Sentencing to come at a later date

It took a jury only 45 minutes to return a guilty verdict Tuesday for a former the local hospital. Circuit Judge Richard How-

Citrus Memorial Hospital nurse accused of sexually assaulting a patient in early 2021 at ard will sentence the 58-year-old Hiram Bonilla later. The jury found Bonilla guilty of lewd battery on an elderly or disabled person and two charges of lewd or lascivious molestation of an elderly person or disabled person. The charges are felonies. A Citrus Memorial Hospital staff member in January 2021 contacted the sheriff's office in reference to a sexual assault of a patient.

The victim told law enforcement investigators that on Jan. 5 and Jan. 6 of 2021, a registered nurse entered her hospital room on several separate occasions and engaged in sexual activity with her.

CMH fired Bonilla after the accusation.

Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office deputies arrested Bonilla in Tampa where he lived in January 2021 after the State Attorney's Office issued a warrant for his arrest.

Assistant State Attorney Tara Hartman told Howard earlier this year that after interviewing the victim, there would be no plea offers.

Future farmers begin fair week prep

By HANNAH SACHEWICZ
Chronicle Reporter

On Wednesday, many "moos" echoed through the cool morning air at the Lecanto Educational Complex.

For the last day of winter break, local Future Farmers of America (FFA) students gathered with their livestock at the Lecanto agriculture fields for the annual Fuzzy Memorial Health Day. The event, hosted by Lecanto FFA, is an opportunity for students to prepare their animals for upcoming livestock shows.

Lecanto High School teacher Steve Richardson kickstarted the event about seven years ago as a way for students to have easy and affordable access to required animal health inspections. "This is for every kid around the county," he said.

Three stations were up and running from 8 a.m. to noon for students to take their animals through. The health certificate, required for fair week, was $5 per animal. Hoof-trimming was $25 and ultrasounds were $15.

In its first year, Richardson said the health day began with about 60 people, but has grown through the years to a couple hundred.

From exhibitor to teacher, the upcoming Citrus County Fair in Fourteen-year-old Parker Fortier, an eighth grader at Lecanto Middle School, calms Shadow, the school's FFA steer as the animal's hooves are trimmed. The animal is securely placed into an implement to keep movement to a minimum as the job is performed.

March will be Richardson's 30th one. But Wednesday, he said, was all about the kids.

Health always comes first

Dozens of trucks and trailers made their way through a line Wednesday morning to have their animals inspected by Crystal River Animal Hospital veterinarians, Deby and

"Fletch" Fletcher. Examinations were completed while the animals are still in the trailer, before arrival at the FFA barn.

Per Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services policy, all animals going to county or state fairs must receive travel certifications from licensed veterinarians. This allows them to comingle without the risk of spreading contagious diseases at events.

Richardson said this enables FDACS to track livestock – and potential diseases – from birth to butcher. "It's safety first," he said.

Trial begins for man accused of causing baby's death

By FRED HIERS
Chronicle Reporter

The trial of an Inverness man accused of killing a 2-month-old baby by smoking methamphetamine in a shared home and neglecting two other infants began Wednesday with opening statements and prosecutors' witnesses.

Assistant State Attorney Nicholas Caporicci told the eight jurors in his opening statement that baby Aliyah Courtney died March 13, 2020, in the Inverness home on Live Oak Lane because 53-year-old Steven Troy Gibson operated the residence "essentially (as) a drug house" where he lived with his girlfriend, both who smoked methamphetamine in the house, and rented rooms out to other meth users.

GIBSON

Caporicci said he and other prosecutors will prove that Gibson and the other residents "smoked almost every day" including the night before the baby's death and Aliyah died from being exposed to methamphetamine toxicity.

Also charged are Tammy Marie Allison, who was Gibson's girlfriend, Kevin Christopher Courtney, the baby's father, and Stephanie Pearl Carroll, the mother of the child. They will be tried separately.

Two other adults also lived in the home but were not charged. Two infants, ages three and five years, also lived in the home. Carroll was also their mother.

Caporicci said the baby's methamphetamine levels in her body were minor compared to an adult but was lethal for her tiny body and "caused or attributed to Aliyah's death."

But Gregg Brennan, attorney for Gibson, told the jury that the prosecutor's "evidence is going to be lacking in this case."

Instead, when the people in the house realized the baby was not breathing, Brennan told the jury it was Gibson who called 911 and stayed on the phone to convey the 911 operator's life-saving instructions to the others to try and save Aliyah.

Brennan told the jury that during the sheriff's office arrival Gibson voluntarily spoke with investigators and allowed them in the house.

Brennan said that Gibson "did what he could" for the children and often told Carroll that she should take her children and move out and back into her parents' home.

The two witnesses who rented bedrooms in the house when Aliyah died, but who were not charged, said during the first day of trial that all the residents in the house smoked methamphetamine, and often daily.

They also told the jury that Gibson helped to take care of the children and often told Carroll the home was no place for children because of the drug use and that she should leave.

Johan Bravo, a sheriff's office crime scene specialist who was assigned the case, told the jury, and lead prosecutor Blake Shore, that the mother showed how she found her baby in bed using a doll. Bravo said that Carroll placed the doll face

County to mull economic growth position

Commission will revisit impact fee hike

By MICHAEL D. BATES
Chronicle Reporter

Dave Pieklik turned in his resignation letter this week as economic development director, and county commissioners want to know why he becomes the second person to leave the position in four years.

Commissioner Jeff Kinnard said Pieklik and former director Bruce Register (who retired last year) exited with "less than stellar results."

Kinnard said the county saw some fast-food restaurants move here in the past four years "but that's not economic development."

"I don't know what the problem is," he said. "I think it needs to be identified as to what's going on."

The matter came up Wednesday at the board's annual commission retreat, whose purpose is to identify priorities and brainstorm short-and long-term ideas.

Commissioners identified several hot-button issues, two of which are the restructuring of economic development and revisiting impact fees. Both issues will be discussed at separate upcoming workshops at a date and time to be determined.

Pieklik was hired Jan. 5, 2021, at an annual salary of $68,750. The Inverness resident spent the previous 10 years as executive director of the Nature Coast Business Development Council in Levy County.

He replaced former director Bruce Register, who retired last year after three years on the job. His annual salary was $81,000.

Pieklik told the Chronicle he is relocating to Orlando where his fiancée-lives and works, so he could not dedicate 100 percent to his work here.

"We've accomplished a lot in a short amount of time," he said. "It was never my intention of staying only one year."

But his life shifted quickly, he added.

Pieklik said he's been working on attracting two large medical projects to Citrus County and an

At the second station, Shawn Ward of Shawn Ward Hoof Trimming gave pedicures to the cattle near the FFA barn.

One by one, they were placed in Ward's contraption, which he called a hoof-trimming table. The table secured and lifted the animals sideways as he trimmed their hooves with a specialized grinder.

Ward said the purpose of hoof-trimming is both "cosmetic and functionary." Afterward, the animals are able to walk more comfortably.

Eighteen-year-old Citrus steer, Striker's, hooves High School senior Justin trimmed. Justin's mom, Michele Rose, said the steer got his name because Justin is a bowler.

Justin said he started showing cattle in sixth-grade — this will be his seventh year showing.

"This is a great clinic," Michele said. Typically, she said, home veterinarian visits can cost more than $100.

Got beef?

Finally, the beef cattle were inspected by certified carcass ultrasound field technician Amy Perryman. She used a veterinarian's ultrasound with a specialized probe designed for carcass evaluation.

This allows Perryman to determine how much fat and muscle is currently on the animal. Parker Fortier, 14-year-old Lecanto Middle School eighth-grader, was one of the first students to receive an ultrasound on his steer.

Perryman said many of the young cattle will be ready for processing in approximately 90 days, just in time for auctioning at the Citrus County Fair. "The fair wants to ensure they are selling a quality product," she said.

"The kids wanna know how they stand right now," Perryman added. After the ultrasound, some may need to adjust their feeding regimens.

However, Fortier's steer yielded a great ultrasound result. "I think he's sitting pretty," Perryman told him.

down on the mother's bed with a pillow partially over the baby's head.

In a taped interview with Citrus County Sheriff's Office investigators, played for the jury, Gibson said he had gone to Carroll's room about 7 a.m. and asked her to care for the crying baby and again about 7:20 a.m. He said he heard Carroll get up and the baby stop crying. In the interview, Gibson said that about an hour later Carroll came into the home's hallway and screamed that the baby was not breathing and that her skin was white.

But much of the focus Wednesday was on Dr. Heather Gage, the associate medical examiner for the area and a forensic pathologist who investigated the baby's death.

Gage told the jury that samples of the baby's heart blood, liver, and eye fluid all had traces of methamphetamine. She said that methamphetamine toxicity was the primary cause of death and that a contributing factor was asphyxiation because of the way the baby was lying.

She said the methamphetamine "likely sped up the process of asphyxia" because it causes the heart to beat faster and irregular, so no blood passes through it properly. It also increases blood pressure, she said.

Gage said she reached her primary cause of death conclusion because there was methamphetamine in the baby's system and because she consulted the medical literature on the subject.

During cross examination, Brennan cited the literature Gage used and noted it was only one study on the issue of child death in which methamphetamine was found.

Of the seven babies involved in the study, only two had died because of methamphetamine, he noted.

Gage agreed that's what the study showed.

One of the babies was unborn and still inside their mother and the other had methamphetamine levels significantly greater than detected in Aliyah, Brennan noted.

Gage agreed that's what the study showed.

Upon cross examination Gage also said it was difficult to say how the methamphetamine affected the baby's organ systems and to what extent.

She said the medical literature was limited when it involved children dying with methamphetamine in their bodies, so known overdose levels of the drug was also limited.

Brennan asked Gage whether it was correct to conclude Aliyah would have died if she could not breath lying face down next to her mother for an hour regardless of methamphetamine.

Gage replied yes.

Brennan also asked whether it was correct that nothing else showed how the methamphetamine affected the baby.

Gage replied that was correct. The trial is scheduled to continue Thursday and Friday.

COUNTY

announcement could be forthcoming.

Register and Pieklik reported directly to County Administrator Randy Oliver and there was limited contact between the directors and county commission.

That needs to change, according to a consensus from the board Wednesday.

At the suggestion of Commission Chairman Ron Kitchen Jr., board members liked the idea of patterning economic development after the Citrus County Tourist Development Council (TDC).

Kitchen chaired the TDC for seven years and he said it has since become the most successful county government board in terms of generating revenue and marketing Citrus County.

Kitchen's idea is more of a committee approach, rather than one person steering the ship.

Kitchen said the county would create an economic development council, chaired by a county commissioner and run by a newly hired director and members of the public, especially business folks. The new department would draft bylaws, the budget would be formulated and members would meet monthly.

This way, the commission can better monitor the director's progress, have monthly reports from the commission's liaison at the board's regular meeting.

The department's budget will grow each year based on its success in bringing in new business and industry, Kitchen said.

Kinnard said Citrus County needs "career-class jobs" and the ground-work must be laid for private industry to come to Citrus County and invest here. If that means paying more for a qualified director, so be it, he said.

That groundwork includes improving roads and other infrastructure to make it attractive for start-up or relocating industry, Kinnard said. But that will cost millions the county doesn't have.

To that end, and realizing he will likely catch heat from the public, Kinnard proposed the board revisit impact fees and consider calculating the transportation/roads at 100 percent.

Last March, commissioners voted to raise impact fees for a single-family home from $4,809 to $6,017.

They kept the impact fee calculations for transportation/roads at the 50 percent formula rate, with the other categories at 100 percent.

Kinnard said such a move would allow the county to pay off debt and help fund road resurfacing.

"We're simply making the new growth pay for itself," he said.

Nothing was decided Wednesday. The public will have a chance to speak at a future workshop.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Jan. 6, the sixth day of 2022. There are 359 days left in the year.

Highlight in history:

On Jan. 6, 2021, supporters of President Donald Trump, fueled by his false claims of a stolen election, assaulted police and smashed their way into the Capitol to interrupt the certification of Democrat Joe Biden's victory, forcing lawmakers into hiding; most of the rioters had come from a nearby rally where Trump urged them to "fight like hell." A Trump supporter, Ashli Babbitt, was shot and killed by a police officer as she tried to breach a barricaded doorway inside the Capitol. Capitol Police Officer Brian Sicknick, injured while confronting the rioters, suffered a stroke the next day and died from natural causes, the Washington, D.C., medical examiner's office said. (In the weeks that followed, four of the officers who responded to the riot took their own lives.) Congress reconvened hours later to finish certifying the election result.

On this date:
In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his State of the Union address, outlined a goal of “Four Freedoms”: Freedom of speech and expression; the freedom of people to worship God in their own way; freedom from want; freedom from fear.

In 2001, with Vice President Al Gore presiding in his capacity as president of the Senate, Congress formally certified George W. Bush the winner of the bitterly contested 2000 presidential election.

Actor Scott Bryce is 64. Actor Norman Reedus is 53. Actor Eddie Redmayne is 40. Retired NBA All-Star Gilbert Arenas is 40. Actor-comedian Kate McKinnon is 38. Rock singer Alex Turner (Arctic Monkeys) is 36.

Negro." In Mailer's 1957 essay, he wrote of Blacks as being models of non-conformity for hipster whites, living in "the enormous present," letting go "the pleasures of the mind for the more obligatory pleasures of the body."

James Baldwin chastised Mailer for perpetuating the “myth of the sexuality of Negroes”

Asked if he would confirm the Ankler report, Wylie said "That's not the issue at all." Asked why Random House was not publishing the book, Wylie called it an "editorial decision" and added "There is really no issue here."

Mailer, who died in 2007, was among the most famous and controversial authors in his lifetime and has long been a signature part of Random House's legacy, which includes such Mailer peers as Truman Capote and William Styron. He was the recipient of Pulitzer Prizes for "The Armies of the Night" and "The Executioner's Song," but was also widely condemned for his writing on race, for his admittedly misogynist opinions and for the stabbing of his second wife, Adele Morales, in 1960.

While news of Random House not publishing the new collection led to allegations on social media that Mailer was being “cancelled,” his books remain widely available through Random House and the Library of America, which has been releasing permanent bound editions of his work. “The White Negro” can easily be found online, including Dissent magazine.

where the essay first appeared.

But interest in his work has sharply faded. According to NPD BookScan, which tracks around 85 percent of the print market, combined sales for four of Mailer's best known books – “The Armies of the Night,” “The Naked and the Dead,” “The Executioner's Song” and “The Fight” – were under 4,000 copies in 2021.

One of Mailer's sons, Michael Mailer, told the AP that Random House suggested a centennial project. The family, along with Mailer biographer J. Michael Lennon, "put together a proposal for a collection of political essays on democracy which they liked and then decided later not to proceed due to objections, putatively, from certain junior executives."

Scaled-back CES returns to Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Thousands of people have gathered in Las Vegas for a tech conference that’s been scaled back because of COVID-19 pandemic precautions.

The floors of the CES gadget show opened Wednesday with conference attendees required to wear masks and show proof of vaccination.

“We know that this CES is going to be different,” said Gary Shapiro, president of the Consumer Technology Association, the event’s organizer. He spoke during a ribbon-cutting ceremony to launch the show.

The trade group hasn’t disclosed attendance numbers but said it expects tens of thousands of people for the multi-day event, though not nearly as many as the 170,000 who showed up for the last physical CES two years ago. This year’s expo features 2,300 exhibitors from 19 countries, CTA said.

A number of big tech companies pulled out ahead of the show amid concerns about the rapid spread of the omicron coronavirus variant. Some of those companies are still participating digitally.

General Motors CEO Mary Barra spoke virtually from Detroit for a keynote talk Wednesday. A last-minute cancellation took celebrity Paris Hilton off the schedule for an in-person panel discussion Wednesday about the digital assets known as non-fungible tokens, or NFTs.

“Some people were surprised” that Hilton wasn’t there, said Amy Stroud, an NFT enthusiast who was in the standing-room-only crowd. CTA didn’t respond to a question about her absence.

Over the last two weeks, Nevada has reported an average of 1,896 new coronavirus cases per day – the highest 14-day moving average in more than a year.

The number of people hospitalized with confirmed or suspected COVID-19 cases rose 52.1 percent over the preceding two weeks to 1,065 on Monday, when the state last updated its hospital data. About one in six hospital beds in the state are taken up by COVID-19 patients.

Kyra Morgan, Nevada’s state biostatistician, noted last week in an update about the pandemic in Nevada that while most indoor mask requirements remain in place, businesses are subject to fewer restrictions than at this time last year.

CES organizers encouraged but did not require attendees to get tested for COVID-19 before arriving. But attendees got an extra when picking up their conference badges – a complimentary test kit made by Abbott Laboratories, whose CEO Robert Ford is scheduled to give a keynote talk Thursday. The conference is also providing on-site testing for people with symptoms.

Man whose arrest led to ‘separate but equal’ is pardoned

By JANET MCCONNAUGHEY
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Louisiana’s governor on Wednesday posthumously pardoned Homer Plessy, the Black man whose arrest for refusing to leave a whites-only railroad car in 1892 led to the Supreme Court ruling that cemented “separate but equal” into U.S. law for half a century.

The state Board of Pardons last year recommended the pardon for Plessy, who boarded the rail car as a member of a small civil rights group hoping to overturn a state law segregating trains. Instead, the protest led to the 1896 ruling known as Plessy v. Ferguson, which solidified whites-only spaces in public accommodations such as transportation, hotels and schools for decades.

At a ceremony held near the spot where Plessy was arrested, Gov. John Bel Edwards said he was “beyond grateful” to help restore Plessy’s “legacy of the rightness of his cause ... undefiled by the wrongness of his conviction.”

Keith Plessy, whose great-great-grandfather was Plessy’s cousin, called the event “truly a blessed day for our ancestors ... and for children not yet born.”

Since the pardon board vote in November, “I’ve had the feeling that my feet are not touching the ground because my ancestors are carrying me,” he said.

Justice Henry Billings Brown wrote in the 7-1 decision: “Legislation is powerless to eradicate racial instincts or to abolish distinctions based upon physical differences.”

Justice John Marshall Harlan was the only dissenting voice, writing that he believed the ruling “will, in time, prove to be quite as pernicious as the decision made by this tribunal in the Dred Scott Case” – an 1857 decision that said no Black person who had been enslaved or was descended from a slave could ever become a U.S. citizen.

The ceremony began with cellist Kate Dillingham – a descendant of the dissenting justice – playing “Lift Every Voice and Sing” while the audience sang along.

The Plessy v. Ferguson ruling allowing racial segregation across American life stood as the law of the land until the Supreme Court unanimously overruled it in 1954, in Brown v. the Board of Education. Both cases argued that segregation laws violated the 14th Amendment’s right to equal protection.

The Brown decision led to widespread public school desegregation and the eventual stripping away of Jim Crow laws that discriminated against Black Americans.

Plessy was a member of the Citizens Committee, a New Orleans group trying to overcome laws that rolled back post-Civil War advances in equality.

The 30-year-old shoemaker lacked the business, political and educational accomplishments of most of the other members, Keith Weldon Medley wrote in the book “We As Freemen: Plessy v. Ferguson.” But his light skin – court papers described him as someone whose “one eighth African blood” was “not discernable” – positioned him for the train car protest.

Eight months after the ruling in his case, Plessy pleaded guilty and was fined $25 at a time when 25 cents would buy a pound of round steak and 10 pounds of potatoes.

Oldest US veteran of WWII, Lawrence N. Brooks, dies at 112

By LEAH WILLINGHAM and REBECCA SANTANA Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Lawrence N. Brooks, the oldest World War II veteran in the U.S. — and believed to be the oldest man in the country — died on Wednesday at the age of 112.

His death was announced by the National WWII Museum and confirmed by his daughter.

Most African Americans serving in the segregated U.S. armed forces at the beginning of World War II were assigned to noncombat units and relegated to service duties, such as supply, maintenance and transportation, said Col. Pete Crean, vice president of education and access at the museum in New Orleans.

"The reason for that was outright racism — there's no other way to characterize it," Crean said.

But Brooks, born on Sept. 12, 1909, was known for his good-natured sense of humor, positivity and kindness. When asked for his secret to a long life, he often said, "serving God and being nice to people."

"I don't have no hard feelings toward nobody," he said during a 2014 oral history interview with the museum. "I just want everything to be lovely, to come out right. I want people to have fun and enjoy themselves — be happy and not sad."

On sunny days, Brooks was known for sitting on the front porch of the double shotgun house he shared with daughter Vanessa Brooks in the Central City neighborhood of New Orleans. Neighbors would call out to the local celebrity, wave and bring him soda and snacks.

Brooks was passionate about the New Orleans Saints football team and never missed a game, his daughter said. His church, St. Luke's Episcopal, was also close to his heart and he never missed a Sunday service until the coronavirus pandemic hit.

Originally from Norwood, Louisiana, near Baton Rouge, Brooks' family moved to the Mississippi Delta when he was an infant. He was one of 15 children, and lived too far from the nearest school, so his parents taught him what they could at home.

Brooks was working at a sawmill when he was drafted into the U.S. Army in 1940. After Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor, he was assigned to the mostly Black 91st Engineer General Service Regiment stationed in Australia.

Later in the war, troop losses virtually forced the military to begin placing more African American troops into combat positions. In 1941, fewer than 4,000 African Americans were serving in the military. By 1945, that number increased to more than 1.2 million.

The 91st, where Brooks served, was an Army unit that built bridges, roads and airstrips for planes. Brooks was assigned as a caretaker to three white officers. His job was to cook, drive and take care of their clothes.

Despite not being in combat, Brooks did experience enemy fire during the war. He said the Japanese would sometimes bomb Owen Island, where he worked.

DeSantis budget for preservation projects is encouraging

Gov. Ron DeSantis' proposed state budget for 2022-2023 allocates more than $4 billion to a variety of water conservation and environmental projects. It's a good starting point.

Everyone can agree on the importance of natural resources to our quality of life and to both local and state economies. Citrus County particularly pays a lot of attention to water issues; they're high on the county's wish list to the legislative delegation.

The governor's proposed budget includes a significant amount for Everglades restoration, plus it builds on last year's actions to increase the resiliency of coastal and inland communities. The resiliency funding would augment last year's, allocated when the law was enacted. It addresses flooding, which has been an issue in Citrus County.

There's also $100 million for the Florida Forever program – not as much as environmentalists want, but it's a start – plus about half that for infrastructure and resource management projects in state parks. Citrus County is home to a number of state parks: Ellie Schiller Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park, Crystal River Preserve State Park, Crystal River Archeological State Park, Yulee Sugar Mill Ruins Historic State Park, Fort Cooper State Park, and don't forget the Withlacoochee State Trail, a multi-county linear park in the state system.

Of particular interest is the governor's proposed

THE ISSUE:

Governor's proposed budget includes preservation projects.

OUR OPINION:

Correctly prioritizes the environment.

$3.8 million allocation to protect the state's manatee population. Manatees play an outsized role in Citrus County's self-image and economy. We're proud of the successful, ongoing efforts in King's Bay to eliminate muck and plant the healthy eel grass on which manatees feed.

The King's Bay template has been adopted in Homosassa waters, and we urge other areas to study and emulate it. The Indian River Lagoon, on Florida's east coast, was the site of a record manatee die-off in 2021 from starvation, due to decades of seagrass loss. Now, a Fort Pierce nonprofit seems to be heading in the right direction: It is currently fundraising to restore a 1-acre plot with healthy seagrass, and it's working with the same contractor that has been instrumental in the King's Bay project.

We hope that the governor's proposal for manatee protection is retained or increased by legislators, who will convene for their 60-day session on January 11. And we hope that the monies identified for manatee protection are directed toward habitat restoration. Undoubtedly, we'll hear more about this as it works its way through the legislature, but you should let lawmakers know right now that this is a priority for you.

Don't forget, they voted against bill

(Re Monday, Dec. 27's front-page story, "Legislator supports bridge replacement"): While it's nice the Sen. Dennis Baxley and Sen. Wilton Simpson are in favor of replacing the bridge on (State Road) 200 at the river, let's not forget that they and the rest of the Republican senators voted against the infrastructure bill that will pay for it.

Editor's Note: Sen. Baxley and Sen. Simpson are state lawmakers; they had no say in the infrastructure bill.

Base it on payments, not credit

I'm responding to "There's always someone who'll help" (Tuesday, Dec. 28's Page A9, Sound Off). The person said about the credit for the apartment complexes, that there's someone out there who will help you if your credit is zero. Well, my credit is zero and every apartment complex I went to, every one has been denied – every one of them. I even offered to pay two years' rent upfront and guess what? Denied – no! They based it on (my) credit report, not payment history. So sad.

Kudos to volunteers at animal shelter

I just want to give a big high-five to the people, the volunteers, that delivered the toys to the dogs at the animal shelter on Christmas morning in the little elf hats. I mean, come on, people can't be any sweeter than this. I just love that we have volunteers like this. What a sweet thing to do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Project doesn't pass the smell test

Well, we are moving ahead with the $8 million to $9 million animal shelter with no cost for the land, as I understand it. Meanwhile, two other major projects are underway that require the developers to pay for the land and likely higher fees but cost less.

One is an ALF-type village facility with a large commercial kitchen, individual rooms, numerous bathrooms, air conditioning of several configurations, etc.

The other a three-story, extended stay, 72 unit, motel/hotel with elevators, bathrooms, kitchenettes, air conditioners, etc.

Your choice, about $7 million. You could also build 70 or more, nice, three-bedroom homes for the money.

Coming from a family that was involved with building individual homes, apartments to large commercial projects, things don't make sense, nor pass the smell test.

New fonts easier to read

I don't see what some of your paper's readers are complaining about. The type fonts are small, but I noticed the print is now darker making it a bit easier to read. I like it. Good job getting rid of comics Moderately Confused and Rubes – they were awful. Like many other readers I would like to see the Peanuts comic strip brought back.

We should teach information literacy

As a retired college librarian, I remember (not so long ago) the days when the focus of our teaching was the concept "information literacy." This concept was to teach – hopefully – individuals ways to evaluate ideas, facts, and opinions that are available to them as they work to develop themes for college papers.

I would advocate for the teaching of this concept to be made universal. The need for people to be able to locate, assess, and put into personal use the information discovered for the issue needing to be solved. I have not been retired that long, but it seems that the national level of stupidity has exploded. Please, everyone, be careful out there!

Commissioners did the right thing, thank you

Universal Trash Collection (UTC) would have very little, if any, impact on reducing the amount of litter people throw alongside our roadways. Most of the general roadside litter is stuff that someone doesn't want people at home to know that they have had.

On more than one occasion I have seen up close the litter alongside West Dunklin Street between North Citrus Avenue and Citrus Springs Boulevard and N. Citrus Avenue between West Dunnellon Road and Turkey Hill Road.

There were no bags of household garbage disposed of along the roads, it was all smaller trash from fast food places, donut shops, gas station food containers and soda and beer cans. Many of the food containers, at least before the animals got to them, were discarded with some of the food uneaten as if whoops getting close to home, let me throw this half-eaten donut out the window, don't want to get caught eating a donut, or a burger or gas station hot dog, or nachos or pretzels etc. (Yes dear, I don't know why I'm not losing weight, I'm sticking to the diet.)

I am not sure how much normal everyday household garbage is dumped around the county. While I have had to personally deal with several instances of stuff being dumped on my properties, none was everyday household trash. I've had vehicles, tires, appliances, newspaper boxes, furniture, kitchen cabinets and countertops, yard materials among other things dumped on my property. Unless UTC is going to pick those type items up in a timely manner, without an additional charge, dumping will continue.

The only thing that will abate that type of dumping is enforcement, which is severely lacking in Citrus County. We had an individual from Marion County being paid to clean up a yard in Citrus, dumping all over the neighborhood. After he dumped over 15 loads, he was caught and photographed in the act. The deputy wrote a report, nothing else was done!

Mandatory UTC would hurt seniors who generate one or two bags of trash a week and are currently "trash sharing" with a friend or neighbor.

Enforcement, enforcement the answer. Does not have to be severe to be effective. First littering offense could be $50, second $250, third $500 and mandatory community service picking up trash alongside roadways.

Please make sure the solution addresses the problem.

Philadelphia firefighters work after a deadly row house fire Wednesday in the Fairmount neighborhood of Philadelphia.

At least 12 dead in Philly blaze

Eight children among victims

By RON TODT and CLAUDIA LAUER

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Fire tore through a duplex home early Wednesday in Philadelphia, killing 12 people, including eight children, fire officials said. At least two people were sent to hospitals, and officials warned the toll could grow as firefighters searched the brick rowhome, where 26 people had been staying. The four smoke alarms in the building, which was public housing, do not appear to have been working, fire officials said. The blaze’s cause was not determined, but officials shaken by the death toll — apparently the highest in a single fire in the city in at least a century — vowed to get to the bottom of it.

“I knew some of those kids — I used to see them playing on the corner,” said Dannie McGuire, 34, fighting back tears as she and Martin Burgert, 35, stood in the doorway of a home around the corner.

“I can’t picture how more people couldn’t get out — jumping out a window,” she said.

Officials did not release the names or ages of those killed in the blaze, which started before 6:30 a.m. As many as eight residents appear to have been able to escape the fire.

Family members on Facebook have identified two of the victims as sisters Rosalee McDonald, 33, and Virginia Thomas, 30. The siblings each had multiple children but it’s unclear if all of them were home at the time of the fire or how many of them died. Messages were left with several people who said they knew or were related to the victims.

Fire officials had initially said 13 people died in the fire, seven of them children, but totals were updated Wednesday evening. Eight children and four adults were found dead, officials said.

The fire burned in a residential area of the Fairmount neighborhood, northwest of downtown and home to the Philadelphia Museum of Art and its famous steps from the film “Rocky.”

Streets around the scene of the fire remained blocked off Wednesday evening. Moments after the last firetruck pulled away from the front of the house, several neighbors quietly approached the foot of the block and left candles and flowers.

Chicago cancels classes for 2nd day

By SOPHIA TAREEN

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Chicago school leaders canceled classes Thursday for a second consecutive day after failing to reach agreement with the teachers union over COVID-19 safety protocols in the nation’s third-largest school district.

The Chicago Teachers Union sought to revert to remote instruction during the latest surge of infections and while both sides hammer out a deal. But Chicago Public Schools leaders have said remote learning didn’t work and schools can safely remain open with protocols in place.

The move to cancel classes and activities Thursday affects roughly 350,000 students and came after closed-door negotiations Wednesday failed to produce a deal. The issues include metrics for closing schools.

“We have no choice but to cancel classes tomorrow,” Schools CEO Pedro Martinez said at a Wednesday evening news conference.

Students returned to class Monday after a two-week winter break with COVID-19 infections and hospitalizations fueled by the omicron variant at record levels.

School districts nationwide have grappled with the same issue, with most opting to stay open while ramping up virus testing, tweaking protocols and other adjustments in response to the shifting pandemic. White House press secretary Jen Psaki, echoing President Joe Biden a day earlier, said Wednesday that the country is better equipped now to make sure schools can safely open “including in Chicago,” while former President Donald Trump called the closures “devastating.”

Chicago Teachers Union President Jesse Sharkey said teachers don’t want to return to in-person instruction until the current surge has subsided.

“We’d rather be in our classes teaching, we’d rather have the schools open. What we are saying though is that right now we’re in the middle of a major surge, it is breaking all the records and hospitals are full,” he said during a Wednesday morning news conference with other union officials, teachers and parents.

The union’s action, approved by 73 percent of members, called for remote instruction until “cases substantially subside” or union leaders approve an agreement for safety protocols with the district.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The upcoming Grammy Awards were postponed Wednesday due to what organizers called “too many risks” due to the omicron variant. No new date has been announced.

The ceremony had been scheduled for Jan. 31st in Los Angeles with a live audience and performances. The Recording Academy said it made the decision to postpone the ceremony “after careful consideration and analysis with city and state officials, health and safety experts, the artist community and our many partners.”

“Given the uncertainty surrounding the omicron variant, holding the show on January 31st simply contains too many risks,” the academy said in a statement.

Last year, like most major awards shows in early 2021, the Grammys were postponed due to coronavirus concerns. The show was moved from late January to mid-March and held with a spare audience made up of mostly nominees and their guests in and around the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Many performances were pre-taped, and none were in front of significant crowds.

The Grammys had been scheduled this year to return to its traditional home next door, the Crypto.com Arena, formerly the Staples Center.

“We look forward to celebrating Music’s Biggest Night on a future date, which will be announced soon,” the academy statement said.

US urges COVID boosters starting at age 12

The U.S. is urging that everyone 12 and older get a COVID-19 booster as soon as they’re eligible, to help fight back the hugely contagious omicron mutant that’s ripping through the country.

Boosters already were encouraged for all Americans 16 and older, but Wednesday the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention endorsed an extra Pfizer shot for younger teens — those 12 to 15 — and strengthened its recommendation that 16- and 17-year-olds get it, too.

“It is critical that we protect our children and teens from COVID-19 infection and the complications of severe disease,” Dr. Rochelle Walensky, the CDC’s director, said in a statement Wednesday night.

“This booster dose will provide optimized protection against COVID-19 and the Omicron variant. I encourage all parents to keep their children up to date with CDC’s COVID-19 vaccine recommendations,” she said.

Vaccines still offer strong protection against serious illness from any type of COVID-19, including omicron — what experts say is their most important benefit. But the newest mutant can slip past a layer of the vaccines’ protection to cause milder infections. Studies show a booster dose at least temporarily revs up virus-fighting antibodies to levels that offer the best chance at avoiding symptomatic infection, even from omicron.

Earlier Wednesday, the CDC’s independent scientific advisers wrestled with whether a booster should be an option for younger teens, who tend not to get as sick from COVID-19 as adults, or more strongly recommended.

Giving teens a booster for a temporary jump in protection against infections is like playing whack-a-mole, cautioned CDC adviser Dr. Sarah Long of Drexel University. But she said the extra shot was worth it to help push back the omicron mutant and shield kids from the missed school and other problems that come with even a very mild case of COVID-19.

US, Germany say Russia poses ‘urgent’ challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Germany said Wednesday that Russia’s military buildup near Ukraine’s border poses an “immediate and urgent challenge” to European security and that any intervention will draw severe consequences.

But the country’s top diplomats left open what those consequences would be and how differences on arming Ukraine and a controversial Russian gas pipeline will be resolved.

Secretary of State Antony Blinken and German Foreign Minister Annalena Baerbock sought to present a unified front on Russia after a meeting in Washington.

“Both Germany and the United States see Russia’s actions toward Ukraine as an immediate and urgent challenge to peace and stability in Europe,” Blinken said.

“We condemn Russia’s military buildup on Ukraine’s borders, as well as Russia’s increasingly harsh rhetoric as it continues to push the false narrative that Ukraine seeks to provoke (Russia),” he said. “That’s a little bit like the fox saying it had no choice but to attack the henhouse because somehow the hens presented a threat.”

Baerbock agreed. “We jointly reiterated that Russian actions and activities come with a clear price tag, and a renewed violation of Ukrainian sovereignty by Russia would have severe consequences,” she said.

The Blinken-Baerbock meeting followed a telephone call last week between President Joe Biden and Russian President Vladimir Putin, a conversation Sunday between Biden and Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, and a group discussion Tuesday among Biden’s national security adviser Jake Sullivan and his counterparts from the five Nordic nations.

In Israel, omicron drives records, leads to 4th shots

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel opened to tourists for the first time in nearly two years. After just a month, it slammed shut. Now the omicron variant has set a widely-expected record for new infections in the country, which will once again crack open on Sunday — but only to travelers from certain nations.

The back-and-forth has created whiplash for many Israelis. Even in the relatively small, wealthy Mideast nation — an early global leader against the coronavirus pandemic — the omicron variant is outpacing the government’s ability to make and execute clear pandemic public policy. What once was a straightforward regimen of vaccines, testing, contact tracing and distancing for the nation of 9.4 million has splintered into a zigzag of rules that seem to change every few days.

The confusion here, on everything from tourism to testing, quarantines, masks and school policy, offers a glimpse of the pandemic puzzle facing governments worldwide as the omicron variant burns through the population. Someday, the World Health Organization will declare the pandemic over. But in the meantime, leaders are weighing how much illness, isolation and death people are willing to risk.

A year after Capitol attack, police chief marks improvements in site’s security

By FARNOUSH AMIRI and KEVIN FREKING

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A year after the Jan. 6 Capitol attack, the new chief of the U.S. Capitol Police said Wednesday he is making progress in resolving “critical deficiencies” despite major staffing shortages and thousands of new threats to members of Congress.

“We’re going to get tested again” and will be prepared, declared Chief J. Thomas Manger.

Changes include improving the agency’s ability to gather, analyze and share intelligence with other federal and state law enforcement forces, Manger said. That failing contributed to a lack of defensive forces at the violent Capitol insurrection as rioters fought past outmanned police, leaving more than 100 of them injured.

Manger is dealing with recommendations from an internal watchdog to move the agency from a traditional police department to a protective force.

“January 6 exposed critical deficiencies with operational planning, intelligence, staffing and equipment,” Manger said in testimony. “I recognize those issues have to be addressed, and that is what we are doing.”

Manger, who was installed as the new leader shortly after the attack, said the force today is stronger and better equipped to handle an attack against the Capitol or lawmakers than it was a year ago.

The force is also working toward more state-of-the-art training for its 1,800 sworn police officers and nearly 400 civilian employees after a report from U.S. Capitol Police Inspector General documented that more than 75 percent of officers on Jan. 6, 2021, were forced to protect the Capitol in their regular uniforms, often facing off with rioters who were better equipped for a fight.

But even with new equipment and intelligence-sharing capabilities, the biggest challenge the force faces is staffing. It is now 450 officers short of the agency’s needs, Manger said. More than 150 officers have either retired or resigned over the past year.

In the short term, the chief is looking to add more transfers from other law enforcement agencies and to contract with private security officers for locations that don’t need armed officers. Over the longer term, he wants to hire 280 police officers per year over the next three years.

“That will get us ahead of attrition, and my hope is that will get us to where we need to be in terms of staffing,” Manger said.

Lawmakers are also concerned about the rise in threats in their home districts and states.

“Many people in this very room, committee members have experienced them. Over 9,000 threats in 2021 alone,” Sen. Amy Klobuchar, chairwoman of the Senate committee, said Wednesday.

Manger said the Capitol Police are looking to improve coordination with local law enforcement to better secure lawmakers’ offices and homes.

Get a little crabby on game night

By METROCREATIVE

Families and friends will soon be gathering to cheer on their favorite teams in the season's pinnacle match-ups leading to Super Bowl LVI. To ensure guests have enough energy to ride out the drama, hosts should provide plenty of food. Finger foods are preferential on game days because they are easy to grab and eat by hand, especially when clamoring for space in a crowd. Sliders or cheese sticks are go-to options, but for a more gourmet offering, think about crab cakes. These Best Crab Cakes Ever, as they are billed in "BBQ Revolution" (Harvard Common Press) by Mitch Benjamin, are a tasty change of pace.

Best Crab Cakes Ever

- Makes 6
1/2 cup unsalted butter, plus 1 tablespoon
2 celery ribs, minced
1/2 yellow onion, minced
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, preferably toasted, plus more as needed
1 teaspoon plus 1 tablespoon Old Bay Seasoning
1 tablespoon hot sauce
2 pounds smoked jumbo lump crabmeat
6 tablespoons heavy whipping cream
3 large eggs
26 Ritz crackers, crushed
Vegetable oil, for pan-frying
2 tablespoons chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
2 lemons, cut into wedges for garnish

Heat a stick of butter in a small pot over low heat until the solids separate. Skim off the white foam that rises to the top with a little ladle and pour the clear butter aside to cool. In another small pot, melt the remaining 1 tablespoon of butter and add the minced celery and onion as well as the 1/2 teaspoon of black pepper and the 1 teaspoon of Old Bay Seasoning. Cover and sweat this over medium-low heat for about 10 minutes or until the vegetables are nice and soft. It's going to smell amazing, but don't start eating now! Remove the veggies from the heat and let them cool down. Transfer the veggies plus the clarified butter and the hot sauce into a large mixing bowl. Add the crab and heavy whipping cream and mix gently. The worst thing you could do here is overmix the crab and break up the fat lumps you just paid a premium for. Cover and place this mixture in the freezer for 30 minutes or so. Remove and form the mix into 5-ounce balls (the size of a snowball) in your hands. Again, be gentle; you aren't packing these snowballs for war. You should be able to get six good ones out of the mix. Cover in plastic wrap and then return to the freezer for at least 4 hours or up to overnight. You need to get these nice and cold since you aren't using any filler/binder in these crab cakes. While the mix is chilling, whip your eggs in a small mixing bowl with a crack of freshly ground black pepper. Add the crushed Ritz crackers to another bowl with the remaining 1 tablespoon of Old Bay Seasoning. Go ahead and preheat the oven to 350 degrees for later. Remove the frozen crab cakes from the freezer and dunk them in the egg and then into the seasoned Ritz crumble mix. Cover completely. Repeat with all the crab cakes and set aside. Get about 1/8 inch of your vegetable oil ripping hot in a cast iron pan over coals on the grill. I like to cook these crab cakes outside in order to keep the oil smell from taking over the kitchen. There's nothing better than a cast iron skillet over hot coals. If you must, place over your gas stove at home. Get it hot. I like to drip water droplets in to see when the oil is hot enough. The droplets will sizzle and pop, and that's how you know it's ready. Carefully drop the crab cakes in the pan and press down on them lightly just to slightly flatten them so they appear a little more cakelike and lay nicely on your plate. Fry for 4 to 5 minutes on each side until you have made a perfect golden crust (don't burn the outside). Then, put the entire cast iron skillet in the oven for 20 minutes. If desired, you can use a fish spatula or slotted spoon to transfer the cakes to a baking sheet – and leave the oil smell outside. After 20 minutes, remove from the oven and plate up!

Duck à l'orange

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 whole duck, about 2.5 kilograms
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 French shallots, peeled
- 1 lemon, quartered
- 1 apple, quartered
- A few sprigs fresh thyme
- 1 cup honey
- 2 tablespoons molasses
- 3 tablespoons orange juice
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons garlic powder
- 2 teaspoons onion powder
- Salt and pepper, to taste

METHOD

- Remove the giblets from the cavity of the duck, if necessary. Pat the skin dry with paper towels and leave uncovered overnight in the fridge.
- Preheat the oven to 150 C (300 F). Using a knife, score the fat on the breasts, taking care not to cut the flesh. Salt the outside and inside of the duck evenly. Stuff the cavity with the garlic, shallots, lemon, apple and thyme. Close the cavity with butcher's twine or toothpicks.
- Place the duck in a baking dish, breast side up, and bake for 1 hour. Turn the duck, breast side down, and bake for another hour. Turn it over one last time and bake for one last hour.
- Meanwhile, in a small saucepan, bring the remaining ingredients to a boil. Reduce the heat and simmer for about 10 minutes, until the glaze thickens.
- After it's cooked for 3 hours, remove the duck from the oven and increase the temperature to 205 C (400 F). Brush the duck with the glaze and place it in the oven for 10 minutes. Baste the duck with the glaze again, and bake for another 10 minutes.
- Let the duck stand for at least 15 minutes, then present it on a large platter garnished with holly leaves, oranges and fresh fruit.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

Thyme-scented roasted carrots

INGREDIENTS:

- 16 thin carrots, with stalks
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 teaspoon onion powder
- 4 sprigs fresh thyme
- Salt and pepper, to taste

METHOD

- Preheat the oven to 220 C (425 F). Wash the carrots well, and peel them if the peel seems too thick.
- Cut the stalks off the carrots, leaving about 2 centimetres on the end of each carrot. Place them in a baking dish, then add the olive oil, spices and leaves from 3 of the thyme sprigs. Season with salt and pepper, then mix well with your hands or tongs to coat each carrot.
- Place in the oven for about 20 minutes, turning the carrots halfway. Place the carrots on a serving plate, and garnish with a sprig of thyme.

1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup butter, melted

Gloria Yoder
The Amish Cook

2 teaspoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
Whisk wet ingredients together, then mix in dry and stir until combined. Don't overmix after adding dry ingredients. Also, Daniel has discovered that it works best to

Try these super foods for a nutritious diet

By FAMILY FEATURES

The health community has long praised the benefits of vitamins and nutrients derived from natural sources.

For those looking to improve their health or take preventative measures, these 10 natural super foods can be incorporated into your daily diet to help support your health:

Green tea

Armed with a special type of antioxidants called polyphenols, green tea can decrease plaque formed in the arteries and can fight prostate cancer.

Rosemary

Studies have shown this powerful spice can reduce the risk of stroke, as well as protect against Alzheimer's disease.

Almonds

Full of plant sterols and amino acids, almonds can help lower high cholesterol and promote muscle growth. These handheld treats are also rich in vitamin E, which can protect skin from sun damage.

Fatty fish

Rich in omega-3 fatty acids, fatty fish such as salmon, flounder and sardines can lower the risk of heart disease.

Bananas

This easy, portable snack is loaded with essential potassium, which regulates the nervous system. Bananas also offer loads of vitamin B-6, which aids immunity and metabolism.

Whole grains

These powerful body defenders have been known to boost immunity, protect against various cancers and reduce cholesterol.

Eggs

These energy-packed breakfast favorites contain a special type of protein that helps build muscle strength more than other proteins. When compared to other breakfast foods, eggs can also keep you feeling fuller longer with fewer calories and fat.

Spinach

Chock-full of magnesium, potassium and various vitamins and nutrients, spinach can prevent clogged arteries and protect against prostate and colon cancers.

Soy

This protein-packed food contains isoflavones, which can aid in treatment and prevention of prostate cancer. Also, research from the Food and Drug Administration shows that 25 grams per day can help lessen the risk of heart disease.

Dark chocolate

Satisfy your sweet tooth and improve blood flow to the brain at the same time. Dark chocolate can also lower blood pressure and increase skin's resistance to UV rays. Find more health-conscious tips at eLivingToday.com.

A variety of cheeses, spreads and cured meats are displayed on a graze board. Olives, pickles, and marinated vegetables of all kinds offer a tangy crunch and briny flavor in between bites of cheeses and charcuterie.

Get on board for great grazing

Variety of condiments are key

By KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

If you have dipped into Pinterest even briefly over the past few years, you know that graze or grazing boards are A Thing. Beautiful boards or platters are filled with all kinds of food ready to be sampled, snacked up, nibbled and, OK, grazed.

It's a nice way to entertain, or to offer up a room-temperature meal for your family during game nights, movie nights or what have you.

Graze boards generally include a variety of cheeses, cured meats, nuts, vegetables and fruits, fresh or dried. On the side or tucked into the board itself: sliced bread, crackers, chips.

And here's where things get really interesting: condiments.

Mustards, spreads, pestos ... but don't just think savory; sweet is really nice, especially when paired with cheeses. Jams, jellies and honeys make perfect pairings for much of what's on offer. Also, olives, pickles and marinated vegetables of all kinds offer a tangy crunch and briny flavor in between bites of cheeses and charcuterie.

Spreadable condiments play nicely against cured meats like prosciutto and salami, or cheeses ranging from sharp cheddar to a creamy triple cr me cheese.

Spread some on a cracker or a slice of bread, stack on some meats and/or cheeses, and away you go.

The mixing and matching is what makes graze boards so much fun. Every bite is customized. It's a great way to try new flavors and experiment with different taste combinations.

As a side notes, when you are traveling, this is a great way to bring home a taste of your trip. I always buy jams, pestos, chutneys, etc. to play with back in my home kitchen, or to keep on hand for gifts. Everywhere you travel you'll find products that are locally made and make use of the ingredients and spices of the region.

Jams and jellies

Janie Q is a small-batch jam company run by the folks at Back in the Day Bakery in Savannah, and their handmade flavors include Cherry Plum and Peach Lavender. Coo Moo out of California makes jams such as Apricot Habanero (sweet plus heat) and Peachy Mango Madness.

Trade Street Jam Co. makes flavors like Smoked Yellow Peach, Strawberry Chipotle and Fig, and Sour Cherry Ginger.

Fior di Frutta from Italy makes organic fruit spreads, like fig, blackberry and cranberry (fun and seasonal).

Beyond sweet jams and jellies, look for caramelized onion jams, pepper jellies and the like. Terrapin Ridge makes a Hot Pepper Bacon Jam, a Jalapeno Hatch Chili Jam, and other unique sweet and savory combos.

There are a number of caramelized onion jams out there that buddy up nicely to everything on a graze board: Try the ones from Divina, Williams-Sonoma and Jammy Yummy.

Olives

The world of olives is worth highlighting, though technically it might not fall directly under "condiments." Divina has a ton to choose from: Greek olives stuffed with spicy blue cheese, feta or garlic, or pitted kalamata or green olives They also have tapenades, like their Olive Bruschetta with Capers and Roasted Red Peppers, or their Muffuletta Olive Salad with cauliflower and pepperoncini. Their chopped Calabrian Peppers and Roasted Tomatoes are also worth noting.

Spreads

There are so many interesting spreads out there, great to swish onto a cracker or a toasted slice of baguette.

Bellisari's in Ohio makes fun spreads like one with Blue Cheese, Honey and Shallots, or a Blistered Jalapeno and Fig Spread.

Coro, a specialty cured-meat producer out of Seattle, makes interesting offerings like Plum Mustard, Giardiniera Relish, and Herb and Caper Spread designed to pair up with salamis.

Pickled vegetables

The Tillen Farms collection from Stonewall Kitchens presents a line of crisp, pickled vegetables like classic asparagus, baby cucumbers and Dilly Beans. This is a great way to add tanginess and crunch to your assortment of cheese, meats, etc.

Kansas City Canning Company makes unusual pickled items like pickled radishes, garlic and balsamic pickled grapes.

Honey

A drizzle of honey over a slice of bread topped with a bit of cheese, maybe a paper-thin slice of prosciutto, is a total treat.

Vermont-based Runamok has a serious selection of honeys to play with: Try those infused with hibiscus flower, Arbol chiles or lemon verbena, to name a few.

Mustards

Mustard is a must-have condiment for me in all ways, and a swipe matched up with a slice of salami and cheese on a cracker is a perfect bite. Maille, started in 1747 in France, is one of the the pre-eminent makers of Dijon mustard, and you can choose from a classic style, like Rich Country Dijon, or go for one spiked with horseradish.

Stonewall makes loads of mustard varieties like Maine Maple Champagne Mustard or Caramelized Onion Mustard.

Brooklyn Mustard makes a Delhi Curry Mustard that will bring a unexpected twist to your board.

For celebrations, English fizz on the rise

By LOUISE DIXON
Associated Press

LONDON — English sparkling wine has been gaining prestige in recent years, with some experts comparing it to Champagne in taste and quality.

Globally, the sector is still relatively small: IWSR Drinks Market Analysis reports that sparkling wine produced in the U.K. represents about 0.2 percent of total global sparkling wine volume. But sales are growing: U.K.-produced sparkling wine volume rose by almost 11 percent from 2015-2020, the report said.

"Maybe 10 years ago, there were only two or three wines which might have been known outside of the U.K. or certainly recognized by wine critics as well," says Jonathan White, spokesman for British wine producer Gusbourne. Today, "there's a collective of maybe 10 to 20 producers that are making really excellent wines."

Gusbourne planted their first vines in Appledore, Kent, in 2004. They released their debut Brut and Blanc de Blanc sparkling wines in 2010, and say demand has been growing ever since.

"There's been a surge of interest from overseas in recent years as wine media and critics have started to talk more fondly and more positively about the wines from England," White says.

Known as the "Garden of England," Kent has long been home to fruit-growing in the U.K., so it's natural the area has become one of the country's most successful wine-growing regions.

The pandemic gave local producers a boost in 2020 because travelers who couldn't visit wineries abroad "started to realize that they could actually visit a winery at home," says Anne McHale, a certified master of wine in London.

Talking from The Bloomsbury Hotel, where she has curated one of the largest English sparkling wine menus in the U.K., McHale says English sparkling made its name in 1998 when Nyetimber won best sparkling wine in the world at the International Wine and Spirits Competition.

"It was judged blind against a whole load of Champagnes and other sparkling wines by top industry judges, so people began to become aware that in this country we can actually make good quality wine," she says.

Part of English sparkling wine's attraction, she says, is its close resemblance to Champagne. It uses the same three grapes — Pinot Noir, Chardonnay and Meunier — and the same production method, the "traditional method."

"This means the wine undergoes a second fermentation in bottle. The bubbles get trapped, and then the wine has the opportunity to spend some time aging on the yeast, which gives it that lovely, biscuity brioche character," McHale says.

She adds that the soils where English vines are planted around the South Downs in South-eastern England contain a lot of chalk that is nearly identical to France's Champagne region.

For all their similarities, there are also factors that give English sparkling wine a unique flavor.

"We're quite a bit further north than Champagne. It's cooler. And as a result, you get a higher level of acidity in the grapes, which then translates into more of a sort of mouth-watering bite of crispness and freshness in the wine," says McHale.

White agrees. "Champagnes tend to have that sort of lovely, toasty richness that comes from maybe a slightly warmer climate, and wines which are maybe slightly more generous in that fruit kind of offering. English wines have a much more sort of steely, citrus backbone to them."

Jon Pollard, chief vineyard manager at Gusbourne, says Britain's longer growing season also affects the flavor.

"We've got this ability to have a slow ripening season, partly because of the slightly lower temperatures in this country and the lower sunlight levels. But that really allows the flavor profiles within the fruit to build up," he says.

Pollard adds that Kent is perfectly located high off the coastline, providing a free-flowing breeze to keep the crop clean and fresh.

At the same time, England's temperamental climate can prove a challenge.

Pollard says it's taken years of trial and error to create the perfect growing conditions. "You do start to know where the problems will occur," he says. "So we know where we might start to see a little bit of disease creep in and we know where we will have issues with frost and things like that. So every year that goes on, we just get to learn more and more about the science and what we can expect from it."

Vann finalist for Florida's Mr. Football

Named top player in Independent class

By MATT PFIFFNER
Sports editor

Seven Rivers Christian junior Nehemiah Vann is a finalist for the prestigious 2021 Florida Dairy Farmers Mr. Football award following balloting by a statewide panel of high school football coaches and prep media representatives.

Vann was named the Independent Classification Player of the Year following an outstanding junior campaign. He received 58 points in the voting, well ahead of runner-up Cortland Mitchell of Osceola's total of 46 points.

"He's worked super hard for it. Totally unexpected, just because there are so many independent programs out there," Seven Rivers Christian head coach and Nehemiah's father, Monty Vann, said. "It was a great late Christmas present for him. He was super pumped up about it. He's definitely worked hard for it, but wants to stay humble and work hard for next year.

"As a coach I'm proud of him. As a dad, I'm even more proud of his reaction when he saw it. Super humble attitude. He didn't get on Twitter and start talking about himself. There's not many young men who would treat things like that. He's just super humble about it and seems to be pretty focused in on his teammates more than anything else."

The Warrior quarterback/defensive back completed 121 of 214 passes (56.5 percent) for 2,100 yards with 29 touchdowns and just 3 interceptions. Vann also rushed for 312 yards and seven touchdowns. On defense, Vann recorded 35 tackles, including 21 solo stops, and intercepted a pair of passes.

Nehemiah Vann's individual recognition is also recognition for the entire program, coach Vann said.

"I think it does a lot for our program. It shows we're not just putting quality young football players out there, but quality young men," coach Vann said. "Nehemiah would be the first to tell you no way this would happen without his linemen, running backs and receivers. That's what this program does, they build off each other."

Vann is one of nine finalists for the statewide Mr. Football award. He is joined on the final ballot by players of the year from Classes 1A-8A.

Every finalist was the leading vote-getter in his classification, making each one the Player of the Year in his class. The overall winner will be announced following a final round of balloting by coaches and media.

"Us being an independent program and he being a junior, it seems a little far-fetched to get it, but that's not our main goal," coach Vann said.

Panthers pin down regional berth

Lecanto wrestlers edge Land O' Lakes to advance

NEW PORT RICHEY — The Lecanto wrestling team got a second chance to advance to regionals out of the District 2A-5 Dual Tournament held Wednesday at River Ridge High School.

The Panthers weren't going to let that second chance go to waste.

Third-seeded Lecanto topped No. 1 seed Land O' Lakes 42-34 in the second-place match to earn the runner-up berth to regionals behind district champion River Ridge.

The Panthers and Royal Knights advance to the Region 2A-2 Dual Tournament next week at a location to be named.

After losing 42-37 in the semifinals against second-seeded River Ridge, the Panthers didn't know if they would have another dual or not. When the host Royal Knights took down Land O' Lakes in the finals, that gave Lecanto a chance to wrestle the Gators for a true second place, since the two teams didn't meet earlier in the evening.

Leading by just two points heading into the final match, the Panthers got a pin from James Greene at 120 to close the door on the Gators.

"It was a team effort," Lecanto head coach Jose Mendez said.

He pointed to a close loss by Joseph Darnell to a ranked wrestler and a big 10-9 win at 220 by Kaleb Feuston as key moments in the meet.

Trevor Rueck won by fall in 39 seconds at 126, Diego Mendez at 138 had a 46-second pin, Travis La-Belle decked his foe at 182 in 17 seconds, Jacob Cameron had a pin at 195, Nick Cowart received a forfeit at heavyweight and Lorenzo Macatol bumped up from 106 to 113 and won 15-11, to give Lecanto a 36-34 lead entering Greene's bout.

In the semifinal loss, the Panthers gave up a pair of forfeits to River Ridge, which boasted a full lineup.

"That hurt with the forfeits. We gave up 12 free points and lost by five, that says it all right there," coach Mendez said.

No. 15 Alabama uses big 2nd-half run to beat Florida

By MARK LONG

GAINESVILLE — Alabama coach Nate Oats challenged his guys at half-time to be better "with the blue-collar stuff." He didn't need to be more specific. They knew he meant rebounds, blocks, steals, deflections and loose balls.

The Crimson Tide responded by getting just about all of them coming out of the locker room.

Jahvon Quinerly and Juwan Gary scored 19 points apiece and No. 15 Alabama opened the final 20 minutes with a 22-4 run that was instrumental in an 83-70 win over Florida on Wednesday night.

"We came into the game saying we had to win that war and we were losing it by a large margin at the half," Oats said. "We just weren't playing hard enough."

"If we're going to win tough road games, we've got to play harder. We didn't make any huge adjustments on defense. We just had to play harder, be tougher, get some rebounds. I thought we picked it up quite a bit in the second half, just the whole energy level changed."

The Crimson Tide (11-3, 2-0 Southeastern Conference) used the huge spurt to win consecutive games for the first time in a month and notch its first road victory of the season.

Florida (9-4, 0-1) whittled a 15-point deficit to 66-61 with 6 minutes to play, but Quinerly answered with a layup and Keon Ellis followed with a steal and a dunk to push the lead to back to nine. It was enough to get the Tide thinking about its last trip to Gainesville two years ago, when it squandered a 21-point lead and lost in double overtime.

"That started to go through

Unbalanced dinner bill rankles

DEAR ANNIE: My wife and I have been friends with this couple for over 10 years. We met when our kids were in grade school. We would get together with this couple regularly over the years for dinner and drinks, while the kids would stay at home.

When we go out, we would always split the bill 50/50. Fast-forward to today, their kids are always joining us for dinner and drinks. When it comes time to pay the bill, they always ask for one check and expect us to split the bill 50/50 still. We have tried to do separate checks, but they keep asking for one.

How do we politely tell them we do not want to pay for their family's food and drinks? – Paying More Than Our Fair Share

DEAR PAYING MORE: If these dinners are frequent, such as once a week, then you should tell them that dividing the check in half is not fair. But if they are only occasional get-togethers, remember that friendship shouldn't require such precise math.

If the bill really bothers you, invite them over to your house for drinks and appetizers instead.

DEAR ANNIE: My wife has started withdrawing from our relationship and tells me I am not supportive of her.

Last year, we agreed she could quit her full-time job to pursue her dreams of owning her own business and achieving her master's degree in business administration. During which time I completely renovated her new commercial space and have held down my own job that provides a stable income and health insurance for our entire family. I cook most nights, stay on top of the bills and keep the house organized, all while she frantically runs her business by the seat of her pants. But the second I ask anything of her, she loses her mind and tells me I'm not supportive.

I've tried to have these talks with her, but every time I bring up my feelings, she is quick to make it about herself.

How do I get through to her while keeping her civilized? – Solo at Home

DEAR SOLO AT HOME: It's inspiring that your wife is chasing her dreams, and it's commendable that you're making that possible for her – but it can't come at the expense of her family.

She needs to contribute to the well-being of the household, and it's up to you two what that means.

Maybe it's cooking dinner every night.

Maybe it's coming up with a deadline for her business to start generating an income for your family.

Maybe it's managing the household finances, cleaning on the weekends or dropping the kids off at school.

The bottom line is that her professional goals are no excuse to neglect her responsibilities to the family.

A couples therapist can help you communicate effectively and create these clear guidelines.

BRIDGE

By PHILLIP ALDER

Here is a fourth deal that came in the frame for the Justin Lall Best Played Deal of the Year from the International Bridge Press Association. It was declared by Hugh McGann from Ireland and originally written up by John Carruthers, the editor of the IBPA Bulletin.

North's one no-trump showed 14-16 points. Four diamonds promised six or more spades and slam interest. After four control-bids and South's jump to six spades, Tom Hanlon (North) felt that his spade queen and diamond honors were what South's doctor had ordered.

West led the lowest-from-an-odd-number diamond three.

When the dummy appeared, declarer saw that the contract was far from laydown. It seemed that he would have to take six spades, two hearts, three diamonds and two clubs. So, hoping that East did not have a singleton diamond king, McGann played low from the board and won with his jack. He confidently played a spade to the queen but had to pause again when West discarded a diamond. South ran the spade nine, played a club to the ace and cashed the club king, getting some good news for a change.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6

Get back to basics, and you'll turn your dream into a reality. Less fretting and more hands-on work will bring you closer to your destination. Let the past guide you to solid ground and encourage you to avoid making the same mistakes. Trust your instincts and set worthy yet practical goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Stand behind your beliefs and refuse to let anyone intervene in your private affairs. Consider how you can take advantage of a change. Put personal improvements first and make romance a priority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't let a change of plans disrupt your day. Carry on, regardless of the decisions others make. Don't buy something you don't need. Be smart when it comes to money and whom you trust.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Emotions will be close to the surface. Plan to do something energetic or time-consuming. The less idle time you have, the easier it will be to avoid getting into trouble or arguing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Leave nothing to chance. Use your expertise and know-how to outsmart and outmaneuver anyone who gets in your way. Having focus will make it difficult for others to interfere in your business.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do what's necessary and keep moving. If you take time to explain your every move, you'll lose momentum, and someone will make your life difficult and what you are trying to achieve impossible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stick to your plans. Follow a direct path and refuse to let emotions stand between you and doing what's best. Someone will take advantage of you if you let them. Stay focused and proceed with discipline.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll have some great ideas that come from the heart, but before you pass them along or get started, make sure your plan is foolproof. A wrong move can be costly and stressful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The way you handle your financial affairs will need revamping if you intend to avoid money worries. Think twice before you sign up for something that has hidden costs. Get the lowdown.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Network and be a good listener, and you'll gain perspective on the possibilities that exist. A dream can turn into a reality if you are inventive and prepared to act.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Discipline and research will come in handy. A targeted, minimal response will have a favorable impact on the outcome of a domestic situation and save you money at the same time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concentrate on what you are trying to achieve and keep your words sparse. Giving the wrong impression will cause a rift with someone you want on your side. A steady pace will pay off. Romance is favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Move forward cautiously. Haste makes waste, and letting your emotions take charge will lead to mistakes. Calculate each scenario, and precisely map out your course of action.

WORDY GURDY®

BY TRICKY RICKY KANE

Every answer is a rhyming pair of words (like FAT CAT and DOUBLE TROUBLE), and they will fit in the letter squares. The number after the definition tells you how many syllables in each word.
