Citrus wins big with budget

County 'got everything' it asked for from state coffers

Gov. Ron DeSantis on Wednesday vetoed $1.5 billion in projects and not one of them is in Citrus County.

DeSantis signed a state budget that includes $14.4 million in local projects, plus funding for a third county judge position.

Senate President Wilton Simpson, R-Trilby, gave direct praise to Commissioner Ruthie Schlachbach, who sought the Homosassa sewer funds before taking office.

DeSantis signs state budget, vetoes $1.5B in spending

JIM TURNER
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — While pointing to an economic resurgence amid the coronavirus pandemic, Gov. Ron DeSantis on Wednesday used his line-item veto power to slash $1.5 billion as he signed a record $100 billion budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

DeSantis described the spending plan as reflecting "a state government that is meeting the core concerns of Floridians," during a bill-signing ceremony at The Garlic restaurant in New Smyrna Beach.

Gov. Ron DeSantis

"Once I sign this budget, we will be signing a budget that responsibly supports our men and women in law enforcement, our K-through-12 education students and teachers, conserves and protects our great environmental and natural resources throughout the state of Florida, but does so in a way that has the lowest per-capita tax burden of any state in the country," DeSantis said. "If you would have said that a year ago, no one would have believed that that would have been possible."

Every Tuesday, Citrus County's aspiring young musicians filter into the Cornerstone Baptist Church with their instruments safely tucked away in cases. Soon enough, a mish-mash of musical notes echo from the church, as they warm up for class.

Since 2011, the Citrus

Youth Educational Symphonic Orchestra (CYESO) has been teaching classical and symphonic music to the children of Citrus County. The CYESO is a primarily volunteer-based organization that relies on the generous contributions of the community.

"The annual fund is what drives that," Marty Hoffman, executive director, said.

Inverness to use road study to decide repairs

FRED HIERS
Staff writer

Until now, Inverness fixed its paved roads as the need arose.

There was not much of plan, admitted the city's new manager Eric Williams.

That changed this week when the Inverness council accepted a long-awaited roadway construction assessment that reviewed all of the 56 miles of the city's paved roads and determined their condition, need for repair, and estimated cost to do the work.

The assessment showed that, for the most part, the city's roads were acceptable.

"We have really stepped up the game," Williams told his council bosses before the assessment presentation.

In addition, Williams now earmarks at least $400,000 annually toward road repair to ensure the roads stay in adequate condition.

The assessment report broke the city's paved roads into five categories. Consultants Kimley-Horn and Associates used a computer program and drove all of the city's paved roads to evaluate them, map them and log their condition.

The five categories were:

■ RoadBotics Rating 1 — no or only minor surface distress. The city had 1.27 miles of such roads.

■ RoadBotics Rating 2 — minor surface damage but no critical issues. The city had 23.42 miles of such roads.

■ RoadBotics Rating 3 — appearance of pervasive distresses. The city had 29.33 miles of such roads.

■ RoadBotics Rating 4 — significant damage or emerging critical failures. The city had 2.34 miles of such roads.

■ RoadBotics Rating 5 — major surface damage

Since COVID-19, CYESO has been rebuilding their student base. When they shut down over the summer, CYESO lost about one-third of their students. “We had them instantly replaced in the fall,” Hoffman said. At their open house in January, they recruited 18 new students. “It’s growing,” Jack Moorhouse, brass teacher, said. “The students we have gotten seem to really want to be here,” Angie Gabb, assistant director, said. Beginner musicians, ages 5 to 19, always start their musical journey on the recorder, where they gain a basic understanding of reading music. Gabb, who plays flute and piano herself, said she tells the kids, “Music is its own language.” Once students are ready, CYESO offers instruction in cello, clarinet, double bass, flute, French horn, trumpet, viola and violin. During practices, students are taught in small groups with others who play similar instruments. Students then advance through beginner and intermediate classes by meeting the necessary requirements on evaluation day. “I’m always encouraged when I see them start to progress,” said Moorhouse.

The ultimate goal, however, is to participate in the orchestra class. “It’s a whole different experience to play in an ensemble,” Gabb said. Students must learn to listen to their neighbors and ensure they aren’t overpowering others. “It’s such a great life skill for them.” In addition to practices, students are encouraged to participate in recitals and concerts two to three times per year. Their last official concert, and their first orchestra concert, was in March 2020, just before the U.S. announced COVID-19 closures. After losing some orchestra students, “we’re rebuilding,” Hoffman said. Aside from the volunteers, music teachers receive a small siphon from the organization to pay them for their time. “They teach for the love of teaching,” Andrea McCray, director of donor relations, said. A family membership at CYESO is $250 and $50 per student. However, “no one is turned away,” Hoffman said. Full and partial scholarships are available for students who need it, but everyone pays at least the $50 per child. “Everyone must have an investment,” McCray said. In return, she said, “this teaches children dedication and commitment.” The membership fee provides students with access to a season of top quality instruction, music sheets, band stands and instruments. To keep all of this afloat, CYESO requires a $50,000 yearly fund. All donations to the fund go toward paying the teachers, instrument maintenance, rent and financial aid. “The biggest expenditure are the teachers,” Hoffman said. Prior to COVID-19, Hoffman would make presentations to organizations, encouraging them to donate. When in-person contact became virtually obsolete, McCray suggested mailing donation packets. “This was her brainchild,” Hoffman said. “I would like to say thank you to all those who have contributed,” McCray said. CYESO admits new students twice a year in August and January. They practice weekly at 4 p.m.

on Tuesdays at the Cornerstone Baptist Church, 1100 W. Highland Ave. in Inverness. The program always welcomes monetary donations, along with instruments (no pianos or organs). CYESO is also in need of a brass teacher, other than trumpet. Parents who wish to get involved may become CYESO board members. To learn more, visit cyeso.org or CYESO on Facebook. formerly had a vacation home on the Homosassa River, said. “She mentioned it to me and we got it put in the budget.” During the 2020 campaign, Schlabach met with Homosassa residents including Alonda McCarty, who lives in Spring Cove, one of the neighborhoods near the head spring, known locally as Blue Water. McCarty said she has worked four years to get funding for a sewer project to support the ongoing Homosassa River restoration. “We were not on the priority list to have that area on sewer for another 10 years,” she said Wednesday. Meeting with Schlabach changed that. Schlabach said in September, as a commissioner-elect, she spoke with Simpson at a Tampa event and mentioned the sewer idea for the springs neighborhoods. “I asked him for the money and he said, ‘this is exactly what we’re looking for,’” Schlabach said. “Nobody thought we could get it. I went an unconventional route. Being a newbie kind of helped me.” Along with the Homosassa septic-to-sewer, other Citrus projects in the state budget: ■ $5 million for Inverness Airport Business Park

■ $4 million for King’s Bay restoration. ■ $1.5 million for LifeStream Behavioral Centers for mental-health and addiction treatment in Citrus County. Plus, the Homosassa River restoration is expected to receive a portion of $10 million in watershed funding. And, Simpson said, the state added $500 million for shovel-ready septic-to-sewer projects. “Citrus County,” he said, “should be at the front of that line.” Contact Chronicle reporter Mike Wright at 352-563-3228 or mwright@chronicleonline.com. To view more of his stories, go to www.tinyurl.com/y3bakm6w.

BUDGET

DeSantis vetoed about 150 line items pitched by individual lawmakers out of about 700 included in the budget. But the vast majority of money vetoed was $1 billion in federal dollars that would have gone to a new emergency fund in the governor’s office. The money for the fund would have come from the American Rescue Plan Act, a federal stimulus law signed in March by President Joe Biden. But DeSantis said federal guidelines dictated the money couldn’t be set aside to address future needs and could only be approved through “normal procurement,” defeating the purpose of the requested emergency-preparedness and response fund. “If we were to go forward with it, we were going to run into (the) risk of having the feds come after us for it,” DeSantis said. DeSantis added that the veto ensures the federal money is available for other uses approved by the Legislature. Among other things, the Republican-controlled Legislature tapped federal money to provide $1,000 bonuses to first responders. State Senate Democrats were quick to note the American Rescue Plan Act, which funneled billions of dollars to the state and bolstered the budget, was approved by congressional Democrats and Biden. “A big chunk of the $10 billion from the federal stimulus act added to a bounty of transportation and economic development projects all over the state,” Senate Democrats said in a statement. “The money even allowed the governor to dole out $1,000 bonuses to law enforcement, firefighters, and other front-line emergency workers. Unfortunately, as he took his victory lap to hand out the bonuses and brag about the many programs rescued as a result of the federal help, the governor never once directed thanks to those who made this possible.” The progressive group Florida Watch called the spending plan a “missed opportunity” to help more than just teachers and first responders with $1,000 bonuses as a reward for work during the pandemic. “While children throughout our state are crammed into crumbling classrooms and portables, Republicans in Tallahassee refused to spend more than $3 billion that could have been used on much-needed maintenance projects in public schools,” Florida Watch Executive Director Josh Weierbach said in a statement. “Instead, they raised taxes on every Floridian by $1 billion a year. They also turned away billions of dollars by refusing to become the 39th state to expand Medicaid, which would lower the cost of care for all Floridians and extend access to quality and affordable health care to over 800,000 workers.” In April, DeSantis signed into law a plan to require out-of-state online retailers to collect sales taxes on purchases made by Floridians, with the estimated $1 billion a year in revenue going to curb a pair of taxes on Florida businesses (SB 50). The veto total announced Wednesday topped the $1 billion that DeSantis cut last year and the $131 million in cuts in 2019. DeSantis wielded his veto pen last year to help shore up the budget during uncertainty about how the pandemic would affect state tax revenues. DeSantis used Wednesday’s event at the upscale Volusia County restaurant to highlight his efforts to reopen the economy last year. “We were the state lifting people up. That was good for Floridians, but we were also the landing spot for a lot of people that wanted to escape the insanity and come and get their mental, you know, get recharged from escaping these lockdowns,” DeSantis said. The budget will take effect July 1 and, in part, funds the Department of Transportation’s $9.44 billion work program; provides $75 million for the Visit Florida tourism-marketing agency; provides $74 million for the Job Growth Grant Fund economic-development program; and raises to $13 an hour the minimum pay of state workers. DeSantis approved $22.8 billion in spending for public schools, which includes a roughly $464 million “safety net” to help school districts deal with potentially high enrollment cuts. The state is expecting 2.86 million students to enroll in public schools next academic year, after education officials and lawmakers grappled with enrollment declines during the pandemic. But it is still unknown if previously “missing” students might return to public schools, potentially pushing enrollment beyond the state’s projection. DeSantis also highlighted $550 million in the budget to continue increasing teacher salaries. That is in addition to one-time $1,000 bonuses for teachers and principals funded with the federal money. For the environment, the budget includes $102 million for the Florida Forever land-conservation program and $300 million to acquire land to protect wildlife corridors. It also includes $415 million for Everglades restoration; $50 million for state parks; $500 million to address effects of rising sea levels; $500 million for wastewater grants; and $100 million to clean up an old phosphate plant in Manatee County that sparked concerns this year about a potential environmental catastrophe.

and/or critical fatigue issues. The city had 0.06 miles of such roads. Repairing roads is not cheap and gets costlier as the road’s conditions worsens, the consultant’s engineer, Chris Towne, told the council. Roads rated at 1 will not likely need repairs for the next 10-15 years, Towne said. Roads rated at 2 will not likely need repairs for the next five to seven years. Roads rated at 3 will need a 1-inch asphalt overlay at a cost of about $220,000 per mile for a two-lane road. Roads rated at 4 need a variety of repairs including overlays and resurfacing. The cost is typically about $360,000 per mile for a two-lane road. Roads rated at 5 will need more extensive reclamation work and overhaul, usually at a cost of about $510,000 per mile for a two-lane road. The maps and assessment will also work to help the city to decide where to spend its road repair money and how to do it most efficiently, Williams said. “That document ... is really a living document,” Williams said, and changes as roads are repaired. It gives guidance where before the city used a less efficient method, he said. “We have mainly relied upon reactionary need and institutional knowledge of known issues as the previous guiding principle for road resurfacing improvement,” Williams told the council. The city hired Kimley-Horn November 2020 for the assessment. Councilwoman Jacquie Hepfer said the study was a long time coming and will help better utilize taxpayer dollars. Towne said the city is in a good position in that most of its roads are still in good condition and it is taking stock now rather than when its roads have deteriorated. “This is a very valuable tool in our hand,” Williams said. Contact Chronicle reporter Fred Hiers at fred.hiers@chronicleonline.com or 352-397-5914.

Barbecue among friends raises $3k for teen with Tourette syndrome

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

On a recent Friday evening, a group of friends got together for a barbecue and among them raised more than $3,000 for Jeremy Schreifels, the 18-year-old teen who hopes an experimental brain surgery will give him relief from a severe case of Tourette syndrome.

Stephen Quinn, who works for the Citrus County Sheriff's Office, had read about Jeremy on Facebook and got together with some friends with an impromptu idea for a fundraiser of their own.

"One guy said he'd cook and another said let's use his house," Quinn said. "We invited a bunch of friends, and friends of friends showed up and we had about 30 or 40 people."

He said an anonymous donor gave $1,000 and his girlfriend's employer donated $500. On Monday, Quinn said he's still getting money from people.

"We know that the $130,000 (goal) is for the surgery, but he's probably going to need $50,000 to $60,000 more for after care or other therapies," he said. "The community really has come together on this."

The surgery, Deep Brain Stimulation (DBS), is to implant a device that sends electrical signals to areas of the brain that are responsible for body movement. Electrodes placed deep in the brain are connected to a stimulator device that's similar to a heart pacemaker; a neurostimulator uses electric pulses to regulate brain activity.

Jennifer Schreifels, Jeremy's mother, said although they don't have a date for the surgery, they're moving forward.

Currently, they're pursuing finding an intensive outpatient psychiatric therapy called Cognitive Behavioral Intervention for Tics (CBIT), which will focus on reducing Jeremy's anxiety prior to the surgery.

"If he can't reduce his anxiety, the surgery only has a 40% success rate," Mrs. Schreifels said.

"Then on Aug. 30, we have a consultation with the DBS surgery team to find out if Jeremy's anxiety is down enough for the DBS surgery to work properly."

Bay News 9 came to Inverness on Tuesday to video a story about Jeremy, which he handled well, Mrs. Schreifels posted on her Facebook page Tuesday, adding, "As of right now, Jeremy seems comfortable. There are spurts where he gets bad, but for now, as we all know, his Tourette's is all over the place and we never know when it's going to hit again."

"We thank God for the community and support as always," she wrote.

Meanwhile, other fundraisers are being planned, including:

■ A Portrait Event at Cavallo Winery in Lecanto on June 5, a 30-minute session/10 digital files with local photographer Curtiss Bryant for a $150 minimum donation, with checks made payable to the Phil Royal Legacy Foundation.

Five arrested for separate BUIs over holiday weekend

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

State authorities jailed five men on accusations they were boating drunk in Citrus County waters over the Memorial Day weekend.

Officers of the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission's (FWC's) Division of Law Enforcement arrested Christopher Richard Smith, Jesse Daniel Strickland and Mike'll Lee Coleman on Saturday, May 29, for a first offense of boating under the influence.

FWC officers arrested Coleman John Blommel and Gaven Shane Westlortorn Sunday on a similar charge. Westlortorn also faces another charge of possessing alcohol under 21 years old.

Respective bonds were set at $500; Westlortorn's was set at $1,500.

■ ■ ■ Coleman, a Weekie Wachee 31-year-old, was arrested after Officer John Jones encountered him riding a Jet Ski fast in a minimum-wake zone near the Homosassa River's junction with Hall's River, according to Coleman's arrest report.

Coleman waved the officer over and asked him questions about the speed zone. Jones asked Coleman for his vessel registration, fire extinguisher and whistle.

While speaking to Coleman, according to his arrest report, Jones could smell alcohol coming from him, and noticed he was slurring his words. After Jones escorted him back to shore, Coleman performed and failed the officer's field sobriety tasks.

Coleman refused to take a Breathalyzer as he was being booked at the Citrus County Detention Facility.

■ ■ ■ FWC Officer James Suttles stopped a pair of Jet Skis traveling on a full plane within an idle speed zone in King's Bay, Crystal River, and spoke with Strickland, one of the operators.

Strickland, a Dunnellon 50-year-old, had trouble responding to Suttles' questions, according to his arrest report, and had an 18-month-old child sitting on his lap.

Suttles reported he had difficulty understanding Strickland's slurred words, and could smell alcohol coming from him, prompting FWC officers to put Strickland through a seated field sobriety task, which he failed.

Strickland took a Breathalyzer test at the county jail roughly two hours after meeting Suttles, according to his arrest report, and blew blood alcohol content results of 0.132 and 0.141.

Florida's legal BAC limit is 0.08.

■ ■ ■ FWC Officer Jon Browning stopped a boat and its seven occupants for safety check as Smith was operating it on the Homosassa River.

When Browning asked the Lakeland 34-year-old for his vessel's safety gear, Smith couldn't remember the items without being reminded by his passengers, according to his arrest report.

After Smith failed Browning's field sobriety tasks, the officer took him back to shore, where a Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputy transported Smith to the county jail.

■ ■ ■ Blommel, a 20-year-old from Dade City, was stopped by FWC Officer Brandon Ulrich on the Homosassa River for not having a registration decal on the side of his boat.

Ulrich asked Blommel for his vessel's safety gear, and noticed empty alcohol containers in front of the boat's console and on its deck, according to Blommel's arrest report.

Blommel failed Ulrich's seated field sobriety task, and was transported to the county jail.

■ ■ ■ Officer Browning stopped Westlortorn boating in the Blue Waters of Homosassa to perform a safety check on the Dade City 19-year-old's vessel.

According to his arrest report, Westlortorn kept forgetting what Browning was asking him to get, and tried to brace himself as he moved around the boat. Westlortorn's speech was also slurred, and his eyes were bloodshot, Browning documented.

Westlortorn failed Browning's seated field sobriety task, and was taken to jail.

Volusia sheriff: Deputies shoot girl, 14, who opened fire on them

Associated Press

DELTONA — Deputies in central Florida shot and wounded a 14-year-old girl after they say she and a 12-year-old boy opened fire with a shotgun and

AK-47 from a house they broke into after fleeing a juvenile home.

The girl was in stable condition after surgery, the Volusia County Sheriff's Office said in a news release early Wednesday, and charges were pending against both juveniles in the Tuesday evening violence near Deltona. The deputies were put on administrative leave pending a review, officials said. A visibly angry Sheriff

Mike Chitwood said at a news conference late Tuesday that the juveniles had shot at officers from the house multiple times over about a half-hour while deputies tried to de-escalate the situation and, eventually, returned fire. He said this was "something I've never seen in 35 years in policing."

"This is like Bonnie and Clyde at 12 years old and 14 years of age," Chitwood said.

Leibovitz photo fronts memoir by business leader Indra Nooyi

NEW YORK — After decades of photographing rock stars, movie stars and heads of state, Annie Leibovitz has added a business leader to her portfolio: Former PepsiCo CEO Indra Nooyi.

Leibovitz's shot of a stylish but relatively casual Nooyi, wearing a dark sweater and pants, will appear on the cover of Nooyi's memoir "My Life in Full," scheduled to come out Sept. 28.

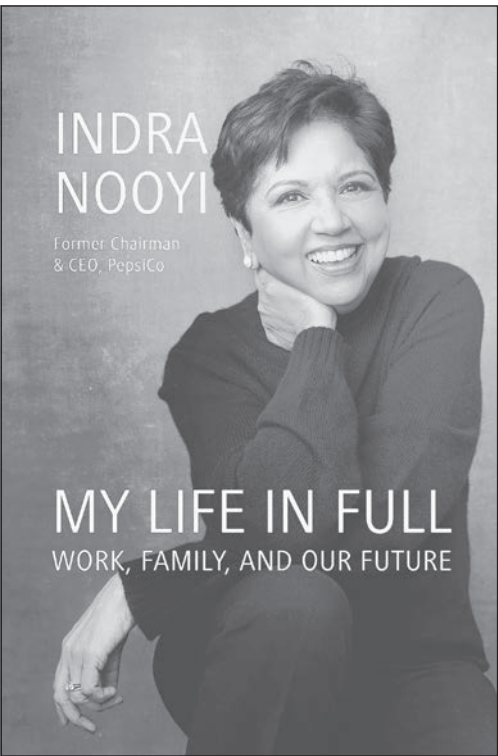

Nooyi is expected to write about her childhood in India, her experiences as an immigrant at Yale University's business school and how she became the rare woman and person of color to reach the highest levels of corporate power.

She worked at PepsiCo for 24 years, 12 of them as CEO, before stepping down in 2018.

"It is not so much that Indra is a CEO but it is who she is," Leibovitz said in a statement Wednesday. "I have always been interested in what someone does. Indra has paved the way for so many women in business. As a mother, I would like my three daughters to read her memoir."

David Diop wins International Booker Prize with WWI story

LONDON — A harrowing but poetic tale of comradeship, colonialism and the horrors of war won the International Booker Prize for fiction on Wednesday.

"At Night All Blood is Black" by French writer David Diop beat five other finalists to take the 50,000-pound ($70,000) prize, which is open to fiction in any language that has been translated into English. The prize money will be split between the author and his translator, Anna Moschovakis.

The novel is narrated by Alfa Ndiaye, a Senegalese soldier fighting for the then-imperial power France during World War I, and charts his descent into madness on the battlefield.

British author Lucy Hughes-Hallett, who chaired the judging panel, said the "hypnotically compelling" book was both "appalling" and poetic, "entering the reader's consciousness at a level that bypasses rationality and transcends the subject matter."

"You have to read this book and you will come away from it changed," she said.

Diop's novel was chosen by majority decision of the five judges over contenders including Jewish-Russian family history "In Memory of Memory" by Russian writer Maria Stepanova and imaginative short-story collection "The Dangers of Smoking in Bed" by Argentina's Mariana Enriquez.

Born in France and raised in Senegal, Diop teaches 18th-century literature at the University of Pau in southern France.

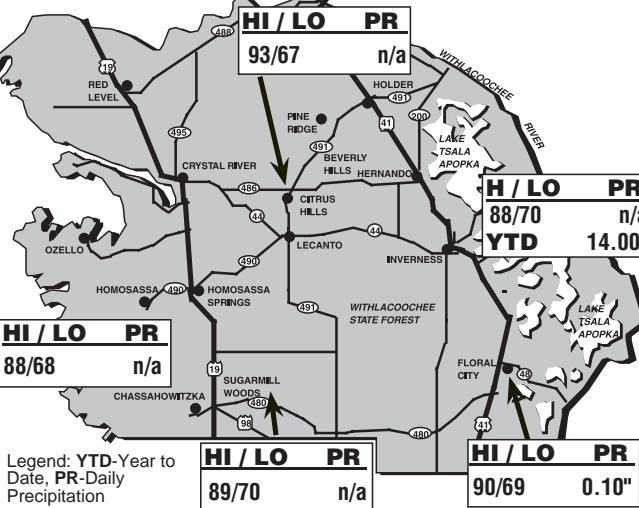

He is the first French author to win the prize, a counterpart to the prestigious Booker Prize for English-language fiction.

Diop's novel, which was published in French in 2018, resonates with present-day debates about racism and colonialism.

Hughes-Hallett said the book didn't win "because it speaks to the current conversation about racial politics," but because "it spoke to us with the most power."

Today is Thursday, June 3, the 154th day of 2021. There are 211 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On June 3, 1989, Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, died. On the same day, Chinese army troops began their sweep of Beijing to crush student-led pro-democracy demonstrations.

Inverness explores ways help with dirt roads

FRED HIERS
Staff writer

After decades of neglect and disrepair, dirt roads in Inverness Acres and Inverness Village will get a little emergency help from Inverness to ensure emergency vehicles can venture into the subdivisions. The city council agreed to apply for federal grants to pave the roads and spur on development in the two areas made up of mostly vacant lots.

After residents of the two areas north and south of State Road 44 asked the city council for help, complaining of roads so dilapidated that emergency vehicles, garbage trucks, and mail vehicles can't get to some homes, the city agreed to spend as much as $20,000 to make some repairs.

The council also voted to spend $30,000 to apply for two federal grants totaling $32 million to build paved roads into the subdivisions.

The problem is the plats for the two subdivisions, without paved roads, were accepted by the county half a century ago. Later, the county presented the plats to Inverness. The subdivisions are inside the city limits.

But part of the city's plat acceptance was that the city would not be responsible for the subdivisions' roads.

The vast majority of the combined 2,051 lots are still owned by Miami-based Inverness Properties Corporation.

If awarded the grant money for the two separate grants of $16 million each, that would be enough to pave all 16 miles of the roads in both subdivisions.

By declaring the roads an emergency, the city can make immediate repairs but without an obligation to maintain them in the future, City Manager Eric Williams said.

"(But) this is the first time the city has taken a step to help the situation," he said.

Applying for federal grants is also an investment, he said.

"Though the city specifically did not accept (the roads in the plat), we are faced with conditions today that are an obstacle to smart growth, economic development, and readiness for certain disasters such as a hurricane," Williams wrote his council bosses.

In other city business, the council:

■ Voted unanimously to approve a temporary entertainment district that allows existing businesses to expand their market footprint during special events and sell beer and wine and allow customers to walk between businesses with their alcohol.

In the past, the city coordinated with nonprofits to set up trucks where they could sell alcohol and declined to let downtown businesses to participate.

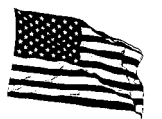

The new ordinance allows downtown businesses to apply for a special events permit and sell beer and wine in a specially selected cup and the city would allow people using the cup to leave the business and walk around with the cup and the alcohol inside.

Allowing for only a nonprofit to sell alcohol downtown is unfair to downtown businesses paying taxes, Williams said.

Councilwoman Jacquie Hepfer said the council shouldn't create a business environment where businesses were handicapped.

"We shouldn't be competing with our own people," she said.

More charges likely for man in child porn case

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

A local man facing a life-time in prison for his alleged trove of child pornography could be pitted against additional charges after authorities discovered a couple thousand more illegal images.

Assistant State Attorney Blake Shore told Citrus County Circuit Court Judge Richard "Ric" Howard on Wednesday, June 2, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement identified roughly 2,000 possible files on two computers seized from Patrick James Crocker's Floral City home.

Shore said he's expecting a more detailed report to be released next week, adding he could tack on more charges against Crocker, depending on what's found.

Sarajane Olsen, Crocker's lawyer, told the judge she's waiting for a psychologist to evaluate her client, and is planning to depose the FDLE employee who analyzed Crocker's computers.

Howard scheduled July 28 as Crocker's next hearing date.

After his arrest in November, 36-year-old Crocker was charged with 16 counts of possessing 10 or more images of child pornography. If convicted as charged, Crocker could be sentenced to up to 240 years behind bars.

An undercover FDLE operation working to identify internet users sharing child pornography connected Crocker's IP address from his house to downloads from a digital source of illicit images.

During an initial search of one of Crocker's computer and hard drives, authorities found more than

CARING COUNTY

When help is needed, the community responds

A Chronicle story about 18-year-old Jeremy Schreifels and his difficulties living with Tourette syndrome touched the hearts of Citrus County residents, and they did what locals have become known for — they offered help. A lot of it.

Tourette syndrome is a disorder that involves involuntary repetitive movements (“tics”) and/or vocal outbursts, from unusual sounds to offensive cursing. Jeremy has been suffering from the disorder since age 3. But there is hope: Deep Brain Stimulation (DBS), which involves surgery to implant a device that sends electrical signals to areas of the brain that are responsible for body movement.

Jeremy is old enough for the surgery and UF Health Shand's will do it, but because the FDA has not yet approved the experimental surgery for Tourette syndrome — it is approved for Parkinson's disease — Jeremy's health insurance won't cover it, according to his mom, Jennifer. The family is trying to raise money to pay for the surgery out of pocket and the related follow-up costs, a ballpark total of $130,000. The family said they are willing to put their house up for sale if that is what it takes to raise the money. Thankfully, that won't have to happen.

Community response has been amazing, but that's no surprise. Over the years, residents have never hesitated when a call for help went out. For example, last year,

THE ISSUE:

A teen with Tourette syndrome needs help to get deep brain stimulation treatments.

OUR OPINION:

Community response a testament to the caring people of Citrus County.

the Chronicle ran a story about 66-year-old grandmother Sandra Ingram, who has COPD, heart disease and diabetes and had been struggling to care for her two grandchildren left in her custody after their mother died from cancer in 2019. More than 500 people donated money toward getting the family into a clean, safe home — nearly $73,000, including several very large donations.

When Leon McClellan, vice president of M&B Dairy in Lecanto, read about Jeremy, he knew he had to do something to help. McClellan and friends organized a fundraising barbecue. McClellan is known for being first in line when someone needs help. He and other county residents have raised more than $73,000 toward Jeremy's surgery. That is a testament to the caring people that call Citrus home.

During a time of partisan politics and after a year of the COVID pandemic, it's comforting to see our caring community come together to help another resident in need, and to know that when another resident needs help, there will be help waiting.

Wear orange June 4 to raise awareness

In 2013, 15-year-old Hadiya Pendleton was shot and killed in Chicago. After her death, her friends wore orange to raise awareness about gun violence in their community. Then, Hadiya's friends asked all of us to wear orange to honor Hadiya and the hundreds of Americans killed and injured by gun violence every day. They inspired Wear Orange, which now includes a broad coalition of nonprofits, cultural influencers and elected officials working to reduce gun violence in America.

Orange has become the defining color of the gun violence prevention movement — and on June 4 we'll wear orange to draw our nation's attention to gun violence.

Every year, more than 3,000 children and teens are shot and killed in the United States, and another 15,000 are shot and wounded — an average of nine children and teens shot and killed and 42 shot and wounded every day.

Gun suicide claims the lives of over 23,000 people in the U.S. each year. Having access to a firearm triples one's risk of death by suicide. Two thirds of all gun deaths in the U.S. are suicides.

Every month an average of 57 women are shot and killed by an intimate partner. Access to a firearm makes it five times more likely that the abusive partner will kill his female partner.

Fifty-eight percent of American adults or someone they care for have experienced gun violence in their lifetime. Approximately three million American children witness gun violence every year.

Together, we can build a future free from gun violence. Stand up, speak out and join us as we honor survivors of gun violence this National

Consider the shelter in overall budget

The initial plan to build a new animal shelter was to finance $8-9 million dollars, not including the nice extras; voted on without conducting any cost/benefit analysis. At the last meeting, the commissioners finally agreed to take the proceeds from the sale of excess land to pay down this debt.

Lake County's newly built animal shelter, a 25,000-square-foot facility, paid for by the county's penny tax, can house 100-plus cats, 165-plus dogs, exotic animals such as pythons, and also pigs, horses, sheep, etc. The price was $7.8 million. The facility includes a barn that was built with donations. Lake County's estimated 2021 population is 387,914 according to the U.S. census. By comparison, Citrus County's estimated population is 153,607 and it has a much lower growth rate, according to the same source. Lake County's population is 2.5

Hot Corner: ANIMAL CRUELTY

■ I'm responding to Sound Off to your (Monday, May 31, front-page) article “Man sentenced for animal cruelty.” It's about time. Finally, some justice for some animals. Glad to see him going to prison for five years. Too bad he couldn't go for longer, but five years is better than nothing.

■ We are indeed fortunate to have a terrific judge like “Ric” Howard here in Citrus County. He is fair and honest during trials, but when a defendant is found guilty — especially in cases involving cruelty to children, the elderly, animals or other helpless victims — he is wonderful. No sob stories or “the devil made me do it” defense. He gives the perpetrator the max and then some. God bless him for protecting the victims and the law-abiding citizens of our county. Too many judges just give the felons a slap on the wrist and permission to go out and commit another crime. God bless you, Judge Howard. I hope you are our judge for a long, long time.

■ Judge Howard's giving somebody years of prison time for animal cruelty. People should not go to prison for animal cruelty. A fine of some sort should be punishment. “Ric” Howard always has too harsh of sentences. ...

■ In today's paper, I see where a man was sentenced for animal cruelty to five years and I think that's a good thing. What I don't understand is why did the prosecutor's office offer him a deal of probation in the first place? I think that's horrible. ...

SUPPORT THE SHELTER

- You can support the construction of a new animal shelter by contributing to the Chronicle animal shelter fund by mailing a check to The Chronicle, 1624 N. Meadowcrest Blvd., Crystal River, FL. Sporting tickets are too costly

What a shock to see. I want to see a baseball game at the Rays because they're reduced capacity and social distanced. They must be making their money off of tickets because here I'm looking and just for two tickets, it's $369 each for one ticket and this is row 88 in back. Forget it. They can keep it.

An Aldi's would be nice

I see where another fast-food restaurant's coming to Citrus County. Between the gas stations and the fast foods, we are having a fit about it because I live in Meadowcrest and I certainly missed the Winn-Dixie when it left. What we need is Aldi's between Crystal River and Inverness. There's no further grocery store and the one at Meadowcrest was quite convenient. So let's stop with the fast-food restaurants and all the gas stations and seek a new grocery store like Aldi's.

Thank you for the barbecue lunch

I wanted to personally thank the Citrus County Chamber of Commerce for hosting their First Responders Barbecue. I'm a first responder and you make it all worthwhile. Thank you, thank you, thank you.

Use the funds for something else

$550,000 is sitting in the bank waiting for the go-ahead on the Fort Island bike trail. Maybe the BOCC could use it to pave a couple of roads or the Lecanto animal shelter.

Biden: Get those shots

President Joe Biden is reflected in a teleprompter as he speaks about the COVID-19 vaccination program, in the South Court Auditorium on the White House campus, Wednesday, June 2 in Washington.

Wants 70% of adults on road to vaccination by July 4

ZEKE MILLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Dangling everything from sports tickets to a free beer, President Joe Biden is looking for that extra something — anything — that will get people to roll up their sleeves for COVID-19 shots when the promise of a life-saving vaccine by itself hasn't been enough. Biden on Wednesday announced a “month of action” to urge more Americans to get vaccinated before the July 4 holiday, including an early summer sprint of incentives and a slew of new steps to ease barriers and make getting shots more appealing to those who haven't received them. He is closing in on his goal of getting 70% of adults at least partially vaccinated by Independence Day — essential to his aim of returning the nation to something approaching a pre-pandemic sense of normalcy this summer. “The more people we get vaccinated, the more success we're going to have in the fight against this virus,” Biden said from the White House. He predicted that with more vaccinations, America will soon experience “a summer of freedom, a summer of joy, a summer of get-togethers and celebrations. An All-American summer.” The Biden administration views June as “a critical month in our path to normal,” Courtney Rowe, the director of strategic communications and engagement for the White House COVID-19 response team, told the AP. Biden's plan will continue to use public and private-sector partnerships, mirroring the “whole of government” effort he deployed to make vaccines more widely available after he took office. The president said he was “pulling out all the stops” to drive up the vaccination rate. Among those efforts is a promotional giveaway announced Wednesday by Anheuser-Busch, saying it will “buy Americans 21+ a round of beer” once Biden's 70% goal is met. “Get a shot and have a beer,” Biden said, advertising the promotion even though he himself refrains from drinking alcohol. Additionally, the White House is partnering with early childhood centers such as KinderCare, Learning Care Group, Bright Horizons and more than 500 YMCAs to provide free childcare coverage for Americans looking for shots or needing assistance while recovering from side effects. The administration is also launching a new partnership to bring vaccine education and even doses to more than a thousand Black-owned barbershops and beauty salons, building on a successful pilot program in Maryland. They're the latest vaccine sweeteners, building on other incentives like cash giveaways, sports tickets and paid leave, to keep up the pace of vaccinations. “The fact remains that despite all the progress, those who are unvaccinated still remain at risk of getting seriously ill or dying or spreading the disease to others,” said Rowe. Aiming to make injections even more convenient, Biden is announcing that many pharmacies are extending their hours this month — and thousands will remain open overnight on Fridays. The White House is also stepping up its efforts to help employers run on-site vaccination clinics.

Nation/World BRIEFS

Israel

Netanyahu opponents reach coalition deal to oust Israeli PM

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's opponents announced Wednesday that they have reached a deal to form a new governing coalition, paving the way for the ouster of the longtime Israeli leader. The dramatic announcement by opposition leader Yair Lapid and his main coalition partner, Naftali Bennett, came shortly before a midnight deadline and prevented what could have been Israel's fifth consecutive election in just over two years.

“This government will work for all the citizens of Israel, those that voted for it and those that didn't. It will do everything to unite Israeli society,” Lapid said.

The agreement still needs to be approved by the Knesset, or parliament, in a vote that is expected to take place early next week. If it goes through, Lapid and a diverse array of partners that span the Israeli political spectrum will end Netanyahu's record-setting but divisive 12-year rule.

Netanyahu, desperate to remain in office while he fights corruption charges, is expected to do everything possible in the coming days to prevent the new coalition from taking power. If he fails, he will be pushed into the opposition.

Under the agreement, Lapid and Bennett will split the job of prime minister in a rotation. Bennett, a former ally of Netanyahu, is to serve the first two years, while Lapid is to serve the final two years — though it is far from certain their fragile coalition will last that long.

Stocks manage modest gains overall; AMC nearly doubles

Wall Street wrapped up another wobbly day of trading Wednesday with modest gains for the major stock indexes, as energy and technology companies kept losses elsewhere in the market in check.

The benchmark S&P 500 rose 0.1% after wobbling between a gain of 0.4% and a loss of 0.1%. Strength in technology, energy and real estate stocks offset a pullback in retailers and other companies that rely on consumer spending. Communication, industrial and materials stocks also fell. Treasury yields mostly eased after rising a day earlier.

Movie theater operator AMC Entertainment nearly doubled in another bout of heavy trading as the company embraced its status as a “meme” stock being driven higher by hordes of individual investors. Other stocks like GameStop that have been championed on online message boards and social media also rose.

The market's modest moves for the second straight day come as investors look ahead to Friday's U.S. jobs report, which the market hopes will lead to fresh clues about the Federal Reserve's next interest rate policy moves later this month, when the central bank holds its next meeting of policymakers.

The S&P 500 rose 6.08 points to 4,208.12. The index is coming off its fourth straight monthly increase. The Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 25.07 points, or 0.1%, to 34,600.38. The Nasdaq recovered from an early slide, adding 19.85 points, or 0.1%, to 13,756.33.

NASA picks Venus as hot spot for two new robotic missions

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA is returning to sizzling Venus, our closest yet perhaps most overlooked neighbor, after decades of exploring other worlds.

The space agency's new administrator, Bill Nelson, announced two new robotic missions to the solar system's hottest planet, during his first major address to employees Wednesday.

“These two sister missions both aim to understand how Venus became an inferno-like world capable of melting lead at the surface,” Nelson said.

One mission named DAVINCI Plus will analyze the thick, cloudy Venusian atmosphere in an attempt to determine whether the inferno planet ever had an ocean and was possibly habitable. A small craft will plunge through the atmosphere to measure the gases.

It will be the first U.S.-led mission to the Venusian atmosphere since 1978.

The other mission, called VERITAS, will seek a geologic history by mapping the rocky planet's surface.

Iran's largest warship catches fire, sinks in Gulf of Oman

TEHRAN, Iran — The largest warship in the Iranian navy caught fire and later sank Wednesday in the Gulf of Oman under unclear circumstances, the latest calamity to strike one of the country's vessels in recent years amid tensions with the West.

The blaze began around 2:25 a.m. and firefighters tried to contain it, the Fars news agency reported, but their efforts failed to save the 679-foot Kharg, which was used to resupply other ships in the fleet at sea and conduct training exercises. State media reported 400 sailors and trainee cadets on board fled the vessel, with 33 suffering injuries.

The ship sank near the Iranian port of Jask, some 790 miles southeast of Tehran on the Gulf of Oman near the Strait of Hormuz — the narrow mouth of the Persian Gulf. Satellite photos from Planet Labs Inc. analyzed by The Associated Press showed the Kharg off Jask with no sign of a fire as late as 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Photos circulated on Iranian social media of sailors wearing life jackets evacuating the vessel as a fire burned behind them.

Meat processor back after attack

Ransomware gang crippled firm's operations this weekend

DEE-ANN DURBIN AND FRANK BAJAK
Associated Press

DETROIT — The world's largest meat processing company has resumed most production after a weekend cyberattack, but experts say the vulnerabilities exposed by this attack and others are far from resolved.

In a statement late Wednesday, the FBI attributed the attack on Brazil-based meat processor JBS SA to REvil, a Russian-speaking gang that has made some of the largest ransomware demands on record in recent months. The FBI said it will work to bring the group to justice and it urged anyone who is the victim of a cyberattack to contact the bureau immediately.

REvil has not posted anything related to the hack on its dark web site. But that's not unusual. Ransomware syndicates as a rule don't post about attacks when they are in initial negotiations with victims — or if the victims have paid a ransom. In October, a REvil representative who goes by the handle “UNKN” said in an interview published online that the agriculture sector would now be a main target for the syndicate. REvil also threatened to auction off sensitive stolen data from victims who refused to pay it. The attack targeted servers supporting JBS's operations in North America and Australia. Backup servers weren't affected and the company said it was not aware of any customer, supplier or employee data being compromised. JBS said late Tuesday that it had made “significant progress” and expected the “vast majority” of its plants to be operating Wednesday. It is not known if JBS paid a ransom. The company hasn't discussed it in public statements, and did not respond to phone and email messages Wednesday seeking comment. The FBI and the White House declined to comment on the ransom. White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki said Wednesday the U.S. is considering all options in dealing with the attack and that President Joe Biden intends to confront Russia's leader, Vladimir Putin, about his nation's harboring of ransomware criminals when the two meet in Europe in two weeks. “I can assure you that we are raising this through the highest levels of the U.S. government,” she said. “The president certainly believes that President Putin has a role to play in stopping and preventing these attacks.”

Prosecutors want 30 years for Chauvin

AMY FORLITI
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Prosecutors are seeking a 30-year sentence for the former Minneapolis police officer convicted of murder in George Floyd's death, but a defense attorney is asking that Derek Chauvin be sentenced to probation and time already served, according to court documents filed Wednesday.

Chauvin is scheduled to be sentenced June 25 following his conviction on murder and manslaughter charges. Judge Peter Cahill previously ruled there were aggravating factors in Floyd's death. That gives him the discretion to sentence Chauvin above the range recommended by state guidelines, which top out at 15 years. Prosecutors said Chauvin's actions were egregious and a sentence of 30 years would “properly account for the profound impact of Defendant's conduct on the victim, the victim's family, and the community.” They said that Chauvin's actions “shocked the Nation's conscience.” “No sentence can undo Mr. Floyd's death, and no sentence can undo the trauma Defendant's actions have inflicted. But the sentence the Court imposes must show that no one is above the law, and no one is below it,” prosecutors wrote. “Defendant's sentence must hold him fully accountable for his reprehensible conduct.” Defense attorney Eric Nelson cited Chauvin's age, lack of a criminal record, and support from family and friends in requesting a sentence of probation and time served. He said Chauvin, 45, was the product of a “broken” system. Mark Osler, a former federal prosecutor and now a professor at the University of St. Thomas School of Law, said it's not unusual for attorneys to make these kinds of requests as a sort of “opening offer.” He said there is zero chance that Chauvin will get probation, and prosecutors are also unlikely to get the 30 years they are requesting. Chauvin was convicted in April of second-degree unintentional murder, third-degree murder and second-degree manslaughter for pressing his knee against Floyd's neck for about 9 1/2 minutes as the Black man said he couldn't breathe and went motionless. Floyd's death set off demonstrations around the United States and beyond.

No lemon heaven for this winter harvest

I waited a whole year for those lemons! Walked around my little tree often to check up on how they were thriving. My heart was fairly bursting at the anticipation of fresh lemonade and lemon meringue pie.

I planted that tree several years ago, but it never produced more than just a couple fruits. This year would be different, my little tree was laden with golden lemons — a year to remember.

I contemplated squeezing the juice from my bounty of lemons to use right away and to freeze a lot more for mouth watering pies during upcoming winter months. I was truly in lemon heaven.

When the fruit was nearly at its peak, I took one more loving glance at my little tree and decided to wait just one more week before picking and juicing.

That was one of the biggest mistakes I ever made.

On arrival of my lemon picking day, I eagerly made my way to the little tree at the back of our property.

I stared in shock and amazement at the two beautiful lemons left on my tree and a couple more in ruins on the ground. There could only be one answer.

Someone had sneaked in during the night and absconded with most of my long awaiting lemons!

Lemons from my very own little tree that I planted with such loving care several years before. My little tree that never produced more than a few fruits but this year was finally awash with large beautiful fruit — branches sagging under their weight!

Julianne Munn

The only answer was that someone had actually invaded my space during the night and picked my tree clean!

I tenderly removed the two remaining lemons from their branches and tearfully (yes, I cried a little) hurried to drain their juice to save for later recipes.

Who in the world would have done such a mean and vicious thing I kept asking myself, but there was no answer. I would just have to suck it up and lovingly groom my little tree to produce once again for the next lemon season. I was devastated and inconsolable.

My heart and mind cried out for a reckoning, but I had no way of knowing who trespassed and stole my beautiful lemon harvest.

I decided to plant a “Trespassers will be prosecuted” sign near the tree and hope for the best.

In the meantime, I want to share with you my favorite lemon meringue pie recipe that knows no peer and will hopefully grace our table next winter:

Best No Fail Lemon Meringue Pie

- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoon corn starch

- 2 cups boiling water
- Rind of 1 lemon, grated
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 3 egg yolks, beaten
- 1/2 cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
- 1 baked pie shell (Publix brand frozen is best if you don't make your own)

Mix together sugar, salt, corn starch water and grated lemon rind. Cook until smooth and transparent. Add butter, egg yolks, and lemon juice. Put in baked pie shell and bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and top with meringue and bake at 350 degrees for 18 minutes. Cool well before cutting.

Mile High Meringue

- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- Pinch salt

- 1/2 cup water
- 3 egg whites, room temperature
- 6 tablespoons sugar

In small saucepan combine corn starch, 3 tablespoons sugar, salt, lemon juice and water. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened; set aside to cool.

In large bowl beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add cooked corn starch mixture, beating until mixture thickens. Gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar, beating until soft peaks form, 5 to 8 minutes.

The recipe is from a cookbook, Crystal Clear Cooking by Judy Brouwer, a treasure of great recipes first published in 1995. It's one I reach for often.

Summer sun means it's time for warm-weather fun for kids of all ages, and all that activity and playing calls for snacks and hydration to recharge. Whether your children like to play poolside or take a bicycle adventure through the neighborhood, the right nutrient-dense foods can keep the fun going all day long.

For an option that quenches hunger (and thirst) without sacrificing nutrition, try an assortment of ways to enjoy watermelon. As a refreshing ingredient or standalone treat, watermelon includes just 80 calories and no fat while providing an excellent source of vitamin C (25%) and higher levels of lycopene (12.7 mg per 2-cup serving) — an antioxidant being studied for its role in sun protection — than any other fresh fruit or vegetable. Plus, it's made of 92% water, meaning it's a flavorful way to encourage kids to rehydrate during some fun in the sun.

Make watermelon part of a balanced snack plate with this Kids Charcuterie Snack Board including assorted watermelon, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, sliced veggies, sliced fruits, crackers, pretzels and more.

In addition to the nutritional benefits, the simplicity of this snack means children can help assemble it while showing off their creativity.

Penny supper casserole recipe from Daniel's mom

We're home! Yes, home sweet home. How is it possible to have such a wonderful trip, but then be so delighted to be home again?

The younger children were not as impressed about being home, so I explained to them that in order for us to go away again, we first need to go home! We all see things through a different set of lenses, right?

As always, on our return from a lengthy trip, one of the first things I do is take a stroll around the house, check on the garden, the veggies, and of course the weeds. This time we were elated to find a gallon of ripe strawberries. Mmm ... what is better than a fresh berry, straight from the patch? Actually, I do know what's better — a little hand, outstretched with a, "Here, mommy, this one is for you!"

With the little dry spell in our area, we set to work watering the garden. Ah, I can't wait to harvest the first ripe tomato. My goal for years has been to have the first ripe tomato by my Dad's birthday on June 26th.

Daniel had weeks before scheduled a driver from Danville, Ohio, to come pick us up. Now imagine the excitement when the 15-passenger van pulled in the driveway and Grandpa from Ohio rolled down the passenger window, waving at all of us. What a delightful surprise! Grandpa traveled all the 360 miles, just to ride back with us! They stopped next to our huge pile of totes with luggage, car seats, and everything else in between. We had scarcely started off when the children were already begging for stories. Even Daniel and I were impressed with his stories of boyhood days with 16 siblings.

Ya, our trip to Ohio was packed with family time, a birthday party, fishing, garage sales, and the likes. It was an enriching time for each of us.

If you ask Jesse what his favorite part was, he'll inform you about his fishing trip and the time he spent the night in Mary's room. This little guy, at 3 years old, simply does not tire of fishing in the hot sun. After more than two hours of fishing, he shed many tears because it was time to go for supper. Since he hadn't caught his long-awaited bass, he was sure that it couldn't be time to stop fishing just yet. He was super impressed when he mastered the art of casting all by himself. Standing a short distance from where he was fishing, I observed him dropping his own fish line, to go cast in Elijah's. With all-boy mannerisms, he importantly informed Elijah, who is four months younger than himself, how he needs to keep an eye on his bobber, and told him exactly what to do when it starts to go underwater.

Julia thrived on her time with Aunt Mary, especially when she was asked to join her at her office to help water plants for the landscaping business. Spending time with the cousins her age, who live down the little gravel road from Grandpa's was a special treat.

Austin, Jesse and Elijah were impressed by all the big tractors and forklifts on Grandpa's farm and pallet shop. Hosanna spent hours with the boys on playing on Grandpa's swings and slide. She was elated when we had an early birthday party for her and Aunt Janice. When Mary gave her the option of a cake or cupcakes she wasted no time in choosing Mary's specialty — cupcakes. Hosanna chose pink and lavender-colored icing.

I smiled, as I watched Daniel thrive on time spent with his dad and brothers, whether they worked together or just relaxed around the table, chatting about work or discussing deeper and richer things in life pertaining to God.

A simple thing that blessed me on our one-week stay was that I am truly welcomed and included as one of them. It's like I told them, I have done nothing to deserve their love and acceptance of me as a part of the family! Whether I need an afternoon snack for the children, or strike a notion to make supper, it's all about just being you and blending as a big family. As a side note, I have also found that in any strong families as such, if you take a closer look, there have been a lot of giving and forgiving. Never do relationships just fall into strong ties without tying and retying knots, and learning to trust all over again.

Little Joshua did amazingly well throughout our stay despite his teething that cost disgruntled sleep patterns and some rougher days. He soon learned where the toys belonged and where the stairs are, leading up to our room. At 11 months, this little fellow loves to climb — the higher the better. He's not walking yet, though it won't be long. It looks comical as he turns his curly little head watching as we all cheer and clap at his new accomplishments, like saying a new word. He knows that all he needs to do is repeat it, and he'll have all the attention he wants.

I'd like to leave you with a recipe Daniel's mom used to make when he was a young boy growing up.

He still fondly remembers his mom making this tasty dish. Of course, a homemade gravy may be used in place of the store-bought soup.

Penny Supper Casserole

- 6 hot dogs, sliced
- 4 med potatoes
- 1 cup peas, cooked and drained
- 2 tablespoons diced onion
- 1 10 oz. can cream of mushroom soup

- 1/4 cup butter, softened
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 cup shredded cheese of your choice

Combine in order given and pour into a 2 quart casserole dish.

Bake at 350 for 45 minutes. Stir and top with shredded cheese and bake for another 5 minutes.

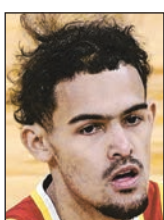

Depending on your type of potatoes, your casserole may be a bit thick, if so, add milk to desired constancy.

Serena's serve leads to win in Paris

U.S. players have a good day at Roland Garros

SAMUEL PETREQUIN
AP sports writer

PARIS — Her superior serve back at its unreturnable best, Serena Williams was in full control of her French Open match — until, suddenly, that stroke wasn't as dominant and neither was she.

And then, pushed to a third set by an opponent offering up all sorts of spins and speeds and angles, Williams regained her form and forged to the finish.

Williams got back to the third round at Roland Garros, where she has won three of her 23 Grand Slam singles titles, by pulling away to beat 174th-ranked Mihaela Buzarnescu 6-3, 5-7, 6-1 Wednesday on Court Philippe Chatrier.

Her serving, especially at the outset, was much better than in her first-round win. In that one Monday, she only put 51% of first serves in play and got broken three times in 10 games.

"I've been practicing my serve a lot. I've been playing, in practice, unbelievable on my serve. The other night was, 'Wooooow,' she said, rolling her eyes. "I'm glad it came better today. My coach told me it's good that I'm doing it well in practice, because eventually it will be good in the match."

It sure was, especially at the outset against Buzarnescu, who didn't manage to put any serves in play in the first game.

By the end of the first set, Williams had won 20 of 23 points

Yankees edge first-place Tampa Bay for a second straight night, 4-3

NEW YORK — Gio Urshela homered early, Clint Frazier drove in two a night after his walk-off homer and the New York Yankees overcame several sloppy moments to beat the Tampa Bay Rays 4-3 Wednesday.

New York had lost six of seven before winning its past two games against the AL East-leading Rays. Tampa Bay dropped two in a row for the first time since May 11-12, also against the Yankees.

Jordan Montgomery (3-1) pitched 6 1/3 innings for New York, and only one of the three runs he allowed was earned. Aroldis Chapman was uncharacteristically wild in the ninth, walking his first two batters, but he worked out of the jam for his 12th save.

After winning on Frazier's 11th-inning homer Tuesday night, the Yankees went back to the long ball early against rookie left-hander Shane McClellan. With two outs in the first, Urshela drove a first-pitch fastball into the lower deck in right field for a two-run homer. Urshela added a double in the seventh.

The Yankees loaded the bases to start the fourth against McClellan (2-1) on hits by Gleyber Torres and Rougned Odor, followed by Gary Sánchez's walk.

The hard-throwing rookie was lifted after retiring Miguel Andújar.

Frazier then hit a two-run single off Ryan Thompson to put New York ahead 4-1.

McClellan allowed four runs, five hits and two walks over 3 1/3 innings, striking out six.

The Yankees' defense slipped up in the fifth. Second baseman Odor fielded a routine grounder by Brett Phillips with Taylor Walls at first, but rather than take the sure out, he made an off-balance throw to second that ended up in left field.

Medina Spirit drug test confirmed
Trainer Baffert suspended 2 years

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Bob Baffert is on track to have his record seventh Kentucky Derby victory taken away and won't be able to run any horses in the prestigious race for the next two years.

Churchill Downs on Wednesday suspended the Hall of Fame trainer for two years after an additional drug test of Medina Spirit confirmed the presence of the steroid betamethasone in the Kentucky Derby winner's system. The next step could be the Kentucky Horse Racing Commission disqualifying Medina Spirit, and now Baffert won't be able to enter any horses in the Derby or other races at the storied track through the spring of 2023.

"Reckless practices and substance violations that jeopardize the safety of our equine and human athletes or compromise the integrity of our sport are not acceptable and as a company we must take measures to demonstrate that they will not be tolerated," Churchill Downs Inc. CEO Bill Carstanjen said in a statement. "Mr. Baffert's record of testing failures threatens public confidence in thoroughbred racing and the reputation of the Kentucky Derby. Given these

Duke's Krzyzewski to coach 1 final season

HOFer will then hand off to Scheyer

AARON BEARD
AP basketball writer

Mike Krzyzewski will make a final run at a national championship with Duke.

The Hall of Famer and winningest coach in the history of Division I men's basketball announced Wednesday that next season will be his last with the Blue Devils program he has built into one of college basketball's bluebloods. The school also named former Duke player and associate head coach Jon Scheyer as Krzyzewski's successor for the 2022-23 season.

"My family and I view today as a celebration," Krzyzewski said in a statement released Wednesday evening.

Stadium first reported news of the 74-year-old Krzyzewski's final season with Duke, which he has led to five national championships, most recently in 2015. He has 1,170 career wins going back to his time at Army, with 1,097 wins coming during 41 years with the Blue Devils and their frantic fans who have made playing at famously hostile Cameron Indoor Stadium so difficult.

Mike Krzyzewski

Now Krzyzewski will have make a final lap — "The Last Ride," as the program billed it in a social-media post — around the Atlantic Coast Conference and the sport where he has piled up an incredible run of success before handing off to Scheyer, currently 33.

"He is clearly ready for this opportunity and has shown it repeatedly throughout his playing career and as a coach on our staff the past eight seasons," Krzyzewski said. "Jon is a rising star in our profession and Duke basketball could not be in better hands in the future."

The school has scheduled a news conference for Krzyzewski on Thursday at Cameron, followed by one Friday for Scheyer.

Krzyzewski has led the Blue Devils to 12 Final Four appearances and a record 15 ACC Tournament championships, while his teams have spent a record 126 weeks ranked at No. 1 in the AP men's college basketball poll.

Hired at Duke in March 1980, "Coach K" won national championships in 1991, 1992, 2001, 2010 and 2015. He broke Army mentor Bob Knight's career victory record in November 2011.

Krzyzewski has tailored his approach to adapt with the times and his personnel. He won that 2010 title with a senior-laden roster, then claimed the 2015 one after pivoting to more "one-and-done" talent that headed to the NBA after a lone college season.

His image became synonymous both with the elite private university in Durham, North Carolina, and the sport as a whole. And along the way, he took over the U.S. men's national team — with NBA All-Star rosters featuring names such as the late Kobe Bryant and LeBron James — and led it to Olympic gold in Beijing in 2008, London in 2012 and Rio de Janeiro in 2016.

"What he means to the countless players he has coached, both collegiately and professionally, is simply

SPORTS BRIEFS

Without Embiid, 76ers roll Wizards, reach 2nd round

PHILADELPHIA — Seth Curry scored a playoff career-high 30 points and Philadelphia beat Washington 129-112 on Wednesday night to end the series in five games, overcoming Joel Embiid's absence because of a knee injury.

Tobias Harris added 28 points and teamed with Curry and Ben Simmons to carry the offensive load with Embiid out. Simmons had 19 points, 11 assists and 10 rebounds.

Young scores 36 points, Hawks finish off Knicks

NEW YORK — Trae Young put the finishing touches on his impressive first playoff series with 36 points and nine assists, and the Atlanta Hawks beat the New York Knicks 103-89 on Wednesday night in Game 5.

Clint Capela backed up his confident words from a day earlier with 14 points and 15 rebounds for the Hawks, who will play the top-seeded Philadelphia 76ers in their first trip to the Eastern Conference semifinals since 2016.

Canadiens' Game 1 win tempered by late hit

WINNIPEG, Manitoba — Jesperi Kotkaniemi and Eric Staal scored early goals and Montreal beat the Winnipeg Jets 5-3 on Wednesday night in Game 1 of the second-round series, a victory tempered by a scary late-game hit on Canadiens center Jake Evans.

Evans was taken off the ice on a stretcher with 57 seconds left after being crushed by Jets center Mark Scheifele on an empty-net goal.

Sabres win lottery; Kraken get No. 2 pick

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The Buffalo Sabres won the NHL draft lottery and the expansion Seattle Kraken jumped up the order to take the No. 2 pick Wednesday night.

The Sabres have the No. 1 pick for the fourth time in franchise history and second in three years.

Walls advanced to third on the error, then scored on Yandy Diaz's sacrifice fly.

New York ran into two outs on the bases in the seventh, raising their total to a major league-most 29 such outs this season. Urshela was caught easily trying to advance to third as catcher Francisco Mejia blocked a pitch in the dirt, and Torres was picked off first base by Jeffrey Springs a few pitches later.

Montgomery botched Joey Wendle's grounder in the seventh, setting up another unearned Rays run. The left-hander was pulled with one out having allowed five hits and two walks, immeasurable,” ACC commissioner Jim Phillips said in a statement.

Duke missed the NCAA Tournament this past season for the first time since 1995, but the Blue Devils welcome one of the nation's top recruiting classes for the coming season.

Scheyer played for Krzyzewski from 2006-10, with his last season resulting in his mentor's fourth NCAA title. Scheyer joined the Duke staff for the 2013-14 season and rose to his current role following the 2017-18 season.

Scheyer served as interim coach last year for Duke when Krzyzewski was sidelined for a January win she served.

In the second set, things changed. Buzarnescu made the measure of those powerful offerings and managed to get herself right back in the thick of things, breaking twice in a row.

“She's one of the best servers in the world. It's not easy to read her serve. Being the first time playing against her, it took a while for me to adjust my position in the court on the return,” said Buzarnescu, who called it “a dream” to be able to face Williams. “I'm just happy I was able to figure it out. I hope next time, I can do it earlier.”

Next for the No. 7-seeded Williams is an all-American matchup against Danielle Collins, who overwhelmed Anhelina Kalinina 6-0, 6-2.

It was a strong French Open afternoon for the U.S., including victories in the women's draw for No. 23 Madison Keys and in the men's for No. 31 John Isner, No. 32 Reilly Opelka and unseeded players Stevie Johnson and Marco Giron.

It's the first time that four American men made it to the third round at Roland Garros since a half-dozen got there in 1996 — and Taylor Fritz still has to play his second match on Thursday.

repeated failures over the last year, including the increasingly extraordinary explanations, we firmly believe that asserting our rights to impose these measures is our duty and responsibility.”

Churchill Downs initially suspended Baffert indefinitely pending the investigation and now said it reserves the right to extend Baffert's suspension if he has any other violations in other states. Baffert has had five in the past 13 months.

Maryland racing officials allowed Medina Spirit and Baffert-trained Concert Tour to run in the Preakness on May 15 only after undergoing three rounds of prerace testing. New York banned Baffert indefinitely and prevented him from entering any horses in the Belmont Stakes.

The stunning ban by Churchill Downs could have a domino effect that takes off the trail completely the only trainer to win the Triple Crown since 1978.

A Maryland Jockey Club spokesman said not expect to make any kind of formal announcement Wednesday. New York Racing Association spokesman Patrick McKenna said its suspension remains in effect and that the NYRA “will make a determination regarding the length and terms of Mr. Baffert's suspension at the appropriate time and based on information generated by the ongoing investigation in Kentucky.”

Earlier Wednesday, lawyers for Baffert and Medina Spirit owner Amr Zedan confirmed the split-sample test came back positive for betamethasone.

Annie offers advice

Dear Readers: Father's Day is coming up, and I'd love to hear from you: What is the most valuable trait that your father (or a father figure in your life) instilled in you? Send your responses to dearannie@creators.com. I'll share some here for the holiday.

Dear Annie: A few years ago, after many, many years of going to doctors and having tests done, I found out that I am disabled. The only problem is that I don't LOOK disabled. I'm a young person, and the disability I suffer from is invisible. I often feel symptoms of imposter syndrome due to this, and I deny myself help. I have abandoned trying to find medicines that could help me because my body has proven to be resistant to many pain medications. I do not use my cane, and I surely won't use the assistance of a wheelchair, should I need it.

Years of ridicule have left me exhausted, and I feel aged beyond my years. The public eye is far too judgmental for me to feel comfortable using the aids that I sometimes so desperately need, and this has led me to be a shut-in. I want to live my life freely, but I am too afraid of repercussions from appearing as a healthy young person "imitating the disabled." For all of those battling the illnesses beyond visibility, how do we feel free to own our lives? —Invisibly III

Dear Invisibly III: In pain, afraid to live freely, ashamed to reach out for help how incredibly isolated you must feel. But you're not alone. In fact, I'm sure someone reading this has been nodding their head all the way through, recognizing their own story in your letter. Millions of Americans live with invisible or "nonapparent" disabilities, and I think you'd find great relief in talking with some of them. The Invisible Disabilities Association hosts an online support community at <https://www.inspire.com/groups/invisible-disabilities-association>.

Another resource is the Invisible Disability Project, whose website is <https://www.invisibledisabilityproject.org>. You may not be able to reduce the physical hardships of your disability, but you can at least lighten the emotional burden.

Dear Annie: I'm writing about your advice to "My Own Mrs. Robinson," who sought advice about his affair with his mother-in-law. I am not questioning the advice you gave him. I am just wondering why you didn't slap down his astonishing claim that his marriage was great. I mean, really! —Antonia

Dear Antonia: I'm glad you brought this up. There were so many outrageous parts of that letter that I didn't have time to get to them all!

Dear Annie: This is in regard to "Unemployed and Uncomfortable," who doesn't have a job or children and isn't sure what to tell new people when they ask what she does. She is a homemaker. It is the term I grew up with and has no requirement of children. As a homemaker, you provide loving support to your partner and ensure that he/she can relax after working long hours. Your paycheck comes in the form of mutual happiness and fulfillment for you both. It comes in how your partner looks forward to coming home to you and the peacefulness of a well-cared-for home. You make an otherwise normal house into a home: a place of respite and love. If other people cannot appreciate the value of the resulting happiness in your partner and your life, then maybe they have their priorities mixed up.

Let this be your mantra: Success should be measured in happiness. —Rich in Love

Dear Rich: Indeed. Domestic work is work and essential to the smooth running of our society. It should be recognized accordingly.

Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

Citrus County FISHING REPORTS

CHRIS BERNHARDT JR.
Staff writer

FRESHWATER

LAKE ROUSSEAU — Bill Burgess of Lake Rousseau RV and Fishing said there are rumors of crappie being caught by the dam in the old river channel. Bluegill and shellcracker are off the river breaks where there's a change in depth and as close as can be to the grass. Catfish are hitting late in the afternoon and early evening on any kind of catfish bait. Catch bass with topwater bait, wacky worms or big Texas-rigged worms along the bottom and away from the shallow water on the stumps and stick-ups.

SALTWATER

CRYSTAL RIVER/BARGE CANAL — Ed's Tackle Shop reports cobia are good by the near-shore rock piles, biting on live pinfish or artificial eels. Redfish and snook are plentiful in and around the mangrove islands and bars. Try live shrimp. Grouper are in 60-80 feet of water, hitting on thread-fin herring or Spanish sardines. Trout are in 6-8 feet of water going for live shrimp or a 3-inch Gulp! shrimp under a Cajun Thunder popping cork.

HOMOSASSA RIVER — Bill Korade of Blue Water Bait and Tackle said Spanish mackerel and trout are showing up around the Bird Rack. There are also a lot of sharks. Grouper have been good in 35 feet of water using thread-fin herring and Spanish sardines. Look for snapper in 45-50 feet of water.

KING'S BAY — Captain Louie Argiro of Florida Fishing Adventures (352-601-1963, www.floridafishingadventures.com), based out of Pete's Pier in Crystal River, said, "With the opening of gag grouper season we have seen some unbelievable fishing that we have not seen in years past. There seems to be fish from 5 feet to 65 feet of water with no shortage in sight. This seems to be like it's going to be one of the best years possible and we are all looking forward to it."

"As for the American red snapper side of things we are seeing no end in sight for this heavily regulated fishery. With more than has ever been seen before the great fishing should continue into the end of July."

Recreational red snapper season starts June 4

Special to the Chronicle

The recreational red snapper season will start June 4 in Gulf state and federal waters off Florida and remain open through July 28, closing July 29.

"We are excited about Gov. DeSantis' recent announcement of this year's 55-day Gulf red snapper summer season, it is one of the longest we've had since the FWC began managing the season in state and federal waters," said FWC Chairman Rodney Barreto.

For-hire operations that do not have a federal reef fish permit may also participate in the season but are limited to fishing for red snapper in Gulf state waters only.

If you plan to fish for red snapper in any state or federal waters off Florida from a private recreational vessel, even if you are exempt from fishing license requirements, you must sign up as a State Reef Fish Angler (annual renewal required). Sign up at GoOutdoorsFlorida.com. To learn more, visit MyFWC.com/SRFS.

State Reef Fish Anglers might receive a questionnaire in the mail regarding their reef fish trips as part of Florida's State Reef Fish Survey. These surveys were developed specifically to provide more robust recreational data for management of red snapper and other important reef fish, and have allowed FWC the unprecedented opportunity to manage Gulf red snapper in state and federal waters. If you receive a survey in the mail, please respond whether you fished this season or not.

When catching red snapper and other deep-water fish, look out for symptoms of barotrauma (injuries caused by a change in pressure), such as the stomach coming out of the mouth, bloated belly, distended intestines and bulging eyes. When releasing fish with barotrauma, use a descending device or venting tool to help them survive and return to depth. Learn more at MyFWC.com/FishHandling.

SCAM ALERT**

1. NEVER ACCEPT A CHECK FOR MORE THAN YOU ASK.

2. INSIST ON CASH

3. USE ANOTHER FORM OF PAYMENT. (SUCH AS WIRE TRANSFER)

4. IF POSSIBLE, GO TO THE BANK WITH THE PERSON PAYING YOU.

5. INFORM THE SELLER, THAT YOU'LL WAIT TWO WEEKS BEFORE SENDING ANY MERCHANDISE

Avoid CASHIER'S CHECK FRAUD.

How to Avoid a Fake Check Scam

- INSIST ON CASH
- Don't accept a check for more than the selling price. You can bet it's a scam.
- Inform the Buyer that you'll wait two weeks before sending any merchandise.
- Never use money from a check to send gift cards, money orders, or wire money to strangers or someone you just met. Many scammers demand that you send money through money transfer services like Western Union or MoneyGram, or buy gift cards and send them the PIN numbers. Once you wire money, or give someone the gift card PINs, it is like giving someone cash. It's almost impossible to get it back.
- Toss offers that ask you to pay for a prize. If it's free, you shouldn't have to pay to get it.
