NEWS BRIEFS

Road closures, detours for Christmas Parade

The Citrus County Sheriff's Office wants to remind motorists of road closures Saturday, Dec. 11, for the annual Inverness Christmas Parade.

The parade will be from noon - 2 p.m., but roads will be closed starting at 11 a.m. in preparation of the parade, said Alexandria Perkins, CCSO spokeswoman.

Which roads will be affected?

West Main Street from U.S. 41 at the Inverness Publix to U.S. 41 South, just past McDonald's restaurant.

Detours? West Highland Boulevard to Montgomery Avenue.

If you're going to be traveling, plan your "out and about" route accordingly, Perkins said. Try to avoid this area if possible and take an alternate route. The road closure is expected to last until about 2 p.m.

FDLE charges Homosassa man with child pornography

One Homosassa man is in custody after agents with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) charged him with 12 counts of possession of child sexual abuse material and one count of distribution of child sexual abuse material.

Agents from the Tampa Bay Regional Operations Center arrested Frederick Deckant, 59, of Homosassa, on Wednesday, according to a Facebook post on his social media account.

According to the post, after an undercover operation identified an IP address that was sharing suspected child pornography, agents executed a search warrant at Deckant's home and, based on the results of the search warrant, took him into custody.

Deckant was booked into Citrus County Jail. Bond was set at $195,000. The case will be prosecuted by the State Attorney's Office, Fifth Judicial Circuit.

For more information, see Friday's edition of the Citrus County Chronicle.

Floral City church offering vaccinations

Starting at 9 a.m. Dec. 10, Floral City United Methodist Church, in cooperation with the Citrus County Health Department, will hold the next round of COVID-19 vaccinations in the church's Hilton Hall, 8478 E. Marvin St. in Floral City.

Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson vaccines will be offered, in addition to all vaccine makers' boosters. In addition, the public can register for regular flu shots and hepatitis shots.

To schedule an appointment, call the church office at 352-344-1771.

Hinkle resigns from council

Cites personal issues for his departure

FRED HIERS
 Staff writer

After more than 18 years on the Inverness City Council dais, Councilman Ken Hinkle resigned at the end of Tuesday's regularly scheduled meeting, citing personal issues behind his decision.

The city's mayor, Hinkle's fellow council members and the city manager lavished Hinkle with praise for his service on the council during the past 18 years. The remaining four council members unanimously voted to fill the vacancy with Inverness businessman and Realtor Gene Davis. The seat's term expires November 2022.

Hinkle submitted his resignation letter to City Manager Eric Williams just moments before Tuesday's meeting. "I am retiring strictly for personal reasons," he wrote in his resignation letter to Williams. "It has been an honor and privilege to serve the city for the past 18 years," Hinkle wrote. "It has been exciting to watch the city change during this time. I have been a part of several projects that (have) modernized the city while still maintaining that small town feeling that we all love."

"The growth in the business community throughout Inverness in invigorating to watch and I hope to see it continue in time to come," wrote the 71-year-old Hinkle. "My thoughts and prayers will be with each of you as you continue to serve the best city in the state."

"We've got a great future," Hinkle said after announcing his retirement to his fellow council members, and he applauded

Meal fit for manatees

Seagrass from King's Bay used for feeding

BUSTER THOMPSON
 Staff writer

Like cooked spaghetti leaving a strainer, the seagrass fell from buckets over the side of the Long River Bridge at the Ellie Schiller Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park.

Sounds of the vegetation hitting the clear, fresh water resonated toward four manatees waiting the afternoon of Wednesday, Dec. 8, on the other side of the park's submerged enclosure.

Lunch was served. In less than a minute, the small herd of marine mammals torpedoed the floating mat of seagrass, munching their way through below a crowd of park goers and news crews watching from atop the bridge.

Workers with aquatic restoration firm Sea & Shoreline LLC delivered the manatees' feast from a local source: King's Bay, Crystal River.

"We're here to witness a pretty neat project," Ryan Brushwood, lead biologist at Sea & Shoreline, said before helping his colleagues wheelbarrow bushels of seagrass to the park's bridge dividing the Homosassa River from its head spring.

These seagrass strands were once floating and pooling in King's Bay — a side effect of the Save Crystal River Inc. King's Bay Restoration Project, which has been transforming the bay's bottom with lush seagrass beds for the past six years.

Sea & Shoreline contracted with Save Crystal River and the Homosassa River Restoration Project Inc. to help turn their similar environmental endeavors into realities.

Each year, like other plants, seagrass sheds around 80% of its biomass.

"It's a normal part of the process," Brushwood said, "but if they get caught in docks and dead-end canals, they can settle and become muck again. ... It's kind of an eyesore."

A lush bounty of seagrass isn't something every manatee living in Florida has been able to find in 2021, especially along the Sunshine State's east coast in the Indian River Lagoon.

There have been more than 1,000 reported manatee deaths during the year, according to preliminary findings from the Florida Fish and Wildlife

Every organization, every church, every neighborhood needs a Mike Clemmer.

He was the one who gave 1,000% to anything he did, the one who raised his hand to volunteer before the need was even presented.

He was the one who looked for ways to serve others, the one you could count on, the one who came early and stayed late.

The morning of Oct. 31, he had already been to his church, St. Benedict Catholic Church in Crystal River, to set out the coffee and doughnuts before Sunday Mass, and went back home to take a quick shower, planning to return to church to help serve Mass as a Eucharistic minister.

The night before he had stayed up late working at a Halloween event he had helped plan and implement for FFRA, Friends and Families Reaching for Abilities, an organization that was dear to him.

He never made it to Mass that day.

Mike Clemmer died Oct. 31. He was 75.

"Serving others came naturally to him," said his wife, Diane Clemmer.

MANATEE

Conservation Commission, including 21 in Citrus County.

“Everyone’s aware of the pretty grim news of manatee die-offs statewide,” Brushwood said, “and a lot of those die-offs have been due to starvation frankly because of seagrass die-off and habitat loss.”

Manatees eat 10% to 15% of their body weight in seagrass a day, or between 80 and 150 pounds of aquatic vegetation.

In response to the famine facing manatees, Sea & Shoreline’s “Seagrass Saves Sea Life” campaign took action on a win-win solution.

Sea & Shoreline set forth on a weekly goal to bring between 400 and 700 pounds of seagrass clippings from the surface of King’s Bay to feed the local park’s manatees — Betsy, Ariel, Hines and Keeks.

“We’re not digging anything up; we’re only collecting stuff from the surface that’s already been floating,” Brushwood said. “...and bringing it here where it can be used as food for the manatees.”

Brushwood said the feedings will also help offset costs for the park, which feeds 11 cases containing between 30 and 50 pounds of lettuce—either romaine or escarole—to its resident manatees each day.

“We’re able to feed them a natural food source that’s more nutritious, more calorie-rich for them,” Brushwood said.

Sea & Shoreline has enough funding for at least 26 weeks of seagrass feedings at the park thanks to contribution from the California-based Nancy P And Richard K.

Robbins Foundation.

“They saw this problem with manatees dying, and they wanted to do something,” Brushwood said. “Restoring seagrass in habitats is the long-term solution but it takes time, and, unfortunately, this problem that we’re dealing with is right now.”

Brushwood said Sea & Shoreline is also looking into if it can transport shedded seagrass to vulnerable manatee populations elsewhere in Florida.

“It’s absolutely something worth exploring,” he said. “We’re fortunate enough to have an abundance of seagrass, and it would be great if we could share that around the state.”

Save Crystal River Board President Lisa Moore said Wednesday’s feeding was just another upside of the nonprofit’s restoration effort.

Along with reopening more than 700 clogged spring vents around King’s Bay, Sea & Shoreline’s 54 acres of planted seagrass blossomed to over 200 acres.

“This project has had so many unexpected benefits,” Moore said. “why not feed the manatees the grass? It just seemed like a natural fit.”

Steve Minguy, board president of the Homosassa River Restoration Project, or HRRP, said he’s hopeful Sea & Shoreline can one day use the seagrass leftovers from the two-year-old project.

Minguy said Sea & Shoreline has done just under 14 acres of the project’s first phase of 25 acres in canals and coves next door to the park. A second phase of 34 acres is upcoming, taking HRRP’s seagrass up to and beyond Halls River.

“The growth has been phenomenal and the backing from community has surprised me,” Minguy said. “...That amount of participation; I didn’t see that coming, and that’s been very awesome.”

HRRP also set up an exhibit at the park’s entrance of waste its members picked up from the nearby rivers.

Moore said Sea & Shoreline got permits for year-round in-water work in King’s Bay, and is on track to reach Save Crystal River’s goal to restore 90 acres of the bay by Crystal River’s 100th birthday in July 2023 if state funding remains stable.

Save Crystal River will also try to muster support for separate restoration initiatives to clean the Hunter Spring Run basin and the area of Cedar Cove where Crystal River’s Riverwalk is planned to go.

Moore said the organization also wants to bring Parker Island back to its original size by using the earth from the unnatural land bridge to the north.

“We recognize those other problems,” she said, “and we’re trying to address them.”

Clerk's office offers alert system

Special to the Chronicle

The Citrus County Clerk of Courts wants to remind the public about enrolling in its free Recording Activity Notice program to red flag fraudulent activity and help protect property.

"This fraud alert is important because it gives the citizens of Citrus County, or those who own property here, the ability to track documents filed in the official records involving their name or business," Clerk of Courts and County Recorder Angela Vick said. "Property fraud alerts do not prevent fraud, but they do allow the property owner to be notified and take appropriate legal action if something potentially illegal is filed."

Property fraud occurs when a person fraudulently files documents against property for financial gain or to take over ownership without the owner's knowledge. Scammers target individuals in multiple ways.

One document targeted and used by scammers is a recorded power of attorney because they grant access to information such as bank accounts and assets.

Scammers also watch obituaries and act quickly by forging the name of a deceased person on a deed to transfer the property and secure the title. Then the property is used to secure loans. The scammer defaults on the loans, and lenders seize the property.

"Fraud can happen to anyone," Vick said, "but some are more vulnerable: senior citizens, immigrants, those facing foreclosure, and those who have multiple properties — second homes, vacation property or investment property. Also at risk are those who own unoccupied homes, lots or businesses."

Vick said her office believes "it is important to offer this service to those who entrust their official records documents to us."

Users can set up multiple alerts to monitor different spellings of their name or business, if they are concerned that it might be missed. Even so, the alert is only as effective as the correct spelling of the name that is being monitored.

Once registered for this service, users will receive an automatic email notification when a document is recorded in Citrus County specifically naming them or their business entity.

Notifications are generated within 24 hours of a document being indexed into the official records, providing users with prompt notification of any recordings.

Included in notifications will be the document type, registered name and a direct link to view the recorded document.

To sign up for this fraud alert protection, users can visit citrusclerk.org/ran and click on the "click here to sign up for alerts" button.

The online form requires a valid email address, as those who register will be immediately notified by email should a document be recorded that matches the criteria provided. Assistance is also available at 352-341-6424, option two for any questions.

District OKs second phase of hog hunts

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

To curb the population of troublesome wild hogs across its local lands, the Southwest Florida Water Management District is opening another round to register for hunting permits.

Hunters can start applying at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14, to get $75 nonrefundable permits for three-day hunts running January through February 2022 in six district lands.

Registration ends either when all permits are sold or at midnight on Dec. 16, whichever comes first. Permits are transferable.

For more information, visit WaterMatters.org/HogHunts or call the district's land management section at 800-423-1476.

District officials will contact whoever produces the most on each hunt during phase two to take part in feral hog hunts on as-needed basis, free of charge.

Citrus County is home to one of the district lands for hog hunting, the Flying Eagle Nature Center off East Boy Scout Road, east of Wild hogs eat a variety of plants and animals. They feed by rooting with their broad snouts, which can disturb the soil and ground cover vegetation, leaving an area looking like a plowed field.

Inverness. Jan. 11-13 is slated to be when 20 permitted hunters can hunt hogs in the preserve.

North of Citrus County's border with Marion County is the Hál-pata Tastanaki Preserve, which will host its hog hunt Jan 25-27 for 25 permitted hunters.

There will be no days to scout the lands ahead of time.

Invasive to Florida, feral hogs were introduced to the Sunshine State as early as 1539 by explorer Hernando DeSoto.

Using their broad snouts to root out their meals, hogs destroy natural habitats and leave them looking like plowed fields. When hogs cause too much destruction in its lands, the water management district hosts a series of hunts to control the animal's population.

Inverness council settles code violation dispute

Also postpones vote on Wyld Palms subdivision

FRED HIERS
Staff writer

An Inverness property code violation for four overgrown lots and with fines totaling more than $138,000 was settled this week by the Inverness City Council.

The council members agreed unanimously that with the four lots on Popular Street and Madison Street worth about $4,000 each, the fine against owner LEVENTURES LLC would prohibit development.

City Manager Eric Williams told his council bosses that the city threatened to foreclose on the properties, and after years ignoring the city staff, the owners responded.

Williams also said that the potential value of the lots if developed was likely a motivating factor in resolving the issue.

Williams said that with such a large fine connected with the properties, they would not likely get developed and recommended the council accept $3,000 from the owner.

"We believe this more than covers" the cost to the city, Williams said. "We believe it's fair."

Councilman Cabot McBride said of the deal that the city was being "very gracious and generous."

And, he said, the owners need to be more responsive when contacted by city staff.

The council approved the deal 5-0 during its regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday.

The city first cited the property owners for an overgrown lot Oct. 7, 2019. Three weeks later the lots were still not in compliance, according to records. The city's code enforcement special magistrate gave owners 30 days to comply or face a $50 per day fine. The fines started Dec. 1, 2019.

On Nov. 11, 2021, the owners, through their lawyer, proposed a $3,000 settlement.

Also in city council news, the council held off a vote on the final plat approval for the Wyld Palms subdivision slated to be made up of 62 townhomes and 168 single family homes.

Williams told his council bosses Tuesday there had been a clerical error on the documents and that he would bring back the documents during the council's Dec. 21 meeting.

For more than a dozen years, the subdivision has been left mostly abandoned with buildings overgrown and mostly unmaintained save for the community clubhouse. The original developers are no longer with the project.

On July 9, 2021, Garden Street Communities out of Gulf Breeze purchased the Wyld Palms property and provided the city with a final plat of the new subdivision.

In May, 2021, the council approved a preliminary plan for the subdivision.

Also in city business, Williams told the council members the city's Light Up Liberty and Light Up the Lake had been successes with about 2,000 visitors. The events involved a boat parade with lighted, decorated boats and decorated light poles in the park.

Mayor Bob Plaisted told the council that he had "not seen anything as beautiful as that in I don't know how long."

Jussie Smollett case in jurors' hands at Chicago trial

CHICAGO — A prosecutor told jurors Wednesday there is "overwhelming evidence" that Jussie Smollett lied to Chicago police about being the victim of an anti-gay, racist hate crime, while a defense attorney called the case a "house of cards" built on testimony from two liars.

The lawyers' closing arguments capped just over one week of testimony in the case against the former "Empire" actor. The jury deliberated for about two hours Wednesday but broke for the day without reaching a verdict. They are expected to resume deliberations Thursday.

In his closing, special prosecutor Dan Webb said Smollett caused Chicago police to spend enormous resources investigating an alleged crime that they now believe is fake. Smollett, who is Black and gay, told police someone put a noose around his neck and yelled racist and homophobic slurs during the January 2019 attack near his downtown Chicago home.

"Besides being against the law, it is just plain wrong to outright denigrate something as serious as a real hate crime and then make sure it involved words and symbols that have such historical significance in our country," Webb said.

He also accused Smollett of lying to jurors, saying surveillance video from before the alleged attack and that night contradicts key moments of Smollett's testimony.

"At the end of the day, he lacks any credibility whatsoever," Webb said.

Defense attorney Nenye Uche said in his closing argument that two brothers who testified that Smollett orchestrated the attack and paid them to carry it out are "sophisticated liars" out for money.

"The entire prosecution's case, including the foundation of the case, is built like a house of cards," Uche said.

Lawyer: Flavor Flav aims for sobriety, battery case closed

LAS VEGAS — Attorneys for entertainer Flavor Flav said Wednesday he's working to stay sober following dismissal of a misdemeanor domestic battery charge stemming from a scuffle with his girlfriend at home in suburban Las Vegas.

The 62-year-old former rapper, hip-hop and reality TV star, whose legal name is William Jonathan Drayton Jr., pleaded no contest in Henderson Municipal Court to a misdemeanor nonviolent coercion charge, admitted he took a cellphone, and paid $640 in fines, a court official and his defense attorneys said.

"Mr. Drayton and his family are grateful to bring an amicable close to this matter and appreciate everyone's support as he continues his one-year journey of sobriety," defense attorneys David Chesnoff and Richard Schonfeld said in a statement.

Drayton was arrested late Oct. 4 at home in Henderson. He was freed from jail the next day on $3,000 bond.

The alleged victim was identified as a woman with whom he has a dating relationship and a minor child in common. Her name was redacted in court and police documents. — From wire reports disabled boy would sit outside and Mike began stopping to talk to him.

"Mike would talk about this boy and about how the boy's eyes would light up when he saw him," Diane Clemmer said. "Even then he had a sense of being compassionate and wanting to help others."

After a varied career, including a stint in the U.S. Army and Army Reserves, Mike and Diane retired to Sugarmill Woods in Homosassa.

That's when Mike had time to do the things that fueled his passion and compassion for others, serving at church and with the Knights of Columbus Council 15225 St. Benedict, raising money for charitable causes like purchasing a wheelchair-accessible van for a severely disabled boy.

He started Coats for Kids, collecting more than 1,000 coats and jackets that the Knights give to the Pregnancy and Family Life Center and DayStar Life Center to give out for free, said fellow Knight John Conroy.

"He really cared about people," Conroy said.

Around his Sugarmill Woods neighborhood, Mike was a caretaker for his neighbors, from doing odd jobs around the house that they couldn't do themselves to sealing all the driveways of the houses in the cul-de-sac every year so they all had uniform curb appeal.

One of Mike's neighbors, Dave Deso, invited Mike to get involved with FFRA, the nonprofit support and social group for people with intellectual disabilities, their caregivers and friends.

"When I explained to him what we do, he told me about the young man from his days delivering papers," Deso said. "That had left a lasting impression on him, and FFRA reminded him of that relationship. He came aboard full-steam."

At FFRA, Mike was the one who made everything happen.

In the past few years, the organization has been raising money for a building where they can meet, and Mike was invaluable in their fundraising events such as the Abilities Art Gala, Top Hat Big Band concert and dance, and Halloween Haunted Drive-Thru.

"When I first met Mike, he was Santa Claus at a Christmas party — and he came in late," said board member and friend Robert DeSimone. "He had on a frumpy-looking costume and beard, and I'm thinking, 'This guy's not going to work out,' but it turned out that he was late because he was doing something for somebody."

"If we had a meeting and talked about needing something done — boom! — he'd volunteer and then an hour later or the middle of the night you'd get a copy of a letter he'd written or an ad or something he'd done."

"Any idea or project I cooked up, he'd jump in with both feet," DeSimone said. "I never had to worry about things getting done, because Mike did it."

About five years ago, Mike joined Deso and DeSimone as mentors to a few men with developmental disabilities. They call their group the Brotherhood and go out to eat or do community service projects together, like cleaning up the area around the three tall roadside crosses on Homosassa Trail.

"We all have a companion, and Mike had several," Deso said. "Sometimes we'd be in Walmart and Mike would be with three or four of our guys, like a mother hen with her chicks."

At a recent gathering of the Brotherhood, the men took turns talking about Mike Clemmer.

"Mike was like a father or a brother to all of us," said Bruce McKinnell, Mike's FFRA buddy. "I felt really close to Mike, deep down inside. ... He helped me get my job at the Key Training Center in the workshop."

"We were there at his funeral; he was the greatest man ever," said John Dollard. "He took us to the Y swimming and to work out. We loved it."

"And we helped build the obstacle course at the Y, moving logs and pulling weeds, and we did some planting at the wildlife park, and Mike was right there with us," Dollard said.

John Thagard remembered how Mike helped them take lawnmowers apart, clean them and put them back together.

"They'd fire right up, then we'd sell them and make some money," Thagard said. "Out at the Halloween drive-through, I played the red-neck chainsaw massacre guy with a long, shaggy beard. Before we did that, we had to have posts to put up signs and Mike helped us pound the posts in the ground. He was right there and always available."

"Through thick and thin, Mike was there with us, and I miss him," McKinnell said. "I know if he was here, he'd tell us, 'Keep going.' He's looking down on us right now, and he's very proud of all of us."

Williams for his leadership during the past two years.

Hinkle oversaw during his tenure renovations of the downtown, Depot District, construction of city hall, the city's wastewater treatment plant, and numerous road and infrastructure projects. He also initiated "Pioneer Moments" which includes city residents speaking during council meetings about growing up in Inverness. He was first elected in March, 2003.

"I'm just shocked, Ken," said Mayor Bob Plaisted. "What an outstanding time we've had together ... all the things we've been through," said a solemn Plaisted. "I'm truly going to miss you."

Plaisted said Hinkle had lived up to his commitment to leave the city better than he had found it and help make Inverness a place people would want to live.

Fighting back tears, Councilwoman Jacquie Hepfer said during the meeting she was speechless.

Councilman Cabot McBride said the council and city accomplished great things during Hinkle's tenure and that Hinkle "set the standard for us all."

"Really and truly we're going to miss you on the council," McBride said.

"It's been an absolute pleasure," said Council President David Ryan about working with Hinkle. "You definitely will be missed. Thank you for your service to the community."

Williams said Hinkle had been the embodiment of the kind of leadership the city needed and was part of the "family" of staff and elected officials that operated the city.

"It truly was an honor to come into the role (of city manager) with you as (council) president," Williams said about becoming city manager two years ago.

After resigning, Hinkle recommended that the council appoint local Realtor and businessman Gene Davis to the Council seat 3. Davis has sat on numerous county and city boards during the past several years. He was also born and grew up in Inverness. The remaining four council members voted unanimously to appoint Davis to fill the seat. If the vote had not been unanimous, the city would have had to hold a special election. Davis will have to run for the office in November if he wants to remain at the post. The job pays about $4,000 annually.

Hinkle moved to Inverness as a child. He would not elaborate to the Chronicle about his leaving the council.

Davis told Hinkle that "the city will miss you" and that he would accept the job "with humility and honor."

Peggy Wadhams, 93

INVERNESS

Wadhams. Peggy (Schmidt) Wadhams, 93 of Inverness Florida, passed peacefully on Wednesday (October 20, 2021) at the Hospice House in Lecanto FL.

Peggy Wadhams

She was born in Mamaroneck NY, the daughter of the late John A. Schmidt and Adeline B. Schmidt. Peggy graduated from Manchester High School in Manchester, CT and later settled in Bloomfield, CT. She worked for Cigna Life Insurance Company and volunteered for many local charities. She retired in Inverness, FL where she continued her volunteer services. Peggy is survived by her three children, James A. Wadhams of Hebron, CT, Patricia W. Schnee of Collinsville, CT, and William E. Wadhams of Inverness, FL, 6 grandchildren and two great granddaughters. A memorial service and burial will be held at the convenience of the family.

Earlene Williams, 80

INVERNESS

Earlene Williams (née Sayward) passed away shortly before Thanksgiving 2021 in Inverness, Florida. She was 80 years old. She is preceded in death by her parents, her siblings, her husband David, and her youngest son Steven. She is survived by her son Edward Williams of Portland, Oregon; her daughter Kristen (Alex) Panamaroff, and her grandchildren Ryan and Elinore, all of Fairbanks, Alaska. She has a wealth of friends in Florida and Maine.

She was devoted to her family and home. She loved to quilt and craft and became an expert quilter, enjoying challenges and the thrill of a new find of fabric. She was proud of her work and her enthusiasm was infectious. She added many homemade touches to her homes, and was actively sanding, painting, and fixing up her beloved cottage even into her later years. She was always looking forward to the next project and fully enjoyed life on the lake. After a lifetime in the cold and snow of Maine, her wish was finally realized when they moved to Florida in 1994. She wintered in Florida and stayed summers in Maine.

She was a treasured member of a circle of friends in quilting as part of the Citrus Friendship Quilters Guild and the Inverness Quilters. She belonged to widow groups in Florida and Maine where she could let loose a little and laugh. Her friends say she was the first to volunteer to organize parties and gatherings. She volunteered at the SOS Food Pantry food bank. She always remembered birthdays, anniversaries, and holidays and you were certain to get a carefully picked out card or gift. She was always sending care packages to her grandkids, full of silly treats they enjoyed even as teenagers. She was especially proud of going back to school later in life and getting her Associates Degree in Business Administration. She never gave herself enough credit for how smart she was. Some may not know this, but she was a lovely singer and has been a member of different Sweet Adelines groups over the years. Sailing was a way of life while her kids were still at home. She was a wonderful first mate and ran a tight ship, on our little 26 foot sailboat we would sail up and down the coast of Maine.

Earlene enjoyed traveling and made several trips out west to see her kids and grandkids. Later in life, after David finally retired, they enjoyed taking cruises.

She never wanted anyone to make a fuss over her, but there will be one anyway.

There will be a church service and reception/celebration of life on Tuesday December 14 at 1:00 pm at Shepherd of the Hills Episcopal Church, 2540 W. Norvell-Bryant Highway, Lecanto, FL. As it is the advent season, there will be no flowers in the church. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the SOS Food Pantry at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, or to the Shepherd of the Hills Episcopal Church. Cards can be sent to Kristen

Michael Gallant, 73

Michael Joseph Gallant Beloved Son, Brother, Husband, Father, Grampy, Great-Grampy, Uncle, and Friend

11/20/1948-12/03/2021 Michael "Mike" Gallant unexpectedly passed away December 3rd in his home. Mike was born in Waterville, Maine, to Joseph and Doris Gallant, but spent the last half of his life in Citronelle, Florida with his beautiful bride of 38 years, Regina Gallant. He loved his wife just as much on his dying day, as he did the day they met. Anyone who could see them together, could attest to the incredible, one-of-a-kind, true love they shared. Mike also had an undeniably love for his family and friends. He was known by his loved ones as a man of many words, for giving the soundest advice but also having a wit unlike any other. He had a sense of humor that could make anyone laugh; something he very much enjoyed doing. All it took was one look at his quirky smile with that glimmer in his eyes, and you couldn't help but laugh, knowing he was up to no good.

Mike is survived by his wife Regina, his son Todd Gallant and his wife Terri, his daughters Angie Van Dee and her boyfriend Steve, Robin Dodge and her husband Anthony, Renee Leary and her partner Martina, and Ramona Dillahunt, siblings Sally Devine, Patrick Gallant and his wife Barbara, Sharon Gallant, Susan Gallant and her husband Steve, and many grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, and nephews.

He was predeceased by his parents, his first wife Jean Scripture, his sister Sandra Dearborn, his brother James Gallant, and many in-laws.

At Mike's request, there will be no funeral services; however, a Celebration of Life will be held at a later date. Please contact the family for details.

Shirley Hotelling, 79

SHIRLEY M. HOTELLING MARCH 14, 1942- NOVEMBER 26, 2021

"The greatest journey in life... is the one that brings you home."

Shirley Mae Hotelling took her final journey home to heaven on November 26, 2021. She had spent 3 months in a trauma center, due to a serious accident. She was 79 years old.

Shirley was married to James Hotelling in 1961, and they were together 60 years as husband and wife. They lived in Michigan, and in the later 60's with their daughter and son, they became fulltime missionaries at Camp Barakel in Fairview, MI.

Later, Shirley received her nursing degree, and prior to her retirement, shared her heart with others as a nurse and caregiver in Baldwin, MI.

Upon retiring, the couple became Florida Snowbirds in the winter months and, in 2014, became full-time FL residents.

Shirley was a great cook, she loved to quilt, she loved her family, she loved the lord, and her heart was devoted to a Ladies' Bible Study group for years. She was a precious and beloved friend to so many, who will always remember her with love.

Shirley is survived by her husband, James, daughter Dawn and son David.

Also survived by granddaughter, Stacy (Jacob) Reynolds, and great grandson, Jaxon. She was preceded in death by adopted son, Robert. Shirley will be missed most by those who loved her most-her family.

A celebration of life for Shirley Mae Hotelling will be held at the Trinity Independent Baptist Church located at 2840 E. Hayes Street (corner of croft ave) Inverness FL on December 18th at 1pm, with visitation at noon. Pastor Jerry Bloxton will be officiating.

BEVERLY HILLS

The Mass of Christian Burial for Mrs. Esther L. Burney, age 102 years, of Beverly Hills, will be celebrated 10:30 AM Friday, December 10, 2021 at Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church, Beverly Hills. Interment will follow at Memorial Gardens, Beverly Hills. Online condolences for the family can be left at www.HooperFuneralHome.com.

Mrs. Burney was born November 3, 1919 in Cuba, Illinois to Mose and Rose Williams and came to Beverly Hills in 1982 from Miami. She passed away Monday, December 6, 2021. Mrs. Burney was a retired Registered Nurse. She was a member of Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church where she was involved with the Catholic Womens Club and the Widows Club. She was also involved in the Beverly Hills VFW Aux. and United Citizens of Beverly Hills.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Alex M. Burney (November 18, 1989) and her sister: Dena Such. Surviving are her grandchildren Theresa Palmer, Shanna, Sarah, and Summer Wilkins, and Hallie and Chris Palmer. Arrangements under the direction of the Beverly Hills Chapel of Hooper Funeral Homes.

OBITUARIES

■ Submissions must be verified with the funeral home or society in charge of arrangements.

■ The Chronicle does not edit obituaries for content.

■ Death notices are $25, and may include: full name of deceased; age; hometown/state; date of death; place of death; date, time and place of visitation and funeral services and, for members of the military, the branch of the armed services in which they served.

■ If websites, phone numbers, photos, survivors, memorial contributions or other information are included in submissions, the obituary will cost regular price of $175.

■ Full obituaries are $175, and include placement in the newspaper and online, a standard-size headshot and a keepsake plaque. Text exceeding 850 words will be subject to an additional fee of $80.

■ Extra plaques are available for $40 each.

■ Larger, full-column photos may be accommodated in print, but could be subject to additional fees. Contact the Chronicle staff for details.

■ A flag will be included for free for those who served in the U.S. military. (Please note the branch of service when submitting an obituary.)

■ Additional days of publication or reprints due to errors in submitted material are charged at the same rates.

■ Obituary deadlines for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday editions is 3 p.m. the day before. Deadlines for Saturday, Sunday and Monday editions is 3 p.m. Friday.

Stocks end modestly higher

After a choppy day of trading

DAMIAN J. TROISE AND ALEX VEIGA
AP business writers

Major stock indexes weathered a bout of choppy trading on Wall Street Wednesday and closed higher for the third day in a row.

The S&P 500 rose 0.3%, with 62% of the stocks within the benchmark index closing higher. The muted trading followed a strong start to the week that included the index's biggest gain since March.

DISHEARTENING SITUATION

County's homeless given the cold shoulder

The homepage of the Salvation Army website exhorts that it "exists to meet need wherever, whenever and however we can." That's unless you are a homeless person or family in Citrus County, Florida.

For years, the local Salvation Army branch office compassionately carried out the mission of meeting human needs without discrimination by providing an emergency cold weather shelter for individuals and families with nowhere else to go when temperatures dropped below 40 degrees.

In October of this year, however, the local branch office gave the cold shoulder to the county's homeless with its decision to no longer offer its Lecanto facilities as an emergency cold weather shelter.

Citing a pandemic-induced decline of volunteers, fewer homeless persons using the shelter, and a liability requirement for regular volunteers to be certified in its Safe From Harm program to guard against the potential abuse of children and vulnerable adults, the county's only cold weather shelter was shuttered.

Absent a cold weather shelter for the homeless, the burden, to their great credit, is being primarily carried by Vikki and Cliff Spiller with the nonprofit B.A.S.I.C.S. (Brothers and Sisters In Christ's Service) United Homeless Outreach.

The Spillers, assisted by caring volunteers, are carrying around cold weather supplies in their vehicles, such as tarps, blankets, socks, sweaters, ponchos, jackets and hygiene products to give to people they may meet in their everyday travels who don't have a warm place to sleep on a cold night.

In light of Citrus County's well-earned reputation for being a caring and generous community, the fact that the homeless burden is being shouldered by B.A.S.I.C.S

begs the question as to where is the compassion for our county's homeless when they are most vulnerable.

As such, it is extremely disheartening that finding a new shelter site appears to be an insurmountable challenge for the local Salvation Army branch office, even though it pledged to be a strong advocate for a new shelter site.

Given that the Salvation Army website trumpets how its homeless shelters have evolved and innovated to serve the homeless, in spite of the ongoing challenges of the pandemic, the local branch office is urged to redouble its pledged efforts to find a new cold weather shelter site.

It is also disheartening that county government has been missing in action in the search for a new shelter site. While the homeless may not be property taxpayers, county government, in the interest of humanity, is strongly encouraged to work in concert with the Salvation Army and other interested parties to find a way to always have a cold weather shelter available during the winter months.

As shown time and time again by our community, where there's a will, there's a way — no matter how insurmountable the challenge.

THE ISSUE:

Homeless cold weather shelter.

OUR OPINION:

Where there's a will, there's a way.

Hope verdict will put racism in the past

Many will find reason to be happy that justice was served in the Ahmaud Arbery case. I do not think that happiness is good karma when we are sending three men to prison, likely for the rest of their life. I am certainly relieved that our judicial system is finally working in what was a strong racist situation.

I am also saddened that we still have those who will consider killing a man who was jogging, unarmed. Maybe it will discourage others from a similar crime. Maybe it will be a verdict that can actually help to move racism to history.

Maybe. If not, how long can it possibly take?

St. Jude a worthy charity to give to

It first came to my attention, when as a teenager I noticed that my father sent donations to the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital regularly.

Later, when I lived close to the hospital in Memphis, Tennessee, I saw children with their parents in a local restaurant — the children had no hair and obviously were undergoing cancer treatments.

So then I knew my father was so concerned about children that he donated to St. Jude and so was Danny Thomas, the famous actor.

According to the internet, Thomas, before his fame, was married and his wife was with child. He was worried about future looming hospital bills. But while at church, without thought, gave his last $7 in the offering plate. He prayed for help financially; soon, he received an offer for a small acting part that paid seven times what he gave in church. He experienced the power of prayer.

Soon, his acting career really took off, even with a show named "Make Room For Daddy." But every time his career slowed down, he promised to honor God with a shrine to St. Jude.

One thing led to another and with the help of a priest who lived in Memphis, Tennessee, businessmen there and many from across the nation in 1962, the Jude Children's Research Hospital was opened at Memphis. At that time, only 20% of children survived cancer, since then with the hospital's research — the survival rate is 80%.

The families are not charged and all expenses are paid by the hospital. The hospital was the first integrated hospital in the South.

Well, I had better get my donation check in the mail, because they just sent me free Christmas address labels! Don't mind because it is a great cause!

Get vaccinated, slow inflation

According to Josh Bivens, Research Director for the Economic Policy Institute, the inflation spike we're experiencing in 2021 "is largely driven by COVID-related factors — in particular, reallocation of spending away from face-to-face services (like eating out) and toward goods (online product purchasing), combined with port shut-downs and other global supply-chain snarls."

But the profits-over-people Gov. DeSantis and Fox fans blame Biden for the inflation, not COVID. But, wait, isn't President Biden trying to mitigate COVID? Instead, Ron DeSantis and our legislators, Massullo and Simpson are suing to protect the right to get infected, and they defend rejection of the science-based solutions — vaccines and masks.

This ideology is, at best, misguided (ask the 60,000 dead Floridians if it was dangerous). Folks, if you don't care about human life, you can help your pocketbook by slowing inflation — get vaccinated. It is free and safe — 200 million Americans have done their part already. Do your part, and then everyone can get past the fear of exposure to COVID and return to normal, mingling with each other face to face. That is the way to ease the horrible inflation you are complaining about. If you care about your pocketbook, get vaccinated!

Thanks to good hearted people

We have a lot of bad news around the world today, so I thought I needed to call in and let you know about some wonderful acts of kindness by many different people, such as opening the door to the store for us when we went shopping, getting shopping carts for us when people had planned to use it themselves, inviting us to check out ahead of them at the store, somebody dropped croissants into our shopping cart on our way out of the store, and taking the empty shopping cart from the back of our car when we had emptied it out and putting it back where it belonged for us. So, thanks to a lot of goodhearted people. There is a lot of good news and a lot of nice people in the county and I thought we should just let you know about our one-day experience. Thank you.

Pay fines with community service

I'm responding to Sound Off to all these unpaid court fines with these multimillions of dollars that just goes to collections and never gets paid. So why don't we take all those people with outstanding fines and give them two choices: Either they pay their fines by community service, which means picking up all the litter and trash in Citrus County until their fine is paid off; or let them do jail time in lieu of not paying their fines. You need to start to get tough and that's the way it has to be, period. It's ridiculous. It goes to collections. That's a piece of paper blowing in the wind.

Don't they get a Social Security check?

I'm trying to comment on the article in your Sound Off of somebody who said there was a two-bedroom apartment available in Inverness and that the low-income people have no good credit to get it (Friday, Dec. 3, Page A13, "Build the animal shelter"). Well, I would think that they get a Social Security check and that's guaranteed income. I'm just curious.

My water meter is faulty

Living in Arbor Lakes for over seven years, 365 days a year, I've always felt the water meters here were faulty. For three months straight, I was charged for 1,000 gallons. The following month, I was charged for 11,000 gallons. Go figure. This has been going on for over seven years. At one point, I reached out to the county commissioners and they were willing to send me a chart of when I was using water and charged me for the chart. This has been going on summer, winter, fall and spring. I'm not the only one experiencing this in Arbor Lakes, and, as we noticed, water and sewer is going up pennies every time — a penny here and a penny there.

Golf carts belong in The Villages

I'm responding to Sound Off and, you know, I really wish the police were doing their job, especially by Citrus Hills. There's this man on his golf cart coming out of Citrus Hills, driving down the walkway and zooming through the parking lot of CVS, going into the other part of Citrus Hills. Really? If you want to use your golf cart, go to The Villages.

Keep trying to buy Pirate's Cove

Commissioner Kinnard: You have one more time at bat for a piece of Old Florida waterfront for park expansion for future generations of Citrus Countians and tourists. Years ago, the county commission voted to intervene and acquire the Homosassa Springs Attraction. That was eventually turned over to the state of Florida to become the Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park. All things are possible. So let's try to hit a homerun at this last time at bat. Go to the state Legislature for Pirate's Cove. These are the same guys that didn't want a new animal shelter or a traffic signal. You have the appraisals to present to our representatives.

Use headlights during fog

People please, please, please, when it's really foggy out, you need to have your headlights on — not your high beams, but your headlights — because it makes it very difficult for people to see you coming. Please turn on your headlights when it's foggy.

Hot Corner: GAS PRICES

■ I'm responding to Sound Off to your article, "Gas prices may start dropping this week" (Tuesday, Dec. 7, Page A3). Really? Well, they already dropped in Ocala. When I went shopping, it was $2.86. I don't see no gas in Citrus County for $2.86, let alone $2.90. It's all still $3 and above. Really?

■ Yesterday, Dec. 7, I went to Brooksville. Gas was 20 cents cheaper. It was $3.07. The other day, I went to Ocala and almost anywhere, gas was 10 to 15 cents cheaper than it is in Citrus County where we're paying $3.27. It's laughable. It's not laughable, actually — it's a shame — and our commissioners would like a 1% tax increase for gas? Fat chance! ■ With gas averaging $3.20-something a gallon here in Citrus County, I was able to fill up my vehicle for $2.89 a gallon over in Ocala. Not sure why the big price discrepancy between the two counties, but there you go.

WH has new slogan

Bill now billed as 'Building a Better America'

DARLENE SUPERVILLE
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Joe Biden unveiled a new slogan for his $1 trillion infrastructure package on Wednesday, but his overall message is staying largely the same.

Biden, trying to rebound from sagging poll numbers, rebranded his Bipartisan Infrastructure Framework as "Building a Better America." He spoke at the Kansas City Area Transportation Authority, surrounded by buses and signs featuring the new slogan as he continued a weeklong tour to put greater focus on the planned spending for roads, bridges, water systems, broadband and greater resilience against climate change.

The economy has revived since Biden took office, but high inflation, political polarization and the inability to fully break free of the coronavirus pandemic have all hurt his popularity. The new slogan for his big, just-passed infrastructure package says the president's bipartisan deal will improve the country in ways well

Manchin says he wouldn't defy parliamentarian on immigration

WASHINGTON — Pivotal Sen. Joe Manchin said Wednesday he'd vote to uphold the Senate parliamentarian's decision if she rules that immigration or other provisions should fall from Democrats' huge social and environment bill, underscoring the party's uphill fight to keep some top priorities in the legislation.

Elizabeth MacDonough, the chamber's nonpartisan rules referee, is expected to decide shortly whether language letting millions of migrants remain temporarily in the U.S. can stay in the 10-year, roughly $2 trillion measure. She's also considering the fate of other initiatives, including parts of Democrats' plan to curb pharmaceutical prices.

MacDonough's decisions can be ignored by whichever Democrat is presiding over the chamber during debate, but Republicans could force votes challenging that. Ultimately, Democrats would likely need all their votes to defeat such GOP moves in the 50-50 chamber, where Vice President Kamala Harris can break ties. All Republicans oppose the legislation.

The moderate Manchin, D-W.Va., has spent months forcing Democrats to reduce the size and scope of the legislation, which the House approved last month. The Senate is all but certain to make significant changes to the bill, one of President Joe Biden's top domestic priorities. Party leaders hope Congress can approve a final version by Christmas.

— From wire reports beyond repairing its aging roads and bridges.

"We're talking about rebuilding America, investing in America, building a better America," Biden said.

The new slogan hews closely to Biden's separate "Build Back Better" agenda of tax hikes on the wealthy and an expansion of education, family and environmental programs still pending in the Senate. That slogan, too, has its critics, who say it makes it challenging for people to easily grasp all that's in the package.

Biden mixed together talk of "Build Back Better" with the new infrastructure law on Wednesday, declaring that the risks of climate change mean roads need to be constructed higher and that costs more money.

The White House launched a website Wednesday that asks Americans to record videos about how the infrastructure spending will help their own communities, part of a search for grassroots support as the administration seeks greater recognition for its achievements ahead of the 2022 midterm elections.

New COVID drug OK'd

MATTHEW PERRONE
AP health writer

WASHINGTON — Federal health officials on Wednesday authorized a new COVID-19 antibody drug for people with serious health problems or allergies who can't get adequate protection from vaccination.

Antibody drugs have been a standard treatment for treating COVID-19 infections for over a year. But the AstraZeneca antibody drug cleared by the Food and Drug Administration is different. It's the first intended for long-term prevention against COVID-19 infection, rather than a short-term treatment.

People who could benefit from the antibody drug include cancer patients, organ transplant recipients and people taking immune-suppressing drugs for conditions like rheumatoid arthritis. Health experts estimate about 2% to 3% of the U.S. population falls into that group.

"These people still have to shelter in place because they're at really high risk of severe disease and death," said Dr. David Boulware of the University of Minnesota, ahead of the announcement. "So having this therapy will enable a lot of them to get back to their normal lives."

Specifically, the FDA authorized the AstraZeneca drug called Evusheld for adults and children 12 and older whose immune systems haven't responded adequately to COVID-19 vaccines or have a history of severe allergic reactions to the shots. Regulators said the required two antibody injections may be effective at preventing COVID-19 infections for six months.

Like similar drugs, AstraZeneca's delivers laboratory-made versions of human antibody proteins, which help the immune system fight off viruses and other infections.

The FDA and other health authorities have stressed that antibody drugs are not a substitute for vaccines, which are the most effective, long-lasting and economical form of virus protection.

California to become 'abortion sanctuary' if Roe reversed

ADAM BEAM
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — With more than two dozen states poised to ban abortion if the U.S. Supreme Court gives them the OK next year, California clinics and their allies in the state Legislature on Wednesday revealed a plan to make the state a "sanctuary" for those seeking reproductive care, including possibly paying for travel, lodging and procedures for people from other states.

The California Future of Abortion Council, made up of more than 40 abortion providers and advocacy groups, released a list of 45 recommendations for the state to consider if the high court overturns Roe v. Wade — the 48-year-old decision that forbids states from outlawing abortion.

The recommendations are not just a liberal fantasy. Some of the state's most important policy-makers helped write them, including Toni Atkins, the San Diego Democrat who leads the state Senate and attended multiple meetings.

Democratic Gov. Gavin Newsom started the group himself and in an interview last week with The Associated Press said some of the report's details will be included in his budget proposal in January.

"We'll be a sanctuary," Newsom said, adding he's aware patients will likely travel to California from other states to seek abortions. "We are looking at ways to support that inevitability and looking at ways to expand our protections."

Abortion, perhaps more than any other issue, has divided the country for decades along mostly traditional partisan lines. A new decision overturning Roe v. Wade, which could come next summer, would be the culmination of more than 40 years of conservative activism. But Wednesday's report offers a first glimpse of how Democratic-dominated states could respond and how the debate over abortion access would change.

California already pays for abortions for many low-income residents through the state's Medicaid program. And California is one of six states that require private insurance companies to cover abortions, although many patients still end up paying deductibles and co-payments.

But money won't be a problem for state-funded abortion services for patients from other states. California's coffers have soared throughout the pandemic, fueling a record budget surplus this year. Next year, the state's independent Legislative Analyst's Office predicts California will have a surplus of about $31 billion.

California's affiliates of Planned Parenthood, the nation's largest abortion provider, got a sneak preview of how people might seek abortions outside their home states this year when a Texas law that outlawed abortion after six weeks of pregnancy was allowed to take effect. California clinics reported a slight increase in patients from Texas.

Nation/World BRIEFS

Prosecutor: Potter 'failed' Wright

MINNEAPOLIS — A suburban Minneapolis police officer who said she mistakenly drew her gun instead of her Taser when she fatally shot Black motorist Daunte Wright went on trial on manslaughter charges Wednesday, with a prosecutor saying Kim Potter had been trained how to avoid such deadly mix-ups but still got it wrong.

Potter's lawyer, though, argued that she made an error, saying, "Police officers are human beings." And he cast blame on Wright, saying all the 20-year-old had to do that day was surrender.

Potter, 49, killed Wright, who wasn't armed, during a traffic stop April 11 in Brooklyn Center in a shooting that was recorded by her body camera. The white officer resigned two days later.

Father, son arrested in wildfire

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A father and son were arrested Wednesday on suspicion of starting a massive California wildfire that destroyed many homes and forced tens of thousands of people to flee Lake Tahoe communities earlier this year, authorities said.

David Scott Smith, 66, and his son, Travis Shane Smith, 32, are accused of reckless arson in a warrant issued before formal charges are filed, the El Dorado County District Attorney's office said.

Mark Reichel, the attorney for both men, said they were arrested Wednesday afternoon and that reckless arson means starting a blaze by accident but "to such a degree that it was considered reckless."

Authorities allege they caused homes to burn and people to be seriously injured in the fire that began in August. The Caldor fire scorched more than 346 square miles from east of Sacramento to the Nevada border, threatening ski resorts and other prominent recreational areas.

Senate rejects Biden's vaccine mandate

WASHINGTON — The Senate narrowly approved a resolution Wednesday to nullify the Biden administration's requirement that businesses with 100 or more workers have their employees be vaccinated against the coronavirus or submit to weekly testing.

The vote was 52-48. The Democratic-led House is unlikely to take the measure up, which means the mandate would stand, though courts have put it on hold for now.

Still, the vote gave senators a chance to voice opposition to a policy that they say has sparked fears back home from businesses and from unvaccinated constituents who worry about losing their jobs should the rule go into effect.

"Every so often Washington D.C. does something that lights up the phone lines. This is one of these moments," said Sen. Steve Daines, R-Mont. At home, he said, "this issue is what I hear about. This issue is a top-of-mind issue."

US : El Salvador gov't negotiated with gangs

negotiated a truce with leaders of the country's powerful street gangs, the U.S. Treasury charged Wednesday, contradicting Bukele's denials and raising tensions between the two nations.

The U.S. government alleges Bukele's government bought the gangs' support with financial benefits and privileges for their imprisoned leaders including prostitutes and cellphones. The explosive accusation cuts to the heart of one of Bukele's most highly touted successes in office: a plunge in the country's homicide rate.

Bukele's office did not immediately respond to a request for comment, but the president responded sarcastically via Twitter. "Cell phones and prostitutes in the prisons? Money to the gangs? When did that happen? Didn't they even check the date? How can they put out a such an obvious lie without anyone questioning them?"

Chinese boats spotted illegally hauling tuna

MIAMI — Chinese squid vessels were documented using wide nets to illegally catch already overfished tuna as part of a surge in unregulated activity in the Indian Ocean, according to a new report by Norway-based watchdog group that highlights growing concerns about the lack of international cooperation to protect marine species on the high seas.

The report, published Wednesday by Trygg Mat Tracking, found that the number of squid vessels in the high seas of the Indian Ocean — where fishing of the species is not regulated — has exploded six-fold since 2016.

Cookbook celebrates Latin America's vast cuisine

MARK KENNEDY
AP entertainment writer

NEW YORK — Putting together an entire nation's distinctive dishes is a daunting process for anyone. Then imagine doing it for 22 countries and you get a sense of what went into creating "The Latin American Cookbook."

Just a single dish — say garlic shrimp or grilled street corn — can vary in assembly from neighborhood to neighborhood, region to region and nation to nation.

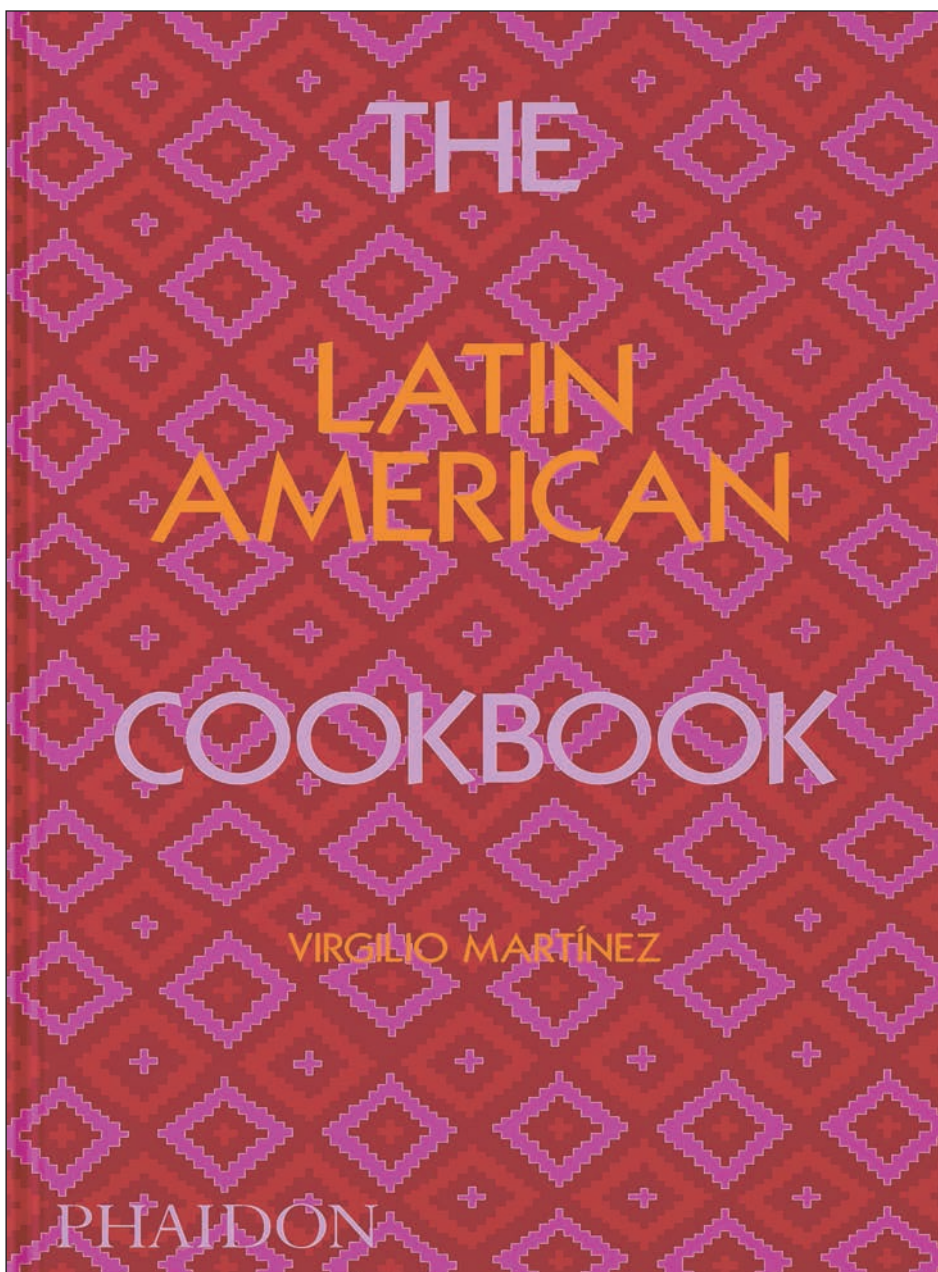

"How to capture this in one dish and say, like, 'This is the recipe' has been one of the toughest things I've done in my life," says Virgilio Martínez, a Michelin star-winning chef whose restaurants include Central in Lima, Peru.

What Martínez and his collaborators have created is a beautiful and thoroughly researched book with 600 iconic recipes that offer a snapshot of the spirit of Latin American cuisine.

There is a dazzling array of dishes, from sea urchins in salsa verde from Chile and a black turkey stew from Belize and Mexico, to a Venezuelan pasta casserole and Ecuadorian potato pancakes. There are recipes for several mole sauces, the classic Pisco Sour, a Dulche de Leche Thousand Layer Cake and the wonderfully named Chilean Disco Fries.

The book is broken down not by nation but by ingredients, including vegetables, corn, pork, lamb and goat, roots and tubers, and fish and seafood. It celebrates such regionally distinctive ingredients as the edible flower loroco, the bluish fungus huitlacoche and unripe bananas known as guineos.

Martínez and the volume's co-writer, food and travel writer Nicholas Gill, consulted home chefs, farmers, food journalists, village elders, bakers and restaurant owners across Virgilio Martínez, a Michelin star-winning chef, and his collaborators have created a beautiful and thoroughly researched book with 600 iconic recipes that offer a snapshot of the spirit of Latin American cuisine.

Latin America. Martínez took what he'd learned at his Mater Iniciativa — an interdisciplinary gastronomic and cultural research organization dedicated to conserving and sharing Peru's biodiversity — and applied it throughout Latin America.

"The process was absolutely daunting," says Gill. "The landscape stretches from the Rio Grande to the tip of Patagonia. That's a massive swath of the Earth."

But it meant often delicious field work, from sampling hot bowls of beef soup in Bogota to downing a dish of fish and acai berry beside the Amazon River. "The Latin American Cookbook," from Phaidon Press, is stuffed with fascinating dishes that expand the food vocabulary beyond the continent's more famous offerings like empanadas, arepas, tamales and caipirinhas.

The authors celebrate the diversity of ingredients and what makes one dish different from a sister recipe, often spotlighting its quirks and the stories behind it. While most Latin American countries do embrace common ingredients like corn and beans, the vastness is hard to simplify.

"I'm from Peru, and I'm very different to a Brazilian. I mean, we have things in common with a Mexican than a German, right?" said Martínez. "The idea is not to try to push one Latin American identity because there are too many."

Martínez says Latin Americans tend to improvise in the kitchen, perhaps a reflection of many regions going through tough economic times, with some ingredients unavailable and others too expensive.

"Improvising them, making what you can with what you have, is part of Latin American culture," he says.

The authors know that home chefs may substitute some of the more hard-to-find ingredients with more common ones and they encourage it. What they wanted to do was codify the most authentic version of the dish.

"We tried to specify the ingredients as much as possible. We tried not to dumb them down," says Gill. "For instance, if there was a special tuber that really gives it a different flavor, we tried to name that specific tuber, even though someone in another part of the world probably isn't going to find it."

In addition to his restaurants, Martínez is dedicated to documenting Peru's bountiful produce and experimenting with nature's gifts to discover culinary uses. In many ways, the new cookbook is also a way to preserve the past.

"We need to support our farmers and support people that are producing the food. And we need to promote some ingredients that probably will be forgotten in a few years time," he says.

Gill hopes the book can also be a guide for people — post-pandemic, of course — to visit the continent and embolden them to try new dishes. "We wanted to inspire travel, and for people to go to these places and understand them," he says.

Very minty Christmas

These damp, chilly days leave us extra thankful for occasional sunshine. I had promised the children I'd help them rake leaves in the woods, making winding trails uphill and down like I did when I was a little girl.

I can still feel the freedom of all my little worries melting away, as I breathed the cool air laden with the smell of crisp maple leaves, running hither and yon through our maze of paths.

Gloria Yoder
THE AMISH COOK

On our to-do list for this autumn, there are also a dozen chickens to cook over a fire in the big iron skillet and put in the freezer and some to can.

Then there were our 10 bushels of apples. We found a nice day to make applesauce in the backyard while the children played on the swing and trampoline.

The Golden Delicious apples were turned to what we call regular applesauce. It's a shiny yellow sauce with a bit of salt and a pinch of stevia to sweeten. A few bushels of Jona-golds were used to make my favorite sauce: chunky apple with a dash of cinnamon and a bit of stevia.

This type of sauce may be served hot or cold or is yummy when adding a handful of red hots. The rest of the apples are used in baking or enjoyed fresh.

Now we're on the last peck of apples; that is, besides the bushel, we put in our neighbor's root cellar to keep for this winter.

The children prefer having their own whole apple, rather than having them sliced up in wedges like I usually did when I was a girl. If you know me, you understand the note-worthy tidbit that the children have all learned to enjoy eating fresh apples with peelings. (After they've been washed.)

I've always idealized having little children chop down fruits, peelings and all. I have found memories of when I was 4 or 5 years old, standing next to Mom and eating peach peelings as fast as she peeled them to can.

Well, you know how it goes, despite of my best ambition and sweet talks of the peelings having more nutrients than the rest of the fruit, I thought it would never happen. Today as I handed out shiny red apples with the peelings, they all gratefully accepted it, and never mentioned the peelings (besides 1-year-old Joshua).

Mama smiled. Maybe my efforts are paying off, after all?

I've learned that having them ripe enough, yet not overripe helps, and also that it's not worth coaching them to eat the peelings of plastic grocery store-bought apples. For some time we compromised; I'd run my little peeler around each apple, peeling about half of them, then with an optimistic, "OK here you go, you may eat this with some peelings on, and some off."

Yes, apples do make a perfect afternoon snack, yet I've been racking my brain for some more healthy snack ideas. As the old saying goes, "An apple a day should keep the doctor away," but who doesn't like variety?

Baked goods between meals are also off the list. It's way too easy to eat way too much sugar. Though I enjoy discussions about healthy eating, I'll hang on to that subject for later; after all, Christmastime just doesn't seem like the best time to dwell too much into healthy diets!

Let's dig into the sugar barrel and scoop out some old-fashioned goodness crafted into these amazing Christmas candies. Daniel recalls his dad helping them as children make these candies on Christmas Eve!

Homemade Christmas Mints

- 4 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 1 pound powdered sugar
- Peppermint oil to taste
- Several drops food coloring of your choice (opt)

Mix cream cheese which has been softened to room temperature, with powdered sugar. Beat until smooth and creamy. Add peppermint flavoring and coloring.

Now roll into small balls and dip into melted chocolate OR roll in granulated sugar. If desired, the sugar-coated version may be pressed into molds. They will not need to dry in molds, as they will keep the shape as soon as formed.

Chill and enjoy!

The amounts of peppermint oil and coloring will depend on what brands you will be using. And, if desired, the peppermint oil may be mixed with melted chocolate instead of cream cheese mixture.

For food lovers, clever little Christmas gifts can dress up the kitchen

KATIE WORKMAN
Associated Press

It's one of my favorite parts of the holiday season: thinking of all the people I'd like to give a little package to, mulling over what that right present should be. This year, perhaps more than any other, it feels pleasurable to treat all of your people to something thoughtful and cheery, and it doesn't have to break the bank.

The kitchen is a great place for inspiration in choosing perfect-little-something gifts. Maybe it's a treat that recognizes a friend's sweet tooth. An ingredient that inspires a budding chef. A kitchen utensil to brighten their cooking.

The gift ideas below are $30 or less, so you can bring a bit of holiday joy to everyone on your list, from the teacher who went above and beyond to the neighbor who shared her flour to the niece or nephew just getting into cooking.

Many of these items have beautiful packaging too; add a little card and skip the wrapping.

Vermont-based Runomok makes infused organic maple syrups that not only beg to be drizzled over pancakes and waffles this winter, but can also be incorporated into recipes and cocktails. Choose from varieties like banana rum, WhistlePig Rye, coffee and hibiscus. Note that some of these limited-edition syrups sell out fast. There is even a maple syrup with edible sparkles. The lovely bottles sell for about $18 each.

Can you ever go wrong with a top-of-the-line chocolate bar? That was clearly a trick question.

There is a dazzling array of attractively packaged, high-quality, fair-trade chocolates. Choose from classic chocolate bars with varying levels of pure cacao; chocolate with creative add-ins; chocolate from a particular place with personal meaning; or just the most eye-catching labels in the store.

Chocolove of Boulder, Colorado, has choices including Salted Almond Butter in Dark Chocolate, and Pink Grapefruit in Ruby Chocolate. Chicago-based Vosges Haut Chocolat has their own classic bars, and also options like Pink Salt Caramel and Turmeric Ginger. Dandelion Chocolate in San Francisco makes single-origin bars, like the ones from Camino Verde, Ecuador; or Anamali, India.

Yes, gifting a bottle of wine might seem uninspired at first, but not if it comes from a winemaker or region that means something to the recipient. For instance, Sonoma Cutrer in the Russian River Valley is led by an all-female winemaking team (from vineyards, to cellars and lab) and produces sustainable certified wines.

Or think about supporting Black-owned wineries like The Guilty Grape (also woman-owned; $30 for their Cabernet Sauvignon), or the burgeoning natural and eco-friendly wine industry. Pick a wine that geographically connects with the receiver, like a bottle of Cabernet Franc from Bulgaria, to remind them of a destination on their travel bucket list.

Other inexpensive gifts for the oenophiles in your life: wine coasters, a pair of vintage wine glasses, a wine cooler sleeve and a wine bottle stopper.

A cute new set of measuring cups and spoons is always welcome for the bakers in your life. Sustainability-focused Bamboozle makes durable, colorful products from natural bamboo fiber in three pretty, muted colors. $28 for the cups and spoons together.

For the experimental cook, give a few tins of hand-picked spices or spice blends. The world of spices has come a long way in recent years, with much more attention to origin, process, freshness, authenticity.

James Beard Award-winning chef Meherwan Irani founded Spicewalla with an eye towards bringing his experiences with buying and using spices in India to a broader market. He offers 100 herbs and spices plus 30 house-made blends to date, and the tins are brilliantly designed. The Masala collection includes garam masala, tandoori masala and Madras curry powder. Or pick up a few tins of individual herbs and spices like fenugreek, sumac or smoked paprika.

Penzeys and Burlap and Barrel are two other brands to look for, for quality and attractive packaging.

Help a pal elevate her tabletop by gifting a small stack of cloth napkins; Williams-Sonoma has a range of linen ones. Pick a color that will click with the recipient, stack them, roll them and tie them with a pretty ribbon.

Keep your eyes open, as you might find these perfect little thinking-of-you food gifts anywhere from an online store to a supermarket to a kitchenware store.

Do you know that moment when something sweet hits your taste buds and a smile instantly spreads across your face? It's almost magic to some. To others it's just simply bliss. This holiday season, try something that's simple yet sophisticated for an easy way to ensure smiles all around.

Try an easy tiramisu dip because whether you're relaxing at home, having a small get-together with friends or joining your annual family gathering virtually, this dip is sure to spread culinary cheer.

The recipe starts with "easy," and it holds true to its name. With a short list of ingredients and only a handful of instructions, this is something you can whip up (literally) in just a few moments. Also, using minimal tools in the kitchen is always a plus for at-home chefs. The only appliance needed to make this recipe is a mixer.

The outcome is fluffy, rich and sweet with a hint of espresso. It's not overpowering, however, so little ones or non-coffee lovers can still enjoy this delicious dip.

This is also a unique dessert because it can be served cool or chilled. If you are planning to take a sweet treat to a party this holiday season, this is nearly perfect. No oven time needed and simple to serve to kids and adults alike.

Serve with ladyfingers or fruit to bring that sweetness to a whole new level, and it's topped with a final sprinkle of cocoa powder to give it that extra appeal. You do eat with your eyes first after all.

Give this one a try and see the faces of your loved ones light up with joy this season. This creamy, tasty dip is sure to impress.

Alabama QB Young, LB Anderson honored

Named SEC football players of the year

JOHN ZENOR
AP sports writer

Alabama once again collected a Southeastern Conference title and two big league-wide individual awards.

Quarterback Bryce Young is the SEC's offensive player of the year and linebacker Will Anderson Jr. is the top defensive player, as voted on by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters covering the league. The voting was released on Wednesday.

Georgia's Kirby Smart was the pick as coach of the year after leading the Bulldogs to a 12-0 regular season and into the College Football Playoffs. Bulldogs freshman tight end Brock Bowers is the selection as top newcomer after leading the team in receiving.

Missouri tailback Tyler Badie, Anderson and Alabama wide receiver Jameson Williams were the only unanimous picks. Anderson, the Bronco Nagurski winner as the nation's top defensive player, was named on some ballots as a defensive lineman/edge rusher.

He's leading the nation in sacks and tackles for loss. Young is the Heisman Trophy favorite after leading a 41-24 victory over Smart's Bulldogs in the SEC Championship Game.

It was the second straight year Alabama had the offensive and defensive players of the year, with Heisman-winning wide receiver DeVonta Smith and cornerback GAINESVILLE — Colin Castleton barely slept after Florida's humbling loss to Texas Southern. He couldn't stop thinking about everything the Gators did wrong — turnovers, defensive lapses, less-than-ideal shots.

He surely will get a better night's rest now.

Castleton had a career-high 26 points to go along with eight rebounds, Myreon

Jones added 14 points and No. 20 Florida ended a two-game skid with an 85-55 victory against North Florida on Wednesday night.

Coming off a stunning home loss to previously winless Texas Southern on Monday, the Gators (7-2) dominated from the opening tip and improved to 27-0 all time against the Ospreys (2-9).

Castleton was a key contributor in the latest one. He was 9-of-17 shooting and made 8 of 11 from the free-throw line. He chipped in two assists, two steals and a blocked shot.

"Colin was really good," coach Mike White said. "He was aggressive. He imposed his will on the interior. It started with the way he approached his defensive effort."

It really started two night earlier with one of the biggest upsets in school history. The Gators held a lengthy team meeting Tuesday in which players spoke, took ownership and even offered constructive criticism to one another.

Tiger to return With son at PNC Championship

DOUG FERGUSON
AP golf writer

Ten months after his right leg was badly damaged in a car crash, Tiger Woods is returning to competition next week with 12-year-old son Charlie in the PNC Championship.

"Although it's been a long and challenging year, I am very excited to close it out by competing in the PNC Championship with my son Charlie," Woods tweeted. "I'm playing as a Dad and couldn't be more excited and proud."

It will be his first competition, even in a tournament Woods described last week as the "hit-and-giggle" variety that he can play, since he and his son tied for seventh a year ago in the unofficial event that pairs family members.

The tournament was holding a spot for Woods, and he fueled speculation he might play the Dec. 18-19 event at the Ritz Carlton Golf Club Orlando when he took full swings with driver on Saturday and Sunday during his Hero World Challenge in the Bahamas.

"We have been liaising with Tiger and his team for some time and are delighted that he has now decided to make his return to competitive golf at the PNC Championship," said Alastair Johnston of IMG, the executive chairman of the event.

Woods was driving to a Los Angeles course for a television shoot on Feb. 23 when police say he was driving about 85 mph along a winding, coastal suburban road. The SUV crashed through a median and plunged down a hill.

Doctors said he shattered the tibia and fibula bones in his right leg in multiple locations. Those were stabilized by a rod in the tibia. A combination of screws and pins were used to stabilize additional injuries in the ankle and foot.

The PNC Championship was formerly known as the

AP source: Miami to hire Clemson's Radakovich as AD

RALPH D. RUSSO
AP college football writer

Miami is hiring Dan Radakovich as its athletic director, luring him away from Clemson after nearly a decade of enormous success there, a person familiar with the decision told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the school was still finalizing an agreement with its new AD and an announcement was planned for Thursday.

The 63-year-old Radakovich will replace Blake James, who Miami let go last month, two days after the Hurricanes' football team lost to Florida State. That was the precursor to another move, the firing of Manny Diaz as football coach earlier this week and replacing him with Miami alum Mario Cristobal.

With Radakovich, the Hurricanes are bringing another alum back to Coral Gables. He got a master's degree in business administration from Miami in 1982.

Miami becomes the third ACC school to have Radakovich as athletic director.

He was at Georgia Tech from 2006 through 2012 and Clemson for the last nine years. During his stint at Clemson, the Tigers played for the national title in football four times, winning two.

"Everybody that I've spoken to that knows Dan raves about him," Miami men's basketball coach Jim Larrañaga said earlier this month as it was becoming clear that Radakovich was the Hurricanes' top target for the job.

"He's a heck of a businessman. He's got tremendous experience," Larrañaga added.

Radakovich's career in sports administration began in 1983 at Miami, so his hiring by the Hurricanes has his career coming full circle.

Radakovich, then 25, left an accounting firm to take a job working for legendary Miami athletic director Sam Jankovich as the Hurricanes' director of athletic financial affairs. He arrived about 2 1/2 months before the football team won its first national championship.

His task now is to help Miami get back to that level.

Martin leads Heat past Bucks 113-104

Associated Press

MIAMI — Caleb Martin scored a career-high 28 points and the Miami Heat beat the Milwaukee Bucks 113-104 on Wednesday night.

Starting for the injured Jimmy Butler, Martin shot 9 of 12 from the field, including 6 for 8 on 3-pointers, as the Heat tied a franchise record with 22 3s against the defending NBA champions.

Jrue Holiday scored 27 points for the Bucks.

Pacers 122, Knicks 102

INDIANAPOLIS — Chris Duarte scored 23 points, Myles Turner had 22 and the Indiana Pacers beat the New York Knicks 122-102.

RJ Barrett led the Knicks with 19 points.

Wizards 119, Pistons 116, OT

DETROIT — Kyle Kuzma hit a 3 with 0.6 seconds left in overtime and the Washington Wizards handed the Detroit Pistons their 10th straight loss, 119-116.

Jeremi Grant scored 28 points for the Pistons.

76ers 110, Hornets 106

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Joel Embiid had 32 points, Seth Curry added 23 points and eight assists, and the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Charlotte Hornets for the second time in three nights, 110-106.

Gordon Hayward had a season-high 31 points and seven assists for the Hornets.

nine rebounds, sending the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 115-92 win over the Chicago Bulls.

Zach LaVine scored 23 points with nine assists for Chicago, which had its four-game win streak snapped.

Thunder 110, Raptors 109

TORONTO — Mike Muscala made a go-ahead 3-pointer with nine seconds remaining, Shai Gilgeous-Alexander scored 16 of his 26 points in the third quarter, and the Oklahoma City Thunder held on late to win their second straight game, rallying from a 13-point deficit to beat the shorthanded Toronto Raptors 110-109.

Jazz 136, Timberwolves 104

MINNEAPOLIS — Donovan Mitchell scored 36 points and the sharp-shooting Utah Jazz beat the Minnesota Timberwolves 136-104 for their fifth straight win.

Rockets 114, Nets 104

HOUSTON — Eric Gordon scored 21 points before being ejected in the fourth quarter as the Houston Rockets extended their winning streak to seven games with a 114-104 win over the Brooklyn Nets.

Mavericks 104, Grizzlies 96

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Luka Doncic scored 26 points and Kristaps Porzingis added 19 as Dallas used a fourth-quarter rally to defeat the Memphis Grizzlies 104-96.

Nuggets 120, Pelicans 114

NEW ORLEANS — Nikola Jokic scored 11 of his season-high 39 points in overtime to go with his 11 assists and 11 rebounds, and the Denver Nuggets pulled out a 120-114 victory over the mistake-prone New Orleans Pelicans.

'Canes top Lipscomb 76-59

Miami's McGusty has career-high 29 points

Associated Press

CORAL GABLES — Kameron McGusty scored a career-high 29 points, Isaiah Wong added 20 and Miami defeated Lipscomb 76-59 on Wednesday night.

McGusty and Wong combined for 29 of Miami's 41 second-half points when the Hurricanes extended a nine-point halftime lead to as many as 19.

McGusty was 12-of-19 shooting with four 3-pointers and Wong shot 9 of 13. Jordan Miller added 12 points.

McGusty hit two 3-pointers and scored the first eight points in a 14-5 run that put Miami (7-3) up by double figures for good midway through the second half.

Lipscomb's Kaleb Coleman hit a couple of 3-pointers and scored 10 straight points for a one-point lead midway through the first half before Miami went on a 14-0 run bookended by 3-pointers from Wooga Poplar and McGusty. The Hurricanes led 35-26 at halftime.

The Bisons (5-5) came in 12th nationally at 40.8% 3-point shooting but were only 7 of 28 for 25% against the Hurricanes.

Coleman led the Bisons with 12 points.

West Virginia 56, No. 15 UConn 53

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — Taz Sherman

scored 23 points and West Virginia held on for a 56-53 victory over No. 15 UConn.

The Mountaineers (8-1) were terrible at the free throw line but made enough in the closing minute to beat a ranked opponent in their first try this season.

Sean McNeil, who missed West Virginia's last game with a sore back, added 16 points for the Mountaineers.

Short-handed UConn (8-2) was held to a season low in points in its first true road game. Isaiah Whaley led the Huskies with 15 points. R.J. Cole added 14 and Andre Jackson scored 10.

West Virginia went 12 of 27 (44%) from the free-throw line, its worst performance of the season.

No. 22 Wisconsin 64, Indiana 59

MADISON, Wis. — Johnny Davis scored 23 points and made a go-ahead 3-pointer with 1:18 left to help No. 22 Wisconsin erase a 22-point deficit and beat Indiana 64-59 to extend its home domination in the series.

Wisconsin (8-1, 1-0 Big Ten) has won 19 straight home games over Indiana, which hasn't beaten the Badgers in Madison since a 69-59 decision on Jan. 25, 1998. The Hoosiers nearly ended the streak last year, but fell 80-73 at Wisconsin in double overtime. This Indiana (7-2, 1-1) loss proved even more painful.

Wisconsin trailed 42-20 late in the first half and was down 42-25 at the intermission, but scored the game's final 11 points. The Badgers outscored Indiana 16-2 over the last 5 minutes, 50 seconds.

Indiana missed 14 of its last 15 shots.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Panthers top Hornets for fourth straight victory

The Lecanto girls basketball team won their fourth straight game Tuesday night, defeating Weeki Wachee 47-42.

The Panthers fell behind 37-32, but key 3-point shooting by Zay Rome, Page Harrison and Peyton Spaulding helped erase the deficit. Abby Rome, along with sister Zay and Spaulding, iced the game from the free throw line.

The leading scorer was Abby Rome with 16, Peyton Spaulding added 10 and Paige Harrison had eight.

The Panthers (5-3, 4-1 in GC8) travel to Dunnellon tonight.

Blackwood blanks Flyers as Devils end 4-game skid

NEWARK, N.J. — Mackenzie Blackwood made 25 saves and the New Jersey Devils snapped a four-game skid and sent the reeling Philadelphia Flyers to their 10th straight loss, 3-0 on Wednesday night.

Jesper Bratt had a second-period goal and assisted on a power-play goal by rookie Dawson Mercer later in the period.

Michael McLeod scored into an empty net late as the Devils beat the Flyers for the second time in 10 days.

Carter Hart had 24 saves for the Flyers, who fell to 0-2 under interim coach Mike Yeo. He took over on Monday after Alain Vigneault was fired.

The Flyers' 10-game skid (0-8-2) is two shy of the team's longest winless streak. The record of 12 games (0-8-4) was set from Feb. 24-March 16, 1999.

O'Connor leads Avalanche past NY Rangers 7-3

NEW YORK — Logan O'Connor scored twice in a 22-second span in a five-goal second period, and the Colorado Avalanche beat the Rangers 7-3 on Wednesday night, ending New York's seven-game winning streak.

Mikko Rantanen also scored twice for Colorado. Nathan MacKinnon, Nazem Kadri and Alex Newhook added goals, and Darcy Kuemper made 26 saves. Kadri, Devon Toews and Samuel Girard each had two assists as the Avalanche improved to 8-2-1 in their last 11 games.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I have been in a friend group that plays board games nearly every month for 25 years. We all know one another from working at a startup in Colorado nearly 30 years ago. We don't work together anymore, but we still play games together frequently. It has been tough during COVID-19, but we have played a few games online here and there. Cautiously, we are starting to get back together in person. The rub is, I'm fed up with one of our friends. He was the boss all those years ago, and he still feels self-important and controlling. He does not seem to know how to behave in social situations. We put up with it when he was the boss, and then, 20 years ago, he found out that he suffers from bipolar disorder and depression. My own son has these same conditions, and I have taken the National Alliance on Mental Illness training and I have a special place in my heart for people who suffer from mental illness.

DEAR ANNIE

Since that discovery and diagnosis, we have put up with his behaviors. Over the years, it has become easy to tell when he is truly suffering and when he's just using it as an excuse to behave badly. He started this games group, and we always play at his house. That's not really a problem, but he just uses this and everything as a controlling behavior.

Online, it gets worse. I have now endured 18 months of insults, contempt and name-calling. I admit that it's mild. He is not super abusive, but it is annoying, and it is not how friends treat one another. I do not do this to him. He knows I don't want to cut him out of my life, and he uses that to manipulate me and others in the group.

During his last blow-up, which was only two weeks ago, I stopped talking with him for a while. This is all online, and I ghosted him for only 24 hours. He says in the group chat that he has apologized profusely (he apologized one time) and then started pushing the blame onto me saying that I was now punishing him.

I'm fed up. We have openly discussed his poor behavior, and he is aware. He has never modified his behavior longer than a week or two. For 30 years, I have been a good friend, and for the last 10-20, I have actively tried to forgive and forget. — Can't Forget Anymore

Dear Can't Forget: I believe it was Albert Einstein who said, "Insanity is doing the same thing over and over and expecting different results."

You have tried subtle confrontation, and you admit his behavior has not changed for longer than a week or two. Time to try something new.

The next time he blows up — even if it's mild — tell him that you'll be hosting the next game night and that he's not invited. If others are similarly fed up with his attitude, they'll surely be on board.

The concept is really quite simple: If he can play nice with others, he gets an invite. If not, the games will go on without him.

SALON UPDATE!

Nature Coast Hair Salon, Homosassa's local hair salon for many years, closed their doors due to severe shoulder injuries to the owner Kim and seasoned Hair technician, Brooke. Hopefully in 3-4 months both Kim and Brooke will return to what is their new home now at Changes Hair Salon! While recovering from the shoulder surgery, Kim, made sure that most of Nature Coast's loyal clients were taken care of for their hair color, cut and style needs at the Changes Hair Salon.

Changes Hair Salon owners, Sheryl and Neil ensured that they have the appropriate hair color cards and the products for Nature Coast Hair clients so there is seamless transition for all the clients.

Changes Hair Salon is located in the Homosassa Publix Plaza and has won the Neighborhood Favorite Award for three years in a row. Changes Hair Salon offers a clean, healthy and friendly environment along with a delicious cup of beverage with cookies!! We are open Monday through Friday 8:30am - 4:30pm, Saturday 8:30am-3:30pm. Please call us at 352-382-HAIR(4247) for an appointment and our friendly experienced hair experts will be happy to make your hair the best look it deserves.

BTW Changes Hair Salon is expanding, so if you are a passionate hair stylist looking to join a fun, well paying hair salon family, (whether part time or full time), give us a call at 352-382-HAIR(4247).

Great Opportunity

Multi-Media Account Executive

Citrus County Chronicle and our weekly newspapers are growing our salesforce in Marion County. Our advertising sales representatives sell digital and print advertising to local and regional businesses of all sizes.

We are looking for a seasoned account executive with a proven track record of success, aggressive, and ready to hit the ground running. Bring your passion for sales and developing strategic business solutions for your clients and we will provide you with a vast array of impactful solutions to target their ideal audience and grow their business.

The successful candidate will have a strong focus on new business development and be charged with growing revenue through a consultative selling approach. You will have a vast array of digital and print products so that you can meet the advertising and marketing needs of every client.

The role has a salary component based on experience and an uncapped commission structure.

The company offers a competitive benefits package including medical, dental, vision, life insurance, 401(k), and paid time off benefits.
