Crumps Landing reopens Thursday after a fire closed it down last summer

MICHAEL D. BATES Staff writer

It was the day Laurel Birch of Crystal River had been waiting for since last July, when a fire forced Crumps Landing to close.

Thursday morning, Birch joined other longtime Crumps customers and newcomers alike in welcoming back the county's tiki-themed restaurant and bar at 11210 W. Halls River Road on the Homosassa River.

"It's special," Birch said. "It's different. We don't have anything like it here."

The crowds started trickling in shortly before 11:30 a.m. hoping to escape the heat at one of the tables near the river. Folks seemed happy to see that the overall ambience of the place was the same.

Crump's Landing is looking to expand, and has backing from Citrus County planners.

The Planning and Development Commission, or PDC, gave unanimous backing Thursday to plans to expand the restaurant. Those plans include an additional kitchen, tiki bar, dining area, bandstand and

The expansion doesn't stop there. Crump's plans to build a parking lot across Halls River Road to accompany not only vehicles from customers and staff, but also the overflow of boat trailers that park alongside the roadway during scallop season.

"This is a benefit to the community," Michael Wilburn, representing Riverfront Investments LLC, told PDC members.

Along with the parking, Riverfront Investments also proposes to develop up to 13 homesites on the eastern edge of Riverhaven Village. Wilburn said the

Kinnard critical after planners deny his variance

Sheriff's office investigates shooting

Staff writer

Investigators continue to piece together information from a shooting incident Thursday morning off Park Drive in Homosassa in which no one was injured and a weapon was recovered, according to a sheriff's office spokeswoman.

An alert Citrus message went out shortly after deputies and detectives arrived on scene, advising area residents to keep an eve out for a white male, approximately 6 feet, 2 inches, medium build. According to the agency, the suspect was last seen wearing a long neon green shirt, blue jeans and was possibly armed with a shotgun. He was last seen running north/northwest from Wets Park Drive toward South Lewdinger Drive along with a white female who had long dark hair.

Detectives on scene interviewed the victim, who advised he was assaulted by a white male, and that white male fired shots while on the property then anonymous.

Law enforcement authorities, after interviewing the victim and several witnesses, found the discarded weapon in the Several shots were fired on scene, Sanders said, including one that went into the windshield of a vehicle. The remaining shots were scattered throughout the yard.

"There's no evidence the victim was in the vehicle at the time the shot was fired," said Sanders, noting the victim's lone injuries were from hand/fist contact with the suspect.

The suspect remains on the loose, but Sanders said the incident is isolated and there is no threat to the community.

The investigation is ongoing and the sheriff's office is requesting anyone with information to contact the Citrus County Sheriff's Office Major Crimes Unit at 352-726-1121, or contact the Citrus County Crime Stoppers at 888-ANY-TIPS to remain

Ernie Todd, owner of Small That's All Weeding & Planting, says that his landscaping business hit a temporary lull during the COVID-19 stay-athome orders, but has since rebounded back to full service capacity.

Now he and his three employees find themselves busy making up for lost time.

"It was scary there," Todd said. "It was tough. We really had to tighten our belts.'

At first, Todd said people were scared and didn't want to have others working on their property. He had to cut the hours of his staff due to a lack of business for about three weeks.

Small That's All Weeding & Planting usually services exclusively within Citrus, but Todd says he had to temporar ily expand his range to include Marion and Levy County to secure enough jobs to get by.

Brady's Super Bowl journeys to be part of 2021 ESPN series

Tom Brady's journey to each of his nine Super Bowls with the New England Patriots will be the subject of an ESPN series released next year.

Entitled "The Man in the Arena: Tom Brady," the nineepisode series will include a look from Brady's perspective at the six NFL titles and three Super Bowl defeats he was a part of. It should be a rare opportunity for up-close revelations from the usually private quarterback who left New England this year after 20 seasons and now is with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The series will be produced by ESPN, 199 Productions (Brady's production company) and Gotham Chopra of Religion of Sports.

"Through the series, we're defining the key moments and challenges that were seemingly insurmountable, but through hard work and perseverance, became career-defining triumphs, in both victory and defeat," Brady said.

Brady has won more Super Bowls than anyone and remains a bona fide NFL star at age 42. Unlike Peyton Manning, his contemporary for much of his career and the quarterback he is most often compared to, Brady normally has been reticent to provide behind-the-scenes information.

Connor Schell, ESPN's executive vice president for content and one of the creators of the network's 30 for 30 series, believes Brady has a fountain of memories worth the telling.

"To have personal firsthand accounts and an athlete at Tom's level who doesn't often give firsthand accounts can add up to a

Little Richard laid to rest at Alabama alma mater

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Little Richard was remembered not just as a rock 'n' roll pioneer but a man of generosity and faith at a memorial service at his alma mater where he was laid to rest Wednesday.

Mourners gathered at Oakwood University to pay their respects, many wearing face masks and standing a few feet apart at the outdoor service at the school's cemetery.

"What I really remember about Richard was not his stage performances, which were certainly formidable, but what I remember most about Brother Richard, not Little Richard, but Brother Richard, was his incredible kindness and his generosity to people," said university President Leslie Pollard.

Richard died on May 9 following a battle with bone cancer at 87.

Born Richard Penniman, Little Richard was one of rock 'n' roll's founding fathers who along with Chuck Berry and Fats Domino helped shatter the color line on the music charts and brought what was once called "race music" into the mainstream. His hyperkinetic piano playing, coupled with his howling vocals and hairdo, made him an implausible sensation.

For his final resting place, Richard chose Oakwood University, a historically black Seventh-day Adventist college in the northern Alabama city of Huntsville.

Citrus County opens short-term rentals

Citrus County's short-term vacation rentals are now open for business.

The Florida Department of Business and Professional Regulation (DBPR) notified County Administrator Randy Oliver on Thursday that it accepted the county's reopening plans for vacation rentals. Citrus has an estimated 800 to 900 short-term rentals.

Gov. Ron DeSantis said last week he would allow vacation rentals to begin offering vacation stays once DBPR approved county plans for safety. Citrus modeled its plan after a pair of Panhandle counties. Following the governor's recommendations, it encourages renting only to in-state residents and allows rentals from U.S. states with a COVID-19 case rate of less seeks to reopen theme parks

ORLANDO — Universal Orlando is aiming to reopen its theme parks in early June, a resort official said Thursday, more than two months after the company joined crosstown rivals Disney World and SeaWorld in closing their gates to stop the spread of the new coronavirus.

Universal Orlando executive John Sprouls asked Orange County Mayor Jerry Demings for approval to open the company's theme parks as early as June 5, the Orlando Sentinel reported.

Demings must sign off on Universal's reopening plan before it heads to Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis for his approval, the newspaper said.

Universal, Disney World and SeaWorld have been closed since mid-March in an effort to stop the virus's spread.

During a tourism forum in Orlando with Vice President Mike Pence on Wednesday, SeaWorld's interim CEO, Marc Swanson, said he also expected a reopening in June. Officials with Disney World haven't said when they plan to reopen.

Both Disney and Universal in Orlando have reopened shopping complexes and restaurants in the past week, with several restrictions. All workers and visitors must wear masks, although Disney exempts children under age 3. Temperatures are checked at entrances to keep out anyone with a fever of 100.4 degrees (38 degrees Celsius) or higher and a limited number of people are admitted to allow social distancing.

Many of those same protocols will be implemented at the theme parks.

CRYSTAL RIVER Jack was called home

Born September 17, 1924 in Hart-Jack Gobin ford, CT to Sidney & Margaret (Hoffner) Gobin, he graduated from Thomaston High School in 1942.

He enlisted in the Army Air Force in February, 1943 and served until 1945 with the 8th Air Force, 100th Bomb Group at Thorpes-Abbot, England.

He was awarded the European Theater of Operations medal with five battle stars, the Air medal with 3 oak leaf clusters and the Distinguished Flying Cross. He was employed for 38 years at the Hallden Machine Co. in Thomaston, CT and Anniston. AL, first as a machinist and retiring as a plant manager. He retired to Beverly Hills, FL and then made his home in Crystal River.

Married Evelyn Lundberg (deceased) in 1943 and celebrated 69 years together. Beloved father of four children, he also leaves six grandchildren, four great-grandchildren, several nieces, nephews, many close friends and was loved by all of them. He was a member of the Crystal River United Methodist Church.

A memorial service will be conducted on Saturday, May 23, 2020, at 9 a.m. at the Crystal River United Methodist Church. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests making a memorial contribution to their favorite charity.

High court again reverses on death penalty

BRENDAN FARRINGTON Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court on Thursday reversed its previous ruling allowing any death row inmate to challenge a sentence based on a higher standard for determining whether they intellectually are disabled.

"This is the biggest day of my life after the toughest day of my life," Briscoe said.

Busch seemed to have the race in hand as he took the second stage in a dominant showing. But he was called for speeding in the pits and ordered to the back of the 39-car field.

But Busch was there to challenge Briscoe at the end, the cars touching off the final turn before Briscoe crossed the finish line in front by 0.08 seconds.

Allgaier was third, Austin Cindric fourth and Noah Gragson, the pole sitter who won the first stage, was fifth.

Lost opportunity

Lack of spring limits new football coaches

CHRIS BERNHARDT JR. Staff writer

Chop Alexander and McKinley Franklin had plenty on their to-do lists this month.

This was a time to install new schemes, to figure out new roles, to grow closer with the players or staff.

None of that is happening. Not in Citrus County, not anywhere. Alexander and Franklin, each about to embark on their first seasons as varsity head football coaches in the fall (hopefully), have lost that crucial opportunity, and there's nothing they can do about it.

Wyndell "Chop" Alexander

"It's not what I expected," said Alexander, the new head coach at Lecanto. "I thought coming in to spring was the time with a new coach to get familiarized with the players and the players get familiarized with the scheme.

"Nothing has changed offensively. I kept the same offensive coordinator. But it's difficult to put it all together in the fall."

Last month Lecanto athletic director Ron Allan noted that since both Alexander and Franklin come from within the school district, it would somewhat ease missing out on key preparation time in the spring.

Franklin was promoted to head coach at Citrus in December, one day before Alexander was hired away from the Hurricanes' staff. Alexander had a previous stint with the Panthers, serving as defensive coordinator for two seasons in 2014-15.

"It's been so long. I've never coached any of these kids," said Alexander, who was also Lecanto's head coach for boys weightlifting before that season was cut short. "I've had them in class. I teach PE and weightlifting. They know how intense I am.

"Everything we achieved (since he's arrived back at Lecanto), we've regressed. You can't simulate the same intensity and camaraderie with a Zoom meeting.'

As Alexander mentioned, Peter Rausch will continue in his role as ofintends to make significant changes prises and they know what the pect to win.'

Citrus interim head football coach McKinley Franklin talks with quarterback Connor Bishop during a playoff game Nov. 8, 2019, against Nature Coast in Brooksville. on the other side of the ball.

и s the same detense I ran over at we've got to get the kids familiarized with the terms, and the effort and expectations.

Franklin has much more of a head start. Not only is he an in-house hire, he was interim head coach the final two games of last season.

However, this won't be the same group that went 9-1 in the regular season and advanced to the playoffs. This would have been the opportune period to start sorting out a new depth

"I was looking forward to the spring season," Franklin said. "I know that losing 25 seniors, everyone looks at us like that's a big hurt. But behind those 25 seniors is a bunch of guys dedicated to our program.

"The end of last year was the end of last year. Now my coaching philosophy is different than coaches in the past. I have my own style, my own way I want to do things. I wanted to present fensive coordinator, but Alexander that in the spring so there were no sur-

Franklin cautioned that while he Citrus High," Alexander said. "But and the players have already built relationships, the dynamic has been drastically altered. "They know me, but my role is different. I'm the head coach and things are going to be different," Franklin said "Having a spring season would have helped us instill that culture a little bit."

Each coach has stayed in contact with players through the available technology, but that doesn't replace practice time. There are limitations to what programs can do over the summer even in ideal circumstances.

Whether those things are in the cards in the coming months is anyone's guess. So coaches can't truly answer how they'll go about making up for all this lost time. At this point they can only hope for the best when — and if — the new season begins in August.

'I'm not going to complain about it,' Alexander said. "That's not going to be an excuse come the fall. We still ex-

Rays prospect Honeywell has elbow procedure

ST. PETERSBURG — Tampa Bay Rays pitching prospect Brent Honeywell had a decompression procedure on his right ulnar nerve and is set to begin strength and mobility exercises.

Dodgers head team physician Dr. Neal ElAttrache performed the procedure on the 25-year-old right-hander in Los Angeles on Wednesday, working with Dr. Steven Shin to remove scar tissue from the area of the Honeywell, who hasn't pitched in the minors since September 2017, is scheduled to start exercises on Monday at the Rays' spring training complex in Port Charlotte.

Honeywell was among Tampa Bay's top prospects after going 13-9 with a 3.49 ERA in 26 starts for Double-A Montgomery and Triple-A Durham in 2017.

He missed the following season after Tommy John surgery during spring training. He sat out 2019 after an operation last June to repair a right elbow fracture.

Former FSU lineman accused of striking girlfriend

FORT LAUDERDALE — Former Florida State offensive lineman Jauan Williams, who is planning to transfer, is facing misdemeanor battery charges that he struck his then-girlfriend two years ago, allegations he vehemently denies.

Williams, 23, was arrested Wednesday in Tallahassee on two charges that he struck Lauren Noel during fights in the spring of 2018 in which the police were called, court documents show. He was released early Thursday on $500 bail.

Florida State declined comment, saying in an email that Williams is no longer part of the team. A phone number for Noel could not be located.

Williams was heavily recruited out of Washington, D.C., in 2016, but played sparingly at Florida State because of injuries. He started two games last season.

Vanderbilt's Lee becomes SEC's first woman AD

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Vanderbilt has removed the interim title, making Candice Storey Lee the first woman to become an athletic director in the Southeastern Conference.

With Vanderbilt's announcement Wednesday, Lee now is among only five women and the second black woman in charge of a Power Five program.

The 41-year-old Lee, a former Commodores basketball captain, was named interim athletic director Feb. 4 when Malcolm Turner resigned after one year on the job.

seasonal doldrums; turkey get tied up on which style of weapganic pork, just use what gives you just plain hot confidence. The only real difference and hunting comes down to how close you'll need to be to make the kill, while the hunt itself — finding how to get that clear so line of sight for a shot — remains the other same.

First thing I consider when preparing for a hog hunt is the mosquitoes. As bad as they are when most of us head out to our treestands in the fall. this time of year they are many times worse and they are hungry. I've many times walked into the swamps looking for a good mud wallow to set up on, carrying a Thermocell, sprayed down with Deep Woods Off, and still find myself swatting the winged demons away. Best thing I've found is to cover up once on stand. Bug suits are great, but hard to find in my size, so

nd here we are, stuck in the archery tackle, but I'm not going to Layering up in this crazy, summer heat is uncomfortable at best and season long behind us, yet onry is best suited for perforating the dangerous at its worst. You may avoid a collection of itchy bumps, but run the risk of heat exhaustion or heat stroke. I carry lots of water in my day pack and hydrate often during the hunt. But, I'm not recommending you do the same; overall, it may be better to just swat and deal with them.

Still, hunting the mud wallows is a favorite way of mine to ambush a hog. They don't have sweat glands like most other mammals and in order to help them regulate their body temperatures during the heat, they will go to water and mud holes to wallow and cool themselves off. It's an exercise in extreme patience and can require you to put in some long hours on stand. It seems that I normally find them at the wallows toward the end of a major feed period, so consult a feeding time chart such as that found in the back pages of Woods and Water Magazine.

Until a few years ago, Citrus County had a poor track record of effectively managing code compliance cases.

Frustrated with the county the battle against eyesore properties, the Board of County Commissioners (BOCC), in December 2017, vowed to put more muscle behind its code enforcement

Taking aim at the five percent of property owners who do not voluntarily comply with community standards, the BOCC adopted two ordinances in 2018 that gave code enforcement a much needed one-two punch.

The first punch allows county officials to issue a citation to violators who have not complied within 60 days home.

A simple rule:

A few days ago, I read your article on the opening of fitness centers. The club rules were posted and No. 3 was "all members and employees shall wear masks." And yet, there on the front page is a woman working out with no mask. Continuing the story on another page there is a man working out with no mask! People, COVID-19 is extremely contagious — much more than the average flu.

Wear a mask

Heavy inhaling and exhaling whether in a workout or rehearsal for choir is a really good way to spread the virus. Follow the very simple rules and we won't have a big spike in the fall.

> Jeff Hall Yankeetown

Greatest Generation never complained

When I was young, I was fortunate to know men of our Greatest Generation. My baseball coach lived through kamikaze attacks in the Pacific. A gentleman who made it through the Batan Death March taught me secrets of fishing. A friend who helped me learn instrument flying had his P47 shot down and spent time in a German prisoner of war camp. He later was Vice President Johnson's personal pilot.

I never heard one of these men complain and heard their stories from others.

Now we have men crying like small children because they're asked to wear a mask, and not go out and spread a deadly disease to other human beings. I can't help but think that history won't look back kindly on these people. Hell, I don't think most people will look kindly on them by the end of the year.

Prendergast kept campaign promise

When it comes to picking the right person running for sheriff of Citrus County, it seems like an easy choice. When Sheriff Prendergast was running in 2016, he asked us what the most important thing he could do for the citizens of Citrus County, if he won the election. The most frequent request he got, was to clean up the drugs in this county. He promised us, that if he won, that would be his main focus. I am grateful we chose him, as the sheriff kept that promise!

In addition to seizing drugs with a street value of over $283,786, he is responsible for both the largest heroin seizure, and the largest methamphetamine bust in CCSO history. The only individuals who shouldn't want Sheriff Prendergast re-elected are the drug dealers, if there are any left, in this fine county. Thank you Sheriff Prendergast for not only keeping your

In need of a face mask for love bugs

This letter is to the commissioners and leaders of Citrus County. The love bugs are coming back again this year. They are starting to accumulate and multiply in vast numbers, like the pandemic they caused last year. You leaders of Citrus County knew about this inevitable pandemic since it did occur last year, yet the commissioners have done nothing to prevent and alleviate this viral attack. What is your excuse Citrus County leaders for not doing anything at all to forestall love bug infestation and their aggressive attack? You could at least have warned me to buy a face mask because now I need one to even open the Homosasssa back door of my house! Haha!

life. The state and the press have so far avoided covering these facts.

This pandemic took years to incubate and now after it's release, the same folks at the NIH have assumed command of every aspect of our lives, while systematically destroying the livelihood of almost everyone in the country. Not one of them saw any problem with giving the communists the ability to handle these dangerous viruses, despite our own labs spotty safety records.

Please understand in the aftermath of this horrific plague, Congress will hold hearings and create truth commissions in order to protect us. How is this working for you so far?

Wake up people, our own government helped to create this monster. Please do not reward them with your votes.

The futility of logic

During the past several months we have witnessed changes in several areas. While a listing could encompass many examples, a few of the more ill-advised ones should suffice. The opening of public lands speculation regarding oil exploration and the possible mining of minerals serves what end? More profits? The elimination of regulations regarding the protection of our natural water supplies allows those making use of this resource to incur less costs.

Though the full acceptance of the threats to global warming is evident the relaxing of carbon emission rules serves a select few with threats to many overlooked.

The listing could continue. However, the point being made here is pertinent to our actions and reactions to the pandemic. Granted, the need to restart the economy is clearly evident. The pressure on those in authority to make this happen is multifaceted. But, a knee-jerk reaction to this pressure could prove to making the situation worse.

Through out the country the general tone appears to one of cooperation and concern.

The recent blast of political statements regarding the liberation of some states encouraged rabble rousing, which serves no end.

Likewise, pressure to open beaches, relax rules regarding self-protection and answer to vested interests does not support what is best for all.

We should encourage those in authority to use the best information possible to restart America. Medical and scientific communities need to be consulted and listened to. Continued governmental financial support for those in need should continue.

Hopefully logic will prevail.

■ (Re the April 29, Page A14 story, "Coronavirus: summary for Citrus County): I'm just reading here your summary of Citrus County for the disease, the summary of it, and I have a guestion. I understand there's like 150,000 citizens in Citrus County. I imagine there's even more if you count the nonresidents — people who come visit us. My question is, I thought there was a certain percentage that should be tested before you could open up and do things and know what's really going on. In all your numbers, I don't see anything saying what that percentage is and how close we are reaching that to know the whole thing. I also don't understand nonresidents. That means if I'm a resident, then I won't get the virus from a nonresident person? What's the distinction between a resident and a nonresident? What is the percentage of people in this county who have been tested? I want to know that number. I would think the newspaper would put that up.

■ This Sound Off's about Opinion (Page A8's editorial) April 30, "Leaders must address county's poverty, health." Virus article states 6.3% tested positive, 11.4% died. What were the ages of these residents? Were the ones that died in a nursing home? Why is Citrus County's poverty rate so low? The county has cities. The county and cities have managers and economic advisors. Citrus County has a better-thanaverage school system and many churches to teach right from wrong. These problems are not new — smoking, alcohol, drug abuse, domestic abuse — but they have been increasing. Why? The Chronicle is part of the leadership in this county. ■ You know, for weeks I've been reading the Sound off line and the coronavirus "Hot (Corners)" and there's always that group of people that are always worried and they're scared. They want everything shut down — the parks, the boat ramps. They want the people in the stores to all wear masks. You know, if all these people had their way, the businesses would be closed for another month, if not six months. You know what I say to these people? They don't know what it's like to own a business. Most of them probably just punched the clock. If they ever lost their job, they went a week or two without a job and found another job and probably collected unemployment. Try having a business. How about putting your life's savings into a small business and all your blood, sweat and tears and all your hopes and dreams into a small business and then the government says you've got to close the doors and you lose everything? It's more than losing a house. You can replace a house, but you can't replace your dreams. People have their dreams in their small businesses ... You people that are scared, you want people to just keep their businesses shut and continue to lose their dreams over you being scared? Well, let them open their businesses and you stay at home, wear your masks, spray plenty of Lysol and leave the small businesses alone. When you feel better, come and support your small your own business and stay home," for all the people that are out there going around and seeing if they can find a business that's open that's not supposed to be open — you know, they're just wanting to cause trouble for somebody - and to mind their own business. If you don't want to come to the business when it opens, you don't have to. So I don't know if it's that people are just too nosy, but they need to mind their own business and stay inside if that's how

■ I totally agree with the person who wrote in (the April 30 Sound Off), "Mind

■ Why won't the grocery stores and the department stores in this county require people to wear masks? Why won't our governor or our government protect us and make people wear masks in public? It's almost ironic the fact that the people wearing masks are really protecting the people who refuse to do it. Shame on you people that will not protect your fellow citizens.

FBI: Texas naval base shooting is 'terrorismrelated'

A shooting at a Texas naval air station that wounded a sailor and left the gunman dead is being investigated as "terrorismrelated," the FBI said Thursday.

The shooting began around 6:15 a.m. Thursday at Naval Air Station-Corpus

The shooter tried to speed through a gate at the base in a vehicle, but security personnel put up a barrier in time to stop the shooting, U.S. officials told The Associated Press. The man then got out of the car and opened fire, striking and wounding a Navy sailor who is a member of the security force at the base. During the exchange of gunfire, the shooter was killed by security personnel, the officials said.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss details about an ongoing investigation.

The FBI is investigating the shooting as "terrorismrelated," FBI Special Agent Leah Greeves said at a news conference Thursday afternoon, and investigators were working to determine whether a second person of interest was at large in the community.

Loughlin, Giannulli to serve prison time for college scam

BOSTON — Actress Lori Loughlin and her fashion designer husband, Mossimo Giannulli, have agreed to plead guilty to charges in the college admissions bribery case and serve two months in prison, according to court papers filed Thursday.

The couple agreed to plead guilty to conspiracy to commit wire and mail fraud in a plea agreement filed in Boston's federal court. The charge carries up to 20 years in prison and a fine of $250,000.

Loughlin and Giannulli are accused of paying $500,000 in bribes to get their daughters into the University of Southern California as crew team recruits, even though neither of them played the sport.

Ex-Trump lawyer Michael Cohen released from US prison

NEW YORK — President Donald Trump's former personal lawyer and fixer, Michael Cohen, was released from federal prison Thursday to serve the remainder of his sentence at home because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Wearing a surgical mask and a baseball cap, Cohen arrived at his Manhattan apartment building at around 10:40 a.m. after his release from FCI Otisville in New York.

Cohen, who pleaded guilty to tax evasion, campaign finance fraud and lying to Congress, didn't stop to speak with reporters.

Layoffs in US nearly 39M

Even as states gradually reopen

CHRISTOPHER RUGABER AND DANICA KIRKA Associated Press

 $\begin{array}{c} \text{WASHINGTON} - \text{The number of Americans applying for} \\ \end{array}$ unemployment benefits in the two months since the coronavirus took hold in the U.S. has swelled to nearly 39 million, the government reported Thursday, even as states from coast to coast gradually reopen their economies and let people go back to

More than 2.4 million people filed for unemployment last week in the latest wave of layoffs from the business shutdowns that have brought the economy to its knees, the Labor Department

That brings the running total to a staggering 38.6 million, a job-market collapse unprecedented in its speed.

The number of weekly applications has slowed for seven straight weeks. Yet the figures remain breathtakingly high — 10 times higher than normal before the crisis struck.

And the continuing rise shows that even though all states have begun reopening over the past three weeks, employment has yet to snap back and the outbreak is still damaging businesses and destroying jobs.

"While the steady decline in claims is good news, the labor market is still in terrible shape," said Gus Faucher, chief economist at PNC Financial.

Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell said over the weekend that U.S. unemployment could peak in May or June at 20% to 25%, a level last seen during the depths of the Great Depression almost 90 years ago. Unemployment in April stood at 14.7%, a figure also unmatched since Shoppers are seen Thursday inside of Passport Habits, a novelty shop in Ventura, Calif. State public health officials gave Ventura County permission Wednesday to reopen seated dining in restaurants and allow shopping inside some retail stores amid the coronavirus outbreak

Over 5 million people worldwide have been confirmed infected by the virus, and about 330,000 deaths have been recorded, including more than 93,000 in the U.S. and around 165,000 in Europe, according to a tally kept by Johns Hopkins University and based on government data. Experts believe the true toll is significantly higher.

Across the U.S., some companies have begun to rehire their laid-off employees as states have eased restrictions on movement and commerce. On Monday, more than 130,000 workers at the three major American automakers, plus Toyota and Honda, returned ing them on the payroll.

to their factories for the first time in two months.

An additional 1.2 million people applied for unemployment last week under a federal program that makes self-employed, contractor and gig workers eligible for the first time. But those figures aren't adjusted for seasonal variations, so the government doesn't include them in the overall number of applications.

European countries have also seen heavy job losses, but robust government safety-net programs in places like German and France are subsidizing the wages of millions of workers and keep-

Trump: US may not exit treaty

DEB RIECHMANN Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump said Thursday that Russian violations make it untenable for the U.S. to stay in a treaty that permits 30-plus nations to conduct observation flights over each other's territory, but he hinted it's possible the U.S. will reconsider the decision to withdraw.

Trump's announcement comes as the U.S. begins new nuclear arms control talks with the Kremlin aimed at replacing an expiring weapons treaty with a modern and potentially three-way accord that brings China into the fold. Senior administration officials say Trump's willingness to leave the Open Skies Treaty is evidence of how prominently arms control verification and compliance will feature in the new talks.

The Open Skies Treaty that governs the unarmed overflights was initially set up to promote trust and avert conflict between the U.S. and Russia. The Trump administration informed other members of the treaty that the U.S. plans to pull out in six months — which is after the presidential election — because Russia is violating the pact. The White House also says that imagery collected during the flights can be obtained quickly at less cost from U.S. or commercial ne of the most amazing and interesting parts of your car is the engine. Many of us don't really understand how the engine works, only that it needs gas and when we turn on the ignition, it starts the car. But how does it do

When you think that, in each of the engine cylinders whether four, six or eight, a tiny explosion (known as internal combustion) occurs anywhere between 500 to 4,000 or more times a minute, depending on the engine's rpms (revolutions per minute). On a trip, say, to the grocery store, that may be 10 minutes away, these explosions will occur on a six-cylinder engine for the round trip a total of about 160,000 times (assuming an average speed at 1,500 rpms).

Over the lifetime of this same six-cylinder vehicle, assuming it traveled 150,000 miles averaging about 1,800 rpms at 50 mph, these explosions could occur over 1.9 billion times (150,000 miles divided by 50 mph, times 60 minutes in an hour, times 1,800 rpms, times six cylinders).

Each explosion is caused by the spark plug igniting the gas/air mixture. You don't hear these explosions unless your exhaust system has a leak, has been modified or is disconnected for any reason, then it gets very loud.

The official definition of an internal combustion engine is an engine in which the combustion of a fuel (normally gasoline or diesel) occurs with an oxidizer (usually air) in a combustion chamber that is an integral part of the working mechanism.

In an internal combustion engine, the expansion of the high-temperature and high pressure gases (the explosion) produced by combustion apply direct force to some component of the engine (usually a piston). The high-pressure gases inside the cylinders drive the engine's pistons and thus power the vehicle.

Gasoline engine ignition systems generally rely on a combination of alternator or generator, and leadacid battery for electrical power. The battery supplies electrical power for cranking, and supplies electrical power when the engine is off. During virtually all running conditions, including normal engine idle, the alternator supplies primary electrical power.

Considering the explosions or combustion turmoil that goes on inside your car engine when you turn it on and drive, it is truly amazing that today's modern engines, with proper maintenance, can last for many years and travel well over 200,000 miles. This is a tribute to the materials and technology developed over the years by the pioneering engineers and automotive industry.

CAR JOKE

John has just received his brand new driver's license.

His family goes out to the driveway, and climbs in the car, and he is going to take them for a ride for the first time.

Dad immediately heads for the back seat, directly behind the newly minted driver.

"I'll bet you're back there to get a change of scenery after all those months of sitting in the front passenger seat teaching me how to drive," says the beaming boy to his father.

"Nope," comes dad's reply, "I'm gonna sit here and kick the back of your seat as you drive, just like you've been doing to me all these years.'

Country sees some unhappy campers

Campers check where their arrows landed during an archery class in June 2015 at Camp Kiwanis in the Ocala National Forest near Ocala. Camp Kiwanis will not open this summer for the first time in 72 years due to concerns about spread of the novel coronavirus. Camps across the U.S. are scrambling to make a similar decision about summer 2020 and parents are getting a first wave of closure notices for some camps in harder-hit states.

Summer camps facing rocky start, uncertain future

LEANNE ITALIE Associated Press

NEW YORK — For 17-year-old Morgan Carney, missing her seventh summer at overnight camp in the Ozarks would be worse than what she's feeling now in isolation without her school friends and usual slate of activities.

'She says she can't even think about not going to camp this summer or she'll be depressed," said her mother, Amy Carney. "Her best friends in life are her camp friends."

So far, so good for the Phoenix teen. Her camp in Branson, Missouri, has made no plans to cancel. But other kids looking forward to new or beloved summer programs haven't been so lucky.

Some camps have already notified families they won't open due to the coronavirus crisis. Most, however, are in wait-and-see mode.

"Right now it's such a dynamic situation," said Tom Rosenberg, president and CEO of the American Camp Association. "The camps themselves are trying to be adaptable and flexible as more information becomes available."

The style Scene: Time to revitalize, rebrand, refresh ith our economy opening back up after a very strenuous shutdown, there is a new era ahead. We will need to be innovative and reinvent ourselves.

With this being said, now is the perfect time to seek inspiration, so that a plan of action can be put into place.

There is a great book titled "Who Moved My Cheese?" by Dr. Spencer Johnson that shows readers a pathway for adapting change in their lives and work. He followed that book with "Out of the Maze." These books offer interesting concepts that may be a huge help with the changes in today's society and workplace.

Another great inspiration is an article that I read in 2012. I have held on to the brilliant concept for all of these years. It was titled "Weed it, Feed it, Lead it.'

The article discussed the prefrontal cortex (PFC) the decision-making portion of the brain, referring to it as the executive brain or the money maker. So,

■ Lead it — Directing the brain with focus.

you don't have to use mental energy trying to remember the small stuff.

here is how it works. ■ Weed it — Prioritizing with details lists.

■ Speed it — Write things down so that Document tasks and deadlines, creating some innovate ways to fulfill needs that lists to keep you organized. ■ Rest it — Get a good night's sleep. Take walks to meditate and experience bursts of brilliance. These things usually come when you remove yourself from your normal environment. ■ Feed it — Feed your brain — it needs glucose and oxygen. The nutrients to function properly include complex carbs, brown rice, grains, fruits and vegetables. Also, learn to take very deep cleansing breaths during the day to fill your body with plenty of oxygen.

So, once a system is implemented to stay focused, you can move on to reinventing yourself. Study your industry and see what innovative changes need to be made to coincide with the current market. Every industry tends to evolve over

There has to be some hidden needs that you can find and make your own. Or, if you feel a need to change your direction, go for it. We all have many gifts and talents. If something inspires you more, research that and perfect your skills. As it is said, if you love what you do, you will never work a day in your life! If you are a business owner, find a way to be the best at what you do. Create customers didn't even know they had. Make the experience personalized and meaningful.

Perform grassroots marketing, networking with other businesses. Maybe perform some cross promotions, give some free gifts away, create a referral program, host networking events at your business and be creative with a new image.

It's amazing what a fresh new look will do for you. Reinvent your logo and/or colors, rearrange your interior, add some new plants to your entrance, recreate your ambiance with cool vibes and

The key is to be extraordinary not ordinary, creating a lasting impression on your guests, making them want to return again and again. As it's easy to become overwhelmed with change, take control over it, not allowing it to control you. As we all know, change is inevitable; however, change is necessary to evolve and grow. What may appear to be the end of the world could be your blessing. So, a lot to do, let's get Until next time, stay happy, healthy and faithful!

William Hazlitt claimed that when great thoughts are reduced to practice, they become great acts. Well, this might be overstating matters in a field of endeavor like bridge, but the idea is reasonable.

On today's deal, North's twoheart cue-bid showed a good hand with at least three spades.

When West led the heart six, South assessed the situation. Why hadn't West led the heart king? Presumably because he didn't have both the king and queen. Mentally, South placed one of these cards in the East hand. Why hadn't West led a top diamond? Clearly because he didn't have the ace and king. South gave a diamond honor to East.

Opening lead: ♥ 6

But East had passed over his partner's opening bid. The mist was clearing. If East had two redsuit honors, West had to have the black-suit queens.

South won the first trick with dummy's heart ace, played a spade to his ace and led a low spade, finessing dummy's nine when West followed with the six. After cashing the spade king, South paused again. West was known to have three spades and five hearts. One diamond and four clubs was surely impossible. With eight diamonds, East would have bid.

West had to have at most three clubs. Therefore, South played a club to his king and led the club two. When the queen appeared, South won with dummy's ace, played a club to his jack, returned to dummy with a trump and discarded a red-suit loser on dummy's club 10.

What an opponent didn't do — in the bidding or the play — may be more revealing than what he did

Annıe offers advice

ear Annie: My first cousin died two weeks ago, but not one of her siblings called to tell me or any of my sisters the news. Two of the cousin's siblings have my phone number because I sent them a family Christmas newsletter with my phone number and email in the letter. I finally saw my cousin's obituary on Facebook. I am beyond hurt that the cousins did not personally telephone to tell of the sad news. T h e cousin who died was 72vears old. but in failing health for years. Am I wrong to be hurt and disappointed my family did not get a phone call? — Deeply Hurt in PA

Dear Deeply Hurt: Feelings aren't right or wrong; they just are. It's what we do with them that matters. In this case, I think you ought to try setting aside your feelings for a moment to consider your cousins'. They're hurting, too. They just lost their dear sister. Their forgetting to tell you was not intentional. Grief has a way of wreaking havoc on short-term memory. Reach out to them in love, not in anger, and join them in remembering your cousin. I'm so sorry for your

Dear Annie: This is regarding "Torn," who couldn't decide whether or not to move forward with her new boyfriend after having recently divorced. I'd like to call attention to some of her quotes: "He is not really my type"; "He is everything my ex is not"; "I'm still not fully over my ex." On top of this, she notes that she needs alimony from her ex-husband, which is mainly why she's been keeping this relationship a secret and reluctant to get too serious. Wow!

Your answer was basically that she should not rush herself and to not marry him if she wasn't ready. Here's my take on it: She called this new guy as soon as her divorce was finalized. She seems to be leading him on while telling him she isn't ready to make a commitment. To me, it sounds like she still loves her ex. She ought to let this new man go so that he can find someone who will love him back, the way he deserves. She should give herself some time to be without a partner or a lover. And she should focus instead on her kids who are, no doubt, in need of some extra love and attention during this sad time in their lives. — Daily Reader and Fan

Dear Reader: I think you've gotten to the heart of the matter more than my initial response did. It's so important to take time for oneself between relationships. Moving on to someone else too soon does a disservice to both parties.

Dear Annie: You've posted several letters from people about asking for help with grocery shopping. Our grocery had already implemented ordering ahead and picking up your groceries. Since the pandemic, almost all groceries have offered this service. It is something to think about whether there is a pandemic or not. I know that the very people who need it most are sometimes not technically able to order online, but surely the kids or a neighbor could place the order for them. Then picking up would be simple. Please think about this if you need help. I am grateful to have my ex-daughter-in-law who can pick up groceries for me sometimes. — Lucky in Louisville

Dear Lucky: Thank you for writing. Grocery delivery or curbside pickup is a great option; many stores offered these services before the pandemic and they will continue to do so afterward.

With the start of the season approaching, many camps are monitoring the pandemic's progress, and crunching the numbers on potential mass refunds. Some parents have held off putting money down, with camps extending deadlines for enrollment.

Virginia is the only state with a stay-at-home edict that stretches into June. But regardless of whether such orders continue, are imposed anew or lifted, will parents feel comfortable that the coronavirus threat has lessened enough to make camp safe?

Thomas Bradbury in Augusta, Maine, has two girls, ages 8 and 12. He has already paid for camp but has no idea how summer will play out.

"I feel a mix of unease and irresponsibility sending them to any summer camps," he said. "Prevention is better than cure, and I want to do my bit to help prevent this virus spreading any more than it needs to.'

Most camps have long dealt with disease outbreaks and critters like lice. Screening and health protocols exist. But Tracey Gaslin's phone hasn't stopped ringing in recent days. She's the executive director of the Association of Camp

Nursing, which advises nurses and camp directors.

'We're encouraging camps to work on Plan A, with the hope of having camp, but you also need to be working on Plan B and Plan C," she said. "It could be virtual camping. It could be camping with limited numbers. Who knows?"

A new Centers for Disease Control and Prevention report shows that fever, cough and shortness of breath were the most common symptoms of the virus in kids, but occur less often than in adults. Young people, along with others, can be silent carriers.

More than 22 camps have plans to pivot to "online camp" this summer, including some for kids with special health needs. Other camps are looking at limiting field trips and visitors' days, or pushing back start

Day camps reliant on mass busing have the added worry of bans on crowded buses.

The thought of no camp is a dark one for parents already frazzled by taking on home school and keeping kids entertained during lockdown. The prospect is just as bleak for camp directors.

'It's an existential threat to not be able to operate," Rosenberg said. "What we do know is kids need camp more than ever." According to industry estimates, the U.S. has more than 14,000 year-round and summer camps serving 20 million campers annually.

Geoff Blanck owns and operates the Forest Lake Camps in New York's Adirondacks region, serving 150 to 175 campers at a time. He's proceeding with preparations for this season, scheduled to start June 28.

His staff of 70 is hired, the water will be turned on soon and cleanup has begun. Seven weeks cost $8,300.

"We're telling families, if we're not able to run camp because of COVID-19, you'll get a 100 percent refund. We know it will be devastating for us financially if we're not able to run, but morally it's simply the right thing to do," Blanck said. "This is our extended family.'

So far, just one family has canceled, with a promise to return next year.

One of the most difficult things has been families delaying enrollment, Blanck said. Will there be a rush come June, or will he wind up running a smaller program?

Todd Rothman, who owns Deerkill Day Camp in New York's Rockland County, is also planning as if he'll open, possibly with a delayed start. He usually opens June 29, serving about 800 campers through the

If he can't run buses, he may ask families to drive their children to and from camp. Some campers travel up to 45 minutes each way.

'We'd probably lose half to three-quarters of our families if they have to drive," Rothman

Rothman has had only two families cancel. They were refunded their balances, and their $500 deposits per child were rolled over to next year.

Doron Krakow, president and CEO of the JCC Association of North America, said about 150 day camps and 25 overnight camps in the U.S. and Canada are operated by Jewish community centers that fall under his nonprofit's umbrella. Between them, the camps serve about 100,000 young people every summer and are a big part of the community centers' annual income.

In the South, summer camp usually starts at the end of May. That means staff would be headed to camp in a few short weeks for orientation.

"There's genuine concern about how safe and responsible" that would be, Krakow

Gaslin, meanwhile, is putting her trust in public health officials and beefed-up attention to hand-washing and other preventive measures.

She's been running webinars on screening protocols for when kids hop on buses and when they check in at camp. That includes temperature checks and questions about exposure.

"All we can do is mitigate risk," she said.
