Woman accused of attack

Report says 26-year-old hit man with frying pan, cut man, child with knife

JEFF BRYAN
News editor

A woman who used a knife and a frying pan to cut and hit two people, including a child, now awaits her first arraignment, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit and court records.

Amani Nia Bell, 26, of Inverness, was arrested and charged Saturday, April 11, with one count of hinder/delay/prevent communication to LEO/judge information relating to offense or VOP; one count of aggravated child abuse; one count of aggravated battery using a deadly weapon; and one count of false imprisonment. No bond was set due to the crimes being domestic in nature. According to court records, Bell is set to be arraigned June 16.

According to the report, deputies responded to disturbance at a residence in Inverness, but could not immediately make contact with complainants. After several minutes, they met Bell at the back door, which was left ajar.

Amani Bell

Bell was holding a young child, later identified as victim one, who had no clothing or diaper on. The child did have two large cuts on the right shoulder area, deputies noted in their report. The child also had red abrasions to its head.

Bell had superficial scratches on her arm but declined medical treatment.

The second victim was bleeding heavily from a large laceration to the left side of his neck, the report stated. In addition, the man had a large cut and several large knots on his forehead and a large laceration to the top of his head.

The man said he and Bell were in a verbal argument that turned physical. He said she became enraged and cut him in the neck with a knife. Additionally, he told law enforcement officers Bell struck him in the head multiple times with frying pans, which caused him to fall to the ground.

Virus hits sick, seniors hardest

MATTHEW BECK/Chronicle

Many of Citrus County's seniors are most vulnerable to the coronavirus, already having a sluggish immune system and battling chronic diseases.

Citrus County's vital stats mean local population more at risk than most

FRED HIERS
Staff writer

It is not by bad luck that Citrus County's fatalities from the coronavirus have been senior citizens.

Of the county's seven people who have died from the virus, four were in their 80s. The other three were in their 70s.

Local and national health experts treating those with the potentially deadly disease warn the trend is not likely to change.

"The reality is that older adults and people with underlying medical conditions are being disproportionately impacted by COVID-19," said Audrey Stasko, spokeswoman for the Department of Health in Citrus County.

"Unfortunately, as people get older they develop certain conditions like heart disease, diabetes and lung disease, which puts them at an even higher risk for severe illness and hospitalization," she said.

The factors that determine who will leave hospital beds alive and go back home and who will not are not unique to Citrus County.

While the death rate among Floridians changes daily, the average age is in the upper 70s. Eight out of 10 Floridians who die from the virus are 65 and older, according to the FDOH.

That's also being seen on the national landscape.

In the United States, the fatality rate was the greatest for people 85 years old or older, with a death rate between 10% and 27%, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

For the infected between the ages of 65 and 84, the death rate range is between 3% and 11%. For those between 55 years and 64 years, the death rate is between 1% and 3%, according to the CDC. It is less than 1% for those 20 years to 54 years.

A recent Lancet Infectious Diseases study saw similar findings to that of the CDC.

But why do senior citizens face a direr outcome?

Health experts cite two factors that determine how we will fare once we are infected with the coronavirus: the strength of our immune system and whether we have any chronic medical conditions.

Let's first look at the importance of chronic conditions.

"It is not chronological age alone that determines how one does in the face of a life-threatening infection such as COVID-19," geriatrician and gerontologist George Kuchel of the University of Connecticut told StatNews, a health news website.

Tired of trash, commissioners close recycling sites

MIKE WRIGHT
Staff writer

Two months ago, Citrus County commissioners closed the Duval Island recycling center in Floral City after hearing repeated reports of it getting trashed.

Now all but one are being shuttered for the same reason.

With Commissioner Scott Carnahan leading the way, commissioners voted unanimously Monday to close all recycling centers, leaving only recycling available at the county landfill.

The clincher, Carnahan said, was hearing of a code compliance complaint against the Citrus County Fair Association because the county recycling bins had been overflowing with household trash.

"I was very embarrassed to learn we had a code case against the fair board," Carnahan said.

Carnahan said the county is spending $1 million a year on recycling, which at one time was a financial boon to community organizations that sponsored centers countywide.

But the financial market for recyclable materials has disappeared, he said, and the standalone recycling bins have become a target for illegal dumping.

Carnahan suggested the county will include a curbside recycling element to its universal garbage pickup program, which is still in the planning process. Franchising, if it happens, is still a ways off; the target date is Oct. 1, 2022, Public Works director Randall Olney said in January.

Monday's decision will close the remaining recycling centers in Beverly Hills, Inverness, Lecanto and Homosassa.

The recycling center at the county landfill will remain open. County officials say they've experienced no trashing of the recycling bins there.

■ County commissioners voted Monday to ask the U.S. Coast Guard to consider reducing the speed in the Hell's Gate area of the Homosassa River.

The area is a narrow channel in the river and was the site of a boating fatality in January when a Lecanto woman died when the boat she was riding in struck a channel marker.

The county has attempted since 2015 to get the Coast Guard to remedy the situation, but has been unsuccessful.

"However, the channel markers remain the same and there continue to be boating accidents in this area," the agenda memo states.

The letter asks the Coast Guard to study the area and reduce vessel speed if warranted.

■ Commissioners unanimously supported a five-phase plan for passive development of property known as Halls River Resort.

NEWS BRIEFS

Food giveaway slated Thursday

The New Church Without Walls, in partnership with Citrus United Way, M&B Dairy, Dr. Ralph Massullo, Dixie Hollins, The Citrus County Fair Association and the Citrus County Sheriff's Office, will give food away starting at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, April 16, at the Citrus County Fairgrounds, 3600 S. Florida Ave., Inverness. This is a drive-through only event, while supplies last. Food items include: chicken, produce, water, milk, chips and MREs (Meals Ready to Eat).

YMCA to host blood drive

Amid coronavirus concerns, many organizations are experiencing fewer blood donations due to the cancellation of blood drives and the temporary shutdown of facilities.

As coronavirus cases continue to grow and impact more communities, the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation YMCA will host LifeSouth from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 17, at its facility at 4127 W. Norvell Bryant Highway, Lecanto.

All donors will receive a free T-shirt and a coupon for a free pizza from Domino's.

VIRUS

"Having multiple chronic diseases and frailty is in many ways as or more important than chronological age," Kuchel said. "An 80-year-old who is otherwise healthy and not frail might be more resilient in fighting off infection than a 60-year-old with many chronic conditions."

The CDC lists some health conditions that increase the risk of dying from the coronavirus. They include:

■ Lung problems. Chronic respiratory diseases such as pulmonary hypertension and asthma are diseases of the airways and lungs. People with respiratory or pulmonary disease are more vulnerable to COVID-19. That's because coronavirus causes severe inflammation in your lungs, which are already compromised by chronic lung diseases.

Coronavirus damages the cells and tissue that line the air sacs in the lungs. It's these sacs where the oxygen you breathe is processed and delivered to your blood. The virus damages the lung tissue in and around those sacs, making it harder for you to breathe. And if you already have a chronic lung disease, your condition is only exacerbated when the virus attacks your lungs.

Citrus County is additionally vulnerable. That's because Citrus County already has a higher rate of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, emphysema or chronic bronchitis, according to Florida HealthCharts, a Florida government website which collects health data from local departments of health. Nearly 11% of adults living in Citrus County have these chronic lung diseases. The Florida average for adults is 7.9%

■ Heart Disease. The American Heart Association warns that COVID-19 can put stress on an already weakened heart.

While the virus' target is the lungs, that could likely affect a diseased heart, too, which now will have to work harder to get oxygenated blood throughout the body.

In addition, inflammation from COVID-19 can also damage blood vessels through which the heart is trying to send blood. Again, that makes pumping blood harder for your heart as you try and fight off the disease.

Here, too, Citrus County is vulnerable.

In Citrus County, more than 9.2% of adults in 2016 were diagnosed with angina or heart disease, according to Florida HealthCharts. That percent is nearly twice that of the Florida average.

■ Diabetes. People with diabetes already have higher levels of inflammation in their bodies. And with a viral infection, that can more easily result in pneumonia with the added inflammation brought on to the lungs by the virus.

In addition, people with diabetes may also already have compromised immune systems, which will make it harder to fight off the virus, according to the International Diabetes Foundation.

About 16% of Citrus County adults were diagnosed with diabetes in 2016, according to Florida HealthCharts. That's higher than the Florida average of 11.8%.

Stasko said these are often health factors among seniors — and there are many living here in Citrus County.

"It's no news to anyone that Citrus County's aging population is another factor, with 36% of our population 65 and older," Sasko said.

"That's why, very early on, we took an aggressive approach, working alongside our hospitals, nursing homes, long-term care facilities and medical providers, to ensure measures were in place to protect our vulnerable populations."

In addition to possible chronic conditions, health experts cite diminishing immune systems as we age, in part explaining why older people often struggle more when infected with the coronavirus and why, in many cases, it is fatal.

Immunologists explain we have two sets of defenses against viruses and other pathogens.

The first line of defense that immediately attacks unwanted microbes are leukocytes. That's followed by a second line of defense called antibodies and T cells that precisely target the virus or pathogen.

The problem is that as we age, we have fewer T cells.

If that weren't bad enough, we also have other cells that destroy invading viruses and bacteria during the first few hours after infection.

These early-arriving cells signal the T cells and point out the unwanted invader, in this case coronavirus.

The problem is that that communication between early arriving, fighting cells and T cells does not work as well as when we were younger. As a result, T cells respond too late and in too few numbers.

Stasko said with so many Citrus County elderly residents and those with chronic health conditions, it's best not to become infected in the first place.

"It's also why you are seeing this push for social distancing and for residents to stay home as much as possible," she said. "It's not just about protecting yourself; it really could be life or death for those who are susceptible and have no other option but to venture to the store to get food."

"It also seems like now, more than ever, stores are busier and that's the last thing we want to see," she told the Chronicle. "We need people to ask themselves, is this trip necessary? Is it worth the risk not only for themselves but for others?"

ATTACK

The man told deputies Bell cut the child's arm with a knife due to being enraged during this altercation. The report noted alcohol was an influence in the incident.

The man said Bell told him she did not care about him or the child and cut the child's arm twice, according to the report.

While attempting to notify law enforcement of the altercation, the report stated, Bell took the man's cellular phone and smashed it on the ground. Once law enforcement arrived and began knocking on the door, Bell blocked him in, not allowing him to exit the bedroom to speak with deputies.

Both victims did have injuries that corroborated the man's story, deputies noted in their report.

Law enforcement officials, per the report, observed a cellular telephone completely smashed. Inside the residence was "complete disarray." In addition, the report stated, there were several spots in the home with large amounts of blood from the man who was cut in the neck. There was a spot in the kitchen where he clearly fell to the ground after being struck with a frying pan, which was broken next to two bloody handprints that were on the floor.

Both knives that were allegedly used in the altercation were found and turned into evidence, according to the report.

Post Miranda, Bell's story was "very inconsistent," not chronological and lacked detail, deputies said. Bell also changed her story multiple times throughout the interview.

CR Council sets first budget workshop

Revenue shortfalls expected due to COVID-19

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

Crystal River will look to tighten its spending as it feels COVID-19's toll on economies worldwide.

Ken Frink

"There's a lot of uncertainties with the financial impact of COVID-19," City Manager Ken Frink told City Council members Monday evening during webinar conference of their regular meeting.

Frink said city staff is expecting an 8%-20% reduction from roughly half of the city's revenue sources for the 2020-21 budget.

Frink said this is money that's not generated from property taxes, including franchise and service fees, the 1/2-cent sales tax, permit billing and state revenue sharing.

Taxed property values, which make up 45% of Crystal River's revenue, won't be impacted until about year, when Frink said he expects property values to drop.

City staff will present the estimated financials to council at its upcoming budget at its first workshop, which council voted Monday to schedule for 1 p.m. on April 23.

Frink said staff wants to start finalizing those numbers in July.

At the request of Councilman Robert Holmes, council agreed to hold their budget workshop in-person at its chambers inside Crystal River City Hall, while practicing social distancing.

"I think the public would understand," Holmes said Monday. "There's a quite a bit to discuss and face-to-face is a whole lot better."

Referring to what Citrus County commissioners did, Frink said city officials can either be present physically or remotely by webinar to workshop the budget, an event that doesn't attract high public attendance.

"Budgeting is the biggest thing council does every year," Frink said, "and this one has some concerns."

At its workshop, council will also look over on a list of nonessential city projects to decide if they'll need to be postponed for a year, Frink said.

Crystal River's Riverwalk and Town Square projects continue amid the pandemic.

Frink said staff is still pursuing two remaining agreements to allow the Riverwalk boardwalk to run through several lots along King's Bay.

Council on Monday also voted to approved up to $20,000 to help replenish a contingency fund for the city's Town Square on the corner of U.S. 19 and South Citrus Avenue.

Frink highlighted his "No. 1 priority" to keep his staff safe while city hall operations continue serving the public from behind locked doors.

"I cannot afford for someone to get sick within these walls," he said, adding a third of city employees are working remotely and/or have been reassigned to other, similar tasks. "One person getting sick could cripple us and our ability to serve customers in certain areas."

City hall customers can call 352-795-4216, ext. 304, to be connected to a receptionist who will direct calls to city departments.

Businesses in the city are also struggling.

About 600 applications were filed with Drummond Community Bank, the city's bank, requesting help from the U.S. Small Business Administration's Paycheck Protection Program to keep workforces employed, Frink said.

Frink said there is a silver lining for possible financial relief from the $2 trillion Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act federal lawmakers agreed to in March.

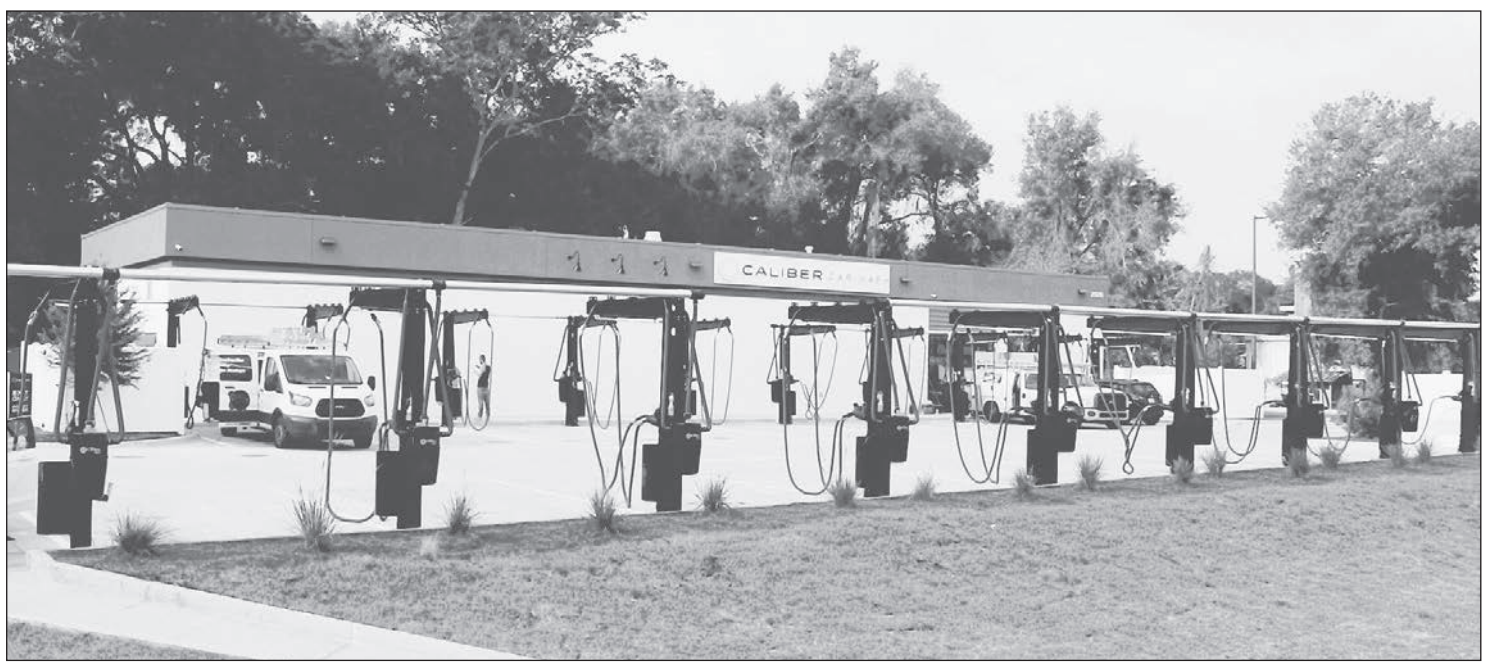

Since its population isn't above 500,000, Crystal River won't get direct funding from CARES' $3.6 billion allocation to Florida, but state agencies could later funnel the money to the city.

"We're closely watching that money to see if there are opportunities," Frink said.

Gov. Ron DeSantis is also wanting to pump money into and out of the Rebuild Florida Infrastructure Repair Program for the state's recovery after Hurricane Irma in 2017, Frink said, adding the city will apply for those monies to help fund the Riverwalk and a new city hall.

"It's going to be a long ride; there will be a new normal and we don't know what it's going to look like, we just don't know how we're going to open up," Frink said. "My goal is to come out of this stronger ... with one hell of a story to tell."

New Inverness car wash opens

JEFF BRYAN/Chronicle

Caliber Car Wash opened Sunday at 2001 State Road 44, just west of Pleasant Grove Road. Caliber spokesman Mac McCall said in an earlier interview that the new Caliber site will employ 12 to 18 employees. The chain stresses that its wash tunnels are hands-free and open during the coronavirus crisis, and there is regular sanitizing of the property. The water at all its locations is filtered, cleaned and reused. The chain is building 12 car washes across the southeastern United States and recently opened one in Ocala.

Woman arrested for sexual cyber harassment

JEFF BRYAN
Staff writer

A woman, who was sent a video of a man performing a sex act, allegedly forwarded the video to several of his family members according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

Amber M. Beck

Amber Marie Beck, 24, of Crystal River, was arrested and charged Sunday with willfully and/or maliciously sexually cyberharasses another person. Her bond was set at $1,000.

According to the report, the man told Deputy Stephen Quinn that the defendant, who he had sent a video of himself performing a sex act, forwarded it to several of his family members, including his father and sister.

Deputy Quinn spoke with the man's sister who told authorities Beck sent her and multiple family members the video of her brother via Facebook Messenger. The report stated the deputy asked for the witness to send screen shots to his agency email address of the video and conversation.

According to the report, the messages included Beck saying she wished the victim would quit claiming an unnamed person on his taxes and that she reported the victim and his mother to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

Deputy Quinn then made contact with Beck; the report stated during the interview she said she wished the victim would stop claiming an unnamed person on his taxes and she reported the man and his mother to the IRS for fraud. When asked about the video, Beck said she did not send it and the man was sending it to get back at her.

Based on the conversation the deputy received via Facebook Messenger screen shots and her statement, the report stated Beck was arrested and transported to the Citrus County Detention Facility.

Deputies arrest man for domestic battery

A 22-year-old Citrus County man who allegedly struck and choked a woman during an altercation April 11 surrendered to sheriff's deputies on April 12, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

Howard Raheem Taylor, of Hernando, was arrested and charged with one count of domestic battery by strangulation. No bond was set.

According to the report, Taylor was involved in an incident April 11 in which the woman claimed the defendant struck her several times in the face and also placed his hands around her throat and held down. The woman had several injuries to her face and throat, which was consistent with her statement.

Howard R. Taylor

Taylor contacted deputies April 12 and agreed to turn himself in. He was found at the Walmart at 1936 N. Lecanto Highway, the report stated. He was transported to the Citrus County Detention Facility.

During a post Miranda audio recorded interview, Taylor denied all allegations.

Singer Jon Bon Jovi asks kindergartners to 'Do What You Can'

PALM BEACH GARDENS — A Florida kindergarten teacher took his virtual classroom to new levels on Monday when rock icon Jon Bon Jovi popped in on a writing lesson about life in the coronavirus quarantine.

Last month, the Grammy award-winning 80s rocker released an incomplete version of "Do What You Can," which is a ballad about the nation's battle to contain the virus, and asked fans to submit verses to help complete it, the Palm Beach Post reported.

Michael Bonick, a teacher at Marsh Pointe Elementary School in Palm Beach Gardens and lifelong Bon Jovi fan, saw the singer's invitation and found contact information online for a member of Bon Jovi's staff. He sent along his students' writings about being stuck at home in quarantine.

A staffer replied that Bon Jovi wanted to meet the kids, and he popped onto their laptop screens at 10 a.m. Monday.

"Mr. B got you guys writing and I was very excited to hear that," the former Bon Jovi frontman told the students, "because if you get to put your feelings down on paper sometimes they'll turn into songs, sometimes they'll turn into stories and you never know where it might lead you."

So far, the singer has received thousands of proposals online, some of which he works into performances of the song that he broadcasts online from his home in New Jersey.

As the 20 kindergartners — and their parents — watched, Bon Jovi strummed an acoustic guitar and sang out three kindergartners' writing prompts about life in quarantine, each one touching on themes of idleness and isolation.

After singing eight lines ending with, "My parents try their best/But I can tell that they're stressed," he congratulated the author, a boy named A.J.

"You're a rock and roll star," he said. "We wrote this one together, me and you buddy."

A trailer set up near a satellite truck to transmit wrestling broadcasts is parked Tuesday outside the WWE Performance Center Tuesday in Orlando. Florida's top emergency official last week amended Gov. Ron DeSantis' stay-at-home order to include employees at the professional sports and media production with a national audience, if the location is closed to the public.

Options dwindle for postponed Cannes Film Festival

NEW YORK — The Cannes Film Festival on Tuesday abandoned plans for a postponed 2020 edition in June or July but declined to give up entirely, saying it will explore other options.

French President Emmanuel Macron on Monday extended France's national lockdown due to the coronavirus pandemic, banning all public events until mid-July. That essentially dashed the hopes of Cannes organizers who last month said they would aim to move the annual May event a month or two.

"It is clearly difficult to assume that the Festival de Cannes could be held this year in its original form," the festival said in a statement.

The film industry is increasingly expecting Cannes, the world's largest film festival and movie market, will be canceled. But the festival on Tuesday said it's still examining other possibilities that might allow Cannes to carry on in some fashion.

"Since yesterday evening we have started many discussions with professionals, in France and abroad," said the festival. "They agree that the Festival de Cannes, an essential pillar for the film industry, must explore all contingencies allowing to support the year of Cinema by making Cannes 2020 real, in a way or another."

What that might entail was unclear. Several other film festivals, including SXSW and the Tribeca Film Festival, have introduced plans for virtual editions. Those festivals will host online some of their planned programming although not their most anticipated premieres.

Today in HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 15, the 106th day of 2020. There are 260 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On April 15, 2013, two bombs made from pressure cookers exploded at the Boston Marathon finish line, killing two women and an 8-year-old boy and injuring more than 260. Suspected bomber Tamerlan Tsarnaev died in a shootout with police; his brother, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, was tried, convicted and sentenced to death.

On this date:

In 1912, the British luxury liner RMS Titanic foundered in the North Atlantic off Newfoundland more than 2 1/2 hours after hitting an iceberg; 1,514 people died, while less than half as many survived.

Ten years ago: Civil rights leader Benjamin Hooks, onetime executive director of the NAACP, died in Memphis, Tennessee, at age 85.

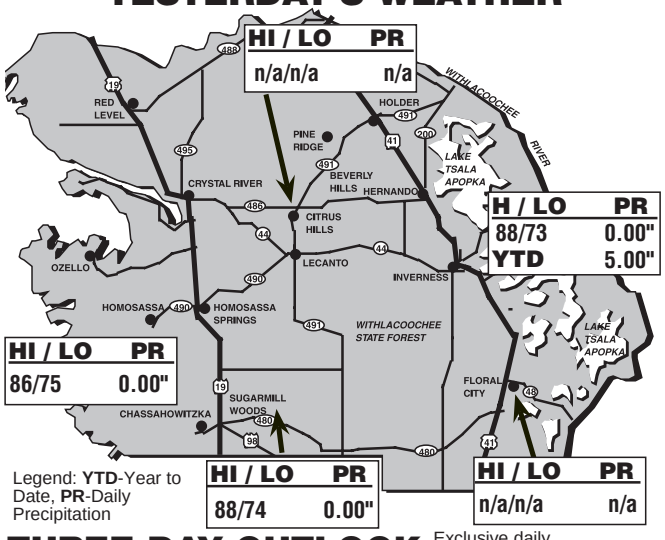

Five years ago: Douglas Hughes, a postal carrier from Florida, flew a one-person gyrocopter onto the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol as a protest against money in politics; he later pleaded guilty to operating a gyrocopter without a license, a felony.

One year ago: A fire swept across the top of the Notre Dame Cathedral as the soaring Paris landmark underwent renovations; the blaze collapsed the cathedral's spire and spread to one of its landmark rectangular towers, but fire officials said the church's structure had been saved.

Today's Birthdays: Author and politician Jeffrey Archer is 80. Actress-screenwriter Emma Thompson is 61. Singer Samantha Fox is 54. Rock musician Ed O'Brien (Radiohead) is 52. Actress Maisie Williams is 23.

Thought for Today: "True heroism is remarkably sober, very undramatic. It is not the urge to surpass all others at whatever cost, but the urge to serve others at whatever cost." — Arthur Ashe, American tennis champion (1943-1993).

Small gestures soothe COVID-19 stress

Something as simple as a phone call or a song

LINDSEY TANNER
AP medical writer

Associated Press

In this March 2020 image taken from video provided by Adam Blackerby, Michael Stramiello plays the guitar inside a hospital room in Benton, Ark. In a time of anxiety and isolation, simple acts of kindness from hospital workers are giving comfort to patients and their families. Stramiello plays and sings for stressed-out staffers and patients.

A phone call sounds like such a small thing. But the sedated man in a Missouri hospital room was gravely ill with COVID-19, and nurses arranged for his family to wish him well, perhaps for the last time.

In another hospital, a guitar-playing nurse sings ''Amazing Grace'' outside patients' rooms. And in another, doctors show smiling photos of themselves so COVID-19 patients can see the faces behind the masks.

In a time of anxiety and isolation, simple acts of kindness from medical workers are giving comfort and hope to patients and their families.

That phone call arranged by a nurse at a St. Louis-area hospital let Erin Muth talk to her dad, Steve Blaha, for the first time in six days and just hours after doctors revived him when his heart stopped beating.

"Dad had basically died and we hadn't had a chance to say anything to him," said Muth, a nurse herself in Iowa. She tearfully told her dad, "Thanks for everything you've done for me, rooting for me and cheering me on. I'm cheering you on now, Dad."

Blaha, a machinist, turned 65 the next day, March 28, and though he remained sedated, Erin and her mom wished him happy birthday in a nurse-arranged video call.

Muth is convinced those calls gave Blaha strength. Days later doctors removed the ventilator and let Blaha breathe on his own. He's weak, but recovering.

Most people do recover from the new coronavirus. But it can be life-threatening for older adults and people with existing health problems. Many hospitals treating COVID-19 patients have adopted strict no-visitor policies and patients' only human contact is with masked and gloved medical workers.

"I'm afraid it might feel a little bit dehumanizing," said Dr. Elizabeth Paulk, an attending physician at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas. "So much of our interaction with patients is nonverbal, and I think a lot of the warmth and humanity of the interaction is lost when you can't see someone's smile or their face."

The message: "We are complete people and we see them as complete people," she said.

At Saline Memorial Hospital in Benton, Arkansas, Katie Lea, chief nursing officer, knew the staff and patients needed to ease their stress. She recalled that one nurse plays guitar and sings at a local church.

Michael Stramiello gladly obliged. On work breaks, wearing a blue surgical mask, he strums and sings at the nursing station and in the corridor, loud enough for patients to hear in their rooms.

Religious songs are his favorites, but at a patient's request he played "You are My Sunshine."

Stramiello said everyone is feeling "a bit more anxiety" because of the pandemic.

"Music has always been my personal therapy relief," he said. "It's a different approach to being a nurse, for sure. It makes me thankful to be able to do it."

Many fear losing out on virus rescue funding

RICHARD LARDNER AND BRIAN SLODYSKO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The $2.2 trillion federal rescue package could fail to deliver badly needed financial aid to thousands of smaller cities and counties where a majority of Americans live, according to documents and interviews with local officials.

The coronavirus outbreak has blown holes in the budgets of communities as the costs of battling it skyrocket and critical sources of revenue like sales and income taxes plummet.

The Coronavirus Relief Fund uses a formula based on population to parcel out tens of billions of dollars to the states while allowing cities and counties with more than 500,000 residents to apply directly to the Treasury Department for cash infusions. But localities below that population threshold are in limbo.

Among those affected: New Rochelle, New York, one of the cities hardest hit by the outbreak.

"I cannot understand the logic," said Noam Bramson, the Democratic mayor of the city of about 80,000 people. "Cities with fewer than 500,000 people have been just as heavily impacted as those with more than 500,000 people. It strikes me as a completely arbitrary cutoff."

The National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors on Tuesday released a survey of more than 2,400 local officials that found 88% of them "anticipate the pandemic will lead to painful reductions in revenue this year" that will likely result in cuts to services, worker furloughs and layoffs. The groups said the outlook is "particularly acute" for cities, towns and villages under the threshold.

The two advocacy groups and lawmakers have been urging Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin to ensure the relief fund money is fairly distributed. Guidelines for how the relief fund will operate are to be issued by the Treasury Department this week. The department created a web portal through which eligible parties could register to receive the money.

"Because of the lack of specificity in the legislation itself, it really is up for interpretation," said Irma Esparza Diggs, director of federal advocacy for the National League of Cities. "Everybody's just kind of holding their breath until Treasury comes out with their guidance."

Of the nearly 3,100 counties in the United States, 130 have populations of more than 500,000, according to the National Association of Counties. There are 36 cities over the half-million mark, the National League of Cities told President Donald Trump in a letter last week. More than half the population lives in cities, towns and villages of fewer than 50,000 people, the letter noted.

Miami and Kansas City, Missouri, are among the cities under the cutoff, according to the most recent Census Bureau figures available.

"Depending on who you believe, we're either at 470,000 or 510,000," said Miami's Republican mayor, Francis Suarez. "We're projected to lose about $20 million a month while our economy has ground to a halt. The state of Florida is slated to get $8.3 billion, but we're not sure if we're going to get any of it."

Every state will receive at least $1.25 billion in relief fund money. The state government gets the biggest share of the total — New York, for example, is projected to receive $7.5 billion, according to estimates prepared by the nonprofit Tax Foundation. The state gets $5.2 billion of that amount, and local governments with more than 500,000 residents are eligible for the rest in direct payments.

The Treasury Department guidelines may permit below-the-threshold counties and cities to appeal directly to the governor for a portion of the state's allotment, according to Matt Chase, executive director of the National Association of Counties. But that may heighten the potential for behind-the-scenes lobbying campaigns to get part of the state's share.

"Each local government would have to go hat in hand to the governor and say, 'Can we have part of your allocation?'" said Chase, who added, "We don't need a lot of politics right now."

The population threshold was included as a trade-off as lawmakers scrambled to put the relief package together, according to a letter 16 Republican senators sent to Mnuchin last week. Requiring the Treasury Department to process applications and calculate payments for every local government "would have created a bureaucratic morass that would have held up the distribution of these critical funds," they said.

The senators expressed concern over Mnuchin's comments during a recent briefing for lawmakers suggesting the department would interpret the law narrowly. They said they worried the department could "issue guidance that unintentionally creates obstacles to states supporting their front line."

That's at odds with Trump's promises that the federal government would be there to backstop local and state officials, said Bryan K. Barnett, the Republican mayor of Rochester Hills, Michigan, and the president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"The word from their lips to our ears is that this whole effort would be locally executed and federally supported," Barnett said.

Sixteen states have no counties, cities or other municipalities with populations above 500,000, including Wyoming, Alaska and Montana. Without a mechanism for states to share coronavirus relief money, there's no clear way to prevent them from keeping the entire pot to help make up their own budget shortfalls.

New York state has a deficit of more than $10 billion from fighting the coronavirus, and the $5.2 billion it's to receive from the relief fund could help close that gap.

"The states will exert jurisdiction over that money, and the thousands of local governments who will have needs, it will be very difficult to get that money," said Stephen Acquario, executive director of the New York State Association of Counties.

K9 catches man attempting to flee

Jeff Bryan
News editor

A Dunnellon man who failed to pull over for a traffic stop early Tuesday morning then attempted to flee on foot was captured by sheriff's office K9 Anakin, according to a Citrus County Sheriff's Office arrest affidavit.

Christopher Yadiel Rodriguez Rivera was arrested and charged with one count of fleeing/eluding law enforcement officer with lights and siren; one count of resisting an officer without violence; one count of possession of a controlled substance; one count of possession of drug paraphernalia. His bond was set at $6,000.

In addition, authorities were notified Rodriguez Rivera was on out-of-county probation through Aug. 14, 2020, for carrying a concealed firearm. He was charged with violation of probation; no bond was set. Rodriguez Rivera was also issued three traffic citations: one for fleeing/eluding from a marked patrol vehicle with lights and sirens; failure to stop at a stop sign; and unlawful speed.

According to the report, at 2:02 a.m. Deputy David Miller was traveling southbound on North Elkcam Boulevard when he observed a gray four-door vehicle traveling northbound on North Elkcam Boulevard near West Shaw Place that appeared to be traveling at a high rate of speed. Deputy Miller clocked the vehicle traveling at 55 mph in a 45-mph zone.

Christopher Rodriguez Rivera

Deputy Miller then conducted a U-turn and then made an abrupt right turn onto North Golfview Drive, before making a left turn onto North Santos Drive and activating his flashing lights. Rodriguez Rivera did not stop, continuing on North Santos Drive before making a left turn onto Beach Plum Drive. At that time, Miller notified sheriff's office communications he was in pursuit of the aforementioned vehicle, the report stated.

The vehicle continued to flee while the deputy's emergency lights and siren were both activated, making multiple turns within the Citrus Springs Community and also failing to stop at a stop sign at North G Martinelli Boulevard and Andromedae Drive. The vehicle continued to flee before turning left from North Deltona Boulevard into a drive in the 3600 block of West Deltona Boulevard.

According to the report, once the suspect vehicle turned into the driveway of the residence, it pulled around the rear of the home on the south side. At that time, the driver of the vehicle, later identified as Rodriguez Rivera, exited the car, carrying a plastic grocery bag and began to flee southbound on foot into a wooded area.

Deputy Miller exited his patrol vehicle, giving numerous K9 announcements for the defendant to stop, the report stated. Rodriguez Rivera ignored those commands, at which time the deputy released his K9 partner Anakin to apprehend the fleeing defendant.

While Anakin was in pursuit, Rodriguez Rivera stated "he gave up." However, he continued to flee into a cluster of trees and bushes where Anakin grabbed him by his left ankle. Deputy Rudy Danner was able to place Rodriguez Rivera in handcuffs.

EMS was requested to the scene after the K9 apprehension. EMS personnel medically cleared Rodriguez Rivera at the scene, the report stated.

Miller then returned to the trail which Rodriguez Rivera ran where he the deputy found the plastic grocery bag the defendant was carrying when he exited the vehicle. While the plastic bag was sitting on the ground, Deputy Miller could observe multiple plastic Ziploc baggies inside, which contained a green, leafy substance, the report stated.

Danner advised the green, leafy substance tested positive for the presence of THC and that the baggies were weighed together with a cumulative weight of 36.25 grams. A digital scale was also found in the grocery bag, the deputies noted in their report.

Florida man accused of stabbing, slaying niece

ORLANDO — A Florida man fatally stabbed his niece in front of her 4-year-old daughter, authorities said.

Salah Hamlette, 39, was charged Monday with second-degree murder in the death of Porche Abraham, 34, the Orlando Sentinel reported.

Hamlette told Orange County investigators he and Abraham had been in an incestuous relationship for years and on the previous night the pair were doing cocaine and ecstasy.

An arrest report said the pair began to argue early Monday morning and it turned physical.

The report said Hamlette told investigators Abraham pointed a rifle at him, so he repeatedly stabbed her in self-defense.

Florida judge: Get out of bed, get dressed for Zoom hearings

FORT LAUDERDALE — A Florida judge has one request for attorneys showing up for court hearings via Zoom: Get out of bed and put on some clothes!

Broward Circuit Judge Dennis Bailey made the plea in a letter published by the Weston Bar Association, news outlets reported.

"It is remarkable how many ATTORNEYS appear inappropriately on camera," Bailey said in the letter. "One male lawyer appeared shirtless and one female attorney appeared still in bed, still under the covers."

Since courthouses shut down on March 16 to help slow the coronavirus pandemic, Broward County's judicial system has held about 1,200 Zoom meetings involving some 14,000 participants, WPLG-TV reported.

Public invited to virtual panel on abuse

Buster Thompson
Staff writer

An in-person discussion about how the arts can educate its audience about abuse is not going to stop because of COVID-19.

It's going digital, and the public is welcome to listen in for free.

Expressions of Hope: Telling Survivor Stories, hosted by the Giving Voices Project, will be streamed to Facebook Live and YouTube at 1 p.m. April 25.

As a nonprofit, the Giving Voices Project uses submitted creative writings, short plays and visual artwork to give survivors of abuse a voice to express themselves, connect to communities and raise awareness, according to a news release.

Stephanie Rodney of Crystal River and other students being certified in project management at Daytona State College,were tasked with organizing Expressions of Hope as part of their capstone class, which connects students with those wanting to put on an event. Everything was scheduled for between 50 and 100 attendees to watch Marjorie Bostwick Phoenix, founder and CEO of the Giving Voices Project, mediate a panel at the Daytona Beach Library Auditorium to explore the ethics of other artists telling survivors' stories.

However, Rodney and her colleagues, led by Kim Crayne, had to virtualize the event and its venue as COVID-19 continued restricting social gatherings.

Here are the panelists:

■ Sabrina Kelly — An Orlando resident, businesswoman, nurse, owner of "Another Chance CPR," and author of "Transformed to Tell."

■ Angie Aldarando — A community activist from Orlando who also teaches voice and piano lessons. Aldarando is the founder/director of "The Pushback Project," an Orlando-based organization.

■ Valeta Cameron — A staff attorney at Brevard County Legal Aid, Inc. in Rockledge, Florida. Cameron advocates for victims of domestic violence by obtaining protection orders, and she serves as a guardian ad litem for children in the Foster Care System who've been abused.

■ Kelly Grounds — A playwright and theatrical director from Orange City, who had directed the Languages of Abuse for the Forgotten Women branch of the Giving Voices Project.

State teachers union wants schools closed for semester

BOBBY CAINA CALVAN AND TERRY SPENCER
Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's teachers union called on Gov. Ron DeSantis on Tuesday to keep campuses closed through the end of the school year, saying the coronavirus outbreak "presents a threat we cannot control."

Fedrick Ingram, president of the Florida Education Association, said in a letter to the governor that teachers have "risen to the challenge" of conducting their classes online since campuses closed last month and there is no reason to reopen them until the virus is under control.

"The potential damage that could be done to families and entire communities from an outbreak of COVID-19 at even one school far outweighs the inconvenience of continuing distance learning for the rest of the school year," Ingram wrote.

DeSantis suggested last week that he was considering reopening schools next month because children have little risk of dying from the disease, drawing criticism that such a move would endanger staff members and parents who are older or have health problems. Florida has more than 4,500 public schools serving 2.7 million children. They employ 180,000 teachers.

DeSantis said at a Tuesday news conference that he is not going to reopen the schools until it can be done safely and any decision will be done in consultation with superintendents and parents. He said schools will be discussed by a task force on reopening the state that he intends to appoint this week.

"It is not just going back to school at the end of May for a couple weeks — we are talking about what the fall semester is going to look like for K-12, what is it going to look like for our universities? What needs to be in place?" DeSantis said.

Florida has more than 21,600 confirmed coronavirus infections and at least 570 deaths with more than 3,000 hospitalized.

Also Tuesday, DeSantis announced that the federal government has approved 52,000 small business loans totaling $12.5 billion for Florida. He said some Floridians who have lost their jobs have started receiving the $600 weekly federal unemployment supplement.

"Everything is teed up and ready to go," DeSantis said about the loans. "That is going to be a really important lifeline for Florida's small businesses, which have really been hit hard."

State BRIEF

Court denies Epstein victim's appeal

ST. PETERSBURG — A federal appeals court on Tuesday denied an effort by one of deceased wealthy financier Jeffrey Epstein's alleged underage sexual abuse victims to to revive a lawsuit claiming Florida federal prosecutors failed to consult victims when reaching a secret plea deal with Epstein over a decade ago.

A three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals concluded that Courtney Wild's appeal of a Florida judge's ruling had to be rejected because no federal charges were filed in Florida against Epstein at the time. He was later charged federally in New York and died of an apparent suicide in jail on August 10, 2019 at age 66.

Florida's Johnson to return

Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — Florida will have its top scorer back next season.

Forward Keyontae Johnson announced on social media Tuesday that he plans to return for his junior year with the Gators, a huge boost for coach Mike White's program.

"I can't wait to get back and play with my brothers again next season!" Johnson said on Twitter. "We've got unfinished business & the Gators will be ready to go. I'm excited to keep growing on and off the court with Coach White and our coaching staff here & keep playing in front of the gator family."

Johnson averaged 14.0 points a game to lead the team in scoring, and was second in rebounding (7.1). He also led the team in steals (38), was second in 3-point shooting (38%) and ranked third in assists (49). He played his best basketball down the stretch, notching five double-doubles in Florida's final nine games before the coronavirus pandemic canceled most of the postseason.

Johnson is the second Florida starter to commit to staying in school another season. Guard Scottie Lewis announced last week that he will be back for his sophomore year because "we have some unfinished business."

Florida forward Keyontae Johnson (11) goes for the dunk against Kentucky forward Nick Richards (4) during a game March 7 in Gainesville. Johnson announced on social media Tuesday that he plans to return for his junior year with the Gators.

The Gators (19-12, 11-7 Southeastern Conference) now await word on sophomore point guard Andrew Nembhard. Nembhard entered the NBA draft last year before withdrawing his name and returning for a second season.

Kyle Larson fired

After sponsors drop NASCAR driver over slur

Jenna Fryer
AP auto racing writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kyle Larson was fired Tuesday by Chip Ganassi Racing, completing a stunning downfall for the budding NASCAR star who uttered a racial slur during a livestreamed virtual race and then watched nearly every one of his sponsors drop him.

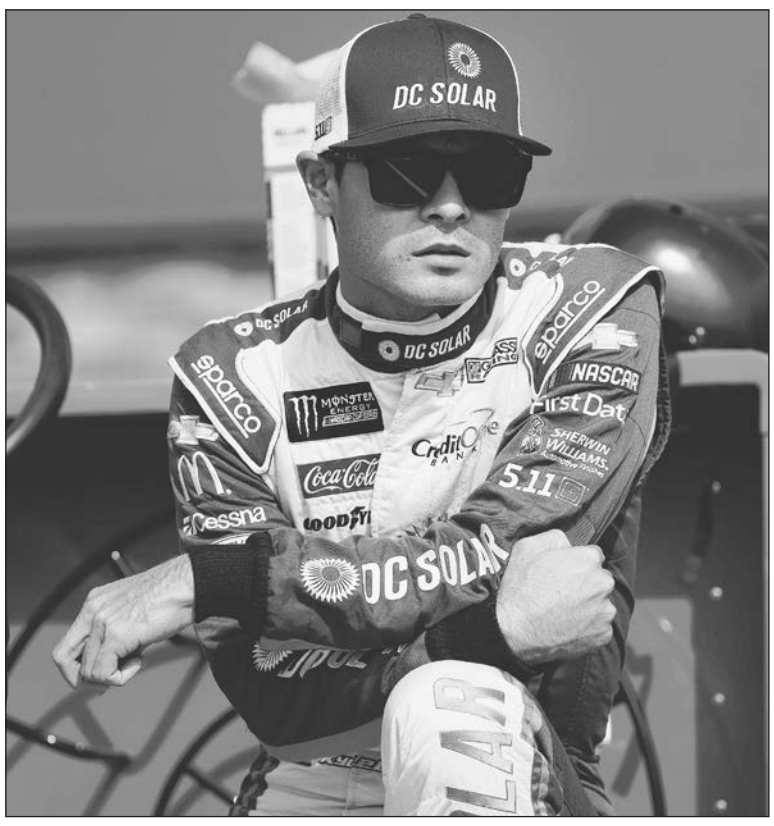

The 27-year-old Larson, in his seventh Cup season with Ganassi and considered the top free agent in NASCAR just three days ago, is now out of a job in what could ultimately be an eight-figure blunder.

"After much consideration, Chip Ganassi Racing has determined that it will end its relationship with driver Kyle Larson," Ganassi said. "As we said before, the comments that Kyle made were both offensive and unacceptable especially given the values of our organization. As we continued to evaluate the situation with all the relevant parties, it became obvious that this was the only appropriate course of action to take."

Larson had been prepping to test free agency for the first time in his short career and Ganassi was expected to find himself in a bidding war to keep the sprint car driver he had gambled on and developed into one of NASCAR's future stars.

The unraveling began Sunday night when Larson was competing in one of the iRacing virtual events drivers are playing during the sports hiatus caused by the coronavirus pandemic. Larson appeared to lose communication on his headset with his spotter.

During a check of his microphone, he asked his spotter, "You can't hear me?" That was followed by the N-word. The slur was directed at his spotter, who is white.

Associated Press

Kyle Larson watches Aug. 10, 2018, before qualifications for a NASCAR Cup Series auto race at Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn, Mich. Larson was fired Tuesday by Chip Ganassi Racing, a day after nearly every one of his sponsors dropped the star driver for using a racial slur during a livestream of a virtual race.

He was suspended without pay by Ganassi early Monday, then suspended indefinitely by NASCAR and Larson, who is half Japanese, was ordered to complete sensitivity training.

But everything fell apart as primary sponsors McDonalds and Credit One Bank pulled their funding. Chevrolet suspended its relationship with Larson, and all but one commercial partner denounced Larson's comment and indicated they were walking away.

Without funding on the No. 42 Chevrolet so long as Larson was in the car, the situation became untenable for Ganassi.

Larson's famed sprint car career could also be in jeopardy: Kyle Larson Racing fields a Chevrolet in the World of Outlaws Series that is sponsored in part by Lucas Oil, a company that said it was indefinitely ending its partnership with Larson.

Larson was clearly set for the biggest year of his career and expected to make a decision between loyalty to Ganassi or a move to close friend and fellow sprint car racer Tony Stewart's NASCAR team. He also might have been a long-shot candidate to replace seven-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson at Hendrick Motorsports.

Instead, his slur went viral because viewers can follow the virtual races on the gaming app Twitch and eavesdrop on the drivers' typical lighthearted banter. Larson apologized in a video posted on his social media accounts.

Hank Steinbrenner, Yankees co-owner, dies

NEW YORK — Hank Steinbrenner, the oldest son of George Steinbrenner and one of the four siblings who own the controlling shares of the New York Yankees, died Tuesday at age 63.

The team said he died at home in Clearwater, due to a longstanding health issue.

A chain smoker and miniature drag racer, Hank hoped to succeed as father as the team's controlling owner. Between the 2007 and 2008 seasons, he became the public voice of the Yankees' ownership.

But brother Hal, 11 years younger, was put in charge in November 2008. While Hank was in his 13th season as a general partner and 11th as co-chair, he did not appear to have much involvement in the team's operations in recent years. Still, Hal said he consulted Hank and sisters Jessica and Jennifer on all major decisions.

George Steinbrenner died in July 2010 and wife Joan died in December 2018.

He is survived by daughters Jacqueline and Julia, sons George Michael IV and John, granddaughter Anabel, and his three siblings.

Former Royals, Cubs manager Frey dies at 88

SOMERSET, N.J. — Jim Frey, who managed the Kansas City Royals to the 1980 AL pennant and the Chicago Cubs within one win of the 1984 World Series, has died. He was 88.

Frey died Sunday at his home in Ponte Vedra Beach, according to the Atlantic League's Somerset Patriots, the minor league team he had been affiliated with since its launch in 1998. The Patriots did not announce a cause of death.

Frey is survived by his wife of 68 years, the former Joan Miller; son James; daughters Mary Maenner, Jennifer Stangl and Cindy Sullivan; six grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

A memorial will be held at a later date.

Richards is fourth Kentucky player to enter NBA draft

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky forward Nick Richards will enter the NBA draft and forego his final season of collegiate eligibility by signing with an agency.

The 6-foot-11 junior is the fourth Wildcats starter to turn pro. He's coming off a breakout season in which he was named a first team All-Southeastern Conference selection by The Associated Press and league coaches. His per-game scoring average increased 10 points from his sophomore season to 14.0 while starting 30 of 31 contests to help the Wildcats (25-6) earn the SEC regular season title.

Richards' announcement comes a day after leading scorer Immanuel Quickley declared for the draft. Guards Ashton Hagans on Sunday and Tyrese Maxey turned pro last week.

Tour de France postponed, could start in August

PARIS — After weeks of holding out hope that the Tour de France would be able to go ahead as planned, the world's most famous cycling race was finally added to the list of sporting events postponed by the coronavirus pandemic.

The three-week race could still take place this year, however, with French newspapers reporting late Tuesday that a new start date has been set for August. Both L'Equipe and Le Parisien said organizers are now hoping to stage the race from Aug. 29-Sept. 20.

That new time slot would see the race end on Champs-Élysées just as the rescheduled French Open tennis tournament starts a few miles away in Paris.

The Tour was set to start on June 27 in the Riviera city of Nice. But that effectively became impossible on Monday night when French President Emmanuel Macron announced in his speech to the nation that all public events with large crowds have been canceled until at least mid-July.

Cincinnati drops men's soccer in virus fallout

CINCINNATI — The University of Cincinnati eliminated its men's soccer program Tuesday as other colleges weighed cutbacks because of budget problems resulting from the coronavirus pandemic.

Colleges are grappling with revenue losses from spring sports cancellations, including the NCAA basketball tournament. Eliminating sports is considered a last resort by athletic directors who face difficult choices.

Earlier this month, Old Dominion eliminated wrestling as part of its response to the pandemic. Cincinnati athletic director John Cunningham expects other schools to face similar choices because of the uncertainty over fall sports, including football.

"I've spoken to other athletic directors and everything is on the table at this point," Cunningham said in a phone interview. "There will be different sorts of cuts and pullbacks that schools are going to make, and it's definitely possible that will include sports offered."

Cincinnati began offering men's soccer in 1973.

John Nagle	75
Larry Jones	76
Don Morrison	76
Dave Hetherington	77
Rick Hurley	78
Ed Ryan	79

A note from Jimmie Brothers, Director of Golf for Terra Vista: Many have asked what the status of golf is with the governor's statewide stay-at-home order. We will be allowed to continue playing golf. Executive Order 2020-91 issued by Gov. DeSantis states that effective April 3, all persons in Florida shall limit their movements and personal interactions outside of their home to only those necessary to obtain or provide essential services or conduct essential activities until April 30. Per confirmation through the Governor's Office, golf is considered an essential activity as long as proper social distancing is maintained. Proper social distancing includes one person per cart, no exceptions.

Stocks up as markets mull easing lockdown

Associated Press

Technology companies led stocks higher on Wall Street Tuesday as investors focused on how and when authorities may begin to ease business shutdowns and limits on people's movements imposed to slow the spread of the coronavirus.

Big companies also started reporting their first-quarter earnings, giving investors an early peek into how the outbreak was affecting them. Traders will be poring over companies' quarterly report cards over the next few weeks to learn how the pandemic has changed corporate America's prospects for profit growth this year.

The S&P 500 index climbed 3.1%, erasing its losses from a day earlier. The technology-heavy Nasdaq rose 3.9%, aided by strong gains in Microsoft, Apple and several chipmakers.

The broad rally came amid new signs that government officials are considering how to gradually reopen the economy.

President Donald Trump has been discussing with senior aides how to roll back federal social distancing recommendations that expire at the end of the month. And governors around the U.S. have begun collaborating on plans to reopen their economies in what is likely to be a drawn-out, step-by-step process to prevent the coronavirus from rebounding.

The discussions follow some signs that the outbreak may be leveling off in some of the hardest-hit areas, including New York. In Italy, Spain and other places around Europe where infections and deaths have begun stabilizing, the process of reopening economies is already underway, with certain businesses and industries allowed to reopen in a calibrated effort aimed at balancing public health against their countries' economic well-being.

"Wall Street is encouraged simply by the conversation of a reopening of the economy," said Sam Stovall, chief investment strategist, CFRA.

The S&P 500 rose 84.43 points to 2,846.06. The benchmark index surged 12% last week, though it remains about 16% below its all-time high set in February. The Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 558.99 points, or 2.4%, to 23,949.76. The Nasdaq climbed 323.32 points to 8,515.74. The Russell 2000 index of smaller company stocks rose 25.29 points, or 2.1%, to 1,237.33.

Technology stocks powered much of the gains. Microsoft climbed 4.9% and Apple rose 5.1%.

Johnson & Johnson climbed 4.5% after reporting a stronger profit for the first three months of the year than Wall Street expected. It also raised its dividend, bucking a broader trend as companies try to conserve cash, even though the health care giant also had to slash its outlook.

JPMorgan Chase and Wells Fargo fell after saying they were bracing for losses on loans as millions of Americans became unemployed.

Roundup of how virus is affecting world economy

Associated Press

The outbreak of the coronavirus has dealt a shock to the global economy with unprecedented speed. Following are developments Tuesday related to the global economy, the work place and the spread of the virus.

GLOBAL MALAISE: Economists are trying to put into context the shock that the world must absorb. On Tuesday, the International Monetary Fund put the damage at Great Depression levels.

■ France is forecasting an 8% drop in growth this year and is staring down its worst recession since World War II. And that 8% drop may be optimistic, Finance Minister Bruno Le Maire said Tuesday.

AS YOU WERE: North America is in lockdown but regions struck early by the coronavirus are moving toward the post-pandemic normal. Those attempts could provide a road map.

■ Italian book, stationary and children's stores were allowed to open nationwide Tuesday, provided they could maintain the same social-distancing and safety measures required of supermarkets.

■ Poland will gradually lift restrictions Sunday on businesses and individuals. The number of people allowed into shops will be increased and some restrictions on pubic movement will be lifted.

■ Audi restarted operations at its Hungarian plant, though at a very limited scale.

■ Austria is allowing small retailers, DIY businesses and gardening supply stores to reopen Tuesday. Customers will be required to wear masks and maintain social distancing.

BREATH OF FRESH AIR: There is a dire need for medical devices due to the severity of the outbreak.

■ Hamilton Medical will open its first U.S. factory to make ventilators. The Swiss company is hiring several hundred people to staff the Reno, Nevada, plant, with help from General Motors. Production begins this month. The U.S. awarded Hamilton a $552 million contract to build 14,115 ventilators by July 3.

■ General Motors says it has started producing breathing machines at a repurposed electronics plant in Kokomo, Indiana. The company plans to ship more than 600 of the critical care ventilators by the end of April under a contract with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The $489.4 million contract calls for GM to deliver 30,000 by the end of August. GM said it is producing the ventilators at cost.

COST IN JOBS: The wave of layoffs and furloughs have been massive and companies continue to shed jobs.

■ Groupon will release or furlough about 2,800 workers, more than 40% of its workforce.

RETAIL THERAPY: Retailers and malls have been hard hit by the shutdown, but some are pivoting.

■ American Dream, a huge New Jersey entertainment complex, is partnering with health care companies to open a drive-thru testing site for the COVID-19 virus at its massive parking lot. The complex, the second largest mall behind Mall of America, was supposed to unveil a water park and hundreds of stores last month but ended up closing entirely to curb the spread of the coronavirus.

FOOD FIGHTERS: Grocery store workers have been on the front lines during the crisis, trying to keep food and essential goods flowing. They're also some of the most exposed.

■ Kroger and the United Food and Commercial Workers union are asking federal and state government officials to temporarily designate grocery store workers as "first responders" or "emergency personnel." Kroger said the designation would ensure grocery workers get priority access to gloves and masks. Kroger is the largest U.S. grocery chain, with nearly 500,000 employees. That represents 1.3 million food industry workers, including 900,000 grocery employees. The union estimates at least 30 of its members have died from COVID-19.

UNEMPLOYMENT

County's economic future depends on leadership decisions

Citrus County's February unemployment report will likely be the last bit of employment news for some time.

The report showed Citrus County made gains in key areas with the rate dropping from 4.9 % from January to 4.8%, the labor force increasing by 382 and the number of employed rising by 435.

THE ISSUE:
County shows job growth pre-virus.

OUR OPINION:
Unemployment numbers will soar in coming months.

In April, we have already seen exponential growth in unemployment across the nation. Florida has had so many claims in the past few weeks that it crushed the antiquated, ill-prepared state unemployment compensation system.

In the coming months, and years, we will see how well Citrus County's leaders have prepared us to meet the economic challenges we are likely to face.

During the last recession, Citrus County suffered more than other counties as evidenced by its stay in the bottom three for unemployment in the last decade. The counties that diversified and invested in their economic well-being will be the first ones to weather the coronavirus caused recession.

Citrus' job growth since the last recession paints a disturbing picture about the job market, job diversity and job opportunities within the county. Right now, we're a service-related community that has been decimated by the fallout from COVID-19 social distancing.

That's not saying companies that offer better pay wouldn't have been impacted, the employees might not have felt the pinch so quickly. Citrus had moderate job growth prior to the coronavirus crisis. Unfortunately, the surge in unemployment is likely related to our abundance of low-paying service jobs, with little to no benefits or security.

We feel the county's generational inability to grow and diversify our local economy promises a very painfully long recovery from COVID-19.

We can only hope this generation of county leaders learn from the mistakes of the past generation. This recovery will require investment and long-term planning. It must include a plan for diversification, extensive job retraining and an accelerated innovative business-building model.

Leaders need to be willing to invest in ideas that grow and diversify the economy. Training facilities need to be ready. We need to align our economic development efforts with those who help build and train the labor pool (and this includes private industry, not just education).

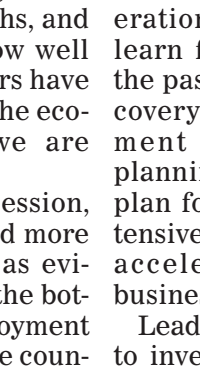

In this dire time of need, it is imperative we end the "generational inability to grow and diversify our local economy."

Boat ramp jammed packed

I am seeing a disturbing view at the Eden boat ramp, especially on weekends. The parking lot is jammed with boaters, even parking on the grass. I'm seeing boaters touch the same boat ramp railing, the same boat dock posts. Experts say that up to 25% of the COVID-19 population is without symptoms and that the virus can live up to three days on metal. I'm not seeing much gel being used, really. I feel like this is a recipe for disaster. Is it worth it?

Golfers still congregate

I'm calling Sound Off in reference to the golfers. You hear the people say they can golf because the ball is popping out. I live here in Black Diamond and I'm watching them on the golf course and they're reaching in to get their ball out of the hole. And they're congregating; you could see they're not even 6 feet apart. Some of them are 2 feet apart, 3 feet apart, and they're just talking up a storm. They don't look like they're spacing out here in Black Diamond. And, like I said, the ball ain't popping out of the hole and they reach in to get it. So much for spreading the virus in Black Diamond, huh?

Leave your kids at home

This is a message to all you folks that take your kids into grocery stores and other stores at this time: You know, you're really not even as smart as someone who gave their children a pet rat with fleas during the plague. The folks that gave their kids a rat didn't know there was a disease out there and what was causing it. You should leave your darn kids at home.

Health care workers resilient, courageous

Dr. Raylene Platel
GUEST COLUMN

Resilience and courage. These two words describe our health care workers. I see it every day at Citrus Memorial Hospital. Every morning and every evening at shift change, the determined and pleasant faces of the frontline staff inspire and comfort. They come in to work every day knowing they will care for some of the sickest patients this pandemic has entrusted to their care.

They do it with professionalism and grit. They take all the right precautions and walk into a COVID-19 positive patient's room diligent in caring for the patient just like they do every day for every patient, every time.

ER and EMS staff — the very front line — have a strong work ethic and call to serve. They efficiently provide acute care while taking all precautions, not knowing who is a potential positive.

Our ICU staff is relentless in their care of these very sick patients while at the same time soothing family members who cannot lay a comforting hand on their loved ones. Some families have had to say goodbye via video to a loved one. Through all this our staff labors on, taking a short break to cry, decompress, nourish themselves and return to the bedside to keep on going.

Our environmental services team keeps the facility clean and disinfected 24/7 while taking proper precautions, focused on their task at hand. Hospital leaders keep their calm and continue to forge forward while resources are being strained.

Families of health care workers see their loved ones leave for work every day, not knowing if today is the day they are going to start having symptoms. They wait and pray for a safe return; hugs have to wait until the residue of the workday has been washed off.

This pandemic affects everyone, but it has shown the can-do, will-do attitude of the health care worker. We will face this head on, we will fight it and humankind will prevail.

Dr. Raylene Platel is the chief medical officer at Citrus Memorial Hospital.

Grocery needed north of CR

Can the city council in Crystal River along with the county commissioners try and promote a grocery store on the north end of Crystal River. That would be a very good investment for the right chain. There's a good population tired of having to fight through traffic in town and stop at five or six red lights. An IGA store or a bigger chain would do very well.

Why are the tardy bells in Citrus County schools still going off? Seems like a waste a money and electricity. Has to be a simple programming switch.

We're thankful to our race management partners, DRC Sports of Inverness, for working with us so creatively to offer a virtual event this year so we could be #togetherwhileapart. And the winners are: The Forest Ridge Elementary Owls took home the Most School Spirit Award, with the Lecanto Primary Panthers winning the Participation Spirit Award. These two schools will display the traveling trophies all year, plus receive $1,000 each. Others recognized for participation were Lecanto High, Pleasant Grove Elementary and Citrus Springs Middle. The Individual Spirit Award winner was Danny Allan of Lecanto High, with two families — the Wilsons of FRE and the Woods of CHS — awarded Group Spirit Awards. Participating for the first time, Citrus Fusion Volleyball won the Group Challenge (kids/community). Suncoast Credit Union took home the Group Challenge (adults/community) while the FRE Fitness Owls won the trophy for the Group Challenge (kids/schools). Shout out to all the groups, clubs and businesses that participated! Over $3,000 will be going back into our schools.

Shout-out to Marleigh Miller, our national anthem singer from CRHS.

None of this is possible without the financial support of our many sponsors and partners. Space does not permit us to name you all. A heartfelt thank you to our title sponsor Suncoast Credit Union. We are so grateful for all our community partnerships as we continuously work together to raise funds for public education while sharing our love and support for the Citrus County School District.

What accounts for the difference?

What's going on here? Our death from the virus is 10%, while elsewhere it's 1%. The median age is 10-12 years older, but I don't think that accounts for all of the difference. Maybe it does. Anyone have an opinion?

A NOTE ABOUT LETTERS

- The Chronicle will not accept handwritten letters to the editor during Gov. DeSantis' "stay-at-home" order. Letters to the editor should be emailed to letters@chronicleonline.com.

Hot Corner: VIRUS ADVICE

■ COVID-19 exercise. I must admit I was guilty. I was going down to Village Toyota on April 3 and going down Dunkenfield Road, I saw a lot of trash along the side of the road. And with the governor's edict that we should stay home, yet exercise is allowable, I thought it would be great that the people that are not able to work can leave their homes and do their exercise along the roadways cleaning up the roadways in Citrus County. They only have to walk however far they're able to walk and just pick up the trash along our roadways. They're not gathering in groups. Just one or two people can get together and patrol our roadways. You drive down your road, you park on the side of the road and you see there's trash, take a little walk, get your exercise, which is recommended, and it will be helping our county.

■ This is what I did to make my own homemade mask: I took two coffee filters, I took four rubber bands and I just connected the four rubber bands together. At the end, each end, I took a heavy-duty black, spring-loaded clip and attached it to each end of the rubber bands. I folded the coffee filters down about one-third of the way so it had a flat top and then a circle and just clipped it together. It makes a good-looking mask. I'd wear it anywhere. I definitely would not want my doctor wearing it, but for just general use, I think it works great. Thank you. I hope somebody can do this. It works for me. Have a great day.

■ Let's keep busy. With these uncertain times, here are some things we can do besides worry about the future: Spring clean inside and outside of your home, starting with the kitchen and bathrooms. Box up anything that can be donated. The thrift stores will need things when they reopen. Wash inside and outside windows and blinds. Go through clothes and knickknacks and clean all areas as you work. Outside, wash and wax the car and clean out and vacuum it inside. Cut the grass, weed and get the whole family involved. Don't forget the shed and garage. Again, throw away unused things and box up and mark boxes to store in your shed or garage. Go for walks, play games and eat dinner together at the table. You will find a hundred things to do that you never had time to do before. After all is over with this coronavirus and things go back to normal — if there is such a thing — you will be proud you were able to be constructive and busy in your won home.

■ Information source: Meeting in groups, especially without social distancing, has been a primary way of spreading the virus. It is true for all groups, including church assemblies. The Lord gave us intelligence to make wise decisions. We can pray at home or attend online services. Citrus County residents can make a difference by staying home and avoiding groups as much as possible until this threat subsides.

Hot Corner: CORONAVIRUS

■ I had the opportunity the other day to be over by the Lecanto government building and noticed all the cars in the parking lot. I thought we were in a shelter-in-place order. I wonder why the commissioners still have this building open. What is so important that you have to go down there during a shelter-in-place order? We can't do this stuff online? We don't have the technology to go ahead and email and use digital media to contact our government officials? We certainly can when it comes to the commissioners' safety when they do digital meetings and screen people to go in. I went into the building, was not screened and walked around the lobby. There were people there conducting business with employees — no masks, no protection, no nothing. I don't think our commissioners are taking this seriously.

■ I'm reading some Sound Off things about the testing for the virus and people not staying home, etc. One of the main ones was about testing to see if you have it. They said that they're upset we can't get testing here — and I am, too — in Citrus County. Although we do have testing now at the health department. ... This person's upset because The Villages is getting it and they can just drive up and get it on their golf course, but we can't get it done here. No matter where you get them, you have to have a thing from a doctor saying that they think and suspect that you might have it and that you need to get (the test). ... No, they don't just drive up and say, "Give me a test," in The Villages. They have to have the same thing as what we're doing in Citrus County and we have to be referred. And we have two or three places that they refer you to here in Citrus County, but only by the reference of a medical person.

■ I would like to give a response to some of the challenged individuals amongst us. They keep asking, "How can people be complaining about going out and seeing crowds and gatherings while they're also out there in the center of everything?" The reason we're out there is we do have essentials we need in life. We need food, we need our pharmaceutical needs and we might even have to go to the post office occasionally. But that's why we're seeing the folks that are out there constantly endangering the rest of our lives. It's not because we want to; it's because we have to be there.

■ (Re the April 13 "Hot Corner: Coronavirus"): This is in answer to the person who was in Sound Off about golfers and fishermen. Have you done either one of those? What do you do for recreation? Once a person is out in a boat, he is far away from you. When he's on the golf course, he has acres of land. He does not have to be next to his partner. And I wouldn't be for criticizing those people. Be thankful there is something for someone to do and be safe instead of sitting home wondering, worrying and going crazy.

■ It's certainly easy to see that our leaders of this county are living up to their name of Circus County. They're leaving the boat docks and golf courses wide open while the other counties surrounding us have them closed. Why don't they just put an ad in the paper, "You're all welcome — we want your virus." If the water was deep enough out there, I'm sure they would have had the cruise ships brought in here and unload the people here. Easy to see that it's an election year and the politicians are following the money. It's too bad for us that are staying at home. Thank you and I hope you print this.

■ I would like to ask that all the parks and state parks open and that we could still use these beautiful facilities with distance. I think we could enjoy the weather more and have something to do, like walking or biking the bike trail, too. How many people are now inconvenienced? You say to take a walk, but who can walk anywhere because everything's shut down? I love Holden Park. I love the dog section. I'm frequently there alone with my two dogs. Please, commissioners, open up the parks. Let us move around just a little bit. We'll still do the distancing and will remind one another of that fact. So, please, if you agree with me, call up the Sound Off line.

■ (Re the Sunday, April 5, front-page Commentary Section B, Out the Window column titled, "Coronavirus touches us all"): I was very sorry to read in Sunday's paper that Gerry Mulligan's sister was very sick in New York, I believe. I hope that she's improving and will remember her in our prayers. God bless you.

■ (Re the April 6 front-page story, "Citrus cases reach 43"): The Citrus County Health Department needs to be more detailed about what's happening in our county. Why is it Inverness has 20 and Floral City has 1? Were these people in contact with groups? We need to know more, not just the propaganda that was in the paper a couple of days ago. We need to protect ourselves, and information is one way of protecting ourselves.

■ Please, for the sake of all of us fighting for our survival against this raging virus, stop printing letters of hatred. Using this crisis as a vehicle to stir up hatred is absolutely conscionable at this time. This disaster is not about Republicans or Democrats and who is doing wrong. We need to pull together ... to survive this crisis. ... Please, dear God, stop the hatred.

Obama endorses Biden: has 'qualities we need'

WASHINGTON — Former President Barack Obama endorsed Joe Biden on Tuesday, giving the presumptive Democratic presidential nominee a boost from the party's biggest fundraiser and one of its most popular figures.

"Joe has the character and the experience to guide us through one of our darkest times, and heal us through a long recovery. And I know he'll surround himself with good people," Obama said in a 12-minute video, touting Biden as a "close friend" and lauding him for his perseverance and compassion.

The endorsement marked Obama's return to presidential politics more than three years after leaving the White House. He didn't mention his successor, President Donald Trump, by name and instead sought to bridge the ideological divide among Democrats.

Fauci: 'We're not there yet' to reopen economy

WASHINGTON — Dr. Anthony Fauci, the government's top infectious disease expert, said Tuesday the U.S. does not yet have the critical testing and tracing procedures needed to begin reopening the nation's economy, adding a dose of caution to increasingly optimistic projections from the White House.

"We have to have something in place that is efficient and that we can rely on, and we're not there yet," Fauci said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Fauci's comments come as President Donald Trump and others in the administration weigh how quickly businesses can reopen and Americans can get back to work weeks after the fast-spreading coronavirus essentially halted the U.S. economy. Trump has floated the possibility of reopening some areas by May 1 and said he could announce recommendations as soon as this week.

Fauci said a May 1 target is "a bit overly optimistic" for many areas of the country.

Armed men seize, release tanker off Iran

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Armed men boarded a Hong Kong-flagged tanker ship Tuesday off the coast of Iran near the crucial Strait of Hormuz, holding the ship for a short time before releasing it amid heightened tensions between Tehran and the U.S., authorities said.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the seizure, though suspicion fell on Iran's paramilitary Revolutionary Guard. Iranian officials and state media did not immediately acknowledge the incident and the U.S. Navy's Bahrain-based 5th Fleet did not respond to a request for comment.

WASHINGTON — Setting the stage for a possible power struggle with President Donald Trump, governors around the U.S. began sketching out plans Tuesday to reopen their economies in a slow and methodical process so as to prevent the coronavirus from rebounding with tragic consequences.

In Italy, Spain and other places around Europe where infections and deaths have begun stabilizing, the process is already underway, with certain businesses and industries allowed to start back up in a calibrated effort by politicians to balance public health against their countries' economic well-being.

Trump announced a halt to U.S. payments to the World Health Organization pending a review of its warnings about the coronavirus and China. Trump, whose own response to the virus has been called into question, criticized the WHO for not sounding the alarm sooner. Trump asserted that the virus could have been contained at its source and lives could have been spared had the U.N. health agency done a better job investigating reports coming out of China.

While the crisis is far from over in the U.S., with more than 25,000 dead and approximately 600,000 confirmed infections by Johns Hopkins University's count, the doomsday scenarios that were predicted just two weeks ago have not come to pass, raising hopes from coast to coast.

California Gov. Gavin Newsom, who has joined a coalition with his West Coast counterparts in Oregon and Washington on how to emerge from the crisis, outlined a set of conditions for lifting coronavirus restrictions in America's most populous state. Among other things, he said hospitalizations will have to decline and more testing will have to become available.

And when the state does reopen, he warned, things will not look the same. Waiters will probably be wearing masks and gloves, schools may stagger students' arrival times to reduce crowding and large gatherings such as sporting events and concerts are "not in the cards," the Democrat said.

A similar coalition has taken shape in the Northeast, encompassing Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

"The house is still on fire," New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy said. "We still have to put the fire out" but also "make sure this doesn't reignite."

Politicians and public health authorities alike warned that an easing of the restrictions in the U.S. and Europe will have to be accompanied by widespread antibody testing to see who might be immune and ramped-up tracing of infected people's contacts with others. That could well entail the use of smartphone technology to alert potentially infected people.

Trump has repeatedly expressed his desire to see the U.S. reopened for business quickly, and at one point wanted to see churches packed on Easter. On Tuesday he said he would soon speak with all 50 governors and provide guidance on how and when to reopen. The previous day he insisted he has "total" authority over the loosening of restrictions, even though the Constitution largely delegates such powers to the states.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo of New York, by far America's hardest hit state, ridiculed that assertion, saying: "We don't have a king in this country."

While the president has issued national social-distancing guidelines advising people to stay home, it has been governors and local leaders who have instituted the tough, mandatory restrictions, such as lockdowns and the closing of schools and nonessential businesses.

Worldwide, about 2 million confirmed infections have been reported and over 120,000 people have died, according to Johns Hopkins. The figures understate the true size of the pandemic, because of limited testing, uneven counting of the dead and concealment by some governments.

CAR CORNER

Hood pieces a collector's delight

When you see some of the old classic cars, many of them have very interesting hood ornaments.

A hood ornament is a specially crafted emblem or figure which symbolizes a car company, located on the front center portion of the hood. Hood ornaments were popular in the 1920s, '30s, '40s and '50s with many automakers fitting them to their vehicles. Moreover, a healthy business was created in the supply of accessories available to anyone who wanted to add a hood ornament to their automobile.

Restrictions to the fitting of ornaments on the front of vehicles have been introduced in the U.S., because of the increased risk of injury to pedestrians in the case of an accident. As is the case with some U.S. vehicles, Rolls Royce's hood ornament in the past was mounted on a spring-loaded mechanism designed to retract instantly into the radiator shell if struck with more than 6 pounds of force.

Many automakers wanted their own emblems displayed on their vehicles' hoods, and in the 1920s, there was a company that accommodated them with corporate ornaments. The company had over 300 such customers at one time during the mid-1920s for car, truck, tractor, boat, airplane and motorcycle manufacturers. The hundreds of motor vehicle manufacturers before 1929 meant many customers for their customized emblems.

Hood ornaments are usually cast in brass, zinc or bronze and finished in a chrome-plated finish. During the years when chrome plate was unavailable, they were plated in either silver or nickel. Some also incorporated other materials, such as plastic, bakelite or colored glass, while others incorporated a light bulb for illumination at night.

Along with the grille, the hood ornament was often a distinctive styling element and many auto companies used it as their primary brand identifier, such as the Rocket on Oldsmobile cars and Chief Pontiac on Pontiac automobiles.

There is now a collectors' market for hood ornaments. At car cruise-ins and shows, you see some very interesting hood ornaments from long ago.

Leading the way with 4-H

Local students get hands-on experience with STEM

Dr. Marnie Ward
UF/IFAS 4-H agent

Special to the Chronicle

Did you know that in the United States, the fastest growing occupations focus on skills related to STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math)? Or that there is a shortage of scientists and skilled technology workers?

The 4-H Youth Development program leads the way to engaging programs that open opportunities in STEM. As one of the fastest growing career classes, the need for STEM workers will increase by 13% in the next decade.

Florida 4-H recognizes the benefits of positive learning experiences as a framework for engagement in experiential, hands-on learning. Young people bring a wealth of life experiences, backgrounds and interests to our programs, and to meet their needs Citrus County 4-H increases accessibility to STEM with:

4-H Clubs

The American Eagles 4-H Club specializes in teaching hands-on STEM activities. Members are currently working with "Exploring STEM with Spheros," a curriculum developed by the Civil Air Patrol.

The Sphero is a compact robot ball that is Bluetooth enabled, so it can connect to tablets and cell phones. Using a variety of educational apps, the students can program the robot with code to perform actions and tasks.

The club members explore the underlying scientific concepts or the "why it works" and then put that knowledge to work with hands-on activities that encourage them to learn through trial and error.

The club leader reported, "These 4-H members are engaged in learning more about science. They have practiced working with microgravity and can use it to predict the movement of the Sphero."

4-H Day Camps

At the 4-H LEGO Robotics STEM camps, youth exercise team building and problem solving, while learning essential life skills.

In a real-world scenario, campers practice their talents as engineers and designers. Teams design, build and test vehicles to transport an object "payload" and deliver it to a specific target.

Campers modify paper cups to travel down fishing line and then remotely release a marble onto a paper target. Building supplies include a paper clip, a paper cup, a marble, tape and an index card. Through the engineering design process, team members brainstorm potential designs and build prototypes of the vehicle. Prototype testing can reveal design flaws and inspire youth to revise and adapt their prototype designs.

At first, the vehicles were basic and plain, with little attention to detail, but as the design challenge progressed the distance to the target decreased. Ultimately, teams construct a design to meet the criteria and deliver the "payload."

For the Agricultural Course Challenge, teams were asked to design build and program a robot capable of navigating a course. Using a variety of sensors (color, motion, rotation, distance, etc.) for navigation, the teams chartered a path from beginning to end. For the challenge, a scenario was described — a devastating storm had passed through a rural community and evaluating the impact was now the job of the team members. They had to find a way to enter the fenced property, avoid collisions with farm buildings and equipment, rescue the livestock from a flooded area, and exit safely. The next step was to then to "teach" their robot to travel through the course, stopping and starting at specific locations along the path.

Teams met the challenge and were able to successfully extract the livestock from the floodwaters.

4-H Workshops

The 4-H National Youth Science Day workshops invite kids to get involved in science, with hands-on challenges.

While providing access and opportunities for youth to learn more about STEM, the challenges also show the kids how to apply what they have learned to the world around them.

Over 60 youth have attended the workshops on "Wearable Technology" and "Code Your World." Youth attending the workshops use hands-on activities designed to instill curiosity and critical thinking, helping kids develop the skills to be successful in life.

Communities benefit when their youth are prepared to become productive adults. According to research by the National Association of Colleges and Employers, the skills most important to employers include, problem-solving, ability to work in a team, initiative, a strong work ethic and communication skills.

Youth ages 5-18 years old are encouraged to learn more about the Citrus County 4-H program by contacting the UF/IFAS Extension Office located in Lecanto. To learn more, contact Marnie Ward, 4-H agent at 527-5712.

Take Stock seeks adult mentors

Take Stock in Children is a school-based mentoring program that assists in creating a brighter future for deserving youths by providing college and vocational scholarships, volunteer mentors, tutoring and long-term support.

Take Stock in Children of Citrus County currently monitors 57 active students enrolled in Citrus County's middle and high schools. You can help make a tremendous difference in the life of a student by serving as a mentor, meeting once a week, in school, for 30 minutes.

Although students are not in their schools at this time, mentors will always be needed.

Call Pat Lancaster, student services coordinator, at 352-422-2348 or 352-344-0855 to learn more about the program. For more information, call Take Stock in Children of Citrus at 352-344-0855.

Environmental scholarships

The Riverhaven Garden Club in Homosassa has been giving scholarships for more than 20 years to area seniors interested in pursuing a career in botany, landscape design, or ecology. The scholarship alternates between Lecanto and Crystal River, since these are the two area high schools that students in Homosassa attend.

The scholarship amount has varied, as has the number of recipients, but scholarships vary for amounts between $500 to $1,500 toward a recipient's college tuition.

Scholars, school support

Women of Sugarmill Woods exercise annual community philanthropy

From the Greenbelt Gazette

It's an annual event, one of its best luncheons, when the Women of Sugarmill Woods welcomes a dozen or so local high school students, honors them for their achievements and listens to them express their goals and gratitude for the support.

Most years, School Superintendent Sandra "Sam" Himmel congratulates and encourages the students and thanks the organization for the support it has provided to countless local students since its founding in 1986. This year there was no luncheon, no congratulations, no expressions of gratitude — but the awards were made, $29,000 worth.

In addition to the $1,500 scholarships presented to 13 students, $4,000 was given to support Take Stock in Children; $3,000 to the Withlacoochee Technology College; and $2,500 to the Homosassa Elementary School for its Accelerated Reading Program.

Connie Howell, the director of education and scholarships, expressed the club's disappointment in cancelling the usual presentation, "one of the highlights of our year," but was enthusiastic about the scholars chosen and relayed their gratitude to the organization.

Twenty-five applications were submitted for the Women of Sugarmill Woods scholarships. Four students applied for the Central Florida Foundation scholarship. The scholarship winners and their academic aspirations are:

Citrus High School

■ Maddison Avery, Florida State University, criminology/psychology and FBI Academy.

■ Bailey Allender, Southeastern University, kinesiology/ministry, NFL spreading the gospel as a physical therapist.

■ Connor Bishop will attend the College of Central Florida to earn a degree in health sciences, a post-baccalaureate degree in physical therapy to work at a major cancer center.

■ William Bruce, University of Florida, political science/economics, a master's degree from Georgetown University, perhaps law school to study constitutional law.

■ Haven McClure, Florida State University, political science. Law degree, specializing in medical malpractice and giving back to the community through pro bono consultation.

Crystal River High School

■ Jaiden Lagarino, University of South Florida, forensic science to becoming a forensic pathologist.

■ Taylor Kulas hopes to attend Florida Southern University to obtain a degree in pediatric nursing.

■ Sierra Liston is currently a student at the College of Central Florida working on an associate degree, planning to transfer to a university to earn a degree as a youth advocate.

■ Amber Morton, the Central Florida Foundation Scholarship winner who plans to become an RN, then an MSN to work in the trauma center in one of the best hospitals in Florida.

Lecanto High School

■ Bekkah Adams, school undecided. Desires to study natural sciences leading to a profession in the medical field or social science in public policy

■ Marcella Almgren, University of Florida, political science, then pursue a law degree

■ Nabila Kabir. University of Florida, major in communications sciences and disorders with double minors in public health and health sciences; a master's degree in pediatric speech pathology with a specialty in dyslexia and return to Citrus County.

■ Dalena Nguyen, University of Florida, tentative interest in material science and engineering.

■ Janie Janecek plans to complete the online University of Southern Florida ACE program this summer, then seek a four-year bachelor's degree in criminology to become a private investigator, an FBI agent or police officer.

Sugarmill Women help local charities

From the Greenbelt Gazette

Each year, the Women of Sugarmill Woods holds two luncheons devoted to awarding its contributions to local charities in March and its scholarships to graduating seniors from Citrus County high schools in April.

Both luncheons were canceled, but the contributions were made by mail.

In March, eight organizations shared gifts totaling $18,400.

The grants were made to:

■ CASA (Citrus Abuse Shelter Association): supports victims of domestic violence. women, children and men, by providing shelter, safety, intervention and education. This gift will support the Children's Prevention Program classes and Advocacy Services.

■ Citrus County Blessings: provides food to 1,500 students who have no access to weekend food services when they are not in school. This is a year-round program.

■ Jessie's Place: Abused and neglected children receive multiple services including advocacy, trauma therapy, medical exams and forensic interviews.

The assistance is provided with the cooperation of numerous child-friendly local groups.

■ Friends of Citrus & the Nature Coast: provides grief support to widows, widowers and children who have experienced the loss of a loved one or a parent with workshops, telephone counseling and educational services.

■ Homosassa Public Library: This grant will support three new programs to benefit adults, teenagers and young children providing educational and imaginative information.

■ Nature Coast Ministries: offers support for the Thrift Store, Food Pantry and Dental Clinic which serve veterans, seniors, the homeless and low-income adults. This gift will be used to provide dental supplies to 100 additional patients.

■ The Path: a faith-based rescue mission that provides shelter and other services to homeless men, women and their children.

Residents man a thrift store and operate a 15-acre farm which grows vegetables for sale. This gift will be used to provide outdoor play equipment for the children.

■ We Care: provides 3 million pounds of fresh, frozen, canned and boxed food each year to low-income families in Citrus County, plus offers personal services such as assistance with Medicare and other complicated programs.

Elks give awards in essay contest

Entrants focused on freedom of speech

West Citrus Elks 2693 presented checks to the local winners of the 2020 Elks national essay contest. The theme this year was "What Does Freedom of Speech Mean to Me?" Winning essays have been forwarded to the Elks state headquarters to be considered with essays from lodges throughout the state and selected winning essays will then be forwarded to the Elks national headquarters for consideration with essays submitted nationwide. The national winner in each division will be announced in July 2020 at the Elks National Conference in Baltimore.

50 YEARS EARTH DAY 2020

Mini Fact: More than 190 countries now participate in Earth Day.

Do you and your family or classmates do special projects that benefit the planet? You may plant trees, pick up garbage or recycle glass, aluminum and paper.

On April 22, people all over the world will celebrate the 50th anniversary of Earth Day. Let's find out more about this special day and how you can join in.

An early warning

For hundreds of years, some people have been concerned about the environment. They called this concern conservation. They were worried about conserving, or saving, our planet's resources. But until Earth Day, these conservationists were in the minority.

Rachel Carson

In 1962, a scientist, Rachel Carson, published a book called "Silent Spring." She caught everyone's attention with her accounts of birds dying from pesticides. She warned that people were in danger, too.

Young people lead

Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin thought it was possible to organize the nation to clean up our planet. In 1970, he recruited Denis Hayes to organize the first Earth Day.

Hayes was a student at Harvard University. He asked thousands of volunteers, mostly students, to plan events to be held all over the country. Organizers picked April 22 because most colleges would be on spring break. This meant students would be able to work at the Earth Day events.

The power of people

Hayes and student volunteers got the word out by mailings and phone calls. There was no internet to spread the message to a lot of people at once.

More than 20 million Americans took part in that first Earth Day. Students from about 2,000 colleges and 10,000 elementary and high schools rallied for our planet.

Earth Day at 50

This year, the theme is Climate Action. Earth Day organizers believe climate change is the biggest challenge to the future of people and the life systems that allow us to live on Earth.

One part of Earth Day will be the Earth Challenge 2020. Organizers hope to involve 1 million people around the globe in collecting data about air quality, water quality, pollution and human health.

Working together

In 1970, people saw the environment as something outside of themselves. Today, experts say, people are more aware. They realize the environment includes everyone's home.

Be part of change

One of the best things you can do to understand the environment is to go outside. Experts say kids and adults are now spending about 90 percent of their time indoors. Just going outside can help us see our world differently.

Many students across the country are helping to turn their schools green. Students are doing everything from raising money for solar panels for their schools to changing the lightbulbs to energy-saving bulbs.

Get involved

It's easy to get involved with Earth Day. You can go to earthday.org to get ideas. For example, you can organize a cleanup of a local area and register it with Earth Day.

Do you have a recycling program at your school? If you don't, maybe you could start one.

Cook's Corner

Simple Salad

You'll need:
- 2 medium tomatoes, sliced and quartered
- 1 large cucumber, peeled, halved and sliced
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil (optional)
- 1/4 cup apple cider vinegar
- 3/4 cup water

What to do:
1. Place tomatoes and cucumber in a medium bowl.
2. In a smaller bowl, combine sugar, pepper, salt and basil. Whisk in vinegar and water to blend thoroughly.
3. Pour dressing mixture over vegetables.
4. Cover and refrigerate for several hours before serving. Serves 2.

* You'll need an adult's help with this recipe.

7 Little Words for Kids

Mini Jokes

Eva: What do planets like to read?
Earl: Comet books!

Eco Note

Do you ever see a cockroach in your house? Ewww! You're not alone, though. People think roaches like dirty places, but even the cleanest homes can have them. Your family can do a lot to control roaches before they come in. How? Clean up spills and crumbs, and clean dirty dishes right away. Dry them out: Wipe up water on counters. Roaches need water to live. Remove stacks of newspapers and empty boxes and bags. These make good hiding places for roaches.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I have a longtime friend who lives on the other side of the country. We're all retired now. We used to tell each other all about our lives, but for the past few years, I only hear from her how wonderful her life is and how she plans and goes on so many vacations. They have lots of money, and I'm glad that they are so happy.

DEAR ANNIE

But I'm not so happy on this end. I'm stuck here in a life I didn't really know I was going to get. I'm married, but that is of no help. We have no friends or family around us, and now, with this virus going on, I'm scared. I have family in hard-hit areas of the world. I try not to complain, but I can't paint a happy face over this.

So how do I go about trying to reply to her over-the-top happy emails about herself? Other than a one-sentence, "How are you?" there is no concern for what I might be going through. Is she just so self-absorbed that it doesn't occur to her that not everyone is so well-off? Or am I just jealous and being a martyr? — Do I Have an Unconscious Friend?

Dear Friend: Given the level of uncertainty and isolation that many Americans, and the rest of the world, are feeling, it is understandable that you can't paint a happy face over this. Everyone deals with anxiety differently, and some people become completely narcissistic and can only focus on what they're doing and boasting about how fabulous their life is. No one likes a braggart.

On the other hand, you are very self-aware to question if you are jealous. My guess is that it is a mixture of both. On the one hand, she is bragging and being obnoxious, and, on the other, you might be more sensitive to it because you are having an understandably difficult time being far away from family and friends during this pandemic.

The best way to feel better fast is to focus on the good in your life. When you say you are "stuck" in a life you never wanted, I ask you to seek out ways to get unstuck. Write down goals and dreams that would allow you to live the life of your dreams. Focus on how you can achieve them each day, all the while appreciating what you already have. Try and find moments of joy in this time of uncertainty. I know it is challenging, but as we focus on positive things that happen each day, the more joy we will feel and the more joy we will radiate out to the world.

Dear Readers: Please send in any positive stories you would like to share in the midst of this pandemic. While there is a great deal of suffering because of it, there is also a great deal of connection, slowing down and appreciation of the beauty of the world and our loved ones. Out of every storm comes a rainbow.

PHILLIP ALDER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fred Allen, who was a comedian, cracked, "An income tax form is like a laundry list — either way, you lose your shirt."

That is appropriate on the day most Americans usually file their income tax returns.

Today's deal is taxing. How should South play in three no-trump after West leads the heart four?

The bidding was taxing also.

	North ♠ K 7 4 ♥ 8 3 2 ♦ A 8 6 5 2 ♣ A K	04-15-20
West ♠ 9 8 6 3 ♥ 9 6 4 ♦ J 9 ♣ J 10 7 2		East ♠ A 10 ♥ Q J 10 7 5 ♦ Q 10 3 ♣ Q 8 4
	South ♠ Q J 5 2 ♥ A K ♦ K 7 4 ♣ 9 6 5 3

Dealer: North
Vulnerable: Neither

South	West	North	East
		1♦	1♥
Dbl.	Pass	1♠	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♥ 4

South started with a negative double, showing exactly four spades. Now North, with no good rebid, sensibly chose one spade with only three in preference to one no-trump without a heart stopper, or two diamonds without six. South then offered his partner a choice of games, knowing that North would correct to four spades with four-card support.

South started with six top tricks: two hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. The first declarer, thinking his best chance was to take three spade tricks, led a spade to the king. However, East took that and cleared the hearts. South could no longer find a ninth trick.

The second South played three rounds of diamonds. East established his hearts, got in with the spade ace and cashed the hearts.

The successful declarer spotted an avoidance play. Confident that East had the spade ace from the bidding, South played a diamond to the ace and continued with a low spade. What could East do? If he had taken the trick, declarer would have had three spades, two hearts, two diamonds and two clubs. But when East played his spade 10, South won with his queen and played two more rounds of diamonds. He claimed one spade, two hearts, four diamonds and two clubs.
