NEWS BRIEFS

Tropical storm expected to move toward Keys, Gulf

South Florida, particularly the Florida Keys, is expected Friday to start experiencing wind and rain from Tropical Storm Fred, but it remains too early to forecast the exact path and size of the storm, according to the National Hurricane Center.

"There is a risk of wind and rainfall impacts in Florida beginning Friday in the Keys and spreading northward through portions of the peninsula and the Panhandle this weekend," the center said Wednesday morning.

Gov. Ron DeSantis posted an advisory on Twitter for residents to "review their disaster plans" and to follow the state Division of Emergency Management for updates. As of 11 a.m. Wednesday, the center of Fred was close to the southern coast of the Dominican Republic, moving west-northwest at 16 mph with maximum sustained winds of 45 mph. A tropical storm watch had been issued for portions of Cuba.

While the forecast "cone" included all of Florida, the center of the cone had the system remaining a tropical storm while southwest of Key West on Saturday morning, in the Gulf of Mexico off Tampa Bay on Sunday morning and approaching Port St. Joe in the Panhandle on Monday morning.

No COVID in inmate population at county jail

As of Wednesday, Aug. 11, there were no cases of COVID-19 within the inmate population at the Citrus County Detention Facility, according to County Administrator Randy Oliver. According to CoreCivic, which manages the Lecanto-based facility, two of its employees had the virus as of Tuesday afternoon.

District investigating teacher

Middle school instructor Jeffrey Brake arrested, facing multiple drug charges

HANNAH SACHEWICZ
Staff writer

Citrus Springs Middle School teacher Jeffrey Brake, 52, was arrested Monday, Aug. 9 on drug-related charges, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

He was charged with trafficking in fentanyl, own/rent/lease a residence for the trafficking in a controlled substance, possession of methamphetamine with intent to distribute, possession of heroin with intent to distribute and possession of paraphernalia. Bond was set at $41,000.

In Brake's Citrus Springs residence, deputies reportedly located the following illicit items:

- Heroin, 2.3 grams.
- Fentanyl, 4.1 grams.
- A digital scale.
- Used meth pipes.
- Hypodermic needles.
- Meth, 1.8 grams.

In addition, Brake was allegedly in possession of semiautomatic handguns, multiple revolvers and an AR-15 rifle.

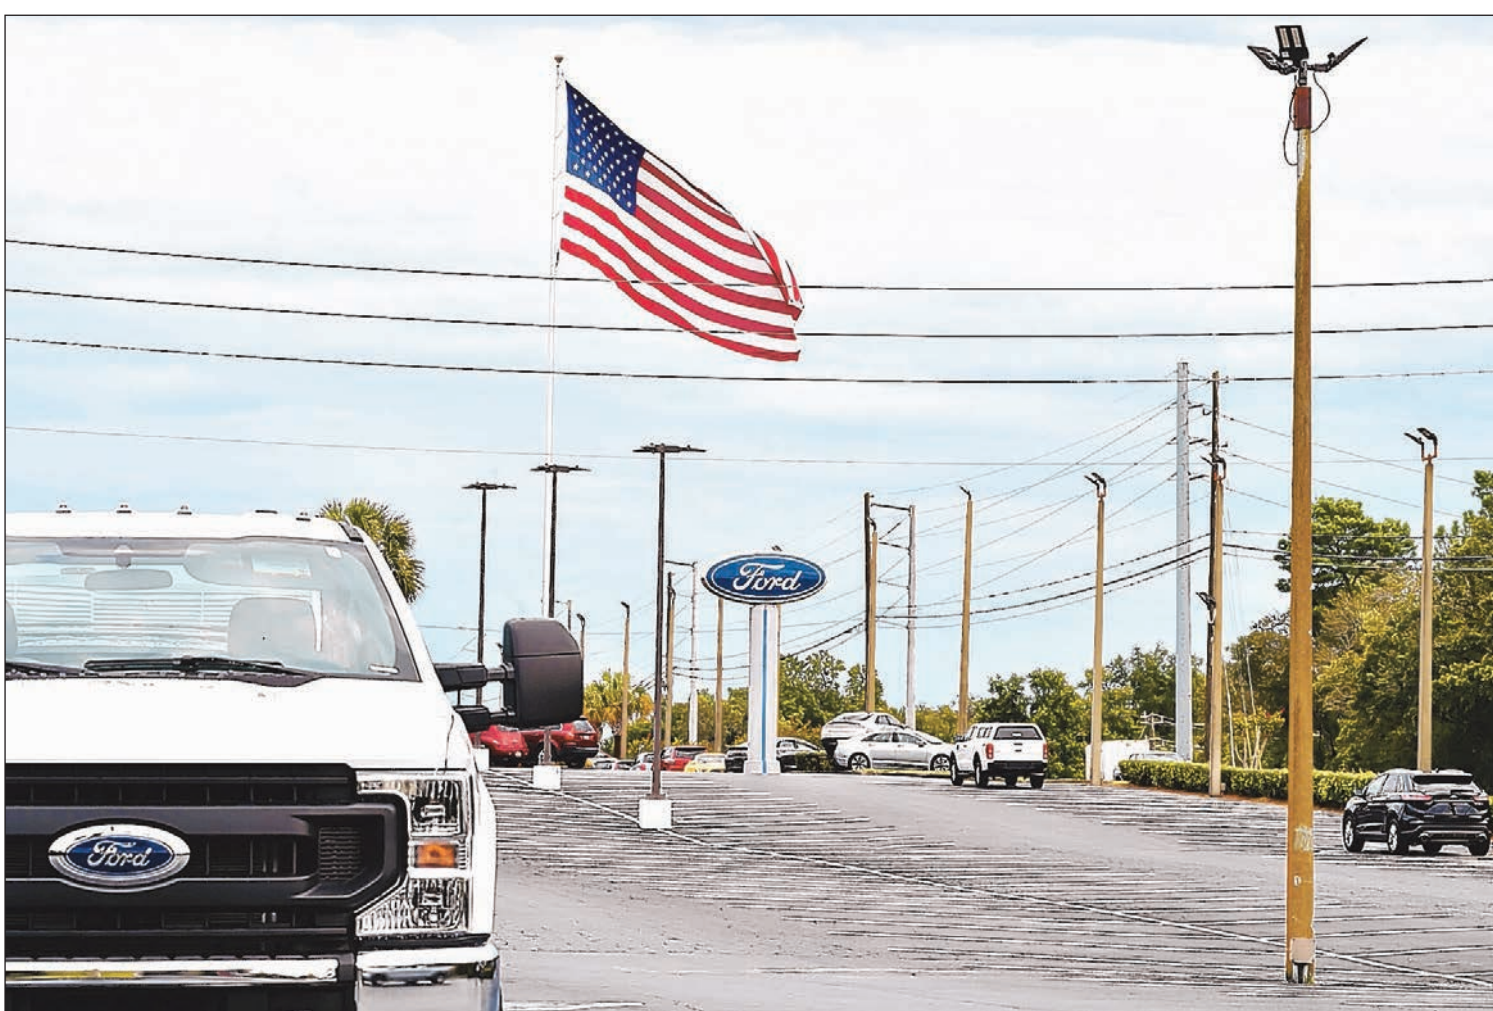

Since Brake's employment began at the school district on Aug. 6, 2001, he has held positions at CREST, Lecanto High, Renaissance Center, Lecanto Middle, Citrus Springs Middle, Citrus Springs Elementary and Crystal River Middle.

Most recently, Brake was set to start the school year at Citrus Springs Middle.

Chip shortage hits car inventories

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

The car lot at Nick Nicholas Ford in Inverness is typically full of new cars, trucks and SUVs for sale. Due to pandemic-related factors, the surplus of new vehicles normally on the lot are far fewer than normal. New cars delivered to the dealership are mostly pre-sold to customers who take them home once delivered. Many vehicle dealerships across the nation are experiencing similar issues.

Global electronic component scarcity makes it hard to keep lots filled

MICHAEL D. BATES
Staff writer

While the chips are down, local car dealerships are finding ways to drive business.

If you're looking to buy a new car or truck right now, good luck.

There are not that many out there.

Manufacturers are having a tough time getting computer chips due to factories being closed for so long during the pandemic.

"Another month from now we're going to sell out of our current inventory," said Vic Sietsema, general manager of Love Honda in Inverness.

Fortunately, the dealership had some excess vehicles before the shortage hit and that's allowed staff to keep a good supply.

Sietsema said he has 85 new cars on his lot, which he expects will all be gone by the end of August.

Love Honda, he said, is taking in less trade-ins and it's driving up the demand for used cars.

That, combined with strong consumer demand, is creating a nightmare for new-car buyers. And even if you are fortunate enough to find a vehicle, the manufacturer incentives are fewer and far between.

And dealerships are forced to raise prices.

Crystal River's leaders don't want a neighborhood of Citrus County residents to chip in more money than what was expected to connect to the city's latest septic-to-sewer initiative.

City Council members voted 5-0 during a special meeting the evening of Tuesday, Aug. 10, to set a tentative property assessment for owners of the 90 parcels impacted by the first phase of the Crystal River Indian Waters Sewer Expansion Project.

Judge clears way for protest law challenge

DARA KAM
The News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — A federal judge has refused to toss out a legal challenge to a controversial new law that creates a host of crimes and enhances existing penalties for protests that turn violent or block traffic, a priority of Gov. Ron DeSantis during this year's legislative session.

Chief U.S. District Judge Mark Walker on Monday allowed the lawsuit filed by a coalition of groups including the Dream Defenders to proceed, leaving DeSantis and three sheriffs as defendants but dismissing Attorney General Ashley Moody from the case.

Walker's 72-page order came after Moody, DeSantis and the sheriffs — Walt McNeil of Leon County, Mike Williams of Jacksonville and Gregory Tony of Broward County — asked that the lawsuit be dismissed. The defendants argued, among other things, that the plaintiffs lacked standing and the legal issues weren't "ripe" enough to be considered by the court.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs last month asked Walker for a preliminary injunction to block central provisions of the measure (HB 1), which includes a wide range of steps that supporters said are needed to crack down on violence and property damage related to protests.

The groups challenging the law argued that a definition of "riot" in the measure is vague and overbroad and may criminalize "merely being present at a demonstration where violence or property destruction occurs." Also, they argued the law gives police too much enforcement discretion and violates First Amendment rights.

Walker's order allowed the challenge to proceed on certain sections of the law. Those provisions create the new riot definition; make it a noncriminal traffic infraction to obstruct public streets; and require people arrested for the misdemeanor offense of "unlawful assemblies" to be held without bail until their first appearances in court.

Because the provisions "arguably sweep up peaceful protests or other protected speech" and have forced plaintiffs "to divert resources to respond to these sections" of the law, the groups have standing to challenge those sections, Walker found.

The part of the law creating the new riot definition, which is the focus of the lawsuit, is "perhaps the most pernicious," Walker wrote.

"This is because it arguably criminalizes mere presence at a protest where violence occurs — even if that violence is caused by counter protesters," he wrote.

Also in rejecting the arguments that the plaintiffs lack standing, Walker ruled that the legal challenge is "germane to plaintiffs, whose core purpose is to organize and participate in support of racial justice." Plaintiffs include Miami-based Dream Defenders, Black Collective Inc., Chainless Change Inc., Black Lives Matter Alliance Broward, the Florida State Conference of the NAACP and the Northside Coalition of Jacksonville Inc.

WATER|WAYS

June 26, 2021 - August 21, 2021

The Smithsonian's Water/Ways exhibition dives into water—an essential component of life on our planet, environmentally, culturally, and historically.

In societies across the globe, water serves as a source of peace and contemplation. Many faiths revere water as a sacred symbol. Authors and artists are inspired by the complex character of water—a substance that is seemingly soft and graceful that is yet a powerful and nearly unstoppable force.

Water also plays a practical role in American society. The availability of water affected settlement and migration patterns. Access to water and control of water resources have long been a central part of political and economic planning. Human creativity and resourcefulness provide new ways of protecting water resources and renewing respect for the natural environment.

Water/Ways is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and Florida Humanities. Support for the exhibition and programming was provided through a grant from Florida Humanities with funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Passenger dies
when driver flees

CLEARWATER — A passenger in a vehicle that was fleeing a traffic stop was killed early Wednesday when the driver made a U-turn into oncoming traffic and then crashed into a building, police said.

A Clearwater police officer attempted to stop the SUV just after midnight Wednesday. But the driver fled, turned into oncoming traffic and swerved to avoid a head-on collision, officers said.

The woman in the passenger seat died at the scene, police said.

Police said the driver was taken to a hospital in St. Petersburg, but they did not release his condition or his name.

No one else was injured, police said.

County OKs new development

MICHAEL D. BATES
Staff writer

County commissioners Tuesday unanimously approved a new 400-villa development called Davis Reserve to be located adjacent to Brentwood Farms.

The board's decision aligned with a recent recommendation from the Planning and Development Commission (PDC) to change the Brentwood Farms master plan to allow for the additional homes and an extension of Ottawa Avenue to serve the new development.

MIKE WRIGHT/Chronicle file

Brentwood Farms, a Citrus Hills community, will soon have new neighbors: a development called Davis Reserve, consisting of 400 villas.

Brentwood Farms is a Citrus Hills community.

The road proved to be a contentious point among some residents. But commissioners offered a suggestion.

Tuesday's vote will allow the new Davis Reserve homeowners to have a 24-hour-a-day staffed gatehouse and entrance at Ottawa and County Road 486.

Currently, the 800

Brentwood residents can only get out via Brentwood Circle, a right-turn only out of the development at County Road 486. Motorists wanting to head east must do the turn-around at the Ottawa signal.

The Davis Reserve developer had asked Brentwood residents if they would be willing to pay an additional $140 a year in property owner dues to cover the costs of that gatehouse. Property owners voted it down.

With Tuesday's vote, commissioners urged them to reconsider.

Commission Chairman Scott Carnahan urged residents to revote the $140 and have a staffed gated community.

"For $140, I'd do that in a heartbeat," he said.

Commissioner Jeff Kinnard said the gatehouse at a signal would "more than increase the value of their property."

The gatehouse leads into the entrance to Davis Reserve and there would be an access road to the east, connecting to Brentwood Circle. That would create a safer alternative, Kinnard said.

Inglis unveils Elvis statue

FRED HIERS
Staff writer

When it comes to entertainers that keep giving long after they've put away their mics and recorded their last album, Inglis need look no further than Elvis Presley.

The Withlacoochee Gulf Area Chamber Wednesday dedicated a touch-screen kiosk and a life-sized statue of Presley as a photo op attraction in hopes that visitors will get "All Shook Up" over the attraction.

It was "Now or Never" in hosting the ribbon cutting ceremony, timing it with the 60th anniversary of the Presley movie "Follow That Dream." Some of the movie was filmed in the Inglis area as well as at the historic courthouse in Inverness.

The kiosk, which will allow visitors to learn about area attractions, will not be "In the Ghetto," but rather at 167 W. State Road 40 in Inglis.

The chamber hopes visitors will not be "Lonesome Tonight," but rather enjoy the city and kiosk when chamber representatives cannot be in the city's chamber building. The kiosk is to ensure people "Can't Help Falling In Love" with the community.

The concrete floor and roof were paid for using the Resources and Ecosystems Sustainability, Tourist Opportunities, and Revived Economies of the Gulf Coast States Act, said Tisha Whitehurst, tourism director of Levy County. The federal grant was used to pay the $32,175 cost of the structure meant to keep the elements from the kiosk.

The grant came out of the BP oil spill in 2010 and earmarked to help gulf communities impact by the environmental disaster.

The chamber serving the rural community paid $1,000 for the fiberglass Presley.

Richard Streeter, president of the WGACC, said the plan was for the statue to attract visitors, take their pictures with the iconic singer, and then use the kiosk to learn more about the area.

The hope is visitors develop a "Burning Love" for the city and county.

"Elvis has been part of the history of the area since the movie 'Follow That Dream' (released in 1962)," Streeter said.

A street guardrail still stands by the chamber building where Presley sat and rested during shooting of the film.

Whitehurst said the city couldn't have selected a better icon than Presley.

"Elvis is an international celebrity," she told the Chronicle.

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

ABOVE: Lee Lord, manager of Eleanor Oaks RV Park in Yankeetown and Withlacoochee Gulf Area Chamber of Commerce member, utilizes a new kiosk Wednesday, Aug. 11, outside of the chamber's office in Inglis. A ribbon cutting ceremony was held to recognize the chamber's new kiosk that aims to assist visitors explore area businesses. A life-sized statue of Elvis Presley, also recently installed, appears to serenade Ms. Lord as she interacts with the kiosk. This marks the 60th anniversary of the movie "Follow That Dream," filmed in the Inglis and Yankeetown and starring Elvis Presley.

BELOW: Levy County School District Superintendent Chris Cowart, center, cuts a ribbon to officially recognize the opening of the new Withlacoochee Gulf Area Chamber of Commerce's information kiosk and Elvis Presley statue in Inglis. Levy County Tourism Director Tisha Whitehurst, left, and Chamber president Dr. Richard Streeder look on Wednesday morning, Aug. 11.

"We do cater to international (visitors) pleasantly surprised to see something familiar in an unfamiliar area."

Janet Streeter, wife of Richard Streeter, recounted 50 years ago when the couple were vacationing outside Las Vegas and had enough money for only a motel room or tickets to a Presley show and opted for the tickets.

Luckily, Janet played the slots and won enough so the couple could do both.

"It was fantastic," she said of the show.

Janet Streeter was also at the ribbon cutting with about a dozen other spectators.

"It was one of the best experiences of my life," she said of seeing Presley.

The statue is something that draws people and generations together.

Janet Streeter said the chamber reviews the video from the two security cameras and what people say about the attraction.

Conversations often center around parents and grandparents explaining to children or grandchildren Presley's role and significance in music history.

"It keeps the images (of Presley) from one generation to the next generation," she said.

Janet Streeter also said the chamber scoured the internet for a year until it found just the right Presley statue for the kiosk.

The kiosk includes topics such as things to do in the area, places to stay, where to eat, where to shop, events, homes for sale, and boating and fishing opportunities.

In June, 35 people took their photo with the Presley statue. In July that jumped to 51, Richard Streeter said.

The video cameras also afford the kiosk and statue some security, Whitehurst said, broadcasting the message "Don't be Cruel" and destroy anything or they may end up singing 'Jailhouse Rock.'"

Homosassa man accused of trafficking meth, resisting, gun charges

HANNAH
SACHIEWICZ
Staff writer

After being stopped for a license plate violation, a Homosassa man and convicted felon tried to make a run for it after being caught with more than 200 grams of methamphetamine and a firearm, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

Jeffrey Bohlander, 30, was arrested and charged with two counts possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, one count use/display/attempt to use firearm while committing or attempting to commit a felony, one count resist officer without violence and one count trafficking in meth. Bond was set at $61,000.

On Aug. 11, deputies conducted a traffic stop on South Suncoast Boulevard in reference to an alleged missing license plate and broken license plate lights. In addition, the vehicle appeared to have a handwritten Georgia license plate.

According to the report, when Bohlander was told the reason for the stop, he told deputies he was looking for his girlfriend. He also appeared to be nervous, his hands were shaking and he was stuttering.

Bohlander was asked to step out of the car, to which he complied. While speaking to Bohlander about his alleged missing girlfriend, he continued to stutter and his body continued to shake.

Deputies asked Bohlander why he was nervous and if he would consent to a vehicle search. He reportedly replied, "No, I have no time. I need to get home now."

A K-9 unit was called to the scene and upon a 360 degree sniff, the dog reportedly alerted to the smell of narcotics on the passenger side of the car.

Deputies conducted a hand search and reportedly found a Taurus Judge .410 revolver containing five live rounds under the driver's seat. Subsequently, three baggies of a crystal like substance were found under the rear passenger seat.

According to the report, the substance tested positive for meth and weighed in at 204 grams. As deputies attempted to detain Bohlander, he ran across the road for about 200 yards.

Bohlander was detained, read his Miranda rights and reportedly said he wished to continue speaking with deputies. He said he knew the meth was in the car and was a convicted felon, with convictions for trafficking and resisting an officer with violence.

However, Bohlander denied being in possession of a firearm and alleged that he purchased the vehicle the firearm was located in and mentioned he has a bill of sale. He was placed under arrest.

guilty Tuesday, Aug. 10, to federal charges of racketeering and conspiracy to commit theft of trade secrets.

U.S. District Judge Allen C. Winsor will sentence the Estero duo Nov. 15 at the U.S. District Court in Tallahassee, court filings show.

According to their respective plea agreements, Kathleen and Jeremy Jasper each face up to 50 years in U.S. prison.

In exchange for the plea-change, U.S. attorneys agreed to no longer prosecute the Jaspers on their other 112 counts a federal grand jury indictment charged them with in December.

After finding out about the indictment, the Citrus County School District threw out the study guides it bought from NavaEd LLC, which the Jaspers founded in January 2016.

Until March 2020, NavaEd sold test-prep materials for the Florida Teacher Certification Exams and the Florida Educational Leadership Exam, taken by prospective school administrators.

Court filings show the Jaspers stole content from the exams to create their study guides. They did so by taking the tests multiple times in order to memorize or “harvest” their questions.

After the Florida Department of Education barred them from taking more state exams, the Jaspers ordered their NavaEd employees to test instead.

NavaEd and the Jaspers then republished the exam content verbatim into test-prep materials and services they sold worldwide through either NavaEd's website and training seminars or third-party sites, like Amazon and Shopify.

Court records show NavaEd made more than 10,000 transactions worldwide, including 5,000 over Amazon.

There was never a contract in place between the Citrus County School District and NavaEd, but the district had been buying the company's study guides since 2016.

SEWER

As it stands, each affected property owner would have to pay around $10,304 between September and October 2021.

They would also have the option of paying off the cost with an annual $861 charge on their tax bill over the next 20 years, starting in November.

City officials however made it clear to Monday's audience of county residents from the Indian Waters community: if their price tag isn't reduced to at least $6,000, the project will pause for a year.

“If it doesn't get down to where it needs to get to from a financial standpoint,” Mayor Joe Meek told a crowd of around 20 people, “we're going to pull back.”

City staff has until Sept. 13 to find roughly $500,000 more to get the cost down to their target before council votes on whether or not to finalize an assessment.

“There's hope,” City Manager Ken Frink said. “We're doing what we can to bring these costs down.”

When this project originated in 2015, Crystal River was planning to cover 90% of budgeted costs with $100,000 of its own funds along with a $997,000 grant from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection (FDEP).

Whatever it couldn't pay for, the city would bill affected property owners.

If completed as planned, the project would take around 77 septic tanks offline, according to Alan Garri, a senior project manager with the city's consulting firm, Kimley Horn.

In his presentation Monday to council, Garri said around 28,000 septic tanks annually contribute 42% of the 250,000 pounds of nitrogen entering the groundwater feeding the springs in and around King's Bay, Crystal River. Pollutants like nitrogen fuel harmful algae blooms.

Garri said it's been a priority of lawmakers and environmental agencies with their regulations to have properties either dismantle their septic tanks or replace them with a more enhanced yet expensive system.

“They function like a mini treatment plant,” Garri said of the devices, which range between $13,000 and $30,000 and demand regular maintenance and inspection.

When the city went in June to put its Indian Waters sewer expansion project out for contractors to bid on, its quotes were higher than expected.

Garri's presentation showed $2,065,488 in total construction costs for the project, leaving Crystal River with $968,488 to recoup from property owners. Garri chalked the increase up to limitations of supply materials and labor.

Ken Frink

Crystal River city manager said city is trying to bring costs down.

Frink said he and city staff have asked FDEP to expand its current grant allotment.

“Their staff received it well,” he said. “They may have the money.”

Council was also confident of support from Florida legislators who've been receptive to fund projects benefiting springs.

“I think you would have a receptive audience,” Meek said.

A handful of the county residents from the Indian Waters subdivision, located outside of city limits to the northwest, addressed council on Monday.

Their talking points focused on making sure they were going to pay what other lot owners in the county had to dole out for similar septic-to-sewer endeavors in the past.

“We've been feeling kind of left out,” Anne Rodriguez said. “We love you guys, but we're still county residents so we're in this weird position of you guys finding the funding for us, and yet we're county residents.”

Rodriguez suggested city staff approach the Citrus County Commission if they're unable to find the money elsewhere.

Commissioner Jeff Kinard, whose district includes Crystal River, told the Chronicle Wednesday the city should have a chance to secure the monies it needs before resorting to the county, which, he said, also relies on similar funding sources to pay for identical work.

“How much of a shot? Honestly I don't know ... they should compete well,” he said. “We just have to see what happens on if they're able to get that funding and get those assessments down to $6,000.”

Along with paying Crystal River to help expand its sewer system, the county residents will also have to pay an estimated $3,425 to pump out their septic tanks and connect their homes to city waste lines.

Frink said city staff is pursuing a grant to cover most of those pumping and connection costs.

Per a county ordinance, these sewer hookups have to be done within 365 days after the city sewer network becomes available.

Mike Dunn, a county resident, said his neighbors off West Fort Island Trail have yet to hook up to the city and county's septic-to-sewer project from 2016.

According to Frink, city staff is working with the county to get 13 holdout homesteads to connect.

Dunn suggested the city better enforce the deadline by requiring homeowners to link to city sewer before they sell, or have the banks do it if the property's repossessed or foreclosed.

Alfred Hitchcock's only daughter dies

Pat Hitchcock dead at 93

HILLEL ITALIE
AP national writer

NEW YORK — Patricia Hitchcock O'Connell, the only child of Alfred Hitchcock and an actor herself who made a memorable appearance in her father's "Strangers on a Train" and championed his work in the decades following his death, has died at age 93.

Hitchcock died Monday in her sleep at home in Thousand Oaks, California, her daughter Tere Carrubba said Wednesday. She died of natural causes, said Carrubba.

"She was always really good at protecting the legacy of my grandparents and making sure they were always remembered," said Carrubba, one of Patricia Hitchcock's three daughters. "It's sort of an end of an era now that they're all gone."

Known to many as Pat Hitchcock, she was born in London to Alfred Hitchcock and Alma Reville Hitchcock in 1928 and spent much of her life in and around the family business. During her childhood, Alfred Hitchcock directed such classics as "The 39 Steps," "The Lady Vanishes" and "Shadow of a Doubt," moved to California after signing a multipicture deal with producer David O. Selznick and rose to global fame as the "Master of Suspense." Alma was his indispensable adviser; a former film editor through whom he vetted story ideas and screenplay treatments.

"My mother had much more to do with the films than she has ever been given credit for — he depended on her for everything, absolutely everything," Pat Hitchcock told The Guardian in 1999.

Pat would visit her father's movie sets and by her teens was acting in school plays and appearing on stage, including the Broadway productions "Solitaire" and "Violet." She was admitted to London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in 1947 and was about to graduate British director and producer Alfred Hitchcock appears with his eldest granddaughter, 6-year-old Mary O'Connell, who makes her acting debut on Sept. 24, 1959, when she appears with her mother, actress Pat Hitchcock, right, in an episode of the famed "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" television series in America. The only child of Alfred Hitchcock has died. Pat Hitchcock, who made a memorable appearance in her father's "Strangers on a Train," was 93.

when her father contacted her and said he had a role for her in his new film, "Strangers on a Train," adapted from the Patricia Highsmith novel. The 1951 production starred Robert Walker and Farley Granger as strangers who meet on a train and agree — at least Walker thinks they agree — to a double murder: Walker will kill Granger's wife, and Granger will kill Walker's father. Pat Hitchcock plays the sister of a woman (Ruth Roman), with whom Granger is in love.

Walker duly carries out his side, strangling Granger's wife on the grounds of an amusement park, and pressures Granger to honor the bargain. He turns up at a party attended by Granger and chats up an elderly woman about the best way to kill someone — strangulation. He has placed his hands on her neck, when he looks up and sees Pat Hitchcock staring back in horror. Unnerved by her resemblance to his murder victim — they wear similar glasses — he nearly chokes the guest to death. Hitchcock's character later sobs that she felt as if she was the one he might have killed, leading to suspicions about the murder of Granger's wife.

"I think he was using her as the audience," Pat Hitchcock, interviewed for a 1997 BBC special on her father, said of her character. "I think he was having her go through what the audience went through."

Hitchcock was a lively, witty actor with a heart-shaped face and her other acting credits included the TV sitcoms "My Little Margie" and "The Life of Riley" and several roles in the TV series "Alfred Hitchcock Presents." She also had parts in her father's "Stage Fright" and in his horror masterpiece "Psycho," in which she plays an office colleague of Janet Leigh, who later in the film is famously stabbed to death in a motel shower.

More recently, she worked for Alfred Hitchcock's Mystery Magazine, appeared at numerous film festivals and in numerous Hitchcock documentaries and contributed photographs and a foreword to "Footsteps in the Fog: Alfred Hitchcock's San Francisco," by Jeff Kraft and Aaron Leventhal. She also co-authored a book on her mother, who died in 1982, "Alma Hitchcock: The Woman Behind the Man." (Alfred Hitchcock died in 1980).

Pat Hitchcock was married for more than 40 years to Joseph O'Connell, who died in 1994. They had three children.

She would insist that her childhood was happy and that her parents were normal, but she wasn't spared her father's distant, controlling nature and his skewed and sometimes cruel sense of humor. As a girl, she often ate alone, was sent to boarding school and deprived of a college education when her father decided she should instead return to England. She would express regret that he didn't cast her in more of his films.

"I certainly wish he'd believed in nepotism," she liked to say.

At home, the director once painted a clown face on her while she was sleeping, anticipating her shock when she awoke the next morning and first looked in a mirror. During the filming of "Strangers on a Train," knowing her fear of heights, he bet her $100 that she wouldn't ride a Ferris wheel on the set. She disputed a story from Andrew Spoto's 1983 biography "The Dark Side of Genius" that he left her stranded, and terrified, for an hour.

"What happened is they turned off the lights and pretended they were going away — for all of what I'd say were 35 seconds — and put the lights on and we came down," she told the Chicago Tribune in 1993. "The only 'sadistic' part is that I never got the hundred dollars."

Upstart me up

Shares in Upstart Holdings surged Wednesday after the artificial intelligence-driven lending platform blew past Wall Street's second quarter sales and profit projections. San Mateo, California-based Upstart, which partners with banks to help expand their lending opportunities while mitigating defaults, earned 62 cents per share in the period, more than double the 25 cents per share analysts had targeted. Revenue increased more than tenfold from the same period in 2020, and Upstart raised sales projections for the full year by 25%, to $750 million. "Lending is the center beam of revenue and profits in financial services, and artificial intelligence may be the most transformational change to come to this industry in its 5,000 year history," said CEO Dave Girouard. Upstart climbed 26.2% to close at $171.20, just short of its all-time high.

Record day for Dow, S&P; Nasdaq lags

Associated Press

Banks and industrial companies helped lift stocks on Wall Street mostly higher Wednesday, pushing the S&P 500 and Dow Jones Industrial Average past the record highs they set a day earlier.

The S&P 500 rose 0.2% after another wobbly day of trading. Nearly three-fourths of the companies in the benchmark index notched gains, including energy stocks, which rose along with the price of crude oil. Health care was the only sector to fall.

After a stumbling start to the week, stocks have been moving higher on the back of strong earnings and better-than-expected economic data.

Traders got a dose of decent economic news Wednesday when the Labor Department said that consumer prices rose 0.5% from June to July, down from the previous monthly increase of 0.9%. Year over year, consumer prices have increased a substantial 5.4%.

Investors' relief that the June data didn't show a bigger increase in inflation may have kept stock prices moving higher, said Sam Stovall, chief investment strategist at CFRA.

"Our estimate was that June was going to be the peak month in inflation, and it appears that it was," Stovall said.

The S&P 500 index rose 10.95 points to 4,447.70. The Dow gained 220.30 points, or 0.6%, to 35,484.97. Both indexes also set all-time highs on Friday and Tuesday.

Weakness in some technology stocks helped pull the Nasdaq composite slightly lower. It fell 22.95 points, or 0.2%, to 14,765.14.

Smaller company stocks rose. The Russell 2000 index picked up 10.98 points, or 0.5%, to 2,250.34.

Bond yields mostly edged lower. After reaching 1.36% in the early going, the yield on the 10-year Treasury slipped to 1.33% from 1.34% late Tuesday.

Investors' concerns about inflation and uncertainty about the Federal Reserve's future plans to ease up on its support for low interest rates have been hanging over the market.

While the headline figures may seem bad, most of the rise in consumer prices has been tied to very specific goods that are not expected to impact the long-term health of the economy, like used cars, building materials and hotel rooms. These items came into short supply during the pandemic, and the increased economic activity has made prices for those items rise faster than usual.

The Federal Reserve has repeatedly said it believes any increase in inflation would be temporary and largely a result of the supply disruptions that happened because of the pandemic. Investors will get another inflation snapshot Thursday, when the Labor Department issues its July wholesale price data.

ON THE ROAD FOR EDUCATION

Construction academy teaches youths about trades

A new bus is making inroads to education in an underserved area — exposing youths to construction trades.

With a push in recent years for high school students to continue their education with college, there has been a shortage of students going to trade schools, resulting in a shortage of workers for trade jobs. While more education after high school is certainly necessary, college is not the route for everyone. There are plenty of rewarding and lucrative trade careers in the marketplace looking for qualified workers.

With the help of a grant from Lowes, the Citrus County Construction Academy is taking its mobile workshop in a refurbished bus on the road to reach youths and expose them to the trades. The money from Lowes allowed the academy to put the finishing touches on its bus — a decal wrap and other upgrades to attract and engage children.

With Citrus High School drafting curriculum for the 2022-23 school year, academy president Harold Walker said the academy’s ultimate goal is to help create a post-secondary and dual enrollment construction training program on the grounds of local schools, similar to the school district’s specialized academies it offers high school students.

It’s been a mission of the academy since its inception as a nonprofit in 2017 under the Citrus County Building Alliance to get more youths interested in construction trades.

Since the academy bought it from the Key Training Center in October 2020, the former school bus has evolved as a brainchild of academy vice president Donna Bidlack and other board members to take part in that endeavor.

Now Citrus Construction Academy volunteers can drive their bus and mobile workstation to area churches, schools or any place children gather.

The program is a great opportunity to expose children to the fundamentals of various trades. The bus is equipped with a variety of saws, drills and other tools that volunteers show youths how to use properly and safely.

The academy should be commended for its proactive approach to educating children; it opens up a new avenue of learning.

Even if youngsters don’t pursue a trade after high school, what they learn from the Citrus County Construction Academy are valuable skills usable in everyday life. More education equals better rounded citizens — and possibly a future plumber or carpenter.

THE ISSUE:

The Citrus County Construction Academy is taking its mobile workshop on the road.

OUR OPINION:

Workshop opens up new avenues of learning.

More research needed on potential treatments

In June 2016, scientists at the Salk Institute in California published their findings “that THC another compounds found in marijuana care promote the cellular removal of amyloid beta toxic proteins (amyloid plaques) associated with Alzheimer’s disease.”

This was an amazing discovery that could have had a major positive impact on the 6 million Americans presently suffering from this progressive debilitating condition.

Unfortunately, because the federal government considers marijuana, or scientifically named cannabis, a Schedule 1 drug, they forced the Salk Institute to stop the research or lose their funding for other research projects.

In June 2021, the FDA approved the new drug called Aducanumab for early Alzheimer’s disease. It’s a human monoclonal antibody which means it’s expensive to produce and has some very unusual side effects. When they tested this drug in the laboratory, it did dissolve amyloid plaque (like cannabis) but they never did show that in real humans it had any significant efficacy. But for some reason, even over the objection of three FDA advisers who quit over this, the drug passed muster and is now available for a prescription.

Aducanumab has side effects that include micro hemorrhages in the brain, brain swelling and headaches. The manufacturer of the drug Biogen set the price at $56,000 a year for a prescription. If we put every patient with Alzheimer’s on this drug, we would be spending $336 billion yearly. Yes, this would be coming out of our healthcare insurance premiums and increased taxes to pay for Medicare.

People are wise to critically analyze this convoluted health care system that has given us $600 epinephrine pens, an opioid crisis and insulin for $300 a bottle. Patients who use medical cannabis know it has been around since recorded history, is inexpensive, and has an excellent safety profile. It may well be the best medication for slowing the progression of Alzheimer’s, but as long as we don’t do more research, we will never know for sure.

Appears Tallahassee is working for privileged few

Our representatives in Tallahassee are working assiduously to curtail our freedom of speech, and our rights to vote.

Just recently, both Senator Wilton Simpson and House Representative Ralph Massullo have cast votes restricting vote-by-mail ballot access and availability of drop boxes — two proven methods to ensure the right to vote in SB 90, passed by the Florida Legislature.

Another bill, SB 1890, currently challenged by the ACLU, limits funding for citizen initiatives. The funding cap, hypocritically limits citizen initiatives but not candidate funding. In limiting funding for citizen initiatives, SB 1890 intentionally curtails political speech. Citizen initiatives have become the preferred democracy vehicle for the people when legislatures refuse to honor the will of their constituents.

Both Senator Wilton Simpson and Rep. Ralph Massullo voted “yes” on SB 1890 which did pass, but is now in question as U.S. District Judge, Allen Winsor, recently blocked the bill, indicating that it goes against the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution:

“Binding decisions from the U.S. Supreme Court and the 5th Circuit (Court of Appeals) applied those principles and concluded that the First Amendment forbids limitations like those SB 1890 imposes.”

These bills, deliberately make it more difficult for citizens to enjoy the democracy promised by the Constitution, and have a largely class-based component. The people who have no voice stand to lose the most. When a person, for example, has no vehicle, no internet, he/she is at a disadvantage, and easily runs afoul of the system.

In a recent reading of Dr. Ralph Massullo’s words in his July 18 article, “Parkway with purpose,” I couldn’t help but ponder his motives.

He said, relating to citizen engagement:

“That is why it is so important that our country prioritize and labor diligently to keep our outlets of communication open, available, and adhering to the first amendment of the Constitution. The critical step to any tyranny: be it totalitarianism, socialism or communism is to control communication to the masses and promote propaganda favorable to its particular cause.”

I hate to be the one to point this out, but beyond Rep. Massullo’s words, he and his Senatorial counterpart’s actions (votes) in Tallahassee seem to be leading us down the path of actual totalitarianism.

Aristotle once said, “Democracy is when the indigent, and not the men of prosperity are rulers.”

I cast my lot with Aristotle.

SMART solution could alleviate waterways

Let me compliment the Editorial Board for addressing the situation at the head springs of the Homosassa River on Aug. 2.

In all fairness, the BOCC did discuss the situation at the July 27 meeting, but no definitive legal solution was reached in part because it’s not clear what can be done or would it be enforceable.

This is a matter deserving more than a “knee-jerk” reaction, but time is of the essence. There were references to what Crystal River is doing, but no one could declare whether or not it was enforceable. As I said in the meeting, we already have laws on the books to handle certain infractions. What is needed is a consistent presence by law enforcement, sheriff’s office, FWC, marine patrol during peak times.

I took a boat ride up to the headsprings recently and what I saw is behavior that is an embarrassment to our community. Many families with young children and other responsible adults trying to enjoy themselves are being subjected to raunchy music blasted from several boats (some local), men standing up and urinating into the water, and just bad behavior in general.

We must do better. Interestingly enough, a deputy rounded the corner and approached in his boat and things calmed down. The sheer presence of law enforcement had the desired effect. Unfortunately, the deputy didn’t stay long and when he left, guess what happened? Party back on.

No ordinance or regulation can have the same effect, especially one that can’t be enforced.

What’s the solution? A SMART one:

Specific — Determine the need, days of the week and the time of year where a consistent presence is needed.

Measurable — Can we cover those times with the current level of staff/equipment or does the sheriff need additional assets?

Attainable — Behavior modification is clearly attainable when our law enforcement officials are present.

Relevance — An easy one, the overwhelming number of blue shirts at the recent BOCC meeting appalled by some of the behavior.

Time-based — The time to act is now.

The TDC has done an effective job of promoting Citrus County, but with that success comes a responsibility to provide basic services to offset the influx of visitors. County leadership also has a responsibility to those of us who live here. We must put aside petty differences and work together to solve issues we are now faced with. These matters are serious and we need serious people to help solve them.

New carrier does a great job

I just wanted to thank our carrier that we have. He’s been right on time, early in the morning, which I like also. Even with this rain and everything we’ve been having, it’s always dry. He’s doing a fantastic job. We used to have Sandra Ingram and I hope she’s doing well, God bless her. I was wondering if this guy that throws our paper is a baseball player because he does such a great job. He actually gets it up to our garage door. OK, I just wanted to give kudos to the new carrier and I hope Sandra is doing fine. Thank you so much.

Accounting needs to be transparent

I’m looking at today’s paper, Thursday, Aug. 5, about Inverness increasing law enforcement (Page A3). So now the sheriff is charging Crystal River more, he wants to charge Homosassa and now Inverness has to pay over $100,000 for one more deputy. I would like to see an accounting in the Chronicle of what is being done with the $30 million that the sheriff already gets. I’m all for police presence and I support the police, but this is getting out of hand with the amount of money that he’s asking for.

Golden State mandate

SANTIAGO MEJIA/San Francisco Chronicle

Joy Harrison instructs her second graders as California Gov. Gavin Newsom visits the classroom at Carl B. Munck Elementary School, Wednesday, Aug. 11, in Oakland, Calif. The governor announced that California will require its 320,000 teachers and school employees to be vaccinated against the novel coronavirus or submit to weekly COVID-19 testing.

SAN FRANCISCO — California will become the first state in the nation to require all teachers and school staff to get vaccinated or undergo weekly COVID-19 testing, as schools return from summer break amid growing concerns about the highly contagious delta variant, Gov. Gavin Newsom announced Wednesday.

The new policy applies to both public and private schools and will affect the state's 320,000 public school teachers, more than 250,000 support staff — from cafeteria employees to cleaners — and at least 80,000 private school employees, according to the California Department of Education and labor unions. It will also apply to school volunteers.

Newsom announced the new policy at a San Francisco Bay Area school that reopened earlier this week to in-person classes. Many California schools are back in session, with others starting in the coming weeks.

"We think this is the right thing to do, and we think this is a sustainable way to keeping our schools open and to address the number one anxiety that parents like myself have for young children," said Newsom, who is a father of four. "That is knowing that the schools are doing everything in their power to keep our kids safe."

Florida kids head back to school amid COVID-19 surge

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Doctors in Florida say they're seeing many more coronavirus infections among children just as students begin to return to classrooms.

There has been "an enormous increase" in COVID-19 cases among children in July and August at Joe DiMaggio Children's Hospital in Hollywood, Chief Medical Officer Dr. Ronald Ford said.

Most of these children have been treated in the emergency room and sent home, but "those that are admitted are sicker than what we've seen before, and many of them are requiring care in our intensive care units," Ford said.

But Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis says the share of pediatric hospitalizations is still between 1.1% and 1.4% in the state, which is how it has behaved throughout the pandemic. On Wednesday, 177 of the 15,071 patients with COVID-19 — about 1.2% — were children, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

"There's been no change in the proportion of pediatric patients who are COVID positive," he said. "Obviously we have more people that are COVID positive in hospitals than we did six weeks ago, so the raw numbers are increasing for everybody."

About 20 children who had the virus sought treatment at the South Florida hospital's emergency department in June, Ford said.

"That number went to well over 200 in July and, even at this point in the month of August, we are already up to over 160. So we're well on the way to breaking July's record," Ford said.

On Tuesday, the hospital had nine positive patients admitted, with five in the ICU, Ford said.

Ford's advice to parents sending their children back to school: Get information from authoritative sources.

"There's a lot of misinformation out there about COVID-19, about testing, about the vaccine," Ford said. "The best thing you can do to protect your child is to keep them away from the virus. This virus is extremely infectious. And it doesn't take much virus to infect and cause symptoms and disease."

Masking works, reducing the incidence of transmission and the chances of children getting the virus, he said.

"So first and foremost, masking is going to be one of the best defenses we have," Ford said.

— From wire reports

Several large school districts in the state have issued similar requirements in recent days, including San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose and Long Beach Unified.

California, like the rest of the country, has seen a troubling surge in COVID-19 infections because of the delta variant, which represents the vast majority of new cases. It has affected children more than previous strains of the virus, prompting a growing number of teachers unions to ease earlier opposition to vaccine mandates.

California's two largest teachers unions, both powerful political allies to the governor, said Wednesday they fully supported Newsom's policy.

The California Teachers Association and the California Federation of Teachers both cited state and national polling that indicates nearly 90% of educators have been vaccinated but said the rising spread of the delta variant, particularly among children, makes the new policy necessary. Children under 12 are not yet eligible to be vaccinated.

"Educators want to be in classrooms with their students, and the best way to make sure that happens is for everyone who is medically eligible to be vaccinated, with robust testing and multi-tiered safety measures," CTA President E. Toby Boyd said in a statement.

While Hawaii Gov. David Ige announced last week that all Department of Education staffers would be required to disclose their vaccination status or face weekly testing, California's order is far more sweeping, applying to all staff who work in both public and private schools in the country's most populous state.

Heat wave hits Northwest, sending people to cooling centers

PORTLAND, Ore. — People headed to cooling centers Wednesday as the Pacific Northwest began sweltering under another major, multiday heat wave just over a month after record-shattering hot weather killed hundreds of the region's most vulnerable people.

Temperatures soared to 95 degrees Fahrenheit by mid-afternoon in Portland, Oregon. In a "worst-case scenario," the temperature could reach as high as 111 F in some parts of western Oregon this week before a weekend cooldown, the National Weather Service said. It's more likely temperatures will rise to 100 F or above for three consecutive days, peaking around 105 F on Thursday.

Sizzling weather also was expected in other parts of the country. The weather service said heat advisories and warnings would be in effect from the Midwest to the Northeast and mid-Atlantic through at least Friday.

The high temperatures in Portland, part of a usually temperate region, would break all-time records this week if the late June heat wave had not done so already, meteorologist Tyler Kranz said. Seattle will be cooler than Portland, with temperatures in the mid-90s, but it still has a chance to break records, and many people there, like in Oregon, don't have air conditioning.

DA: Landlord in tenant shooting handled eviction 'his way'

LAS VEGAS — A homeowner accused of shooting three tenants, killing two of them, after an argument over unpaid rent at his Las Vegas home told a witness that "he didn't want to go through the eviction process," a prosecutor said Wednesday.

Arnoldo Lozano-Sanchez "wanted to handle it, quote-unquote, 'his way,'" Chief Deputy District Attorney Tim Fattig told a judge.

The judge decided Lozano-Sanchez, 78, should remain jailed without bail pending his arraignment on murder and attempted murder charges in the slayings of two women and the wounding of a man who authorities said was shot nine times.

Lozano-Sanchez "made statements about the victims not paying rent and that he was certainly upset about it," Fattig said.

Police reported arriving at his small home early Tuesday to find one woman dead outside, the wounded man stumbling out the front door and another woman dead in a bedroom.

The wounded man was hospitalized in critical condition but is expected to survive, police said.

US holds back from Afghan collapse

Taliban victories piling up faster than many had anticipated

ROBERT BURNS AND LOLITA C. BALDOR
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Afghan government forces are collapsing even faster than U.S. military leaders thought possible just a few months ago when President Joe Biden ordered a full withdrawal. But there's little appetite at the White House, the Pentagon or among the American public for trying to stop the rout and it probably is too late to do so.

Biden has made clear he has no intention of reversing the decision he made last spring, even as the outcome seems to point toward a Taliban takeover. With most U.S. troops now gone and the Taliban accelerating their battlefield gains, American military leaders are not pressing him to change his mind. They know that the only significant option would be for the president to restart the war he already decided to end.

The Taliban, who ruled the country from 1996 until U.S. forces invaded after the 9/11 attacks, captured three more provincial capitals Wednesday, giving them effective control of about two-thirds of the country. The insurgents have no air force and are outnumbered by U.S.-trained Afghan defense forces, but they have captured territory with stunning speed.

John Kirby, the chief Pentagon spokesman, said the Afghans still have time to save themselves from final defeat.

"No potential outcome has to be inevitable, including the fall of Kabul," Kirby told reporters. "It doesn't have to be that way. It really depends on what kind of political and military leadership the Afghans can muster to turn this around."

Biden made a similar point a day earlier, telling reporters that U.S. troops had done all they could over the past 20 years to assist the Afghans.

"They've got to fight for themselves, fight for their nation," he said.

The United States continues to support the Afghan military with limited airstrikes, but those have not made a strategic difference thus far and are scheduled to end when the U.S. formally ends its role in the war on Aug. 31. Biden could continue airstrikes beyond that date, but given his firm stance on ending the war, that seems unlikely.

"My suspicion, my strong suspicion, is that the 31st of August timeline's going to hold," said Carter Malkasian, who advised U.S. military leaders in Afghanistan and Washington.

Rice pizza, noodle ices:

Food shows Japan’s punk rock soul

JOHN LEICESTER
Associated Press

YOKOHAMA, Japan — Countries’ foods are also windows on their souls. Take hamburgers. Hand-held, quick to assemble and wolf down, they embody a quintessentially American idea that founding father Benjamin Franklin put to paper in 1748 and which still powers the ambitious on Wall Street and beyond. “Remember,” Franklin wrote, “that time is money.” In China, food is so omnipresent in the national psyche that people greet each other with the phrase “chi fan le ma?” — have you eaten? And French food snobbery prompted the famously omnivorous President Jacques Chirac to once quip unkindly of the British that: “One cannot trust people whose cuisine is so bad.”

Which leads us to the Cup Noodles Museum in Yokohama, Japan. Yes, there is such a place. And, yes, instant noodles have plenty to say about Japanese traits of inventiveness, risk-taking and an openness to adapting and upgrading foreign influences that helped Japan recover after World War II to become an economic, cultural — and gastronomic — titan. Some of those same traits have, these past two weeks, also helped Japan pull off the improbable feat — or folly, the jury is out — of hosting the Olympic Games in the midst of the pandemic. Allowing 11,000 athletes to come from around the world, some bringing the coronavirus with them, testified to Japanese resilience, hospitality and flexibility.

A Cup Noodle ice cream, made with the powdered soup of Cup Noodle and topped with freeze-fried shrimp, onions, egg and meat, is prepared to be eaten at the Cup Noodles Museum in Yokohama, Japan, on Friday, Aug. 6. Sold only at the Yokohama museum, the ice cream embodies a spirit of adventure in Japanese foods.

Now back to ramen, with — excuse the pun — a potted history. The Japanese cribbed noodles from neighbor China, where they are called “lamian.” Over the years, Japanese chefs elevated ramen into an art, a tastebud-blowing spectrum of flavors, textures and choices. In short, Japan absorbed a foreign influence and improved on it. The same would later be true with automobiles, gadgetry and — for fans of “Demon Slayer,” “One Piece” and other mangas — cartoons, to name just those few. Back to noodles, though. Horrified by food shortages that ravaged post-war Japan, impoverished former credit union worker Momofuku Ando hit upon the idea of turning surplus American wheat into ramen that hungry people could prepare with just hot water and a few minutes. Ando’s eureka moment came while watching his wife deep-fry tempura. That gave birth to the idea of flash-frying noodles to dehydrate them. Ando’s first instant noodles were launched in 1958. Cup Noodles followed in 1971. The brainchild for that idea came on a fact-finding trip that Ando made to the United States in 1966, when he saw consumers of his instant noodles rehydrate and eat them from paper cups. This according to Nissin Foods, the company Ando founded. Worldwide cumulative sales of Cup Noodles surpassed the 40-billion mark in 2016. Ando died in 2007, at age 96. But his inventive spirit lives in what must rank as one of the world’s most unique flavor experiences: the Cup Noodle ice cream. Served only at the Cup Noodles Museum, in its fourth floor cafeteria, it’s made with the same powdered soup and freeze-dried toppings — onion, shrimp, chunks of egg and meat — used in actual Cup Noodles. Museum visitor Noriyuki Sato, who tried it, described it as “salty-sweet,” neither here nor there. “I’m not sure if that word makes sense to foreigners,” he said. “It’s not sweet and it’s not salty, either.” But it is a monument to thinking out of the box and to a Japanese knack for fusing together seemingly incompatible things to make wholly new ones. It’s hard to imagine an Italian gelato maker veering so audaciously off the beaten track. Nissin Foods spokesperson Kahara Suzuki says the ice cream — having tasted it, one hesitates to call it a dessert — embodies “what I would call a punk rock spirit that many Japanese people have.” “Who would ever come up with an idea like this?”

I mean it’s very unique,” Suzuki said. “You can see that punk rock spirit in every aspect of Japanese life.” Certainly on Japanese plates. A few other examples include fruit sandwiches sold in corner stores and popular rice burgers. Since May, they and their likes have been joined by rice pizzas — developed by Sachie Oyama, an innovation chef and manager of the Menu Innovation Department at Domino’s Pizza Japan Inc. The Domino’s Deluxe version is, in effect, a pizza built on a base layer of compressed, precooked Japanese-cultivated white rice, instead of a usual base of pizza dough. The rice base is then smothered with rich tomato sauce and topped with traditional pizza ingredients: mozzarella cheese, onions, peppers, pepperoni and Italian sausage. Domino’s sells the product line only in Japan. Oyama calls it “a pizza you can eat by yourself,” rather than sharing slices. “Japanese people are good at rearranging things,” she said. “A combination with pizza and rice is not a weird thing at all.” Perhaps not. But foods like that do help explain why Japan seems to never stand still. After all, there are always new tastes to invent.

Delicious onions at the Yoders'

Gloria Yoder
THE AMISH COOK

What a combination. It's 6 a.m., the birds outside my window are trying to outdo each other, all six little children are sound asleep, and Mommy is ready to write! All we need is a stretcher to lengthen the next hour til we're in full swing of the day.

My mind travels across the country to the millions of homes, with many who are rising, getting ready for the day. For thousands, it will have been their last day, for many, there is poverty and sickness, making their days unbearable.

My day ahead looks like it's filled with the norm of making breakfast for our children, telling Bible stories, helping little ones with their morning chores, teaching them to work and play with a common goal of building the family instead of teasing. Then I stop and realize that I'm not promised what will happen between now and the moment I lay my head on the pillow for the night. I truly do not know what my day may hold.

So for today I will cherish the moment, tucking deep into my heart these priceless moments with little ones. What's better than those first days of having a 1-year-old toddle all around the house? As he rounds the corner going from the sewing room to the kitchen and he calls, "Ma-ma!" As he spies me, his entire face beams and his big blue eyes light up like a light bulb. Surely it's worth being a mom despite the rough nights and the many questions with no answers, which I keep bringing before the Lord. On my own, I do not have all the expertise needed with raising Godly children.

In regards to my days, I am endlessly thankful for my dear husband who diligently works five days a week to give me the opportunity of staying home with our dear little ones in this brief stage of their young lives. So you wonder, "Do all Amish wives just work at home and not pursue any careers?" In recent years I have discovered that there are Amish mothers in some communities that do take the responsibility of working away from home, so yes it is done here and there, but for the most part Amish wives choose to stay home with their families.

In our homes it is of great value to have mothers working along side their daughters, (and sons for that matter) as they teach them many basic concepts of cooking, gardening, sewing, and the likes. For me personally, there are few things I enjoy more than to have all the children with me in the kitchen or garden and watch the delight on their innocent faces as they help do things for our family.

I am double spoiled, beside spending entire days with my lambs (as I call our children), we have the rare privilege of having Daddy own a furniture business right here at home. Each day at 11:30 he joins us for lunch.

On days when 6-year-old Austin or 9-year-old Julia make lunch, we all get the treat of taking it out to Daddy while they shut down for noon break. If you happen to know anything about eating with six little children you can perhaps imagine the scene.

Who doesn't want to sit beside Daddy in his shop, and what little boy wouldn't have fun looking for the chance to slip off and sprint through the shop when Mom isn't looking? As we all gather around a cart (which is used to tow furniture), we sit or kneel around it, thank the Lord for the food, then Mommy ladles food to fill all seven plates.

Our noon meals are kept quite simple centering around veggies, and usually some sort of meat. Okay for example, yesterday we had the first butternut squash from the garden and fresh green beans with sauteed onions and leftover grilled chicken which Austin diced and stirred into the beans.

For lunch we completely eliminate dessert or keep it as basic as iced coffee or a fruit smoothie.

The clock's hands are going faster than mine; it's showing 6:30 and the children are waking. I'll be in touch next week, in the meanwhile be sure to try our onion pie.

Since we've harvested our hundred onions we've been enjoying them in all sorts of versions, with this being on the top of the list!

CHEESY ONION PIE

- 30 saltine crackers
- 1/3 cup butter, melted
- 3 cups onions, diced
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 1 1/2 cup milk
- 3/4 teaspoon Salt
- 1/4 teaspoon Pepper

Mix crackers and 1/3 cup of butter and press into a 9-inch baking dish.

Saute onions in 1/4 cup butter until onions are slightly tender.

Spread onions over cracker mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over cheese.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and serve.

Good gourds!

DAVID CHEN/Special to the Chronicle

One of Grace and David Chen's gourd harvests.

Longtime Crystal River residents show versatility, creativity

JULIANNE MUNN
Chronicle food writer

Grace and David Chen are awash in Chinese gourds this summer, grown at their Crystal River home for ornamental use, gifts and so much more.

The Chens say they were startled to discover that a few weeks of constant rain early this summer spurred growth of the bottle gourds and they knew just what to do with them, including a bounty of recipes they are sharing today.

Grace and David are longtime Crystal River residents, chefs, and owned several Chinese-themed restaurant before their retirement.

"A friend gave me two bottle gourds last year," Grace said. "She said maybe they are not good anymore. But David put them outside in the sun until they completely dried. Then he cut off the tops, removed the seeds and planted them in two pots."

She said her husband, who was brought up on a farm, tended to the gourds until they ripened, giving them homemade natural fertilizer.

"The gourds make great gifts," she said. "Especially if you let them dry completely and then paint designs on them and even etch designs. Some people hollow them and make lamps and water bottles and other containers."

Gourds enjoy a rich historical background and are mentioned in the Bible numerous times: "Gourds were used ornamentally in Solomon's temple (I Kings 6: 18a.)"

And: "King James Version of 1611, 'qiqayon' is translated as 'gourd': And the LORD God prepared a gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shadow over his head, to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah was exceeding glad of the gourd."

Gourds prefer full sun and rich, well-drained soil that is rich in organic material. Sow the seeds outdoors after all danger of frost has passed and the weather is warm. Gourds grow well on trellises or supports, keeping the fruits off the ground.

Gourd seeds have hard seedcoats. To hasten germination, soak gourd seeds in water overnight or up to 24 hours. When starting gourds indoors, sow seeds in peat pots about 3 to 4 weeks before their intended outdoor planting date. Gourd seedlings should be planted outdoors after the danger of frost is past.

The most commonly eaten gourds are Asian. They are picked young and underripe to ensure less harsh flavor. Among these are sponge (or Luffa) and bottle (or Calabash). There is also an Italian gourd called cucuzza.

Planting the gourd has a long history in China. There are many folk legends about it. According to legends, the gourd is a treasure used by Gods to hold wine and elixir. It is naturally contaminated with the spirit of immortality, so it has always been regarded as a symbol of good luck.

"Besides eating, and decorating, a gourd has many uses," Chen said.

DAVID CHEN/Special to the Chronicle

Grace Chen tends her gourds at her Crystal River home.

"You can cut them in half to make ladles and rice scoops; hollow out the insides to fill with wine or water. You can see many laughing Buddha figures carrying gourds — I guess inside they have wine because it shows a happy Buddha."

"The gourds we planted was originally named 'Hulu,' a kind of melon vegetable. It has a long history of cultivation in China. According to the different shapes of gourds, they can be divided into several types, called gourds, and other names such as opo, Calabash, gourd squash, Chinese squash and more," she explained.

"The ones we have, round ends and a narrow waist makes it hard to shave the skin, so it's unpopular. Therefore, it is rarely seen in the market here ... even in Taiwan where I grew up.

"I remember my mom cooked gourds, but she always used the straight, long-shaped gourd. It's the more popular gourd, you can easily find it in oriental markets," Grace said.

"Our bottle gourd has an interesting appearance and is so beautiful; it's suitable for enjoyment. When I gave it to friends they all loved the shape and don't want to cook it. They like to keep them as a souvenirs."

"Among the processed gourd products, some are engraved with patterns. The most common ones are the blessing, longevity and dragon. The patterns should be carved on the tender skin of the gourd when it is still young. As the fruit grows, the lines of the pattern will also become prominent and enlarged. people can engrave, paint and make different kinds of decorations or hanging ornaments after it dried. It's a great gift. you can find different kinds of gifts made of gourd in Asian gift shops," she explained.

"After the gourd is picked and exposed to the sun for about two months, the flesh and seeds will shrink and you can scoop it out so that they can be stored for a long time. David made a dough used for making bottle gourd dumplings for dinner."

"Beyond burger' (a vegetable meat substitute) has a good flavor so when we made dumplings, we just used 1/4 of shredded bottle gourd with chopped scallion, minced ginger, salt and pepper, and 1 tablespoon of sesame oil. It's very delicious," she described a making a recent dish.

SAUTEED SHRIMP WITH BOTTLE GOURD

1. Halve a gourd, peel and remove seeds and slice (about 1 inch thick).
2. Chop 2 scallions to taste.
3. Mix 1/2 pound of medium-size, shelled shrimp with 1 egg white and 2 tablespoons corn starch (or 2 tablespoons of olive oil instead) mixed well.
4. Turn heat to medium. Pour 5 tablespoons of olive oil in the skillet. When pan is hot, stir the shrimp until changed to pink color. Remove and put on one plate.
5. Stir-fry chopped scallion until you smell the fragrance; pour the sliced gourd into pan and stir-fry for 4 minutes; put shrimp back in the pan for another 4 minutes and add one teaspoon of sesame oil, one tablespoon of balsamic vinegar, a little salt and pepper to taste.
6. Cook until gourd is medium soft.

Rays get routed

Associated Press

Tampa Bay Rays left fielder Austin Meadows heads to the dugout while watching the final out of the eighth inning, with the Rays trailing the Boston Red Sox by 19 runs, Wednesday in Boston.

Red Sox roll Tampa Bay 20-8 in their highest-scoring game since '15

MAUREEN MULLEN

Associated Press

BOSTON — Bobby Dalbec drove in a career-high five runs, Xander Bogaerts and Hunter Renfroe each had four RBIs and the Boston Red Sox routed the Tampa Bay Rays 20-8 Wednesday night.

The Red Sox moved within four games of the AL East-leading Rays with their highest-scoring game since 2015.

Tampa Bay had won five in a row overall and six straight against Boston. The Rays had not not allowed at least 20 runs since 2007.

J.D. Martinez got four of Boston's season-high 19 hits. The Red Sox began the first inning with three straight doubles by Kiké Hernández, Renfroe and Bogaerts and scored in bunches — they had innings in which they tallied six, five, four, three and two runs.

Bogaerts' three-run homer highlighted a six-run burst in the eighth off Rays catcher Francisco Mejia, who moved from behind the plate to the mound.

Down 20-1, the Rays scored seven times in the ninth against Phillips Valdez, with Brett Phillips hitting his third career grand slam and Mike Zunino connecting for his 22nd homer.

Nathan Eovaldi (10-7) went seven innings, giving up one run on Brandon Lowe's 26th homer. He matched his season high with 10 strikeouts, allowing three hits and one walk.

Josh Fleming (9-6) was tagged for 10 runs on 11 hits and six walks in 3 1/3 innings.

Dalbec reached base five times with a triple, single, two walks and a hit by pitch.

NUMBERS GAME

The teams combined to score in seven different half-innings — there were frames of one, two, three, four, five, six and seven innings.

THIS AND THAT

Boston manager Alex Cora announced he had demoted RHP Garrett Richards from the rotation to the bullpen. Richards joins RHP Martin Perez, who was demoted last week. Their rotation spots are expected to be taken by LHP Chris Sale, who is scheduled to be activated from the injured list on Saturday, and RHP Tanner Houck, the team's top pitching prospect. ... Cora said closer Matt Barnes, who's had several rocky outings recently, including giving up four runs while getting just two outs in a loss to the Rays on Tuesday, is not expected to be available until Friday because of usage.

Field of Dreams game arrives

Inspired by 1989 film, MLB makes its Iowa debut

DAVE CAMPBELL

AP sports writer

More than three decades after "Field of Dreams" seeped into the country's cultural consciousness, with a one-year delay caused by the pandemic, one of the most famous cornfields in Hollywood history finally gets the opportunity to host real major league ball.

"Is this heaven?" the ghost of John Kinsella asked in the movie that inspired the game to be played Thursday between the Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees next to the actual site used in the 1989 film, which is maintained as a tourist attraction.

"No, it's Iowa," dutiful farmer Ray Kinsella — played by Kevin Costner — responded to his father with a smile before they played catch under the lights in the movie's most poignant scene.

This week, the ball playing isn't fiction.

"Shoeless" Joe Jackson and other long-ago players who took the field in the movie will be replaced by José Abreu and Aaron Judge.

The proud and quintessential Midwestern state, usually only in the spotlight every four years during presidential campaigns, will be hosting a Major League Baseball game for the first time when the White Sox and Yankees play at a temporary venue built for about 8,000 fans in tiny Dyersville — population "about 4,400, we're hoping for in the next census," said mayor Jim Heavens.

The event, part of MLB's increased effort to grow the game by setting up shop in places without in-person access to the highest level of the sport, has been in the works for years. The original plan to play in 2020 was postponed when the coronavirus forced a shortened schedule at mostly empty ballparks, but if the White Sox, the Yankees or the Iowans became impatient then they were out of step with the spirit of the film.

"The one constant through all the years," as the sage author Terence Mann declared to Ray Kinsella in the film, "has been baseball."

Dyersville found its place on the map through the movie that starred Costner, James Earl Jones, Ray Liotta and Amy Madigan, but the sport has been

Citrus County FISHING REPORTS

CHRIS BERNHARDT JR.

Staff writer

FRESHWATER

LAKE ROUSSEAU — Bill Burgess of Lake Rousseau RV and Fishing said fishing has slowed a little bit due to poor water conditions. Flooding to the east in the Withlacoochee has made the water dingy and black, and has lowered the water level. There are a few bluegill hitting on wigglers, as well as cut-up hot dogs, in 6-8 feet of water. Crappie are hitting on Rapalas, while bass are out by the stumps away from the bank, biting on Texas-rigged speed worms along the bottom. Only a few have been caught on the topwater.

SALTWATER

CRYSTAL RIVER/BARGE CANAL — Ed's Tackle Shop reports redfish are biting on shrimp, while snook are hitting on cut mullet and topwater plugs. Grouper are out in 80 feet of water and beyond.

HOMOSASSA RIVER — Bill Korade of Blue Water Bait and Tackle said there were a couple good grouper reports offshore in 35-40 feet of water; use Spanish sardines or thread-fin herring. Mixed in were a few mangrove snapper. Redfish and snook are around the outer islands, in the mouth of Mason Creek and St. Martins. Go with cut mullet or artificial lures in white or glow.

KING'S BAY — Captain Louie Argiro of Florida Fishing Adventures (352-601-1963, www.floridafishingadventures.com), based out of Pete's Pier in Crystal River, said, "This week is just one of those dog days of summer kind of weeks. It's hot out there, and if you don't believe me, come give it a try. I've been redfishing early in the morning to try and beat the heat. The fishing has been fantastic till about 10 a.m. when that water starts to heat up quickly. I saw 90-degree water today on my way in."

ROUNDUP/MATCHUPS

Twins 1, White Sox 0: Rookie Bailey Ober shut out the White Sox into the sixth inning. Jorge Polanco homered.

Astros 5, Rockies 3: Aledmys Díaz had three hits and drove in three runs.

Mets 8, Nationals 7: Pinch-hitter Brandon Drury had a tiebreaking single in the eighth inning and the New York Mets overcame two three-run deficits in the completion of a game suspended by rain the night before. The regularly scheduled game was then rained out.

Yankees 5, Royals 2: Luke Voit had a two-run single in New York's three-run first inning and the Yankees beat Kansas City for their 12th straight series.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 0: Adam Wainwright extended his dominance of Pittsburgh with a two-hit shutout. The 39-year-old Wainwright allowed a pair of singles by Colin Moran in the second and fifth innings, and then retired the last 15 batters.

Marlins 7, Padres 0: — Lewis Brinson hit two of Miami's three home runs off rookie lefty Ryan Weathers, Sandy Alcantara shut down San Diego for seven innings and the Marlins avoided a winless trip.

Brewers 10, Cubs 0: Milwaukee right-hander Corbin Burnes struck out 10 straight batters, tying the major league record.

Tigers 5, Orioles 2: Miguel Cabrera hit his 499th career home run, part of a three-hit night for the Detroit slugger that helped the Tigers hand the Baltimore Orioles their seventh straight loss. Cabrera's solo shot off Matt Harvey in the fifth inning opened the scoring. He also had two singles earlier in the game, plus a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Athletics 6, Indians 3: Jed Lowrie hit a three-run homer and Elvis Andrus had a solo shot in the eighth inning in the Oakland Athletics' comeback.

SPORTS BRIEFS

NCAA hands Baylor probation, fine in scandal

The NCAA said Wednesday that its long investigation of the Baylor sexual assault scandal would result in nothing more than probation and other relatively minor sanctions because the egregious, “unacceptable” behavior at the heart of the case did not violate its rules.

The NCAA ruling came more than five years after the scandal rocked the world’s largest Baptist university, leading to the firing of successful football coach Art Briles and the departure of athletic director Ian McCaw and school president Ken Starr.

The NCAA said the allegations centered on conduct never before presented to the Committee on Infractions, which has existed since 1951 — that Baylor “shielded football student-athletes from the institution’s disciplinary process and failed to report allegations of abhorrent misconduct by football student-athletes, including instances of sexual and interpersonal violence.”

The panel said Baylor admitted to moral and ethical failings in its handling of violence on the Waco campus but argued “that those failings, however egregious, did not constitute violations of NCAA legislation.”

“Ultimately, and with tremendous reluctance, this panel agrees,” the ruling said.

Houston NCAA sprinting champ Burrell dead at 26

HOUSTON — Former NCAA national champion sprinter Cameron Burrell has died. He was 26.

The University of Houston, where he starred from 2013-2018, announced his death. The school said he died Monday but did not provide further details.

Cameron Burrell won the national title in the 100 meters in 2018 in Eugene, Oregon. He won a second national title with his team that season by running the anchor leg of the 4x100-meter relay.

Burrell became the 121st man to run the 100 in less than 10 seconds when he posted a time of 9.93 seconds on June 8, 2017.

Rose selected to receive Payne Stewart Award

PONTE VEDRA BEACH — Justin Rose of England has been selected to receive the Payne Stewart Award, one of the premier awards on the PGA Tour that recognizes character, sportsmanship and a commitment to charity.

The award is named after the three-time major champion who died in a private plane accident in 1999, four months after he won the U.S. Open at Pinehurst No. 2 and a month after a U.S. victory in the Ryder Cup.

Rose, a former U.S. Open champion and Olympic gold medalist, and wife Kate have established a foundation geared toward feeding and educating children. Most recently, they created the Rose Ladies Series to provide women playing opportunities when the Ladies European Tour and other circuits shut down because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

He will be presented the award on Aug. 31 at a ceremony in Atlanta the week of the Tour Championship.

entrenched in the town for more than a century. Commercial Club Park is where the team from Beckman Catholic High School and the local semi-pro club play, a spot as much at the heart of the community as the well-kept farms around it.

About one-third of the crowd on Thursday is expected to be Iowa residents.

“I see a lot of people as I travel around the state, and when they find out you’re from Dyersville, they all know about this MLB game,” Heavens said. “I think there’s a real element of pride in Iowa that MLB is coming. It’s kind of warmed my heart to see that the people of Iowa are so honored that this is happening.”

The original movie site was quickly deemed too small for a standard game, so the made-for-the-moment ballpark required removal of 30,000 cubic yards of material and the installation of 4,000 tons of sand and 2,000 tons of gravel. The bullpens were designed to mimic those at old Comiskey Park, the former home of the White Sox. There’s even a just-for-fun corn maze beyond right field.

This has been an especially hot and dry summer in this part of the country, so an irrigation system was installed to keep the prime crop in good shape for its time to shine on national TV — between 10 and 12 feet high.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I am a 29-year-old woman, and I've been having an ongoing debate with my boyfriend of 10 years.

I wear makeup because I am insecure about my skin and my face in general. I have tried any and all products recommended to me to help clear up my skin.

I have suffered from eating disorders in the past and have constant fixation and amplification of every flaw, so I'm aware of the fact that it might be body dysmorphia that is in part driving my anxiety about my face. I am going into therapy and seeing a dermatologist next month, and I will start my process there.

But in the meantime, when I look in the mirror at my bare face, I see a monster. Makeup takes away some of that anxiety — gives me confidence in myself, allowing me to enjoy life a little more.

While I know that it is not healthy to be so dependent on cosmetics, they are helping me get through these feelings for now.

The problem is that my boyfriend hates that I wear makeup. He constantly insists that I stop wearing it, to the point that we regularly get in heated arguments about this. He even jokingly says he will break up with me if I continue to wear it. I tell him that not wearing makeup just doesn't work for me. I tried it once for a year. It didn't clear up my skin, and it was horrible emotionally.

I really don't know what to say to him at this point other than that I am in the process of hopefully solving this problem, but even if my blemishes clear up, the mental and emotional aspects will take time. I understand others will say: "It's just makeup. Ditch it for him if you really love him!" But I don't think people understand how much I really can't stand seeing the face I have naked in the mirror. It brings me to tears and causes anxiety attacks — which I feel like my boyfriend would resent me even more for. He doesn't have much patience for insecurity of any kind. I'm not sure what to tell him other than, "Let's wait and see." Any advice? —

Can't Face the Mirror

Dear Can't Face the Mirror: Just as it would be wrong for your boyfriend to demand that you wear makeup, it's wrong for him to demand that you don't. It's your face, and it's up to you what to do with it. His threats of breaking up hardly qualify as "jokes" in my book. That kind of talk smacks of bullying. Enlist the help of your therapist in setting and enforcing boundaries in your relationship so that you can focus on healing yourself and reducing your anxiety.

Dear Annie: My soon-to-be 40-year-old daughter seriously needs help for her mental health. She is a recovering addict. She's been sober for five years. Earlier this year, she got out of a two-year relationship, and it's as though she's been traumatized ever since. She walks around like a zombie. I'm wondering whether she's back on drugs. What can I do? —

Dear Worried Mom: You can encourage your daughter to seek help through in-patient or out-patient treatment centers and/or support groups such as Narcotics Anonymous (www.na.org) or LifeRing Secular Recovery (www.lifering.org). Even more importantly, I would urge you to lead by example and attend meetings of Nar-Anon Family Groups (www.nar-anon.org). Living with the disease of addiction is too much for most of us to bear alone. The solidarity found in support groups can make even the most daunting problems a little bit more manageable.

Where did the expression about getting out of bed on the wrong side originate?

When playing in a trump contract with a side suit that needs to be established and cashed, it is usually right to play on that suit first, before drawing trumps. That was true in this deal from a knock-out teams match.
