicago 7," along with "Sound of Metal," "Judas and the Black Messiah" and "Palm Springs."

The "Borat" sequel win came over "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom," "News of the World," "One Night in Miami" and "The White Tiger."

Florida expands vaccine eligibility

Associated Press

ORLANDO — The number of Floridians eligible for a COVID-19 vaccine expanded on Monday as the state allowed anybody age 50 and older to get the shot, and the county that is home to the state's biggest theme parks set the bar even lower by allowing anyone age 40 and older to get an injection.

With the loosening of the statewide qualifications, more than a third of Floridians were now eligible to get a vaccine solely based on age at all vaccination sites in the state.

Starting Monday, Orange County expanded the age eligibility a decade lower than the statewide requirement at its county-run facility at the Orange County Convention Center in Orlando. Reservations were required for the drive-thru site at the convention center, and all appointments were booked shortly after they opened.

In expanding the eligibility, Orange County Mayor Jerry Demings said last week there has been decreasing demand at the convention center site. He said he had notified the state and felt he had the authority to expand eligibility in the county.

"I don't feel like I have to get permission to be the mayor of Orange County from Tallahassee," Demings said.

At a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the opening of a mega-sized rest stop in Daytona Beach, DeSantis said he had concerns about Orange County "choosing to prioritize a healthy 40-year-old" over older residents.

"It's not authorized," DeSantis said.

Despite the expansion of eligibility, a union for some workers at the state's largest employer, Walt Disney World, said it should also include hospitality workers.

"If the Hospitality industry is essential to our economy, then so are we as workers!" Unite Here! Local 362 tweeted.

Until the latest eligibility expansion, only people age 60 and older, health care workers, law enforcement, firefighters, school employees and people considered medically vulnerable by a doctor were eligible for the vaccines.

Orlando resident K.C. Cali, 58, was relieved and grateful to get her first Pfizer shot on Monday after not being able to see her two adult daughters who live in Colorado and Massachusetts for the past year. She already has made travel plans to go to Colorado and then New England to visit family later this year.

"The physical separation has been really taxing," Cali said. "I feel weirdly like I was participating in a historic event. As a species, we managed to screw so much up, and I feel like with the vaccine, it shows what we can do."

STATE

The delegation will meet several state movers and shakers during the two days, including Florida Insurance Commissioners David Altamaier, Visit Florida President/CEO Dana Young, Florida Department of Environmental Protection Deputy Secretary Adam Blalock, Florida Department of Transportation Secretary Kevin Thibault and Florida Chamber of Commerce President Mark Wilson.

The chamber is going armed with this year's priority list for Citrus County's legislative delegation: Sen. Wilton Simpson, R-Trilby, and Rep. Ralph Massullo, R-Lecanto.

Many of the same concerns remain on this year's list, with roads, trail infrastructure and water quality still paramount. The chamber's governmental affairs committee came up with the priorities after listening to concerns from business owners, the public and others in the community. They were then reviewed and approved by the chamber board.

Here are some priorities the contingent hopes to impress on legislators this week:

■ The need for the Sun-coast Parkway extension to eventually continue from its planned terminus at State Road 44 to County Road 486.

■ The widening of U.S. 41 from State Road 44 to State Road 20.

■ Help with funding for a multi-use

Sound OFF

Post office does a good job

(Re the Saturday, Feb. 27, 2021, Sound Off, “Being blamed for bent license tag”): I’m calling regarding the person that had their tag broken by the post office. Well, I used to have things broken by the post office also until I learned that everything you mail actually goes through a machine. So then I learned that that’s what padded envelopes are for. And also, the post office gives us free boxes for us to mail things in and the best bargain of all in this country is sending first-class mail. Anything that’s under 15 or 14 ounces can go so very cheaply.

Also keep in mind that this past year, the post office has been through so much with people being sick with the virus and I think they haven’t been given a fair shot because there was a problem nationally, but everything is really good and I’m very proud of our post office. They do the best that they can and they’re currently hiring and maybe some of you should go apply for a job. It’s a good, secure job.

Hotdog truck moved to new spot

This is for the person that’s looking for Jimmy’s hotdog truck that was on State Road 44 and (County Road) 486. It’s still on (S.R.) 44, but it’s closer into Crystal River. It’s in front of O’Reilly’s (Auto) Parts now. So just to let him know. I don’t think he’s there every day, but he’s there towards the weekends, like Thursday and Friday. Just wanted to let you know.

No stimulus for Riverwalk

I think it is really despicable that the Crystal River council think the stimulus money should go to the Riverwalk. This package is to help the struggling residents and businesses, and the Riverwalk is a luxury that Joe Meek wants to improve the look of Crystal River and has nothing to do with helping struggling residents and businesses. It is deplorable that the council has no conscience as to what this stimulus money was intended for.

Congrats on your retirement

(Re the Sunday, Feb. 28, 2021, front-page story, “Retiring EOC chief reflects”): I’m calling to congratulate Chris Evan on his retirement. What a great guy he was. I worked under him doing volunteer work in the sheriff’s office and he was a gentleman and a really, really nice guy. Good luck whatever you do now. You’re too young to really retire. Take care and God bless you.

We have five purple martins

This is a message for the person (in the Monday, March 1, 2021, Sound Off) “Looking for the purple martins”: We live in Crystal River and we have 24 gourds and as of today, March 1, we’ve seen five purple martins that look like they’re taking up residence in our gourds. So, hope this helps you. Have a great day.

Protect residents of nursing homes

In the wake of the damage caused by a year of COVID-19, some members of the Florida Legislature are working assiduously to fast-track bills that will, if passed, shield frontline business owners, including nursing homes and other health care corporations from lawsuits filed in response to claims of negligence and dereliction of best-practice virus safety protocols that may have led to client and health care worker deaths.

These bills, SB 72, sponsored by Sen. Jeff Brandes, R-St. Petersburg, and HB 7005, Colleen Burton, R-Lakeland will, if passed, let nursing homes off the hook for negligent behavior and death, and our representatives in Tallahassee should reject these bills.

According to the Florida Alliance for Retired Americans, there are 702 nursing homes in Florida that are entrusted with the care and health of our elderly loved ones. And one fact that should be at the forefront of our representatives in Tallahassee is that one in three COVID deaths in Florida originated in nursing homes.

Sadly, the lobbyists in Tallahassee who advocate for seniors are greatly outnumbered by health care corporations and lobbyists for long-term care, a very lucrative industry of behind-the-scenes hedge funds and Wall Street investors. Everyone knows the industry is rife with greed and corruption, just ask anyone who has spent any time doing research into long-term care for their parents or grandparents.

Nursing homes and giant health care conglomerates don’t need any more protection, but our most vulnerable nursing home residents and frontline workers do.

Please take a minute to use AARP Florida’s hotline to call your state House representative (for HB 7005) at: 1-844-220-5551, and your state senator (for SB 72) at 844-220-5528 and let them know you oppose these bills.

I would ask Sen. Wilton Simpson and Rep. Ralph Masullo, “Just where do you draw the line when it comes to protecting our most vulnerable Floridians?”

A tribute to a friend

I would just like to say a few words about Lee Lockley. I was unable to make to his funeral.

I have known Lee for almost my whole life. He was a loyal employee to the city, a good friend, and always had a good, fun attitude. I know his family and he knew mine; our wives both worked at the hospital and knew each other well. I will miss him stopping by the house just to visit.

Lee was a part of old Crystal River, when times were different. It is a double loss to have Lee gone and a piece of the past gone with him. Our thoughts and prayers are with you Laurastine, and family.

Replacing septic makes little sense

Our county government sees fit to build a $19 million bike trail, but feels it is fine in the name of conservation to require homeowners to replace septic with sewer at a homeowner cost of $10,000-$20,000 each.

In the past two meetings, we have been told there is no opting out but we can get a loan at 6% for part of the expense, yes 6%.

I feel this is a money grab. If conservation and water is that important that citizens are being required to pay those amounts, why are we building bike paths at that cost? The county study with a manatee picture is simply propaganda. Most in our community feel this a huge expense for making very little difference. Each of our homes produces very little nitrogen. There are many questions that remain unanswered by the county regarding this very expensive project.

Where’s the pork?

Thomas Mitchell’s article, “No pork in Biden’s bill,” of March 6, details money amounts in Biden’s bill. Let’s review and examine his figures: $29 billion for the vaccine program, $50 billion for testing, $19 billion for domestic supply manufacturing and $130 billion to help schools, etc.

I am adding $400 billion, which equates to approximately 80% of Americans receiving $1,400.

Now, adding these amounts, Mr. Mitchell’s COVID Relief Bill comes to $628 billion. How ironic. That is the exact amount the Republicans proposed. In conclusion, since there is “no pork in Biden’s bill,” what is the remaining $1.25 trillion for?

IMPACT FEES

Move impact fee rates up slowly

Those who purchase new homes in the community pay impact fees of $4,809. The funds raised are used to support the expanded infrastructure needed to handle the impact of those new residents.

The impact fee dollars are saved up in special accounts and spent on new capital projects related to the population growth. Those needs include school expansion, road improvements, EMS expansion, creation of new parks and the like.

Currently, the impact fees for transportation and schools are only being levied at 50% of the formula rate. The rates were dropped in reaction to a downturn in the economy and a belief that impact fees pushed new homebuyers to other markets where the fees would be lower.

It is now the new county commission’s turn to determine if the impact fees should be increased to the full 100% level of $10,162 in the consultant’s report. There is no support on the county board to raise the fees to the 100% level, but specific commission action is necessary to set the new rate.

What is obvious is that the housing market in Citrus County — and in all of the surrounding counties — is red hot. Existing homes and new homes are selling as soon as they are available. Prices are increasing at a pace not experienced in recent decades. COVID is driving people from more crowded urban markets to suburban/rural markets like Citrus, thus the demand has outstripped the supply.

What is also true is that the cost of raw materials for building supplies — especially lumber — is eating into some of the profits

CENTRAL FLORIDA COUNTIES CURRENT IMPACT FEES AND SALES TAXES

Current impact fee rates for a single-family home and sales tax in each county:

- Sumter County: $2,997 — 7%
- Hernando County: $4,714 — 6.5%
- Citrus County: $4,809 — 6%
- Marion County: $1,397 — 7%
- Levy County: $1,613 — 7%
- Lake County: $12,833 — 7%
- Pasco County: $18,212 — 7%
- Hillsborough County: $16,293 — 8.5%

Sales tax figures include the statewide rate of 6%, plus any locally imposed additions.

enjoyed by contactors and homebuilders. The same COVID pandemic has slowed the supply chain for many materials causing home prices to increase.

The impact fee rates charged by the county have little to do with the actual cost of growth. If a new school is needed because the student population has increased, you need a new school. If the county does not pay for the new school using impact fees, those paying local property taxes will pick up the cost.

Citrus County’s population is growing again because of the pandemic and because the Suncoast Parkway is moving toward completion to State Road 44. There is going to be a public cost associated with the current boom, and county commissioners need to determine how we are going to pay for it.

Make no mistake, we are going to pay for it.

We’d urge commissioners to go slow, but not to bury their heads in the sand. We don’t believe that anything the county does with impact fees will have a significant effect on the current rate of new housing starts. Citrus County and all of the surrounding markets are booming. And remember, Citrus County is the only one of Florida’s 67 counties that does not have a local sales tax.

At the same time, we also think the county should move slowly. A small increase in impact fees makes some sense, but not to the 100% level identified by its consultant. Bump them some and then return in a year and see what’s happening in the housing and real estate segments. It is a balance between protecting our growing economy and having enough money to pay for growth.

Local builders and contractors are rightly concerned about the increased costs they are facing. The commission needs to be sensitive to a total economy that is trying to rebound.

The county cannot leave all the impact fee money on the table, because local taxpayers will roar with disapproval if the property tax rates are increased to cover the cost of growth. Take a look over in Sumter County to see the possibilities. Sumter had to raise its property taxes by 25% to cover its needs and as a result, all three incumbent county commissioners got the boot during the election.

Finding the right rate for impact fees is a delicate balance and every taxpayer in the county is a player in the game.

Shooting in Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. — A shooting at a Colorado supermarket killed multiple people Monday, including a police officer, and a suspect was in custody, authorities said.

Boulder police Cmdr. Kerry Yamaguchi said at a news conference that the suspect was getting medical treatment and there was no further threat to the public but didn’t give more details on the shooting or how many people were killed. Officers had escorted a shirtless man with blood running down his leg out of the store in handcuffs but authorities would not say if he was the suspect.

Investigators know how many people died, but their families were still being notified so the number of victims wasn’t being released yet, Boulder County District Attorney Michael Dougherty said.

“This is a tragedy and a nightmare for Boulder County, and in response, we have cooperation and assistance from local, state and federal authorities,” Dougherty said.

Yamaguchi said police were still investigating and didn’t have details on a motive for the shooting at the King Soopers store in Boulder, which is about 25 miles northwest of Denver and home to the University of Colorado.

Dean Schiller told The Associated Press that he had just left the supermarket when he heard gunshots and saw three people lying face down, two in the parking lot and one near the doorway. He said he “couldn’t tell if they were breathing.”

Video posted on YouTube showed one person on the floor inside the store and two more outside on the ground. What sounds like two gunshots are also heard at the beginning of the video.

Law enforcement vehicles and officers massed outside the store, including SWAT teams, and at least three helicopters landed on the roof. Some windows at the front of the store were broken.

At one point, authorities said over a loudspeaker that the building was surrounded and that “you need to surrender.”

Sarah Moonshadow told the Denver Post that two shots rang out just after she and her son, Nicolas Edwards, finished buying strawberries. She said she told her son to get down and then “we just ran.”

Once they got outside, she said they saw a body in the parking lot. Edwards said police were speeding into the lot and pulled up next to the body.

“I knew we couldn’t do anything for the guy,” he said. “We had to go.”

James Bentz told the Post that he was in the meat section when he heard what he thought was a misfire, then a series of pops.

“I was then at the front of a stampede,” he said.

Bentz said he jumped off a loading dock out back to escape and that younger people were helping older people off of it.

Biden eyes $3T spending bill

LISA MASCARO AND JOSH BOAK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fresh off passage of the COVID-19 relief bill, President Joe Biden is assembling the next big White House priority, a sweeping $3 trillion package of investments on infrastructure and domestic needs.

Biden huddled privately late Monday with Senate Democrats as Congress has already begun laying the groundwork with legislation for developing roads, hospitals and green energy systems as part of Biden’s “Build Back Better” campaign promise. Much like the $1.9 trillion virus rescue plan signed into law earlier this month, the new package would also include family friendly policies, this time focusing on education and paid family leave.

The White House plans are still preliminary, with a combined $3 trillion in spending proposed to boost the economy and improve quality of life, according to a person familiar with the options who insisted on anonymity to discuss private conversations.

While the goal is a bipartisan package, Democrats in Congress have signaled a willingness to go it alone if they are blocked by Republicans.

“We need to get it done,” said Sen. Richard Blumenthal, D-Conn., ahead of the virtual meeting with Biden at the senators’ annual retreat Monday evening.

Biden’s outreach to Senate Democrats comes as the White House is under fire for its handling of the U.S.-Mexico border. Migrant crossings are skyrocketing, with images of cramped holding facilities posing a humanitarian and political dilemma for the administration and its allies in Congress. The focus on infrastructure shifts attention back toward priorities that are potentially more popular with Americans and potentially bipartisan.

An infrastructure package would include roughly $1 trillion for roads, bridges, rail lines, electrical vehicle charging stations and the cellular network, among other items. The goal would be to facilitate the shift to cleaner energy while improving economic competitiveness.

A second component would include investments in workers with free community college, universal pre-kindergarten and paid family leave.

No part of the proposal has been finalized and the eventual details of any spending could change.

The overall price tag first reported Monday by The New York Times has been circulating on Capitol Hill for weeks, since the start of the Biden presidency. With the House and Senate under Democratic control, the proposals are expected to draw support from all corners of Congress.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi asked Democratic committee chairmen earlier this month to start working with their Republican counterparts to begin “to craft a big, bold and transformational infrastructure package.”

Fifteen set to be chosen, but only 14 will actually be seated

MINNEAPOLIS — A 14th juror was seated Monday for the trial of a former Minneapolis police officer charged in George Floyd’s death, leaving just one more to be selected before the proceedings against Derek Chauvin can begin.

The newest juror is a white social worker in her 20s who said she has talked with friends about police reform and that she thinks “there are things that should be changed.” But she also described police and their jobs as important, and said she is “always looking at every side of things.”

A total of 14 jurors will hear the case — 12 to deliberate and two alternates — but Hennepin County Judge Peter Cahill said a 15th juror will be selected just in case; that juror will be excused when opening statements begin March 29 if the other 14 are still able to serve.

Cahill told attorneys that up to 12 potential jurors will be questioned on Tuesday if necessary, so they should be prepared for a long day.

“We’re going to get through 12, however long it takes tomorrow, because we only need the one ... so 12 or bust,” Cahill said.

Floyd, who was Black, was declared dead May 25 after Chauvin, who is white, pressed his knee on his neck for about nine minutes while he was handcuffed and pleading that he couldn’t breathe. Floyd’s death, captured on a widely seen bystander video, set off weeks of sometimes violent protests across the country and led to a national reckoning on racial justice.

On Friday, Cahill declined a defense request to delay or move Chauvin’s trial over concerns that a $27 million settlement for Floyd’s family had tainted the jury pool. Cahill, who called the timing of the settlement “unfortunate,” said he believed a delay would do nothing to stem the problem of pretrial publicity, and that there’s no place in Minnesota untouched by that publicity.

Technology companies lead stocks higher on Wall Street

Technology companies led stocks higher on Wall Street Monday, reversing some of the market’s losses from last week, as investors welcomed some easing in long-term bond yields.

The S&P 500 index rose 0.7%, as gains in technology, communication and other stocks outweighed a pullback in financial companies. The rally in tech stocks pushed the Nasdaq composite 1.2% higher.

A steady rise in bond yields over the past month has been luring investors away from high-flying tech stocks, but traders have also been quick to snap up tech stocks on days when bond yields decline or only rise slightly.

The yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 1.69% after trading as high as 1.74% last week. Amazon, Apple, and Microsoft all made solid gains.

The prospect of higher interest rates as bond yields rise has some investors concerned that economic growth could slow. There are also concerns that the rise in bond yields could be a harbinger of inflation.

The S&P 500 added 27.49 points to 3,940.59. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 103.23 points, or 0.3%, to 32,731.20. The Nasdaq climbed 162.31 points to 13,377.54. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies slid 20.70 points, or 0.9%, to 2,266.84.

GOP firebrand US Rep. Mo Brooks enters Alabama Senate race

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — U.S. Rep. Mo Brooks, a conservative firebrand and staunch supporter of former President Donald Trump who has come under fire for remarks he made preceding the attack on the U.S. Capitol, joined the Alabama GOP primary field on Monday to replace Sen. Richard Shelby.

The north Alabama Republican announced his entry into the race at an event with former Trump adviser Stephen Miller. He joins former Trump ambassador Lynda Blanchard in a Republican primary field that is expected to attract a number of other hopefuls.

“America’s status as the greatest nation in world history is at risk. And it’s at risk from those within our country,” Brooks told people packed into a meeting hall of a gun range in the northern city of Huntsville. Later, he added, “We are a beacon of freedom and liberty for the world, and we need to stay that way.”

Colorado baker sued again over alleged LGBTQ bias

DENVER — A Colorado baker who won a partial victory at the U.S. Supreme Court in 2018 for refusing to make a wedding cake for a same-sex couple went on trial Monday in yet another lawsuit, this one involving a birthday cake for a transgender woman.

Autumn Scardina attempted to order the birthday cake on the same day in 2017 that the high court announced it would hear baker Jack Phillips’ appeal in the wedding cake case. Scardina, an attorney, requested a cake that was blue on the outside and pink on the inside in honor of her gender transition.

Her lawsuit is the latest in a series of cases around the U.S. that pit the rights of LGBTQ people against merchants’ religious objections, an issue that remains unsettled by the nation’s top court.

On Monday, during a virtual trial being conducted by a state judge in Denver, Scardina said Phillips had maintained that, as a Christian, he opposed making the gay couple’s wedding cake because it involved a religious ceremony but would sell any other type of product.

Brazil economists call for tougher measures as cases ramp up

RIO DE JANEIRO — Hundreds of Brazilian economists, including former finance ministers and central bank presidents, urged the Brazilian government in an open letter published on Monday to speed up vaccination and adopt tougher restrictions to stop the rampant spread of COVID-19.

The signatories of the letter decried the “devastating” economic and social situation in Latin America’s largest nation. They also attempted to debunk President Jair Bolsonaro’s assertion that lockdowns and restrictions would inflict greater hardship on the population than the disease.

“This recession, as well as its harmful social consequences, was caused by the pandemic and will not be overcome until the pandemic is controlled through competent action from the federal government,” the letter read. “It is urgent that the different levels of government prepare to implement an emergency lockdown.”

UN official: Airstrikes on NW Syria border area worrying

BEIRUT — Airstrikes in northwest Syria near the Turkish border that killed a person and set afire trucks used to distribute aid targeted areas considered the safest in the rebel-held region, a top U.N. official said Monday.

The strikes on several locations a day earlier angered Turkey, prompting it to place its troops on high alert. Turkey’s Defense Ministry said it asked Russia to secure an immediate halt to the attacks.

U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres strongly condemned the recent wave of attacks in northwest Syria, which have killed and injured dozens of civilians, U.N. deputy spokesman Farhan Haq said.

The U.N. chief reiterated his call for a nationwide cease-fire.

When someone you know is grieving

No one-size-fits-all approach

SUSAN B. QUENELLE
Special to the Chronicle

Grief is a natural response to a loss of any kind. But every one approaches loss differently and has a uniquely personal grief experience. If you know someone who has suffered a loss, you may not understand the way that person is reacting. You may feel uncomfortable that your friend is not his or her “usual” self. You may even have unrealistic expectations of how you think your friend should be handling his or her grief. But what is normal for grief is not what is normal for people most of the time.

Normal reactions when in grief

Initially, most people will experience a change in eating habits, difficulty sleeping and preoccupation with the loss. These can result in significant weight gain or loss, inability to sleep without medication and unpredictable, uncontrollable bouts of crying. Normal grief responses also include yearning for the deceased, preoccupation with the details of the loss, intense sorrow, lack of motivation, persistent feelings of loneliness and sometimes a desire to join the deceased.

Some people, but not all, funnel their sadness into anger: anger at God for allowing this to happen, anger at the medical personnel for not having done enough to save their loved one’s life, and anger at others for not understanding what they are going through. They may even experience anger at the deceased for not having taken better care of themselves or for not making proper financial/legal arrangements. And some have anger at themselves because there must have been something they could have done to change the outcome.

Many people will feel frustrated that friends call too much, do not call enough, or seem to be pushing them to socializing when they are not ready. Some people carry extreme guilt and regret over things not said or done, as well as over things that were said or done. Most are very lonely and sad and find it difficult to be around others. It is not unusual for grieving people to withdraw, isolate, feel depressed, or experience generalized anxiety and even panic attacks.

Walking through grief

Some who are grieving heal more slowly than others. How we navigate through our loss is based on several factors, including one’s relationship with the deceased, the circumstances of the death, support networks and the presence of other stressors, to name a few. Because of these unique differences, there is no predetermined amount of time that one should grieve and begin to move forward.

It is not unusual for people to take a couple of years or more to feel like they have fully grieved. Even then, they will continue to grieve, not as intensely, for the loved one who is no longer here.

How you can help

Now that you have a better understanding of what is normal in grief, what can you do to help those you know navigate through their grief journey?

You must find ways to provide comfort, support and bring hope to the person who is grieving without interfering with their process:

We do this primarily through listening. Grieving people may need to tell their story over and over until they no longer have a need to do this anymore.

Each time they talk about their loss, they are helping themselves face the reality of the death of their loved one. You just need to listen. Let them share, hold their hand, cry with them.

Realize that their behavior may seem strange to you, but it is normal for grief.

Try not to judge and do try to continue to be available as a friend and support person. They need to know you care about them even if they do not always answer your calls or respond to your texts. Remember, grief can be very debilitating at times.

Grieving people do not always know what they need, so asking them to call if you can do anything is a waste of time.

It is much kinder if you take the initiative to show up with food, get the lawn mower out and cut their grass or wash up their dishes the next time you visit. They may also be experiencing cognitive deficits due to the grief, so may not be thinking very clearly. Do not get offended if they do not remember speaking with you or that you were the one who brought them the cheese basket.

Sometimes though, in our desire to help, we just say the wrong things to grieving people: “You’re such a strong person,” “You are young, you can always marry again,” “You know they are in a better place,” or “You just need to get out of the house.” We think we are helping, but grieving people do not find these kinds of statements comforting.

Perhaps telling them that whatever they are feeling is OK or that, even though you cannot fully understand just how they feel, you will be there for them.

Your role for your friends

Be sure to allow your grieving friends to move at their own pace. They want to feel better and get on with their life, but it may take more time than you or they think.

Be patient, be helpful, be understanding. Be a good friend and remember, when you need them one day, they will be there for you.

Friends of Citrus and the Nature Coast is here for you, providing help, hope and healing to people in grief ... as well as to those who care about and want to support those who are grieving.

April is PD Awareness Month

April has been designated Parkinson’s Disease (PD) Awareness Month. James Parkinson, who was born in the month of April, was the English physician that first clinically defined this condition in 1817 and called it the “Shaking Palsy.” Since then, neurologists have classified PD as a movement disorder, characterized by four key movement (motor) symptoms that include the “shaking” (tremor) described by Dr. Parkinson in addition to muscle rigidity and stiffness, slowness of movement (bradykinesia), and impaired balance and coordination (postural instability).

In the 1960s, it was discovered that these motor symptoms were caused by the death and malfunction of nerve cells in a section of the brain that produces a chemical called dopamine. This chemical sends messages that control movement and coordination. However, more recently it has been determined that many other parts of the brain and nervous system are affected by this chronic and progressively disabling disorder.

Today PD is considered much more than just a movement disorder. Non-motor symptoms of this disease may include pain, dementia or confusion, fatigue, sleep disturbances, dizziness, depression, constipation, cognitive changes, fear and anxiety, and urinary problems. Like many other neurological disorders, the precise cause(s) of PD are not known, but both environment and genetic factors are thought to be involved.

There currently is no cure for PD, but numerous medications and other treatment options, including surgery, are available to improve symptoms and the quality of life for people with this disease. In addition, numerous medications and devices are currently in development for PD.

While the disease process may begin years earlier, the average age of diagnosis for PD is 60 years, but many individuals are diagnosed in their 50s and 40s, or even younger. It is estimated that nearly 1.5 million Americans are living with PD and approximately 60,000 Americans are newly diagnosed each year.

In view of the COVID-19 pandemic, it should be noted that people with PD who contract this virus are more likely to experience severe respiratory issues and have more difficulty recovering from this infection, particularly in those with advanced disease. Rigidity of the muscles of the chest wall plus stooped posture can restrict breathing in people with PD. In addition, difficulty in swallowing and clearing secretions from their airway can contribute to complications during a respiratory illness like COVID-19.

This infection can also trigger a worsening of both motor and non-motor PD symptoms and may increase the risk of mental health challenges due to social isolation. Because of all these issues, it is recommended that PD patients receive COVID-19 vaccination unless there is a specific contraindication. The approved vaccines are not known or expected to interact with the disease process or interfere with PD therapies.

There are several national organizations that can provide you with more information, one of which is the Parkinson’s Foundation. ## JAMA publishes new study on low back pain “Risk Factors Associated with transition from acute to chronic low back pain in US patients seeking primary care” was published Feb. 16, in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA).

This study proposes that the use of opioids and premature use of advanced imaging, such as CT/MRI, have poorer outcomes than early intervention with the use of Chiropractic and Physical Therapy. The more time that progressed between the onset of a complaint and the implementation of Chiropractic / PT, the worse the outcome.

This study dispels the myth that a “Wait and See” approach is best.

The study also challenges the use of pain medication as a first course of treatment for low back pain.

Chiropractic is the only profession that has always shunned the use of drugs. Chiropractic works to reduce the causes of low back pain without the use of medication.

Low back pain is caused by nerve interference and inflammation. It is usually the result of subluxation — the misalignment of spinal bones vertebrae, with resulting nerve interference.

Nerves initiate and conduct pain signals in response to inflammatory agents termed “cytokines” — or chemical messengers. These messengers build in response to improper joint motion, which is part of the osteoarthritis process.

Chiropractic manipulation and the exercises of PT help to introduce and re-treatments work synergistically, decreasing pain by slowing the spinal arthritis process — and have the potential to partially reverse it.

As a primary care provider, Chiropractic does not require a referral from an M.D., but M.D.s should refer.

Let us all work together to keep low back pain from becoming chronic!

Elgin Baylor, Lakers Hall of Famer, dies at 86

Was top NBA rookie out of Seattle University

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Elgin Baylor, the Lakers' 11-time NBA All-Star who soared through the 1960s with a high-scoring style of basketball that became the model for the modern player, died Monday. He was 86.

The Lakers announced that Baylor died of natural causes in Los Angeles with his wife, Elaine, and daughter Krystal by his side.

With a silky-smooth jumper and fluid athleticism, Baylor played a major role in revolutionizing basketball from a ground-bound sport into an aerial show. He spent parts of 14 seasons with the Lakers in Minneapolis and Los Angeles during his Hall of Fame career, teaming with Jerry West throughout the '60s in one of the most potent tandems in basketball history.

"Elgin was THE superstar of his era — his many accolades speak to that," Lakers Governor Jeanie Buss said in a statement announcing Baylor's death.

Baylor's second career as a personnel executive with the woebegone Los Angeles Clippers was much less successful. He worked for the Clippers from 1986 until 2008, when he left the team with acrimony and an unsuccessful lawsuit against owner Donald Sterling and the NBA, alleging age and race discrimination.

The 6-foot-5 Baylor played in an era before significant television coverage of basketball, and little of his play was ever captured on film. His spectacular style is best remembered by those who saw it in person — including West, who once called him "one of the most spectacular shooters the world has ever seen."

Baylor had an uncanny ability to hang in mid-air indefinitely, inventing shots along the way with his head bobbing. Years before Julius Erving and Michael Jordan became international

Florida State coach Leonard Hamilton — recovering from a ruptured Achilles tendon — again wore a boot as he walked the sideline. His Seminoles shot 53% from the field.

D'Shawn Schwartz scored 13 points for fifth-seeded Colorado (23-9), which shot 36% overall. McKinley Wright IV, Colorado's leading scorer for the season with more than 15 points per contest, finished with 10 on 4-of-12 shooting.

New Minnesota coach is former player, assistant

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota hired Ben Johnson as its new men's basketball coach Monday, giving the former Gophers player and assistant a five-year contract — and favoring relationships over experience in the latest attempt to lift a long-middling program up to the top of the Big Ten. Johnson will replace Richard Pitino, who was fired after eight seasons and then took the job at New Mexico. The 40-year-old Johnson was on staff under Pitino with the Gophers for five seasons before spending the last three years at Xavier under Travis Steele.

superstars with their similarly acrobatic games, Baylor created the blueprint for the modern superstar. Baylor soared above most of his contemporaries, but never won a championship or led the NBA in scoring largely because he played at the same time as centers Bill Russell, who won all the rings, and Wilt Chamberlain, who claimed all the scoring titles. Knee injuries hampered much of the second half of Baylor's career, although he remained a regular All-Star. West and Baylor were the first pair in the long tradition of dynamic duos with the Lakers, followed by Magic Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the 1980s before Kobe Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal won three more titles in the 2000s. But Baylor's Lakers lost six times in the NBA Finals to the Boston Celtics and another time to the New York

Colorado was coming off a 96-73 victory over Big East Tournament champion Georgetown and was seeking its first Sweet 16 trip since 1969. The Buffaloes shot poorly through most of the first half and trailed 20-13 two minutes before the break. Wright's tip-in at the buzzer cut Florida State's lead to 24-20 at the half. It was only his second basket of the game. Colorado trimmed its deficit to a point on a 3-pointer by Schwartz, but Florida State quickly answered with a thunderous alley-oop dunk by Sardaar Calhoun. Calhoun broke away for a fast-break dunk, then Scottie Barnes drained a contested runner to push Florida State's lead back to seven. Balsa Koprivica dunked, was fouled and made the free throw to put Florida State up nine. Polite hit his fourth 3-pointer of the game with six minutes remaining to put the Seminoles up 55-41. Colorado called a timeout, prompting Florida State's fans to break into an "F-S-U" chant. Colorado's fans booed the officials, who had called a technical on the Buffaloes bench minutes earlier. Florida State remained in control, stretching its lead to 19 points.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I have been with my husband for 21 years, and we have been married for 15 years.

I truly love him very much. But I try my best to avoid his brother and his brother's wife as much as I can because, whenever I try to talk with them, they constantly interrupt me. This makes me very angry.

I have talked with my husband about this. He says it's probably because I tell a story whenever I talk. I have asked my friends and family members if that is true. All of them say no. They say that I am a straight, to-the-point type of person.

This annoys me to the point that I want to punch them in the face.

How do I get them to stop without offending them? — Don't Interrupt Me

Dear Don't Interrupt Me: I'm not sure your anger is directed at the right
