'Sesame Street' tackles racism in TV special

NEW YORK — "Sesame Street" has always pressed for inclusion. Now in the wake of the national reckoning on race, it's going further - teaching children to stand up against racism.

Sesame Workshop — the nonprofit, educational organization behind "Sesame Street" will later this month air the half-hour anti-racist special "The Power of We" and hopes families will watch together.

The special defines racism for younger viewers and shows how it can be hurtful. It urges children who encounter racism or hear someone else be the victim of it to call it out. "When you see something that's wrong, speak up and say, 'That's wrong' and tell an adult," 6-year-old Gabrielle the Muppet advises.

The special, composed of little skits and songs in a Zoom-like format, will stream on HBO Max and PBS Kids and air on PBS stations beginning Oct. 15.

In one animated skit, a Black Muppet is told by a white Muppet that he can't dress up like a superhero because they're only white. Though hurt, the Black Muppet nevertheless refuses to stop playing superheroes, saying they can come in all colors. The white Muppet soon apologizes. "Racism hurts and it's wrong," is the message.

In the song "How Do You Know?" racism is dealt with head-on. "Hey, Elmo, how would you feel if I said, 'I don't like you 'cause I don't like the color red?" sings Tamir, a Black, 8-year-old Muppet. Elmo responds: "Elmo wouldn't care what you said 'cause Elmo is proud, proud to be red!" It concludes with the lines: "Speak up. Say something. Don't give in."

"We believe that this moment calls for a direct discussion about racism to help children grasp the issues and teach them that they are never too young to be 'upstanders' for themselves, one another, and their communities," said Kay Wilson Stallings, executive vice president of creative and production at Sesame Workshop, in a statement.

'Empire' star Taraji P. Henson hailed for mental health work

"Empire" star Taraji P. Henson has enjoyed wealth, celebrity, a Golden Globe win and an Academy Award nomination. But behind the scenes, she's battled anxiety and depression.

On Thursday, the 50-year-old actress and filmmaker — who has spoken publicly and powerfully about her private struggles — was honored by the Boston-based Ruderman Family Foundation for her work to end the stigma around mental illness.

"It's OK to not be OK," Henson, the latest recipient of the Morton E. Ruderman Award in Inclusion, told The Associated Press via email. "Tell someone. Your vulnerability is actually your strength."

Henson was nominated for an Oscar for 2008's "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button." She also won critical acclaim for 2016's "Hidden Figures," about three Black mathematicians at NASA who played a key role in the early days of the U.S. space program, and won a 2016 Golden Globe for her role as Cookie Lyon in television's "Empire" series.

MacGinnis was certain Citrus County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) deputies were looking for the man. She said if she treated him "more like a friend," he'd have less reason to harm her. "I was worried it was going to be a hostage situation," she said, "I didn't see any weapons."

Authorities would identify the man as 24-year-old Anthony Tyrone

Brutton Jr., who was being left and went to the TLC pursued by CCSO deputies trying to arrest him for violating probation terms from Lake County.

Deputies and Florida Highway Patrol troopers later apprehended Brutton that same morning in Marion County, after the Winter Park resident led them on a chase with a stolen car and crashed into a semitrailer, reports from FHP and the Marion County Sheriff's Office show.

Brutton was jailed without bond, facing numerous charges with more pending.

After getting a tip at ton's whereabouts, CCSO deputies and detectives went to find him at a home off of Carter Street, CCSO spokeswoman Brittney Carman said.

Authorities spotted a person matching Brutton's description walking from behind the house, and tried to detain him.

Brutton ran away toward State Road 44 and Harriet Drive, starting a pursuit, Carman said.

At the hearing store, Mac-Ginnis let Brutton use an office phone and watched him make a call.

"I think he was using it as an excuse to be inside the building," she said.

While Brutton was busy, MacGinnis went to tell her boss, Jason Throneburg, what was going on. She returned to Brutton and offered him some water.

He asked Macginnis if she was going to call for police. She told Brutton she wouldn't but pleaded with him to stop running.

"I didn't want to see him get killed, it's senseless," she said. "It just made me sad ... I was trying to help him."

Debbie Denlinger was waiting in the parking lot by her car, according to her daughter, Missie Stevenson McDow.

Brutton tried to steal the vehicle from Denlinger, but the woman, who's in her 70s, stood her ground and fought back before her assailant ran away. "She was brave," McDow said, also thanking sheriff's deputies for their response. "She's got some bruises and scratches but ... she's fine ... I'm proud of my mom.' Following his alleged at-

Carman said witnesses called in the attempted carjacking and car theft to CCSO, allowing deputies to find Brutton and restart the chase into Sumter County.

Sumter County Sheriff's Office deputies then assisted in the pursuit, agency spokeswoman Michelle Keszey said, but lost sight of the high-speed Kia on a congested Interstate 75.

Brutton was later spotted at around 10:30 a.m. driving the Kia northbound in Marion County on I-75, near the community of Zuber, according to a FHP report. A trooper staging on the interstate was able to tail Brutton as he turned onto the offramp for State Road 326, him and proceeded east on S.R. 326 with troopers chasing him, driving twice as fast as the 45 mph limit.

Brutton turned north onto Northwest Gainesville Road, where he reached speeds of 100 mph and weaved through traffic before losing the pursuing troopers and a Marion County Sheriff's Office (MCSO) deputy, according to MCSO and FHP reports.

An off-duty MCSO deputy later spotted Brutton in the nis warned him stolen Kia, stopped for a red light at the intersection of U.S. 441 and West Highway 329. As FHP troopers approached, Brutton drove through the light and continued south on U.S. 441, where a deputy tried to ram the Kia off the road. Brutton made a U-turn north onto U.S. 441, reaching speeds of around 120 mph, before the Kia struck the rear of a semitrailer and then a guardrail north of the intersection with Northwest 114 Street near Ocala, according to MCSO and FHP reports.

Brutton ran away from the crash scene, but the offduty deputy nabbed him just before 11 a.m. in a nearby field.

According to reports, wasn't driving the car and denies stealing it from Citrus County. Deputies took Brutton to an area hospital for evaluation before transporting him to the Marion County jail.

Brutton's charges include: fleeing police at high speed, aggravated fleeing causing damage or injury, grand theft auto, resisting police without violence, hitand-run involving injuries, driving with an invalid license, four counts of violating probation and several traffic citations.

Carman said CCSO detectives are working to obtain a warrant for Brutton's arrest on several felonies.

Keszey said the Sumter County Sheriff's Office won't be pursuing charges.

Man uses CPR to revive 2-year-old boy pulled from pond

FORT LAUDERDALE — A man who was walking down a South Florida street jumped into action on Wednesday evening when he heard screams and saw a toddler lying motionless on the grass.

David Bain began performing CPR, a technique he'd learned in high school, on the 2-vear-old boy who had just been pulled from a neighborhood pond.

"I just gave him CPR, he was spitting up water, whatever he was eating and then he opened his eyes and then that is when the police came," Bain told Miami television station WPLG.

The boy was rushed to a hospital, where he was listed in stable condition, the station reported.

The boy had been outside and relatives and neighbors thought he'd gone back inside his house near Fort Lauderdale, the station

Broward Sheriff's Office investigators were at the scene late into Wednesday night trying to figure out how the child ended up facedown in the pond. Relatives couldn't find the boy and neighbors began searching for him. Neighbor Terryann Buchanan told WPLG that her father saw a slipper in the water. He pulled the child from the pond and began CPR.

That's when Bain happened by and took over CPR on the boy.

"It is a kid man, you don't ever want to see nobody like that," Bain said.

Principal who declined to say Holocaust was real is rehired

WEST PALM BEACH — A Florida high school principal who was fired last year after telling a student's mother "not everyone believes the Holocaust happened" was rehired after a recommendation by an administrative

The Palm Beach County school board voted 4-3 on Wednesday to reinstate former Spanish River High School principal William Latson and give him $152,000 in back pay, the Palm Beach Post reported. "If we rehire Dr. Latson, it is going be a stain on this school district that will never go away," said Karen Brill, the board's only Jew-

Board member Chuck Shaw, who voted to fire Latson last year, said he was voting to rehire him to avoid a costly court battle. He said it was unfortunate Latson's comments had damaged the public schools' image, but he blamed the situation primarily on the news media.

The board made it clear it was reluctant to reinstate Latson, saying the judge's recommended order gave them little leeway. Refusal to rehire him could lead to a lawsuit and a costly court battle. The district has already spent more than $106,000 defending Latson's termination in administrative court.

Board members said district officials assured them that Latson would not work on a school campus, but would be placed in the district's assessment department as a "principal on assignment."

Brown said he wants to stay on council for Duke Energy to hold up its obligations on using the city's reclaimed water, he wants to cut the last ribbon for Crystal River's longawaited Riverwalk and he wants to see the city's entranceways enhanced.

To hold Seat 1 on city council, Brown will have to fend off challenger Scott Davis. City residents cast their ballots on Election Day, Nov. 3.

A self-described fiscal conservative, Brown is for council funding endeavors to improve the city, but with strong and balanced budgets.

"I want to run our city like we run a business,' he said. "We need to invest in Crystal River, but we need to invest so we don't go into the red."

Brown said council should solicit funding from the Citrus County Tourism Development Council to help pay for the city's efforts to control and capitalize on its seasonal influxes of visitors.

Building and insurance conditions will also become more stringent and costly once the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) raises base-flood levels across

Brown said there's not much the city can do to ease burdens for homeowners facing premium increases on flood insurthem on what relief options FEMA has.

City officials, Brown added, should work with lawmakers on expanding federal flood-proofing line with the county's, so standards for businesses to homes as they're less taxing to complete. "We need to simplify it,"

Brown said Crystal River isn't stained with many blighted commercial properties, except for the Crystal Square shopping plaza on U.S. 19.

City officials, he said, shouldn't keep fining those owners, unless their buildings are hazardous, but should encourage them to redevelop or sell before threatening foreclosures.

"I feel strongly we have already tried," Brown said about council pressing the issue with Crystal Square.

Brown said council should turn its attention to improving city communities beyond downtown.

In working with city stakeholders, Brown said he's trying to launch an after-school facility in the neighborhood near Copeland Park to host academic and athletic programs for youths.

"I represent everyone ances, except educate in Crystal River," he said, adding locals shouldn't hesitate when reporting issues. "Sometimes we do get tunnel vision ... if there are needs, we're accessible and we want to take care of that."

Davis said he's wanted to serve on council for a while, and the timing is right to run.

'This is not something to keep me busy during retirement," the 50-year city resident said. "I really want to give back to my hometown."

Davis is challenging two-term incumbent Ken Brown for Seat 1 on council. City locals vote on Election Day, Nov. 3.

Having an active council is good, Davis said, but it shouldn't still be dealing with the same issues of the past decade when it should be prepping for the effects of the incoming Suncoast Parkway.

"I don't like covering the same ground twice; we'll get them solved," he said. "I'm all for going forward; we have too many things coming ... and I'd like to see Crystal River put its best foot forward."

Crystal River getting a better handle over the negative impacts of its more boat and vehicle congestion on local waterways and roads.

Davis said the city's decision to move all commercial paddlecraft launchings from Hunter properties within the city

Crystal River officials also need to pay mind to neighborhoods beyond the city center, like communities east of U.S. 19 and around Copeland Park, where code violations are abundant, Davis

"Most of the money and focus goes to downtown, which is great," he said, "It's just rundown, it needs maintenance and needs people to be reminded they need to keep their things clean."

Davis said it wouldn't cost the city as much as building a town square to bring solutions forward.

"We're not looking at a $1 million project there,' he said, "just good maintenance."

Stocks up again on new stimulus hopes

Associated Press

Stocks rose for the second day in a row Thursday, reflecting hope on Wall Street that Washington can approve more aid for the economy and encouragement from a report that suggests the pace of layoffs is slowing a bit, even though it remains incredibly high.

The S&P 500 climbed 0.8%, adding to its solid gains from a day earlier, when President Donald Trump apparently backtracked on his decision to halt talks on more aid for the economy. He said in a televised interview Thursday morning that "very productive" talks have begun on stimulus.

Stocks have been particularly rocky since early September, swerving on worries about everything from too-expensive prices to the still-raging pandemic, but the S&P 500 has been generally climbing the last two weeks and is on pace for its best week since August.

Resurgent optimism about the possibility that the Democrats and Republicans will deliver another economic aid package has kept investors in a buying mood the past couple of Small company stocks fared better than the rest of the market. The Russell 2000 index of small-cap stocks climbed 17.51 points, or 1.1%, to 1,628.55. Global stock indexes also closed higher.

Banks, technology and communication companies accounted for much of the broad gains. Energy stocks notched the biggest gain as the price of U.S. crude oil climbed more than 3%. Occidental Petroleum climbed 8.8%, the biggest gainer in the S&P

A government report showed that 840,000 workers applied for unemployment benefits last week. That's down slightly from 849,000 the prior week, though it's still remarkably high compared with history. It also was slightly worse than economists were expecting, 837,000.

"The important thing was we continue to see less people filing," Kinahan said.

Still, several areas of the economy have been slowing recently after supplemental weekly "The markets hope that unemployment benefits both sides have sort of and other stimulus for the economy approved by Congress earlier this year expired. The market has been swooping up and down this week in particular. On Tuesday, Trump said that he told his representatives to halt negotiations until after the election because he said House Speaker Nancy Pelosi was negotiating in bad faith. That caused stocks to suddenly swing from a 0.7% gain to a 1.4% drop.

But just a few hours later, Trump said that he would be open to several targeted programs, including aid for the airline industry specifically and $1,200 in payments to Americans. That caused Wednesday's rise, where the S&P 500 more than recovered all its losses from the prior day.

Pelosi spoke with Mnuchin on Wednesday evening about a standalone effort to help the airline industry, and they agreed to talk again Thursday.

On Thursday morning, Trump said in an interview with Fox Business that he shut down talks "because they weren't working out. Now, they are starting to work out.'

But, Pelosi on Thursday said there wouldn't be standalone bill for the airline industry unless it was part of a more expansive

The narratives are misleading

I read many letters to the Commentary section arguing why to not re-elect Donald Trump president. It is disconcerting how many untruths, half truths, distortions, disproved speculations, wishful thinking and character assassinations reflect the propaganda of the progressive Democratic Party. One would not know where to begin to untangle the misleading narratives. One would almost think this is an election to vote Trump in or not in. In fact, there is another choice, Joe Biden.

Without referencing Trump, can anyone specifically and accurately describe how Biden's 47 years of accomplishment free service has made America a better place? Poverty continued, Black men languish still in prisons, jobs flowed to China, etc. In fact, Biden's success was in seeing to it the the Biden family became wealthy.

We need a sincere, decent leader

In July 2009 our son, an Army National Guard infantryman, was shot in Afghanistan. It was the next to last day of his deployment. He survived, but underwent four surgeries and months of physical therapy and suffers permanent disabilities. His life was forever changed that day.

The brave men and women who serve our country are heroes, deserving the utmost gratitude and respect. They should be honored for their courage, respected for their sacrifices and thanked for their service. Shamefully, Mr. Trump, the man who dodged the draft by claiming bone spurs as his excuse not to serve, denigrates their service and insults them, calling them "losers." He refused to honor the war dead at the American military cemetery outside of Paris, referring to the 1.800 marines who lost getting killed. He claims John McCain is not a war hero because he was injured and captured in Vietnam. He asked that wounded veterans be kept out of military parades. He ignored U.S. government classified intelligence of Russia offering bounties to the Taliban for the deaths of American troops. Why would this president be so disdainful of the military? Is he ashamed of his own dereliction of duty? (As he should be). Afraid of being called out as a coward?

He is bereft of any ethical or moral code.

Out of consideration for every active and veteran military, we respectfully ask Trump supporters to reconsider their endorsement of this disparaging man who is so disrespectful of our military heroes. He is a disgrace and an insult to all those who sacrificed so much to serve their country so honorably.

We need a leader who can lead our country with integrity, honesty and dignity. Our future president should be willing and able to tell the truth and work to ensure the health and safety of our

Think carefully when you vote

Attention seniors! Do you love your Medicare and Social Security? Most of us do! These are not entitlements, they are earned benefits. And we need them to continue.

But, our representative to Congress, Daniel Webster, has been a consistent supporter of budget cuts to Social Security and Medicare, and has also favored privatization of Social Security. The Alliance for Retired Americans reports that Webster's lifetime score on senior issues is only 14%! That means that over the years, he has been on the wrong side of senior issues 86% of the time! With so many senior residents in House District 11, he is hardly someone who is looking out for our best interests.

Social Security is the most successful domestic program in the history of our country. When you hear the Trump administration talk about cutting the payroll tax, they mean cutting the FICA tax. If the payroll tax suffers permanent cuts, as is being proposed, the program will be out of funds by 2023. What will that mean to you or your family members?

Programs like Social Security and Medicare need to be protected and expanded. When you cast your ballot, think carefully about Daniel Webster. Remember that he has not protected your interests as a senior. Think about his record, not his words.

President has a duty to nominate a justice

A letter published Oct. 7 was a typical ultra-liberal effort to muddy the waters with half truths and exaggerations. President Trump did not nominate the justice until after Ginsburg's service. the president has a duty and a right to nominate a replacement to the court as long as he is president. Justice Ginsburg had said as much herself. Sen. McConnell has made no bones about it: he has been straight up and has said, "elections have consequences, we control the Senate." Therefore, they did not confirm Obama's nominee. This year they control both the presidency and the Senate, so they will confirm the nominee. So, he does not have to ram it through or violate any precedent — there is no precedent. Is there a doubt in anyone's mind that a Senate leader Schumer and a President Biden wouldn't do the exact same thing?

Another letter on the same day was complaining about the "out of control debate" and said Trump kept interrupting Biden. This letter writer needs to go back and listen to the debate closely, and he will note that Biden interrupted Trump three times before Trump interrupted him. You won't see that on CNN, MSNBC, NBC, or sadly, in the Chronicle. However, I certainly agree it was out of control.

> Dave Patten Hernando

Editor's note: According to the Washington Post, the candidates interrupted either the moderator or their opponent more than 90 times during the debate. Trump 71 times, Biden 22 times.

Webster's response is no response

A recent writer to these pages talked about Daniel Webster, the U.S. representative for Florida's 11th Congressional District since 2017. She talked about Mr. Webster having a question and answer session in Beverly Hills in 2018. I attended that session. She's correct when she writes Mr. Webster will not answer any questions. At that session, I queried Mr. Webster about the Social Security Fairness Act at that time a bill in Congress — and asked that he sign on and endorse it. I even handed his assistant my letter identifying the bill so there would be no mistake. I got no answer from my representative, Mr. Webster. In 2018 I wrote and called his office locally and in Washington again asking for his support. His assistant had an open office day in Crystal River that year. I took my letter to that open office. No answer. Mr. Webster does not answer questions or requests for help and he will not explain why.

In the current 116th Congress H.R. 141, Social Security Fairness Act of 2019, is endorsed by four Republican representatives and 12 Democrats from Florida as well as 242 other representatives from other states. This bill eliminates the government Pension offset, which in various instances reduces Social Security survivors' benefits for spouses, widows and widowers who also receive government pensions from their own work. What that means is as a survivor of a Social Security recipient, you are entitled to 50% of your spouses benefit (monthly income). You will not get it.

It's insane to risk your life to vote

(Re the Oct. 5, Chronicle Online Sound Off titled, "Mail votes or vote in person"): To the person who's against drive-thru voting, and they gave several reasons here against it: First, you're concerned about ID. You would show your signed ballot envelope, your voter ID card and a picture ID. How would this be any less secure than what into the polls? Also, this may be that it is somehow patriotic to get in line and vote? It's pure insanity to expect people to risk their lives to vote. It doesn't make

Thanks for your service

I want to thank Russ and Norma Brondyke for all the years of volunteer service they gave to the Citrus County schools. Thank you for the scholarships you gave to the high schools students. You are wonderful and kind people. God bless you and happy retirement.

Move business to empty strip mall

I've just been advised that they're going to be closing the Office Max here in Crystal River. My question is why the Crystal River city councilmen can't make a deal with the owners of Office Max and have them relocate to the malls that are across the street from RaceTrac on (U.S.) 19. That mall's been vacant for over a year and a half now.

Commissioners should take a pay cut

The Tuesday, Oct. 6, Sound Off, "Mad about tax hike," I agree with. But to a senior living on a limited income, raising the tax only 3%, it's not that much? OK, if it isn't that much, Mr. Commissioners, then why don't you all take a 3% pay-rate cut?

Nobody wants to work

(Re the Monday, Oct. 5, 2020, front-page story, "Decommissioning could create jobs," "Duke Energy's plan may lead to local jobs for many years"): So they're going to tear down the old plant and they're going to hire a bunch of people. Well, I think they're going to have a problem. Nobody around here wants to work and if they do, they'll work for a couple of days and then you won't see them again. Oh well, that's the way they do it down here.

Assisted Living has become Better than Home

A lot has changed for seniors in the last 100 years. We no longer have family members living with us to cook, clean, and care for us as our bodies age, and our senior moments proliferate. With husbands and wives both working, and families now living great distances away, seniors are often left living by themselves with little or no reliable help. As driving gets more challenging, grocery bags get heavy, and home repairs impossible to keep up with, a lot of small tasks fall through the cracks. Social life diminishes, meal and nutrition quality drop, and fears about falling and taking medications properly add plenty of stress.

When your spouse dies, the stress soars. Men are not used to doing tasks their wives did, and women are not used to handling those that their husbands did. The risk of falling and having no one to find you for days becomes real. Health concerns continue to grow and the thought of not having help when you need it is scary. Wanting to stay in your own home alone only sounds good because we fear the alternatives.

Many Assisted Living communities are focused on your disabilities and build their services based on what's wrong with you, but the Best ones focus on your abilities and what's right with you, and what you CAN do. We hate being told what to do, when to do it and how to do it, so the Best ones give you choices.

A top-notch place has flexible mealtimes, no assigned seating, and a wide selection of menu items available at every meal. You make friends with those you like and are never stuck with those people you don't. You get up on your own schedule, plan your own day, and have a say in what activities exist, and how you spend your time.

Your healthcare is important, so there should be licensed nurses 24 hrs a day in addition to the nursing aides, but they are there to help you, not to control your life. They can help you keep track of taking medications so you don't get them confused, help with a shower, or getting dressed. And they are there quickly if you fall, have chest pain, or think something is wrong. They become family for the times when family can't be there.

Too often we sit at home stubbornly wanting to stay at home, and actually jeopardize our own health and safety when we could be enjoying life in a place with a built-in safety net. No need to drive to doctors, eat poorly, neglect maintenance, or fear falling. The best assisted living communities are beautiful homes that take away worries, and focus on living life to the fullest. They have become even Better than Home.

13 charged in plots against Michigan governor, police

LANSING, Mich. -Agents foiled a stunning plot to kidnap Michigan Democratic Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, authorities said Thursday in announcing charges in an alleged scheme that involved months of planning and even rehearsals to snatch her from her vacation home.

Six men were charged in federal court with conspiring to kidnap the governor in reaction to what they viewed as her "uncontrolled power," according to a federal complaint. Separately, seven others were charged in state court under Michigan's anti-terrorism laws for allegedly targeting police and seeking a "civil war."

A few hours later, Whitmer pinned some blame on President Donald Trump, noting that he did not condemn white supremacists in last week's debate with Joe Biden and instead told a far-right group to "stand back and stand by."

The criminal complaint identified the six as Adam Fox, Ty Garbin, Kaleb Franks, Daniel Harris, Brandon Caserta, all of Michigan, and Barry Croft of Delaware. All but Croft appeared in federal court in Grand Rapids. They asked for court-appointed lawyers and were returned to jail to await detention hearings Tuesday.

Fox said he needed 200 men to storm the Capitol building in Lansing and take hostages, including the governor, according to the FBI. He said he wanted to try Whitmer for "treason" and would execute the plan before the Nov. 3 election, the government said. The group later shifted to targeting the governor's vacation home, the FBI said.

Texas officer charged in Black man's fatal shooting fired

DALLAS — A white police officer charged with murder in the fatal shooting of a Black man in a small East Texas city was fired Thursday.

A statement from the City of Wolfe said Officer Shaun Lucas, 22, was fired for "his egregious violation" of city and police department policy. The city of about 1,500 people is located about 70 miles northeast of Dallas.

Lucas remained jailed Thursday on $1 million bond.

Jonathan Price, 31, was killed over the weekend after Lucas arrived at a convenience store to check out a report of a fight. In a statement Monday announcing that Lucas had been charged, the Texas Rangers said that Price "resisted in a non-threatening posture and began walking away," and that the officer's actions weren't "reasonable."

WASHINGTON — The fate of final debates between President Donald Trump and Democrat Joe Biden was thrown into uncertainty Thursday as the campaigns offered dueling proposals for moving forward with faceoffs that have been upended by the president's coronavirus infection.

NEW YORK — Louise Glück, an American poet

Literature. The Nobel Committee on Thursday praised her as "candid and uncompromising" in granting a rare honor for a U.S. poet, with Wallace Stevens, Gwendolyn Brooks and Robert Frost among her predecessors who were bypassed. Glück spoke briefly to reporters waiting outside her home in Cambridge, Massachusetts, saying she felt

'agitation, joy, gratitude.'' Glück is a former U.S. poet laureate who had already received virtually every honor possible for a poet, including the Pulitzer Prize in 1993 for "The Wild Iris," the National Book Award in 2014 for "Faithful and Virtuous Night" and a National Humanities Medal in 2015. She is just the 16th woman to get the Nobel for literature since it was started in 1901.

"As one of our most celebrated American poets, we are thrilled that Louise Glück has received this year's Nobel Prize in Literature," Michael Jacobs, chairman of the Academy of American Poets, said in a statement. "Her poems, her overall body of work, and her utterly distinctive voice, present the human condition in memorable, breathtaking language."

A native of New York City, descended in part from Hungarian Jews, Glück began reading poetry obsessively as a child, and by her early teens, she was already trying to have her work published. New hurricane menaces Louisiana

REBECCA SANTANA AND MELINDA DESLATTE Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Louisiana residents confronting the menace of a new hurricane weeks after one battered their communities got stark warnings Thursday to brace for winds that could turn debris into missiles and to use the remaining hours before the storm strikes to take emergency precautions despite their weariness

Forecasts showed Delta had strengthened back into a Category 3 hurricane as it bore down on the state carrying winds of up to 115 mph and the potential to deliver a storm surge of up to 11 feet when it arrives on Friday evening.

The projected path included the southwest area of Louisiana where Category 4 Hurricane Laura made landfall less than two months ago.

The mayor of Lakes Charles, where thousands of residents remain without shelter following the earlier hurricane, told residents that even if their homes survived Laura, they shouldn't assume that would be the case with Delta.

"This is not a bad dream. It's not a test run. These are the cards that we have been dealt," Nic Hunter said in a Facebook video. He added, "I know that we've been through a lot, and I know that we're tired. But we have a job to do right now, and that job is to keep ourselves safe.'

CHICAGO — Nick Foles beat Tom Brady again, Cairo Santos kicked a 38yard field with 1:17 left and the Chicago Bears beat Tampa Bay 20-19 on Thursday night after Brady seemingly lost count of downs on his final play.

Brady never lost to Chicago in five meetings as a member of the Patriots. But facing Foles for the first time since New England fell to Philadelphia in Super Bowl 52, the six-time champion once again came up short.

The Yankees bounced back from two straight losses against their AL East rivals to set up an expected showdown between aces Gerrit Cole of New York and Tyler Glasnow of Tampa Bay on Friday night.

Cole, backed by four home runs, beat Blake Snell 9-3 in the series opener Monday and will be pitching on short rest for the first time in his big league career. Yankees manager Aaron Boone said the decision was made when he passed his ace Thursday and made eye contact.

Iga Swiatek is just 19. She's ranked 54th. She's never won a tour-level title of any sort. She'd never before been past the fourth round at a major tournament.

Look at the two of them now — French Open finalists.

Already the owner of a major trophy from this year's Australian Open, the No. 4-seeded Kenin moved into the title match in Paris by beating No. 7 Petra Kvitova 6-4, 7-5 on Thursday.

"My mentality has obviously changed," said Kenin, who said she derived a boost of confidence from upsetting Serena Williams at Roland Garros a year ago. "I feel like I should be getting deep in

She has won all 12 sets she's played in the tournament, dropping merely 23 games.

Kvitova, a two-time Wimbledon champion, came in having won every set, too. But as Kenin put it: "I mean, that obviously doesn't mean anything if I'm playing well."

LECANTO — Playing a day early and with some playmakers partially down, Seven Rivers Christian couldn't follow up its previous week's performance.

Instead visiting St. Edward's School assured a happy trip back to Vero Beach, pulling away for a 24-14 victory on Thursday, Oct. 8, 2020, at Warrior Park.

'We played poorly," Seven Rivers Christian head coach Monty Vann said. "Had a couple of real good drives but we didn't execute plays. Offensive line, we didn't pick up who we needed to pick up. We just played poorly.

We can't find excuses. We've got to do a better job as coaches. I've got to do a better job play calling."

Seven Rivers (1-3), which won 40-0 over First Academy-Leesburg the previous week, came into this Sunshine State Athletic Conference matchup knowing leading receiver C.J. Phillips and top rusher/ tackler Ian Richardson would be limited

Seven Rivers got it to 17-14 with 8:55 to play on a nice fourth-down pass from Nehemiah Vann, who found Phillips for a diving catch out the back of the end zone for 25 yards.

Zaire Wilcox didn't get many opportunities to run the ball in his first game of the season Friday, Oct. 2, 2020, but he sure did make the most of those chances.

With Lecanto storming out to a 38-0 lead in the first quarter against Central, the Panthers called off the dogs fairly early and spread the ball around. The senior Wilcox had three carries, totaling 58 yards and a touchdown. He also ran in a couple of 2-point conversions.

"I'm feeling good," Wilcox said. "I'm glad I have a team that comes together and we fight together. I'm just glad we got to play. I think us and Crystal River (on Friday) will be a pretty good game. We know they have a good coach and a good team and we're ready for a dogfight.

"People are talking us up on campus. It's a different vibe than they're used to. I feel like our offense was clicking very well. It's a very complex offense. You never know how it'll be going against someone else. But I'm very happy with the way we were able to execute.'

Bowyer to retire and move to Fox in 2021

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Clint Bowyer will retire at the end of the NASCAR season and join the Fox Sports booth as an analyst.

Bowyer, in his 15th full season, heads into Sunday's race at Charlotte Motor Speedway facing elimination from the playoffs. He's ranked 11th in the 12-driver field that will be trimmed by four for the next round.

In a media availability earlier Thursday, the 41-year-old gave no indication he planned to announce his retirement hours later. But in a a two-page letter later posted to Twitter, Bowyer said he's moving full-time into television. "Now I get to the point of what I want to tell you," he wrote. "I have a new opportunity to do what's next in my life. In 2021 my suit will no longer be fireproof. I will be joining the Fox booth on Sundays."

Bowyer is a popular veteran who has won races for Ford, Chevrolet and Toyota during his career with Richard Childress Racing, Michael Waltrip Racing and now Stewart-Haas Racing.

The Buccaneers looked like they might blow this one open, jumping out to a 13-0 lead. But the Bears turned it around in a flash, with two touchdowns in the final 1:48 of the half.

Montgomery plowed in from the 3. Kyle Fuller then put a big hit on Ke'Shawn Vaughn as he caught a short pass, and Robert Quinn recovered the fumble, giving the Bears possession on the Tampa Bay 27. A leaping Jimmy Graham made a onehanded grab in the end zone with Jamel Dean on him to haul in Foles' 12-yard pass.

The Game 5 winner will remain in San Diego to face the Houston Astros in the AL Championship Series starting Sunday night.

The Yankees are trying to reach the ALCS for the third time in four seasons following eliminations by the Astros at that stage in 2017 and last season. The Rays are trying to advance to the ALCS for the first time since 2008, when they made it to their only World Series.

Wearing their home pinstripes for a second straight night at neutral site Petco Park, the Yankees lived up to their Bronx Bombers nickname. Voit, who led the majors with 22 homers in the pandemic-shortened season, led off the second by driving a 1-0 pitch from Rays opener Ryan Thompson into the second deck in left field for his first career postseason shot.

Torres one-upped his teammate when he deposited a two-run homer onto the balcony on the fourth floor of the Western Metal Supply Co. brick warehouse in the left-field corner, the centerpiece of the downtown ballpark. It was Torres' first this postseason and fifth of his career, tying Mickey Mantle for the most playoff homers for a Yankees player 23 or younger.

The only younger Yankees player to homer while facing postseason elimination was 20-year-old Mantle, in both Games 6 and 7 of the 1952 World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Torres' homer was the 18th of the series, with each team hitting nine. New York kept Randy Arozarena in Giancarlo Stanton's ended franchise-record run of homering in five straight games but he did double. Stanton hit four homers in the first three games of this series and had six total in the first five postseason games.

Chad Green, Zack Britton and Aroldis Chapman combined for five hitless innings of relief, retiring 15 of the last 16 batters. Green pitched two perfect innings for the win, and Chapman got four outs for his first save of this postseason. He struck out Arozarena on a 101 mph sinker to end the eighth. Montgomery went four innings in his first appearance since Sept. 24, holding the Rays to one run and three hits while striking out four and walking three. He struck out Arozarena in the first and retired the breakout star on a grounder in the fourth. Tampa Bay loaded the bases in the third but got just one run, on Brandon

Lowe's fielder's choice. It was a much better start than Montgomery had against the Rays at Yankee Stadium on Sept. 2, when he was pulled after allowing four runs and five hits on 39 pitches, and getting

A camping and fishing way near the skyway

ast week some friends and myself decided to do some camping, and I mean some sure enough bona-fide "camping"! Yes, tents! I'm not as young as I used to be and something that has wheels attached (RV) is looking better and better.

We traveled down to Ft. Desoto Park campground near Tierra Verde. It's just south of St. Pete beach and just north of Bradenton. The beautiful Tampa Bay Skyway Bridge is just around the corner and well in sight when on the water.

Fort Desoto is a top-notch campground. The Tocobaga Indians once inhabited this island, which is actually Mullet Key. Robert E. Lee eventually surveyed it before the Civil War and the fort began construction in 1898.

REPORT

Each campground has water and electric. Some you can even beach your boat up to your site. Most all have a beautiful view of the daily sunsets. Very clean shower and bathrooms and a nice camp store. An 800-foot long boat ramp with several mooring docks is less than a mile from the campground.

You can tour the old fort, walk the beaches, ride the bike trails, swim and hike. Don't forget to bring your camera. No boat? No problem! There are also plenty of shoreline areas for wade fishing.

Or, the park also has two fishing piers complete with snacks, bait and fish cleaning table, and a beach that has been voted No. 1 several times.

We were blessed with nice weather for the weekend — little hot during the day, but cool at night and no rain. Yeah! The winds were light and it allowed for an enjoyable time of fishing.

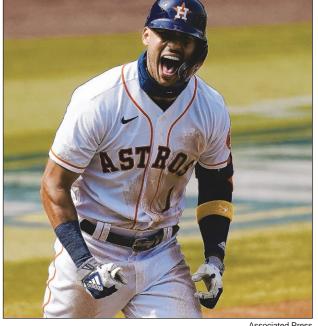

We utilized plastic jigs under Cajun-thunder popping corks for hooking up with most of the fish. The trout, redfish and snook fishing are reeely good down there.

If you've never been and want to give the fishing and back-to-nature experience a try, check it out. Go to www.fortdesoto.com. You won't be disappointed.

An artist's project: Cleaning house am sorry to say that the October meeting of the Citrus Watercolor Society has been canceled again. The threat of the COVID-19 virus is still haunting us. We will miss the great program of "Show and Tell.'

My wife decided that, as our last move was nearly 25 years ago, that we should probably take stock of some of the useless things that we have accumulated, and clean house. I thought that I should, in a spirit of cooperation, take a look at my artwork closets — I have two — where I could perhaps find two or three things to discard from that area.

So, I started on closet No. 1, located in my office. Believe me, I am not a hoarder! However, I was stunned to suddenly realize that this was going to be more than a one-day project.

First of all, materials had massed to the extent that upon opening the door things suddenly made their way out. On day one, I found a few things did not relate to my artwork, such as six boxes of photos (several hundred) taken over the years. We reviewed them all and most went into the dumper. Only a small box of photos remained.

Now I could get to work on the issues related to my artwork. First was a review of 100 or more pencil sketches and transfer sheets that had to go — leaving a few that I had never gotten to paint. Then there were 50 or 60 ribbons hanging that were won at various shows entered all over the state of Florida — I will probably keep those — good for the ego!

On to day two. Now we are into the hard-core, useful materials. Where did all this stuff come from?

A 30-foot roll of Arches 140-pound cold-pressed watercolor paper, and an unopened carton of 140-pound Arches paper. A box of 50 odd tubes of watercolor paints of different colors. Clayboard of several sizes, unused AquaBoard, several small packets of 140-pound watercolor paper (various brands).

Wait, there is more! An unused Tom Jones palette. A painting that I must have lost track of and never finished. (That is my next painting project.) And get this — an unopened complete artist supply set, with brushes, watercolor paint and pencils, a set of oil paints, a set of gouache paints and a set of inks.

Now to day three. It seems like lots of matboard, mostly in sizes like 10 by 14, and 16 by 20. An assortment of pencils and types of tape, brushes, Gesso, etc. And, way in the back of this mess were several sheets of 300-pound cold-pressed Kilamanjaro watercolor paper.

Now that all this stuff has been removed, I am in a giveaway mood. Good grief ... and this is only closet

To all of my artist friends out there, check your art closet(s) once in a while — it is like opening an art treasure chest. I said before, I am not a hoarder! Funny thing is, the closet still looks full!

Louis Shalako, in his poem "Mr. Robot," included the verse, "I, robot / Don't have the capacity / To dream about tomorrow / But I never spell a word wrong." You would think bridge-playing robots would never misplay a suit combination -- but you would be wrong! In today's deal, how should South have played in four hearts? West led the spade 10. East took two tricks in the suit, cashed the club ace and exited with a second

South had a close decision in the auction. Should he advance two hearts, in theory showing 0-8 points, or should he jump to three hearts, promising 9-11 points? He knew that an eightcard heart fit was guaranteed, and he liked his two minor-suit ruffing values. So he took the high road and reached a good game, given that East had opened the bidding and surely held the club ace.

At trick five, the robot South immediately played a low heart to dummy's ace; but when East discarded, West had to take a trump trick to defeat the contract.

A human declarer realized that he had to avoid a trump loser. If the hearts were 2-2 or 3-1, that would be no problem. So he considered how to handle a 4-0 split. If East had all four, the contract had no chance. But if West held them, they could be kept in check as long as South started with his heart queen. Then, when East did discard, declarer led another trump and captured West's 10 with dummy's king. Back to hand with a club ruff, South played a heart to dummy's nine, cashed the heart ace and claimed.

Annie offers advice

ear Annie: I have been with my boyfriend for 15 years. He has been a great dad to my three sons. He cooks, cleans, changes diapers and takes care of my sons when they are sick. He has no children of his own. I am 20 years his senior. Our sex life was great for about 11 or so years. But it's gone downhill. He always wants to be intimate not in the mood, but I go along with it to make him happy, and oblige all his requests. But when I am in the mood and he's not, he doesn't care. The tenderness is gone from our intimacy, as well as the excitement. I'd appreciate your advice here. We don't even kiss anymore because his breath smells like cigarettes and marijuana. — Looking for

Dear Looking for Love: The last line of your letter is perhaps the most important one: If he's using marijuana excessively, it could be clouding your ability to share meaningful intimacy on many levels. So, express your concerns on that front — with an attitude of caring, not blaming — and see whether he would consider cutting back or taking a break.

And beyond that, be assertive about what you like and what you don't. In always indulging his wants, you're neglecting your own needs. If you find that there is a communication breakdown, I strongly recommend enlisting the help of a couples' counselor. It sounds as though on the whole this has been a loving relationship for you both, and it's worth putting in some work. The value of your relationship is worth more than the cost of the repairs.

Dear Annie: October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Please use your column to encourage people to be vigilant against breast cancer even if it doesn't run in their families. Although people who have had a relative with breast cancer are at greater risk for getting it themselves, only around 5 to 10% of breast cancer cases are hereditary, according to the American Cancer Society. There are many other risk factors besides genes. The following are a few suggestions from Stanford Medicine and the American Cancer Society to increase your protection from breast cancer.

-- Maintain a healthy weight. According to Stanford Medicine, being overweight is a strong risk factor for breast cancer and "even a 10 percent weight gain can strongly increase the chances of breast cancer as well as a cancer recurrence."

■ Eat a mostly plant-based diet rich in whole grains, legumes, fruits and vegetables. Contrary to what you may have heard, consuming soy does not appear to increase breast cancer risk. Stanford Medicine says that it is an "excellent source of protein, fiber, B vitamins, iron, calcium and isoflavones and that it can possibly help bind estrogen and may decrease the risk of hormone-related cancers such as breast and prostate."

■ Avoid alcohol, which is a strong risk factor for many cancers, including breast cancers. According to the American Cancer Society, research has shown that, compared with women who don't drink at all, women who have two to three alcoholic drinks a day have about a 20% higher risk of getting breast cancer.

■ Exercise regularly.

These are just a few tips, and women should, of course, talk to their health care professionals about any concerns or questions they may have. I hope this information helps someone out there. — Spread the Word

Dear Spread the Word: Thank you for sharing these tips to help readers reduce their risk of developing this disease. I encourage all women — and men — to talk to their doctors about the most prudent course for breast cancer screening.

Marine Corps," Johnson said, "I stayed in Hawaii for a few months playing in School of Music in Little a night club with a Hawaiian combo.

"We were playing a Chuck Mangione piece, "Bolivia." I was playing the piece on saxophone and had my eyes closed, really getting into the song. All of a sudden, I heard a squeaking noise and a BOOM! I opened my eyes to see a woman sitting in her chair on the ground! She had been rocking back and forth in her chair, causing the bolts to come loose and the legs came right out from under her."

"After her composure returned, she gave me $20 to play the song again," Johnson said with a laugh.

"With support from my mother, band directors, saxophone and piano instructors, I knew at a very young age that I wanted to be a music major," Johnson said.

She guesses it was in seventh grade that it became clear to her that music was her path.

There were two mentors who stood out for her.

"They were my band directors in high school, William Deal and Paul Kline. Paul was a saxophonist and taught me a lot about the instrument and the way in which to maximize what the saxophone has to offer. Bill was a trumpet player and we would play duets for hours each week elor of Science in so that I became proficient Technical Management, on brass instruments," she said. "I later became great friends with both and even speak with them now, 40 years later."

"I attended the Military Creek, Virginia, in 1981 and accomplished an advanced standing graduation," Johnson said. "I graduated about two months early. Since I was top in my class, I was offered my choice of duty station. So, I went to where the best musicians were at the time. Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

'While in Hawaii, I played clarinet and saxophone in the concert band and jazz bands. We performed on Oahu and at the leper colony on Molokai. We really enjoyed playing at the leper colony each year," Johnson said. "We would play a short parade and then spent the day with the folks who lived there. Some of us would go scuba diving, hiking, horseback riding, swimming or my choice, play a softball game with them.

"We went by helicopter to spend the day with them and after some fun and a quick lunch they had for us we would say our goodbyes and fly back to Oahu."

Following her service with the Marine Corps, Johnson's day job revolved around accounting and information technology for 30 years or more. She holds a multitude of academic degrees in addition to her military music schooling. She has a Bach-graduating summa cum laude; a Master of Business Administration, with distinction; and a Master of Accounting and Financial Management.

Taken together, Johnson plays nine instruments saxophone, clarinet, trumpet, French horn, piano, percussion, baritone, trombone and guitar. And that has been a handy set of skills for her musicianship. She clearly represents the mysterious and wonderful link between music and mathematics.

In 2016, Johnson was recruited to play in the pit band backing "Carousel" performed at the Citrus County Art Center Theater with 15 other musicians. Since there were critical musicians unavailable, Johnson played the part written for viola, transposing the 100-page score on the fly on saxophone. In Florida, she been the principal alto saxophone player in the Nature Coast Community Band; she plays clarinet with the Kingdom of the Sun Band in Ocala; was accepted with seven other NCCB musicians to the All Florida Community Band; and has been part of the pit band for numerous Art Center Theater musical productions.

These days, she spends her time with her four shelties — Charlie Girl, Princess, Sammy and Reggie. She keeps her musical skills sharp practicing her instruments daily and teaching saxophone and music theory.

How to Avoid a Fake Check Scam

- INSIST ON CASH
- Don't accept a check for more than the selling price. You can bet it's a scam.
- Inform the Buyer that you'll wait two weeks before sending any merchandise.
- Never use money from a check to send gift cards, money orders, or wire money to strangers or someone you just met. Many scammers demand that you send money through money transfer services like Western Union or MoneyGram, or buy gift cards and send them the PIN numbers. Once you wire money, or give someone the gift card PINs, it is like giving someone cash. It's almost impossible to get it back.
- Toss offers that ask you to pay for a prize. If it's free, you shouldn't have to pay to get it.
