High court reprimands judge

Richard 'Ric' Howard disciplined for trying to influence judicial candidate

BUSTER THOMPSON
Staff writer

Florida Supreme Court justices chastised Citrus County Circuit Court Judge Richard "Ric" Howard before a virtual audience for his attempt to dissuade a candidate from running for a local judgeship.

"This is an unfortunate day for you, for us and for the entire state judiciary," Chief Justice Charles Canady said Thursday,

Sept. 2, during Howard's brief public reprimand, held over Zoom. "Your misconduct has damaged the public's trust and confidence in our state courts."

Howard's punishment stems back to April 2019, when he first tried to convince then-candidate Pam Vergara from running against incumbent George Angeliadis in a 2020 election for circuit judge.

Vergara would eventually go on to beat Angeliadis in the August primary by roughly 6,100 votes in the circuit's five-county race covering Citrus, Marion, Hernando, Lake and Sumter counties.

 Mobile home park hit again

MICHAEL D. BATES

Wednesday's torrential rains wreaked havoc on roads and property in low-lying areas of Citrus County, especially on the west side.

Will Bryant, environmental health director with the Department of Health in Citrus County, said he got calls of flooding and standing water from several coastal residents.

Portions of Homosassa Trail were underwater part of the day.

The Duke Energy wastewater treatment plant couldn't keep up with the rain and it overflowed, Bryant said. As of Thursday, Duke was still working on it.

Perhaps most disheartening is that the rain exacerbated the ongoing problem at the Floral City Singing Forest Mobile Home Park — just when floodwaters from previous rains were receding. It's back to square one for residents there, Bryant said.

"It's pretty close to where it was before," he said.

Heavy rains about three weeks ago flooded the community's park area and pond in front of

Developer passes first hurdle for assisted living facility proposal

FRED HIERS

Citrus County will soon have another combination skilled nursing and assisted living facility after the county's Planning and Development Commission on Thursday, Sept. 2, approved the venture meant to meet the area's growing demand for senior health care facilities.

In a unanimous eight member vote, the commission approved the request by the Atlanta-based Pruitt Properties Inc. for a conditional use approval to build the 93-bed and 60-unit assisted living facility in two phases in a low density residential district.

The 19.25 acres in question is already bordered to its northwest by Forest Ridge Elementary School, a senior assistance residence to the west, and West County Road 486 to the south. There are residential homes to the east of the property. The proposed facility is near the corner of West County Road 486 and North Forest Ridge Boulevard.

Pruitt's representative, local attorney Clark Stillwell, told the commission that the Florida Agency for Health Care Administration had issued Pruitt a certificate of need demonstrating that there was a need in the community for such a facility.

"We believe we meet the conditional use requirement outlined by the county," Stillwell said. "I believe this particular project is needed in this community."

He cited the growing number of seniors in the county as well as a

Lack of daily COVID-19 updates draws lawsuit

JOHN HAUGHEY
The Center Square

Citing a diminishing pandemic, the Florida Department of Health's (DOH) COVID-19 data dashboard ceased issuing daily updates of new cases, hospitalizations and deaths in June.

When the delta-variant fueled COVID-19 pandemic hit Florida in July with numbers that eclipsed previous peaks, the DOH, under Gov. Ron DeSantis' directive, declined calls to return to daily reporting and stayed with posting weekly updates on Fridays.

The Florida Center for Government Accountability (FLCGA) and state Rep. Carlos

Guillermo Smith, D-Orlando, have sued the DOH and Florida Surgeon General Scott Rivkees over the state's "refusal to provide COVID-related statistical records it used to make public daily."

The 238-page lawsuit, filed late Monday night in Leon County's 2nd Judicial Circuit in Tallahassee, features 30 pages of exhibits and seeks an immediate hearing to force the FDOH to daily publish "county-level information and other sociodemographic data on the number of COVID-19 cases, hospitalizations and deaths."

The suit contends that Smith, a member of the House Pandemics & Public Emergencies

Committee, in a July 23 letter asked Rivkees for 14 days' worth of daily Orange County COVID-19 case counts, positivity rates, hospitalizations, death rates and vaccinations.

In an Aug. 9 emailed reply, DOH Legislative Director Drew Love told Smith "the specific data you have requested for Orange County are considered confidential and exempt from public disclosure."

In the suit, Smith claims the DOH "falsely stated the information was 'confidential'" under state law, "even after making those same records available for nearly a year on the Department's daily COVID dashboard."

DOH's denial, Smith said, came after weeks of "slow-walking" his request for daily updates which, as a member of the state legislature, he claims he is entitled to under Article I, Section 24 of Chapter 119, of the state Constitution.

Smith said the requested information would not have identified any individual but "would illustrate the larger impacts of the virus on Orange County — including the ages, sex, ethnic and racial demographics of those with confirmed cases of the virus, and vaccination rates for the county."

Rivkees, who is leaving his state surgeon general post in September, maintains such information can be withheld in accordance with state rules concerning epidemiological research, which may be "made public only when necessary to public health."

DeSantis Press Secretary Christina Pushaw told Florida Politics Tuesday that DOH reports data "routinely and automatically" to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control & Prevention (CDC), which updates its national COVID-19 dashboard every weekday.

"Public health surveillance and controlling the spread of infectious diseases have always been core functions of the Florida Department of Health" and continue to be so, she said.

FFRA's 2021 Halloween Haunted Drive-Thru seeks 'Scare Stops'

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

SCARE STOPS

- FFRA needs clubs, organizations, groups, families, friend groups and individuals to be a scare stop, the more creative and scary the better.

- Call Robert DeSimone at 352-628-5606 or email iam4mentoring@aol.com.

Not even the coronavirus could scare away the family and friends of FFRA, Family and Friends Reaching for Abilities, at last year's Halloween Haunted Drive-Thru.

This year, FFRA plans for a bigger and better event with more and scarier "scare stops."

Like last year, this year's Halloween Haunted Drive-Thru hopes to "scare everyone while adhering to CDC guidelines and keeping everyone in their vehicles," said Mike Clemmer, FFRA secretary.

Proceeds will benefit FFRA and its members.

FFRA is a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting the intellectually and developmentally disabled adults in Citrus County.

"While the unusual times we experienced during last year's event have returned with the new (COVID-19) variants, once again, getting out is a treat and staying safe is uppermost on our minds," Clemmer said.

The event will be at the same location as last year, a large stretch of property behind Howard's Flea Market off South Lewdingar Drive (the second street off U.S. 19 and West Cardinal, near Walmart) and Barbara Ann Street (roughly one mile off West Cardinal).

"It's a one-way road that will allow everyone to stay in their car, truck or wagon to enjoy and experience a wide variety of scare stops," Clemmer said. "There should be many surprises and characters performing scary scenes and miscellaneous activities designed to excite everyone in a safe and COVID-free environment."

Here's how you can help:

FFRA needs clubs, organizations, groups, families, friend groups and individuals to be a scare stop, the more creative and scary the better.

The haunted drive-thru will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday, Oct. 29 and Saturday, Oct. 30, regardless of weather.

"No one will be allowed out of their vehicle, similar to a hayride, yet everyone will be allowed to be totally scared," Clemmer said.

To host a scare stop or for information, call Robert DeSimone at 352-628-5606 or email iam4mentoring@aol.com.

Attendees will be able to cast their votes, and the top three scare stops will win significant cash prizes.

FFRA and other local organizations will staff the event to support ticket sales, traffic flow and ballot collections at the exit.

"We believe everyone will have a terrific time, get sufficiently scared and maybe receive a treat at the exit," Clemmer said.

FSU wants judge to toss lawsuit over shutdown

JIM SAUNDERS
News Service of Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State University is asking a federal judge to toss out a potential class-action lawsuit seeking refunds for students who were forced to learn remotely in spring 2020 because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The lawsuit, filed on behalf of FSU law student Harrison Broer, is one of numerous similar cases filed against colleges and universities in Florida and other states. What FSU attorneys described as a "flood of litigation" spurred Florida lawmakers to pass legislation this spring to try to shield schools from such lawsuits.

The Broer case, initially filed in May in Leon County circuit court and moved this month to federal court, contends that students should receive partial refunds of tuition and fees because the FSU campus shut down in March 2020 and classes were shifted online.

In part, the lawsuit alleges that FSU breached contracts with students, who had paid money expecting on-campus classes and services.

But in a motion to dismiss the lawsuit Friday, the university's attorneys disputed that an "enforceable written contract" existed between Broer and the school. Without such a contract, the motion said, the university is shielded from a breach-of-contract claim because of sovereign immunity, which helps protect government entities from lawsuits.

"There is no contract between plaintiff and FSU — let alone an express contract — thereby dictating dismissal of plaintiff's breach of contract claim based upon sovereign immunity," the motion said.

But in an amended version of the lawsuit filed July 30, Broer's attorneys said FSU students entered into "express" contracts with the university through a series of steps, including submitting applications, accepting offers of admission, registering for classes and paying tuition and fees.

"The scope of the agreement between plaintiff and defendants was formed throughout the application process, admission, enrollment, registration and payment — including through all the documents and materials shared and agreed to during those processes. ... By enrolling in courses and paying his fees for tuition and other services for the spring 2020 semester, plaintiff provided consideration for and accepted the regulations and policies established by defendants and governing fees for tuition and other services," the lawsuit said.

But FSU attorneys, in last week's motion to dismiss, said a "hodgepodge of documents patched together, none of which singularly, or in the whole, amount to an express contract, do not promise plaintiff the refund he seeks."

The lawsuit also raises other arguments, including that the university has violated what is known as the "takings clause" of the U.S. Constitution. FSU attorneys pointed to the federal constitutional question in shifting the case early this month from state court to federal court in Tallahassee.

U.S. District Judge Allen Winsor has scheduled a June 2022 trial in the dispute, though that could be short-circuited if he agrees with the university's motion to dismiss the case. The lawsuit does not specify an amount of refunds sought for FSU students.

The legislation passed this spring by state lawmakers and signed by Gov. Ron DeSantis provided liability protections for public and private universities and colleges for actions taken because of COVID-19.

The legislation took effect July 1, and Broer's attorneys wrote that any attempt to use it in the lawsuit would be an unconstitutional impairment of an existing contract. The university's attorneys did not focus heavily on the new law in the motion to dismiss, though they wrote that "retrospective-looking language of the statute indicates that the law was meant to apply retroactively to the COVID-19 emergency period."

ABBA back after 40 years with new album, virtual show

LONDON — ABBA is releasing its first new music in four decades, along with a concert performance that will see the "Dancing Queen" quartet going entirely digital.

The forthcoming album "Voyage," to be released Nov. 5, is a follow-up to 1981's "The Visitors," which until now had been the swan song of the Swedish supergroup. And a virtual version of the band will begin a series of concerts in London on May 27.

"We took a break in the spring of 1982 and now we've decided it's time to end it," ABBA said in a statement Thursday. "They say it's foolhardy to wait more than 40 years between albums, so we've recorded a follow-up to 'The Visitors.'"

The group has been creating the holographic live show, using motion capture and other techniques, with George Lucas' special-effects company, Industrial Light & Magic.

They call it "the strangest and most spectacular concert you could ever dream of."

"We're going to be able to sit back in an audience and watch our digital selves perform our songs," the group's statement said. "Weird and wonderful!"

The planned show spurred the making of the album, which features the new songs "I Still Have Faith In You" and "Don't Shut Me Down." It began with sessions in 2018 and was delayed by the coronavirus pandemic.

The show will come 50 years after the founding of the group that consisted of two married couples for most of its existence, and whose name is an acronym of the first names of its

Gwendoline Christie does audio for Brian Selznick novel

NEW YORK — The latest adventure for "Game of Thrones" actor Gwendoline Christie is the audiobook for one of publishing's most imaginative storytellers, Brian Selznick.

Selznick's "Kaleidoscope," the latest work from the author of "The Invention of Hugo Cabret," comes out Sept. 21 in hardcover, e-book and audio, which will feature Christie's narration and music from Obie winner Robert E. Scholastic is billing the book as "a multi-layered and spellbinding story about love, loss and friendship."

Christie added her own superlatives Thursday, saying in a statement that she found the book "captivating, wildly imaginative and thrillingly phantasmagorical."

"Let him gently take you by the hand on this sensitive multi-layered journey through time, space, and emotion. Brian makes us realize the magic in simply being human," said Christie, also known for her roles in "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" and "Star Wars: The Last Jedi." She is scheduled to appear, as Lucifer, in the Netflix series "Sandman," based on the Neil Gaiman comic book.

David Ash, 55
CRYSTAL RIVER

David Alexander Ash, age 55 years, of Crystal River, Florida passed away at home on August 31st surrounded by his family.

David Ash

He was born on December 17th 1965 in Salt Lake City, Utah to Thomas Ash and Lynne Leahy, who survive along with his brother Bob Ash. David is survived by his wife Melissa Ash. He always said she was the person it took him 40 years to find. David was Bonus Dad to Maranda (Brady) Berry and Garrett (Rachel) Cooley, Pawpa to Cheznie (aka Bugaloo), Callie, Felicia, Ashlyn, Wyatt and Lane and his newest grandbaby due in March.

Due to his dedication, sacrifice and amazing employees, David was the owner/operator of David Ash Plumbing which he built from the ground up starting with a home office and one van. David was also so very proud to celebrate 17 years of sobriety this past May. His passion was traveling to bucket list destinations with his wife. He worked hard and played even harder.

Michael Ball, 65

Michael Reed Ball, age 65, passed into the arms of Jesus on August 27, 2021. He died at Chapters Hospice House surrounded by family after a brief bout with cancer. Mike was a local business owner, church deacon, and scuba enthusiast.

Michael Ball

He is survived by wife, Milly, and two daughters, Michelle and husband Alex (Birmingham, AL) and Madalyn (Oklahoma City, OK). A Celebration of Life service will be held at Gulf to Lake Church, Crystal River on Thursday, September 2nd, 2021, at 1:00 pm.

Mike Ball was a man who went out of his way to help others, even when there did not seem to be an easy solution. He was someone anyone could rely on, even if you had just met. He believed it was possible to fix almost anything given enough time and the right tools, from broken machines to seemingly insurmountable personal situations. He always had a way of making a problem seem more manageable.

At a young age his signature look became overalls because he did not have to worry about getting them dirty while working on something. But even more than his overalls, he wore a smile for anyone and everyone. He never failed to respond to "How are you?" with "I'm blessed."

After marrying his high school sweetheart, Milly, both entered into military service with Air Force. He enjoyed traveling with his wife thru her 20 years of service, caring for their children, and helping his community in any way he could. He had a successful business providing parking for professional truck drivers. A bold advocate for Jesus, he was involved in a local AWANA ministry to provide a friendly outreach to share Jesus with young minds. His gift for real estate analysis and procurement facilitated the planting of a local Baptist church which he was involved with until limited by health problems.

Born in Chula Vista, CA and later moving to Fort Smith, AR with his family, he is survived by his parents Reed and Edwina Ball and 3 brothers Ron, Chris and Curtis Ball and their families. He liked fishing, motorcycle riding, ping pong, and martial arts. He was a graduate of Northside High School in Fort Smith, AR. He served as a carpenter in several Air Force assignments but his favorite was Lajes Field, Azores. A talent for construction work and problem-solving had developed early from working in his father's business. His generosity and willingness to teach others his skills resulted in blessings throughout the local community. There will be cards to write memories for a legacy book available at his Life Celebration service. He donated his body to Science Care to further medical teaching and research.

In lieu of flowers, family has requested donations to Gideons International who provide Bibles to share the Gospel. Mike believed strongly in reminding everyone he encountered that God has a plan for their life and that he was truly blessed regardless of current health problems or circumstances. Please join us in celebrating his entrance into the Lord's Kingdom.

Sheldon 'Shelly' Betman, 91

Sheldon Betman sadly left us on August 28, 2021. Shelly was born in Brooklyn, NY, on May 5, 1930. He is survived by his devoted wife of 62 years, Marilyn, his brother, Leonard, son Jeffrey and daughter-in-law, Molly, son Robert and daughter-in-law Jennifer, daughter Karen and son-in-law Rich, as well as his 10 loving grandchildren. Shelly was an avid outdoorsman who loved fishing, hunting, and boating. Shelly loved history and filled his house with relics of both American and Jewish history that he collected throughout his travels across the world.

Shelly dedicated his life to his family, community, and country. He was fulfilled by a lifetime of public service. He started from a young age, serving in 42nd Infantry Division of the United States National Guard. During this time, he served in the Korean War, before being honorably discharged as a Sergeant. Shelly continued on to serve 27 years with the Long Beach Auxiliary Police Department. After retiring as a Lieutenant, his service was further memorialized by the City of Long Beach when November 4, 1992, was named "Lieutenant Sheldon Betman Day".

Even into retirement, Shelly continued to answer the call to service, where he participated as a Guardian Ad Litem in the Citrus County Court System. Shelly advocated for underprivileged children who needed advocacy throughout the court process. While simultaneously managing these volunteer duties, he also served with honor as both a Citrus County Bailiff and a substitute teacher for countless years.

Due to the current health and safety restrictions, there was a small private service at the Star of David Memorial Cemetery in North Lauderdale, FL, on August 31, 2021, to honor Shelly's life.

JUDGE

Howard, the Florida Judicial Qualifications Commission (JQC) recommended in August 2020 for the state supreme court to publicly reprimand the judge. Justices agreed with the commission.

“Public reprimands, such as this, are an important way we can ensure the public we take misconduct by a judge very seriously,” Canaday said Thursday. “We will not hesitate to punish unethical conduct by a judge in a very public way.”

Howard and Vergara declined to comment Thursday about the reprimand, their respective judicial assistants told the Chronicle.

Howard didn't speak during the hearing, which was a few minutes long and broadcasted on the supreme court's Facebook and YouTube pages.

Howard was originally supposed to show in-person before the supreme court in Tallahassee, but justices granted the judge's lawyer's Aug. 26 motion to hold the hearing remotely due to the rise of COVID-19 cases in the state.

According to its May 2021 ruling, the supreme court found Howard's actions violated four canons of the Florida Code of Judicial Conduct. Justices didn't find Howard's conduct involved either a public endorsement or opposition of a candidate for office.

Vergara, then a lawyer, filed her candidacy in March 2019 to face

Angeliadis for his contested circuit judgeship in Hernando County.

During an April 17, 2019, meeting with Vergara at the Brooksville law firm she worked at, Howard asked her to either drop her candidacy, seek an appointment in the future or run against then-Citrus County Circuit Court Judge Mary P. Hatcher.

To his credit, Canaday noted, Howard “accepted full responsibility for these violations,” and cooperated with the JQC in its investigation.

Before Thursday, Howard had no prior discipline from the state supreme court as a judge since his appointment in 2000, or from the Florida Bar as a prior attorney, according to the JQC.

“Judge Howard, for the misconduct to which you have stipulated, you are hereby publicly reprimanded,” Canaday said. “We trust that in the future, you will faithfully fulfill the obligations bestowed on you by the code ... any future misconduct will be viewed more harshly.”

HURDLE

growing number of people needing memory care help, which this facility would provide.

The project would be less than the county required 1,000 feet from the Grand Living senior residential property, but Stillwell requested and staff recommended a deviation from the rule.

The facility will have 230 parking spaces.

Stillwell told the Chronicle that construction could begin January 2022 if Pruitt obtains its needed permits for the one-story facility.

The commission's approval is final and the project will not go to the county commission for review.

As part of the approval, though, the Planning and Development Commission also included a requirement for at least an 8-foot high masonry wall dividing the proposed facility and residential property to the east.

But about half a dozen residents living near the proposed site voiced to the commission concerns about potential stormwater runoff, unwanted night light from the parking lot, traffic and noise.

Ben Finnell said there was already runoff from the local school and once the trees are removed from the skilled nursing site and paved over he fears water will flow into his neighborhood and yard.

He also voiced concern over suspected problems once lighting is constructed at the parking lot and that light will shine onto his home.

Resident Patrick Chertette said he too had fears about runoff as well as bio-hazardous waste ending up outside the facility.

Resident Wendy Bergstrom said she wanted to know how tall the parking lot lights were going to be and asked for the wall to act as a sound barrier. She also worried that oils and other contaminants from the site would affect the area's private wells.

But Stillwell tried to alleviate fears.

The building will be one story, he said, so it won't loom over other properties. The lighting in the parking lot will be hooded, forcing the light downward instead of onto surrounding properties, he said.

The number of proposed parking spaces will meet codes and medical waste will be handled and disposed of by certified contractors.

He also said codes now allow as many as 80 homes to be built on the property, which would pose far more risk of runoff problems. But the proposed site includes a large drainage retention pond that would accommodate a 100-year storm event, Stillwell said.

The project also includes a wooded buffer between the facility and residential properties to the east.

As for traffic, Stillwell said the clients at the nursing facility won't be driving and the only traffic will be from employees and visitors.

Commissioner Robert Bass asked whether the wall could include a device to separate oil and water from runoff so to protect wells from contaminants. But Commissioner David Bramblett responded by saying that that the drainage retention pond and the ground underneath it would act as a filter and remove contaminants.

Chairman Michael Facemyer said he would support the project, either with a wall or not. He said his only concern was increasing traffic, maybe not now, but in the coming decade.

“I think this is a worthy project,” Facemyer said. “I'll support this one way or another (with or without a wall).”

Company Spotlight Chewed up

Chewy had its worst day of the year after the online pet products supplier posted double the second-quarter loss that Wall Street was expecting. Chewy, whose previous two quarters were its first profitable ones since going public a little more than two years ago, lost 4 cents per share in the period while also missing sales targets. Florida-based Chewy, which sells pet food, toys, medicine and other pet-related products, noted that sales in the period increased nearly 27% over the same period last year. "Customer engagement is growing, and we are confident in our ability to deliver strong results while navigating uncertain market conditions due to the ever-evolving COVID-19 pandemic," said CEO Sumit Singh. Shares in Chewy closed below $80 for the first time in six weeks.

DIGITAL SECURITY

Cybersecurity agency crippled by vacancies

There's a lurking bogeyman that everyone should be alarmed about, but we don't sense any urgency in or focus on addressing it, particularly by Florida policymakers. It has already affected the lives of thousands upon thousands of Floridians, and threatens nearly everyone.

What is it? Cybersecurity, or the lack of it. Think about how much in our lives and in society is tied to electronic transactions, then think about things going haywire. In the past year in Florida alone, there have been hacks of the databases for Healthy Kids insurance, the Department of Business and Professional Regulation, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, and most recently the state's CONNECT unemployment claims system.

Last year, the governor and state legislators created a new technology office that was supposed to get a grip on all things cyber in the state, but it can't even get a grip on itself. In the past several months, as reported by the Tampa Bay Times, the new Florida Digital Service saw a wave of high-level departures, with some top officials leaving without notice. Florida is looking for its third cybersecurity defense chief in less than a year, and half the positions on the 10-member cybersecurity response team are unfilled.

Cybersecurity is about the security of information and information systems that store and process data in electronic form. It's about confidentiality of information, integrity of data systems, and availability of the systems. These "systems" include everything from utilities (water, sewer, electricity) to fuel, air and ground traffic control, and of course the many financial systems we rely on in daily life, in addition to business and health records of all types.

THE ISSUE:

Florida's cybersecurity track record is abysmal.

OUR OPINION:

Cybersecurity must become a priority for funding, action.

Florida — the nation's third-largest state — has an abysmal record in addressing cybersecurity. Legislators allocated $30 million for it last year. Compare that with Texas, the second-largest state, which allocated more than $100 million for the year, plus more than $1 billion (with a "b") to modernize the state's technology infrastructure. For comparison purposes, Florida's population is about three-fourths that of Texas.

We don't know why the state's new technology office cannot hire or retain the talent it needs to succeed and progress on keeping Florida safe in cyberspace. State leadership needs to figure it out, and do it quickly. Maybe it's poor management, which is fixable. Or maybe Florida is trying to do cybersecurity on the cheap — definitely not a winning strategy.

Quality results, especially in a rapidly evolving environment where threats proliferate daily, require a substantial investment. Get the best people, pay them, provide the tools, take advantage of public-private partnerships, strengthen our infrastructure, and do whatever else is needed. The current lack of priority and focus is putting us all at risk.

Information, integrity of data systems, and availability of the systems. These "systems" include everything from utilities (water, sewer, electricity) to fuel, air and ground traffic control, and of course the many financial systems we rely on in daily life, in addition to business and health records of all types.

EMS should be more of a priority

The starting salaries for our EMS employees are a disgrace. These people are no less important than teachers.

These EMS employees are required to have special training in order to save lives. These positions cannot be filled by any Joe Schmo. This is what happens when all the county/city officials infatuations focus on tourism, parks, festivals, new beaches, bike paths, etc. While these things might be good for the county, none of these are "necessities" as is the case of the EMS.

No, we don't need our leaders to raise taxes, but we need better money management and spending control. (Dare I mention the $8-9 million price tag for a new animal shelter?) You are spending other people's money!

Both the county and EMS need to get their act together to come up with a reasonable plan without punishing your taxpaying residents.

State conservation went downhill under Rick Scott

In a recent Editorial, the Chronicle writes. "Florida has not prioritized conservation in the past, so residents need to continually remind policymakers at all levels how important it is. It will take funding; it will also take cooperation among national, state and local groups and individuals, both government and private. In Citrus County, we particularly need to practice smart planning to avoid the sprawl that could derail efforts to create wildlife corridors."

That is not a totally accurate statement. Florida went through an enlightened period in the 1980s and into the 2000s where it did in fact prioritize conservation. The Conservation and Recreational Lands (CARL) program was established by the Florida legislature in 1979 to acquire lands of environmental and cultural significance. In 1989, the CARL program was replaced by Preservation 2000 and the funding increased to three billion dollars for conservation land purchases.

During the same period, Florida also implemented the Growth Management Act. Those two programs were largely responsible for what the Nature Coast enjoys today with the creation of the Crystal River Preserve State Park and additions to the Marjorie Carr Cross Florida Greenway and the Chassahowitzka River and Coastal Swamps Projects, along with limiting growth and protecting manatees via the GMA.

It wasn't until 2012 that it all went south under Rick Scott's leadership. It has been a downhill slide from there despite Florida's citizens passing a constitutional amendment seeking to reverse this trend.

Too bad we have to reinvent the wheel.

Nature, waters deserve protection

A big thank you to your editorial staff for supporting and bringing awareness to the Florida Rights of Nature Network (FRONN.org) initiative to provide rights protections for our waters with the state constitutional amendment at FL5.org.

Throughout history, societal shifts have occurred to give rights to the unrepresented, unprotected and exploited — slaves, women, and animals are a few that we have as a society have decided should have the ability to exist and thrive and to lead a dignified existence. In 1886, railroad corporations convinced the Supreme Court that what is non-human, a collection of papers, should be given the same constitutional rights as a person. Since that time, corporations have built a framework of regulatory protections allowing them to pollute with impunity.

The writers of our Constitution could not have foreseen this atrocity. They also could not have imagined the impacts we have inflicted on our ecosystems. If a corporation can have rights, is it not time we consider, as a society, that our unprotected waters and uplands have protective rights today?

Future life in Florida, the nation and the world will depend on the creation of such laws. Daily images of dead sea life with unaware people wading through the devastation inflicted by Florida's biggest polluters spells economic collapse. Clean waters, not toxic, sustain everything in Florida — lifestyle, health, economy. Overtly obvious is our current system of regulatory and legislative decision-making has failed to protect our waters and health. Bureaucrats fail to speak proactively of making waters clean. They refuse to identify the biggest polluters for fear of lost campaign contributions from agricultural, industrial and construction interests.

There is only one solution. Stop adding nutrients at their sources. With bureaucrats' ineptitude comes waters more polluted today than 50 years ago. The system is rigged toward staged destruction by permits for economic actors exploiting our resources, not protections. Moving enforcement into the hands of the citizens, giving them legal standing to litigate against the sources of pollution will be the change needed to fix our waters. Following the new paradigm of rights for clean water can make this happen. This is the goal of the now-circulating state constitutional amendment petition at FL5.org. Creation of this new law will alter the course of environmental protections forever. Save Florida's waters and economy with your signature. Please sign and mail your petition today. Thank you.

Hot Corner: MASKS

■ Please add my voice to the chorus disagreeing with the Chronicle editorial of Aug. 20 ("Parents, not government, should make choices").

The reason we have a government is to protect the citizens, including all the children that can't protect themselves. One unmasked child with COVID could undo what every other parent is striving for — in fact, what we're all striving for. What would Jesus do?

■ I was stunned to read the Chronicle's editorial about parents making the choice about masks a few days ago, Aug. 20. Lots of false equivalencies and nonsense wrapped up in a blubber of words. Yes, parents should parent. No, parents should not have the right to set school policies. And do you really want to refer to our local schools as the government? Shameful.

■ If anybody doesn't think there's a crisis in the school system in Citrus County — or probably most schools in the state — unfortunately, they're very wrong. Just today (Aug. 24) in Citrus County, 94 more students tested positive for COVID. That makes 417 students and 27 staff so far this year, in just two weeks of testing, exactly. What is it going to take to shut our schools down or make masks mandatory? ... Our school board and school superintendent need to change their policy and ... require masks in schools. Do this now.

■ Whenever an editorial in a newspaper says that parents should be able to make a choice for their own children as far as school masking, I have one question: Do you really know how stupid some people are?

■ Stat cop here, calling in seeing how everybody's doing. As far as the masks — everybody keep on wearing them. We've got a long road ahead of us. You've got to get those booster shots also coming up.

■ In response to the "Hot Corner: COVID Precautions," where people are complaining about non-vaccinated people not wearing a mask. How do you know they're not vaccinated? Just because they don't wear masks, you say they're not vaccinated. Maybe they are vaccinated and the people cannot get the virus.

Are blue lights legal on a car?

I would like someone to answer this who knows: Is it legal to have blue lights on a car or a truck? I'm not talking about flashing from the top or whatever, just in the front where the lights are supposed to be and they put these blue bulbs in them that's blinding. I wondered if that was legal in Florida now. Thank you for letting me sound off. Our readers are so smart. You all stay safe.

Don't leave dogs in the heat

This call is in regards to the dogs being left outside in the heat and the Animal Control officers not making them put them in the house. It's really hot out there — I mean, really hot. Dogs should not be out walking on the pavement. It burns their paws. One dog had a pan of water — a stainless steel bowl — which I'm sure the water was warm.

Please, if you see a dog outside, call Animal Control. It's just awful out there. People should not have dogs and Animal Control doesn't seem to do too much to help.

Weather stats differ

I am calling about (the front-page) article in Wednesday, Aug. 18's paper about the record rain. It states (on Page A7): "From January through August, Citrus has received about 48 inches of rain. ... That 48 inches is more than Citrus received in all 12 months of 2020." Yet in the Weather section of the paper (Page A4), where they record the rainfall for the year, it has 25 inches total and for the month, 5.34 inches.

We've had over 13 inches of rain already in August. Could you please tell me where they take the weather observations here in Citrus County, because they are always way off?

Overgrown lot is unsightly

I'm calling about that awful sight on South Apopka. In between two Habitat homes is an empty lot and the weeds have got to be 5 feet tall. I mean, let's clean up. I know if I was living there, I wouldn't want to have to look out my window and see, you know, all that tall grass. I mean, that's pretty bad. I drive by it and it's like holy heck. What's going on here? It's looking like the woods, the forest. All right, hopefully somebody will go and get that mowed down.

Watch where you park your semi

Today is Friday, Aug. 20, regarding today's Sound Off, the article, "Appreciate semi-truck drivers": Everybody appreciates semi-truck drivers. However, it is still illegal for them to park their rigs anywhere they want to. A quick internet search shows at least three legal semi-truck parking yards in the Crystal River area. So, therefore, there's no reason for there to be a semi in the Save-A-Lot plaza every weekend. ... Once again, we appreciate the drivers for what they do, what they bring. We cannot live without them. However, it is still illegal to park a semi anywhere you want to.

No dogs in grocery store

I'm calling in reference to the Sound Off in today's paper, which is Aug. 21. The guy's comment said, "Pit bull not good dinner companion." He is covered. All he has to do is call the sheriff's department because there's a law called the ADA. The ADA does not allow any dogs in any grocery store, restaurant or anything else, except authorized seeing-eye dogs who have the collar. They are the only dogs allowed to be in any of these places. So call the sheriff and tell him they're violating the ADA and let them look it up if they don't know what it is.

When deputies arrived on scene, the man was reportedly sitting on top of his Honda CRV as it sunk into the waters of Little Lake Henderson. Deputies assisted the man, who had no injuries, to safety.

However, deputies noticed a car seat inside the sinking vehicle, according to a CCSO incident report. Deputies entered the water to attempt a rescue, but confirmed that no one else was inside.

Personnel called for the assistance of Ed's Auto and Towing, who were able to remove the submerged vehicle from the lake.

According to the CCSO, no charges were filed.

several homes. Worse, the floodwater was right up to the park's sewer plant lift station, creating a potential health issue.

Bryant said park management temporarily reinforced the lift station with sand bags and clay berms and is working with the Florida Department of Environmental Protection on further measures.

Wednesday's heavy rain caused water levels in the Tsala Apopka Chain of Lakes to rise above normal levels and prompted the Southwest Florida Water Management District (SWFWMD) to reopen its water control structures, said Dr. Mark Fulkerson, the district's chief professional engineer.

"We plan to keep the structures open until we can get the lakes back down to normal," Fulkerson said.

"It appears the water level in Singing Forest is still a couple feet higher than the Floral City Pool of Tsala Apopka," he said. "Since this area is surrounded by high ground, the only way water levels will recede is by evaporation or infiltration into the ground, which is still very saturated."

The water district gauge about three-quarter miles from Singing Forest recorded 20 inches of rain in August. Another 3 inches fell Wednesday.

"Just an extraordinary amount of rainfall in Citrus County this summer," Fulkerson said.

Storm's fury returns

Associated Press

Residents canoe through floodwater in the aftermath of Hurricane Ida in Manville, NJ, Thursday, Sept. 2. A stunned U.S. East Coast has woken up to a rising death toll, surging rivers and destruction after the remnants of Hurricane Ida walloped the region with record-breaking rain.

Death toll tops 40 as Ida's remnants blindsides Northeast

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A stunned U.S. East Coast faced a rising death toll, surging rivers, tornado damage and continuing calls for rescue Thursday after the remnants of Hurricane Ida walloped the region with record-breaking rain, drowning more than 40 people in their homes and cars.

In a region that had been warned about potentially deadly flash flooding but hadn't braced for such a blow from the no-longer-hurricane, the storm killed at least 45 people from Maryland to Connecticut on Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

At least 23 people died in New Jersey, Democratic Gov. Phil Murphy said. At least 12 people died in New York City, police said, one of them in a car and 11 in flooded basement apartments that often serve as relatively affordable homes in one of the nation's most expensive housing markets. Suburban Westchester County reported three deaths.

Officials said at least five in Pennsylvania, including one killed by a falling tree and another who drowned in his car after helping his wife to escape, according to authorities. A Connecticut state police sergeant, Brian Mohl, perished after his cruiser was swept away. Another death was reported in Maryland.

In New York City, Sophy Liu said she tried using towels and garbage bags to stop the water coming into her first-floor apartment in Queens, but the flood rose up to her chest in just a half hour. She roused her son from bed and put him in a life jacket and inflatable swimming ring.

The door stuck when she tried to open it, possibly from water pressure, she said. She called two friends who helped her jar it loose.

"I was obviously scared, but I had to be strong for my son. I had to calm him down," she recalled Thursday as medical examiners removed three bodies from a home down the street.

In another part of Queens, water rapidly filled Deborah Torres' first-floor apartment to her knees as her landlord frantically urged her neighbors below — who included a baby — to get out, she said. But the water rushed in so strongly that she surmised they weren't able to open the door. The three residents died.

"I have no words," she said. "How can something like this happen?"

Ex-prosecutor indicted for misconduct in Arbery death

SAVANNAH, Ga. — A former Georgia prosecutor was indicted Thursday on misconduct charges alleging she used her position to shield the men who chased and killed Ahmaud Arbery from being charged with crimes immediately after the shootings.

A grand jury in coastal Glynn County indicted former Brunswick Judicial Circuit District Attorney Jackie Johnson on a felony count of violating her oath of office and hindering a law enforcement officer, a misdemeanor.

The indictment resulted from an investigation Georgia Attorney General Chris Carr requested last year into local prosecutors' handling of Arbery's slaying after a cellphone video of the shooting and a delay in charges sparked a national outcry.

"While an indictment was returned today, our file is not closed, and we will continue to investigate in order to pursue justice," Carr, a Republican, said in a statement.

Small jet crashes into building on takeoff; four aboard die

A small jet crashed shortly after taking off from a small airport in Connecticut on Thursday morning, killing all four people aboard, officials said.

The jet took off just before 10 a.m. from the Robertson Airport before crashing into the building at Trumpf Inc., a manufacturing company, Farmington Police Lt. Tim McKenzie said.

"It appears there was some type of mechanical failure during the takeoff sequence that resulted in the crash behind us," he said.

The plane, a Cessna Citation 560X, was headed to Dare County Regional Airport in Manteo, North Carolina, the Federal Aviation Administration said. Two pilots and two passengers were killed, McKenzie said. Their names were not immediately released.

Jan. 6 riot defendant returned to jail for using internet

IOWA CITY, Iowa — A federal judge on Thursday ordered a prominent participant in the Jan. 6 attack on the U.S. Capitol to return to jail after he was caught accessing the internet to watch false conspiracy theories about the presidential election.

U.S. District Judge Timothy Kelly said that Doug Jensen, 42, of Des Moines, Iowa, had violated the strict conditions that were set when he released Jensen from jail on July 13, including prohibitions on accessing the internet and using a cellphone.

Kelly ordered marshals at the federal courthouse in Des Moines, where Jensen attended Thursday's hearing, to immediately take him into custody as he awaits trial.

Prosecutors had moved to revoke Jensen's pretrial release on Aug. 19, days after a federal officer found Jensen in his garage using an iPhone to watch news from Rumble, a streaming platform popular with conservatives.

Jensen acknowledged that he had earlier watched two days of the cyber symposium sponsored by MyPillow CEO Mike Lindell, an ally of former President Donald Trump who used the event to push false theories that the presidential election's outcome was changed by Chinese hackers.

Greek health care workers protest compulsory vaccinations

ATHENS, Greece — Hundreds of Greek health care workers, accompanied by ambulances with sirens blaring, marched through central Athens on Thursday to protest regulations mandating coronavirus vaccines for anyone working in their sector.

Under the regulation, which went into effect Wednesday, any health care worker who isn't vaccinated against COVID-19 or hasn't recovered from the disease within the last six months will be suspended from work without pay.

About 400 protesters rallied outside the health ministry in the center of the Greek capital, before marching to parliament accompanied by about a dozen ambulances. The protesters say they are not against vaccinations, but object to making them compulsory, and say the measure will lead to staff shortages.

The government counters that the measure — which applies to all health care workers in the private and public sector as well as to workers in care homes for the elderly — is necessary to protect the most vulnerable amid a third surge of COVID-19 infections in the country.

China bans 'sissy men' from television

BEIJING — China's government banned effeminate men on TV and told broadcasters Thursday to promote "revolutionary culture," broadening a campaign to tighten control over business and society and enforce official morality.

President Xi Jinping has called for a "national rejuvenation," with tighter Communist Party control of business, education, culture and religion. Companies and the public are under increasing pressure to align with its vision for a more powerful China and healthier society.

The party has reduced children's access to online games and is trying to discourage what it sees as unhealthy attention to celebrities.

Broadcasters must "resolutely put an end to sissy men and other abnormal esthetics," the National Radio and TV Administration said.

That reflects official concern that Chinese pop stars, influenced by the sleek, fashionable look of some South Korean and Japanese singers and actors, are failing to encourage China's young men to be masculine enough.

Biden blasts court on Texas law

Justices decline to block controversial new abortion measure

JESSICA GRESKO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Joe Biden on Thursday lambasted the Supreme Court's decision not to block a new Texas law banning most abortions in the state and directed federal agencies to do what they can to "insulate women and providers" from the impact.

Hours earlier, in the middle of the night, a deeply divided high court allowed the law to remain in force in the nation's biggest abortion curb since the court legalized the operation nationwide a half-century ago.

The court voted 5-4 to deny an emergency appeal from abortion providers and others but also suggested that their order likely wasn't the last word and other challenges can be brought.

Biden said his administration will launch a "whole-of-government effort to respond to this decision" and look at "what steps the federal government can take to ensure that women in Texas have access to safe and legal abortions as protected by Roe."

He said women should be protected from "the impact of Texas' bizarre scheme of outsourced enforcement to private parties."

Biden, who has come under pressure from Democrats to expand the size of the Supreme Court, has ordered a review of the court that is due next month.

The Texas law, signed by Republican Gov. Greg Abbott in May, prohibits abortions once medical professionals can detect cardiac activity, usually around six weeks and before many women know they're pregnant.

It is the strictest law against abortion rights in the United States since the high court's landmark Roe v. Wade decision in 1973 and part of a broader push by Republicans nationwide to impose new restrictions on abortion. At least 12 other states have enacted bans early in pregnancy, but all have been blocked from going into effect.

The high court's order declining to halt the Texas law came just before midnight Wednesday. The majority said those bringing the case had not met the high burden required for a stay of the law.

"In reaching this conclusion, we stress that we do not purport to resolve definitively any jurisdictional or substantive claim in the applicants' lawsuit. In particular, this order is not based on any conclusion about the constitutionality of Texas's law, and in no way limits other procedurally proper challenges to the Texas law, including in Texas state courts," the unsigned order said.

Chief Justice John Roberts dissented along with the court's three liberal justices. Each of the four dissenting justices wrote separate statements expressing their disagreement with the majority.

COVID surge causing nursing shortage

HEATHER HOLLINGSWORTH AND MICHAEL KUNZELMAN
Associated Press

The COVID-19 pandemic has created a nurse staffing crisis that is forcing many U.S. hospitals to pay top dollar to get the help they need to handle the crush of patients this summer. The problem, health leaders say, is twofold: Nurses are quitting or retiring, exhausted or demoralized by the crisis. And many are leaving for lucrative temporary jobs with traveling-nurse agencies that can pay $5,000 or more a week.

It's gotten to the point where doctors are saying, "Maybe I should quit being a doctor and go be a nurse," said Dr. Phillip Coule, chief medical officer at Georgia's Augusta University Medical Center, which has on occasion seen 20 to 30 resignations in a week from nurses taking traveling jobs.

"And then we have to pay premium rates to get staff from another state to come to our state," Coule said.

The average pay for a traveling nurse has soared from roughly $1,000 to $2,000 per week before the pandemic to $3,000 to $5,000 now, said Sophia Morris, a vice president at San Diego-based health care staffing firm Aya Healthcare. She said Aya has 48,000 openings for traveling nurses to fill.

At competitor SimpliFi, President James Quick said the hospitals his company works with are seeing unprecedented levels of vacancies.

"Small to medium-sized hospitals generally have dozens of full-time openings, and the large health systems have hundreds of full-time openings," he said.

The explosion in pay has made it hard on hospitals without deep enough pockets.

Kansas Gov. Laura Kelly lamented recently that the state's hospitals risk being outbid for nurses by other states that pay a "fortune." She said Wednesday that several hospitals, including one in Topeka, had open beds but no nurses to staff them.

In Kansas City, Missouri, Truman Medical Centers has lost about 10 nurses to travel jobs in recent days and is looking for travelers to replace them, said CEO Charlie Shields.

He said it is hard to compete with the travel agencies, which are charging hospitals $165 to $170 an hour per nurse. He said the agencies take a big cut of that, but he estimated that nurses are still clearing $70 to $90 an hour, which is two to three times what the hospital pays its staff nurses.

"I think clearly people are taking advantage of the demand that is out there," Shields said. "I hate to use 'gouged' as a description, but we are clearly paying a premium and allowing people to have fairly high profit margins."

Lecanto starts season with sweep of Citrus

Ambrose, Burkholder pace Panthers

CHRIS BERNHARDT JR.
Staff writer

LECANTO — The season began for the swim teams from Citrus and Lecanto on Thursday night, as both squads gathered at the Citrus Memorial Health Foundation YMCA.

For the Panthers the opening meet ended in a sweep of the undermanned Hurricanes, who were missing a few swimmers including returning state qualifier Drew Jenkins.

With both schools having low numbers on the boys side, that final score ended up 76-55. Senior captain Noah Ambrose led the way, having a hand in four first-place finishes.

"I think as a team we had a really great first meet of the season," Ambrose said. "I'm really excited about the future. We definitely have a lot of promise this season."

"It's a disappointment that Drew couldn't be here. We're hoping he feels better soon. Great job by Citrus."

Ambrose won his two individual races, although he swam unopposed in the 200-yard IM posting a 2:30.54. He also took first in the 100 butterfly in a time of 1:04.68.

In the 200-free relay, Ambrose was joined by Tyler Gonzalez, Jacob Gould and Aidan Pearcy in posting a first-place 2:02.53. Josh Ambrose teamed with his brother, as well as Pearcy and Mateo Valach, to capture the 400-free relay (4:01.13), though there were no other teams in the race.

"I'm gearing up for districts. It wasn't my best, but that's what the regular season is for," Noah Ambrose said. "I'm hoping to make states if possible. Definitely top of regionals."

Josh Ambrose was a winner in the 200 free (2:01.80) and 100 backstroke (1:02.71). Pearcy came in first in the 50 free (27.94), and freshman Mateo Valach took the top spot in the 500 free (5:46.89) and 100 breaststroke (1:21.02).

"It was a good first meet," Lecanto boys coach Bill Wells said. "Mateo as a freshman swam the first 500 he's ever swum and did a pretty decent time."

Leading the charge

STEPHEN SHANER/For the Chronicle

Seven Rivers Christian quarterback Nehemiah Vann, right, sprints away from the defense during last Friday night's game at Warrior Park in Lecanto against Trinity Christian Academy. The Warriors opened the season with a 41-6 victory, as Vann made big contributions on offense and defense.

Junior quarterback Vann returns from broken leg to pace Warriors

CHRIS BERNHARDT JR.
Staff writer

Monty Vann thought back to a football game he attended several years ago, when his son Nehemiah made an astute observation.

"He said, 'They're two high safety, why aren't they throwing in the middle of the field?'" said Monty Vann, head coach at Seven Rivers Christian. "You don't hear many 8-year-olds saying that."

Yes, Nehemiah Vann is the coach's son. Some people will look down upon him, even give him grief over it. But preferential treatment? Not so much.

"Being the coach's son, he does try to be harder on me at times," Nehemiah said. "A lot of guys joke around. But I take it. Anyone who hates on me, I just keep my head low and keep playing."

"Being the coach's kid is tough for him. He's always had it the toughest," Monty said. "He's had to prove himself a bit more because he's the coach's kid."

With 2 1/2 seasons of starting at quarterback already under his belt, Nehemiah doesn't have to speak up to defend himself. The numbers do plenty of talking.

Injuries forced him to take over under center midway through his eighth-grade year. So even as a junior, this is his fourth varsity season. In 24 career games entering Friday's action, he has completed 307 of 520 passes (59%) for 3,995 yards. He also has thrown for 33 touchdowns against 19 interceptions, and has a QB rating of 89.2. That's all helped him earn All-Chronicle selections each of the past two seasons.

CR, Seven Rivers face different challenges

CHRIS
BERNHARDT JR.

The second Friday night of the prep football season features a shortened slate, with Citrus on a bye and Lecanto having played on Thursday night.

One coach knows plenty about the opponent; the other knows nothing at all. Both local squads in action encounter matchups that are interesting for very different reasons.

Crystal River at The Villages, 7 p.m.

The Pirates faced a tall task opening the season with South Sumter last week, and now they have to hit the road to face The Villages this week.

Last time the Buffaloes lost a regular season game was at South Sumter — on Oct. 11, 2019. The Villages have won 10 straight in the regular season and 25 of 27 since the start of 2018. That includes a 42-7 victory over Lecanto last week.

"We set the schedule up intentionally," Crystal River head coach Cliff Lohrey said. "We're going on the road to face a team that has not lost a lot of regular-season games. We played them two years ago tough at our place (28-18 loss). They're coming off an impressive victory over a team in our county. It's a challenge the Pirates are looking forward to."

"... Coach (Richard) Pettus has been there a long period of time. They always had a great program but 3-4 years ago they took that next step. I don't think it's an exaggeration to call them one of the best teams in our area. It's a great challenge. I think we can go in and compete and come out with a victory."

ROUNDUP/MATCHUPS

Giants 5, Brewers 1: Thairo Estrada hit a three-run homer during San Francisco's four-run eighth inning. A day after falling out of first place for the first time since May 30, the Giants (85-49) moved into a tie atop the NL West with the idle Los Angeles Dodgers. Austin Slater also connected, and Logan Webb pitched seven sparkling innings.

Phillies 7, Nationals 6: Andrew McCutchen drove in four runs and the Philadelphia Phillies erased a six-run deficit for a three-game sweep. The Phillies overcame a disappointing start from Aaron Nola and rallied against the Nationals' bullpen for their sixth consecutive win.

Athletics 8, Tigers 6: Jed Lowrie hit a three-run homer in the first inning for the first of Oakland's eight two-out runs against Matt Manning. Mark Canha followed Lowrie's shot with another homer for 4-0 lead.

Mets 4, Marlins 3: Pinch-hitter Dominic Smith broke a seventh-inning tie with an RBI single. Marlins leadoff batter Miguel Rojas and Mets counterpart Jonathan Villar each homered on the first pitch they saw, the first time that's happened in a major league game since at least 1985, according to the Elias Sports Bureau. Statisticians at Elias were unable to go back any further with certainty because prior pitch-count records aren't precise.

SPORTS BRIEFS*Lecanto football team falls to Tavares 30-10

Playing a rare Thursday night game in Week 2, Lecanto fell at Tavares, 30-10. A field goal by Jack Levensgood and a touchdown run for Luke Malmberg accounted for the Panthers' scoring.

"We ran the ball well in the second half," Lecanto head coach Wyndell "Chop" Alexander said. "We stuck with them throughout the middle of the game. We started slow. We had some stuff we've got to get better in, some stuff we need to work on.

"... Overall I felt like we fought until the end, we just can't quite get over the hump. We'll watch film, get better and on Monday morning we'll turn our focus to Citrus."

Citrus boys golf improves to 2-0

The Citrus boys golf team won its home match against South Sumter on Thursday, 141-186, to move to 2-0 on the season. Luke Wood had the low score of the match with a 9-hole round of 37.

Brenden Boccia and Walker Tyler each shot a 52 for the Hurricanes, who only had three players available.

Seven Rivers sweeps Classical Prep

It was a three-game sweep for Seven Rivers Christian volleyball on Thursday night in a home match against Classical Prep, 25-19, 25-18, 25-18.

For the Warriors (2-3), Mckala Peters had 10 assists and two digs, Julia Shipes collected seven kills, nine assists, eight digs and four aces, and Jennah Kay almost nonexistent, those numbers particularly stand out and provide the Warriors with a significant advantage.

"It's huge," Monty Vann said. "He's a quarterback that understands the offense, he understands his protection. How many high school quarterbacks really understand their protection and he gets it."

His importance to the team was certainly on display last Friday, when he went 14 of 22 for 200 yards, threw three touchdowns, and even ran 13 times for 61 yards and one score.

For good measure he played free safety and picked off two passes. So he can actually be a two-way threat, although his father said the hope is to get Nehemiah away from defense as other players return from injuries.

"I feel extremely confident in our ability to perform to the expectations we set, which is to go undefeated," Nehemiah said. "After the game, Coach told us to play like a No. 1 (on the depth chart) but practice like a No. 2. We'll continue having that attitude no matter what."

That he was even on the field at all for Week 1 wasn't assured just a few months ago. While playing keeper for the boys soccer team, Vann suffered a broken right tibia in the final 30 seconds of the district championship game in early February.

He spent three months in a cast, completely missing spring football. There was another month in walking boot, although he still wasn't walking. Dealing with severe muscle atrophy, he began rehabbing three months after sustaining the injury, at Performance By Achievement in Inverness.

"At first it was really tough. I had a lot of doubts whether I'd come back with the setbacks I had," Nehemiah said. "From breaking my leg I learned to not take anything for granted. Now I'm more grateful to have the ability to play.

"... I learned that even if I'm not able to do what I want to do, I can still serve others around me. I helped (backup QB) J.T. Tipton throughout spring football. It was a blessing for me to mentor him and take him under my wing."

That kind of leadership seems to come naturally to Nehemiah. He doesn't just want to help his teammates on the field. He also wants them to succeed in the classroom, where he himself has a 4.3 GPA. He credits his father as well as his mother, Karen Vann.

"Both my parents push me to be the best version of myself," Nehemiah said. "They push me to work hard to be the best I can be."

That should continue for the next two seasons at Seven Rivers, as both QB and coach are hoping to enjoy the fruits of their labors after three years of rebuilding. It's the next step in the journey they've loved taking together.

"I'm proud of him. I'm so stinking proud of him," Monty Vann said. "I tell him I'm proud of him no matter what he does, because as a dad I see him being a leader to his teammates. I see him bring them up and I see him break some guys down at the right times.

"For me, that's what it's all about. I want my son being a leader, not a follower. He's doing a really good job of that."

schemes are, but it is what it is."

The Ducks made a late coaching hire when they tabbed Lake Nona defensive coordinator Alan Lambert and didn't play a spring game. Then they missed the preseason and Week 1 due to COVID-19 issues. So this marks their first game of any kind under Lambert.

Vann has been watching video of Lake Nona to try to get some sort of idea on Lambert's tendencies, but for the most part Seven Rivers goes into this one blind.

"It'll be good for us as coaches, can we adjust to something really quick?" Vann said. "Let's get after this team, play a good game and adjust on the fly."

A season-opening 41-6 win over Trinity Christian gave the Warriors plenty to feel good about, but also much to work on in several areas.

"It was a good win for us," Vann said. "There are a lot of things that needed to be fixed. Going back to the film, it's not as pretty as you thought it was. "We've got some key injuries we've got to work through. We've got to move people around."

Seven Rivers will be missing three offensive linemen due to injury, including senior center Logan Alford (dislocated shoulder) but also left guard Kamryn Johnson and Hayden Thomas, an important depth piece up front.

Carmelo Cordero returns from missing out last week to bolster both the run game and secondary, however wide receiver Aiden Bergstrom (ankle) remains limited to spot duty.

"We've laid a good foundation," Vann said. "We want to continue to build and build properly. I think it's really important to keep the momentum going."

Josh and Noah Ambrose both had very good races. And some of the new guys that just started have started off well. We've got some things to work on but I feel pretty good so far.

"I think we're going to be competitive within our conference and then we'll see what happens in districts. We're in a lot harder district this year."

In the girls meet, it was a rout for the Panthers, 125-40. Junior Grace Burkholder, a state qualifier in 2020, swam the fastest time in the 50 free (26.48) and 100 breast (1:13.02).

Lecanto spread the wealth. Nicole Shanks beat the field in the 200 IM (2:19.67) and 500 free (5:22.24), Haileigh Swisher added a first in the 200 free (2:36.36), Arianna Bugner won the 100 fly (1:20.02) and Lorelei Mohammadbhoj took the 100 free (1:15.36).

Burkholder, Shanks, Bugner and Blakely Messer put together a first-place 2:10.12 in the 200-medley relay. Messer, Bugner, Mohammadbhoj and Swisher won the 200-free relay (2:06.95); Shanks, Farah Anderson, Swisher and Burkholder compiled a first-place 4:18.54 in the 400 free.

"I was really excited because we have a lot of brand new swimmers and they all really came up and scored, and just swam incredible races. Our veteran swimmers, they did exactly what was expected of them," Lecanto girls coach Michelle Dickemann said.

"Grace had one of her best races in her 100 breast. She was just a few tenths off of her best time ever and this early in the season that's very promising. Nicole Shanks, she's just going to be a standout freshman. She's going to be phenomenal to watch as she gets through the years.

"What we really like is the fact we have so many new girls that stepped up and they weren't swimming like they were brand new. They were swimming like they've been at this for a year or two and that's really exciting."

Without Jenkins, the 'Canes had just one first-place finisher on the boys side, Isaac Gonzalez with a 1:04.13 in the 100 free. Kalen Swiatek, Gavin Waller, Jackson Tessler and Gonzalez also won the 200-medley relay (2:13.31).

Abby Wells notched the lone victory for the Citrus girls, with a 1:25.03 in the 100 back.

"We've had some challenges getting pool time so far this season," Citrus coach Jamie Fehrenbach said. "We are proud of the effort that our swimmers gave. We told them to give us their best and finish their race. We will continue working on their techniques and endurance."

Harris English, center, celebrates Thursday after hitting a hole-in-one on No. 15 during the first round of the Tour Championship at East Lake Golf Club in Atlanta.

Cantlay starts with and keeps his lead

Tour Championship underway

DOUG FERGUSON
AP golf writer

ATLANTA — Patrick Cantlay met his goal in the first round of the Tour Championship on Thursday, and it had nothing to do with the score on his card or the size of his lead.

As the top seed in the FedEx Cup, he started with a two-shot lead over Tony Finau before even hitting a shot. He finished the warm, breezy day at East Lake at 3-under 67 with a two-shot lead over Jon Rahm.

This was all about playing another tournament round.

"I think being in the spot that I'm in, it would be easy to get ahead of yourself and easy to maybe stray from your game plan because you feel like you're ahead," Cantlay said. "And that's just not helpful, so I'm not going to do that."

Only four players had a better score, so it was a good day regardless of the format that allows players to start at various points under par depending on their FedEx Cup position.

Rahm began by chipping in for birdie, kept the round from getting away from him with a few key saves — one for bogey, one for par — at the turn, and ran off four birdies over his last seven holes for a 65.

Cantlay, who started at 10-under par, moved to 13 under.

Five shots behind was Bryson DeChambeau and Harris English, and only one of them managed to pick up a little ground on Cantlay while delivering one of the more exciting moments.

That would be English, who was headed in the wrong direction when he stepped to the tee at the par-3 15th over water, the second-toughest hole at East Lake, smashed a 5-iron from 224 yards and watched it drop for a hole-in-one, the first one since the Tour Championship first came to East Lake in 1998.

He followed with two more birdies for a 66, one better than Cantlay on the day, a little closer than when English started.

DeChambeau birdied his last three holes to salvage a 69. He started three shots behind and now is five shots behind, without any reports of unruly behavior outside the ropes.

The subject of name calling was — who else? — English.

One fan following along kept referring to him by another name — Hudson Swafford — which is understandable. English and Swafford were teammates at Georgia, have similar builds, look a little alike. They're even tied in driving distance (81st) on the PGA Tour.

"He thought I was Hudson like half the people out here," English said. "I think he kind of had a couple beers. ... He just couldn't quite tell from 50 yards out who I was."

Finau, meanwhile, had a 72 and went from two shots behind to seven back.

This is the third year of the format, and Cantlay doesn't know how the lower half feels. He was the No. 2 seed in 2019 when it started, the No. 1 seed last year. That first time didn't go well. He had one of his worst weeks of the year, which cost him nearly $2 million with how far he fell.

Justin Thomas was the Nos. 1 and 3 seeds the previous two times. Now he's at No. 6, meaning he started six shots out of the lead. That was a new experience.

He noticed he already was in 10th place by the time he teed off, based on some early scoring, and found that to a bit jarring. Worse yet was being 1 over on the front nine. Starting out six shots behind in the first place, his hopes could have ended early.

But he shot 31 on the back nine, five birdies and one impressive par save on the 14th, and pieced together a 67. He's still six back. It could have been worse.

"When you start behind like that, unfortunately, you just don't have the luxury of shooting a 1 over or 2 over the first round," Thomas said. "And I salvaged a good round out there and feel like I can easily go out there and shoot 6 or 7 under one of these next three days. And hopefully I do."

Rahm started four back and, like Cantlay, chose not to pay attention to anything but the next shot, even as the good start looked as though it could get away from him. He took bogey from the left rough on No. 7, had to get up-and-down from behind the eighth green for bogey and saved par from a bunker on the par-3 ninth.

That was as important as some of his birdies. Now he's two behind Cantlay with 54 holes left, and now matter how odd it might seem at the start, now it feels like a regular tournament.

"It's very easy to get caught up on how far back you start. I don't think I really once thought about it out there. I was just trying to post a score," Rahm said. "My job is to hit the best shot I can each time and that's all can I control."

23 down, 5 more to go

Djokovic eyeing calendar-year Slam at US Open

HOWARD FENDRICH
AP tennis writer

NEW YORK — Novak Djokovic missed an overhead and stared over toward a section of the Arthur Ashe Stadium stands. After taking the next game, Djokovic glared in that direction again. Later, he spoke to the chair umpire about someone making noise in the middle of points, considered a no-no in tennis.

That, then, is pretty much what provided some intrigue and interest for Djokovic's second-round match at the U.S. Open, because the ultimate outcome seemed fairly obvious after all of about 15 minutes Thursday. Or maybe even before he and his 121st-ranked opponent stepped on court on a cool, breezy evening.

And that, surely, pleased Djokovic as he took another step toward completing the first calendar-year Grand Slam in men's tennis since 1969 and claiming a 21st major championship to eclipse the mark he shares with Roger Federer and Rafael Nadal. What Djokovic wasn't thrilled by during a 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Tallon Griekspoor was some of the distractions arriving during the run of play.

"I came out on the court with the right intensity, with the right focus. Definitely was a better performance from my side than a couple of nights ago," the No. 1-ranked Djokovic said, referring to his win Tuesday, when he dropped a set and was taken aback by hearing what he thought were boos but actually were last-name chants of "Ruuuuuune!" for his 18-year-old foe, Holger Vitus Nodskov Rune.

Here's what matters the most: Djokovic is 2-0 at Flushing Meadows this week and 23-0 in Grand Slam tournaments this year, with five more wins standing between him and history.

"I am motivated as ever to do well," said Djokovic, a 34-year-old from Serbia who will face 2014 U.S. Open finalist Kei Nishikori next. "I am trying to be the best I can be every single day and let's see what happens."

This was only the fourth Slam match for Griekspoor, a 25-year-old Dutchman who tends to appear on the lower-level ATP Challenger Tour. And he never really stood much of a chance against Djokovic, who broke to lead 3-1 and was on his way.

Djokovic dominated every statistical category. He served well, to the tune of 13 aces. He serve-and-volleyed occasionally. He returned well enough to win half of Griekspoor's service games. He dominated baseline exchanges.

Maybe that's why ESPN's telecast cut away in the third set.

About the only problems No. 1 Ash Barty and other top women encountered earlier Thursday came in the delays trying to get to Flushing Meadows in the aftermath of Hurricane Ida's remnants blowing through the Northeast a night earlier.

Barty, a two-time major champion including at Wimbledon in July, three-time Grand Slam champ Angelique Kerber, Tokyo Olympic gold medalist Belinda Bencic, double Wimbledon title winner Petra Kvitova and other seeded women including No. 14 Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova, No. 17 Maria Sakkari, No. 23 Jessica Pegula and No. 28 Anett Kontaveit all won in two sets during the afternoon to reach the third round.

At night, 2019 U.S. Open champion Bianca Andreescu improved her tournament record to 9-0 by defeating Lauren Davis 6-4, 6-4.

Among the men's winners were Summer Games gold medalist and 2020 U.S. Open runner-up Alexander Zverev, 2021 Wimbledon finalist Matteo Berrettini, No. 17 Gael Monfils and No. 22 seed Reilly Opelka of the U.S.

With the sun out and nary a cloud around, play in second-round matches on the outer courts was pushed back from 11 a.m. to noon to allow the U.S. Tennis Association time to clean up downed tree branches and other scattered debris and make sure everything was ready for competition on Day 4 of the year's last Grand Slam tournament.

Novak Djokovic returns a shot Thursday to Tallon Griekspoor during the second round of the US Open in New York. Djokovic won in straight sets.

THIS WEEKEND

Pine Street Jam set this Saturday

Get out your Hawaiian shirts and head for Downtown Inverness Saturday for the city's annual Pine Street Jam. The event will be held from 6-10 p.m. on Pine Avenue and features the band, the Aquaholics, for this Caribbean-inspired, Labor Day weekend event.

Although there will be dancing in the street, the city is encouraging attendees to take COVID safety precautions. The event will be more scaled back than in the past because the city still is figuring out how to offer public events during COVID, according to the city's Liz Fernley, director of marketing, events and cultural arts.

Nevertheless, the city still wants to provide events for residents and visitors who have been home for so long, Fernley said.

The road will be closed between Old Main Street and Tompkins Street. Parking is available in the City Hall lot and elsewhere.

JERRY DAWSON/Special to the Chronicle

The Photography Club of Citrus Hills recently visited the World Equestrian Center in Ocala, the largest equestrian complex in the US.

Photography Club of Citrus Hills visits the World Equestrian Center

Special to the Chronicle

Many of the field trips taken by the Photography Club of Citrus Hills are met with enthusiasm, and our latest to the World Equestrian Center in Ocala certainly was no exception. Sue Dawson had suggested it and field trip leader Bob Feldberg agreed that it would be a great photography experience.

The threat of Tropical Storm Fred did not dampen the enthusiasm of our members when we met at the Center on Saturday, Aug. 14. Bob Feldberg was already on hand to give members the temporary photographer passes that his wife Henny had secured for us.

There were many events that day, but it was the jumping contest taking place in the main arena that club members gravitated to first. After finding seats under the canopy or good viewing spots, camera settings were checked and shutters began clicking. Everyone concentrated on the scene before them.

Watching the interaction between horse and rider as each jump was approached was breathtaking. Without losing stride, the horse took the jump with ease. For the photographers, trying to get that perfect shot was not quite as easy, but most were very happy with their results.

From one of the indoor arenas, carriages, their trials finished, began leaving. We stood aside and admired them. Gypsy Vanners, with their feathers and manes brushed to silky smoothness, heads held high, proudly trotted by.

In the rink, waiting to be judged, were various breeds.

There were stately Arabians, Bays, Morgans, each horse groomed to impress. With coats shining, their manes plaited or buttoned they stood quietly. Their riders were equally striking, impeccably dressed and with perfect posture they approached the judges to be put through their paces.

When three diminutive young ladies entered the ring it was difficult for spectators to choose one over another. The judges watched carefully as the horses obeyed the commands, walk, trot, turn and walk. All were done with perfect poise and attention. The discipline of both horse and rider seemed effortless. After some deliberation the judges came to a decision and the winner was announced. A short victory walk around the ring and the first place ribbon was awarded.

Back outside again in the main arena, the final jumping contest was finishing. It was rewarding to see that the US took first and second place. The arena was prepared for the next event, but soon heavy rain brought outside events to a halt. And reluctantly club members began to take their leave.

The photography club's regular meetings will resume on the second Wednesday of each month at 4 p.m. at The Shepherd of the Hills Episcopal Church, 2450 W. Norvell Bryant Highway Lecanto. The first meeting, a meet and greet, will be on Wednesday, Sept. 8. Our next scheduled field trip will be to Cedar Lakes and Gardens, in Williston on Thursday, Sept. 23.

For more details on the club or field trips, email Ann Brixey at chphotoclub18@gmail.com or call 352-860-2763.

CWS Founders Award awaits a winner

The program for the Citrus Watercolor Society (CWS) meeting on Friday, Sept. 10, is titled, "Show and Tell." The reason that the CWS continues this program in September of each year, is to allow members of the society, old and new alike, to get a chance to present their creations to their fellow artists. The meeting format allows some outstanding watercolor paintings to make their appearance. The works of our member artists are impressive, and they get better each year.

It is also an opportunity for members to praise and to provide helpful critique. Critique on how to improve the work that one creates. I think that you will find that there is an appreciation for the time and effort that each artist has put into the creative piece of artwork. You will feel good about presenting your work to the CWS members. After a review of all the artwork is presented, the Society will present the CWS Founders cash award of $50 to the winning artist exhibiting at this meeting. So — bring your latest masterpiece and show it off! Do you find yourself asking, "Where did all this time go?" The life journey to date has been interesting, not without hiccoughs and disappointments, but all in all, a good life. This brings me to the loss of a CWS artist who left us this summer.

Lou Friedman was a long-term member of the Citrus Watercolor Society, Lou served as the CWS Treasurer for a number of years. He possessed a great sense of humor and was an all-around good guy. He strove to be a better artist and was recognized with his paintings in the CWS "Painting of the Month" competition. Lou was also a member of the Art Center of Citrus County.

The second loss, and at an age too young, was Florida artist Kim Minichiello. Kim has demonstrated at the CWS monthly meetings and was an

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: I would like your opinion on a recent incident that happened to me. I went to my son's house to go out to dinner with him and his family to celebrate his birthday.

When I arrived, the only person there was my granddaughter. My son was meeting us at the restaurant, and my daughter-in-law, "Jean," had been called into work but intended to be back at the house shortly. She still hadn't returned by the time my granddaughter and I had to head to the restaurant, and I noticed a pot of soup boiling on the stove. I thought Jean had forgotten to turn the burner off, so I turned it off.

Well, I was wrong. We all happened to return later at about the same time, and when Jean noticed the burner was off, she asked, "Who turned the stove off?" I told her I had.

She looked very upset and said, "The soup was supposed to cook for 12 hours."

I said, "Well, it is better to be safe than sorry."

Later, I asked my son whether Jean was still upset with me, and he said she had not been upset with me. I told him I could tell by the expression on her face that she was. He then said I should not have turned the burner off, that "it was her stove."

I told him I was concerned the house might catch on fire, and he said that the house is her house and that if it had caught on fire, it would have been her concern. I do not like family discord, and I don't usually insert myself into their affairs, but I think that was a foolish thing to do and I acted appropriately by turning the stove off. What say you? — Safety First

Dear Annie: It's unsafe to leave a stove burning unattended. But if you keep treating this as an argument, things will get unnecessarily heated.

Wait for things to simmer down before letting your son know about the fire safety issue, and erase all traces of "I told you so" from your tone.

When the holidays roll around, consider buying them a slow cooker — much safer to leave on for hours at a time.

Dear Annie: I love, love, love your column. I especially love that you listen to your readers and are willing to add to your answers and even alter your advice when given new information.

My comment is about your response to "Missing Life and Happiness," who has been married for over 25 years to a man who turns his back on her in every way possible, basically treating her as a disgusting part of his life.

I agree that she should focus on herself, enrich her life and improve her self-esteem. However, I believe she needs to do more than discuss issues with her husband.

She has put up with this for too long. I don't believe she should waste even one more second allowing that evil person in her life.

From her description, it doesn't sound possible for him to change how he treats her. It's time to remove him and move on! — Jane G.

Dear Jane: You're not the only reader who thought I should have told "Missing Life and Happiness" that enough was enough.

I wanted to let her reach her own decision about her marriage, and I was trying to encourage her to get into a good headspace for evaluating things.

Perhaps I should have worded my response more strongly, as I agree with you: The way her husband has been treating her is unacceptable. Thank you for writing.

internationally recognized, award-winning artist, whose career in art and design has spanned more than 30 years. Kim was a signature member of American Women Artists and the Georgia, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, and Florida Watercolor Societies. She was also the 2019 President of the Florida Watercolor Society. Even though we as artists find that our place on earth is limited, art on the other hand is immortal. The art of Dali, Picasso, Minichello, Witt, Jowers, Kansky, Friedman and Krall will live on, perhaps not to the extent of those famous masters, but still there to be enjoyed by others in the future.

Members of the Citrus

Watercolor Society enjoy a "Painting of the Month" competition starting in October and November, January, February, March, April. They have opportunities to show and sell their work, take workshops, and participate in monthly sketch/paint-outs, etc. For more information about the meeting, or to become a member, call Marie Sloan 352-322-0002, or Darla Goldberg, 352-341-6226, or visit the CWS website at www.citruswatercolorociety.org. The Citrus Watercolor Society meets at noon on the second Friday of every month, except July, at the Family Center of the 1st Christian Church of Inverness, 2018 Colonade Street, Inverness.

Norm Freyer handles publicity for the Citrus Watercolor Society.

*****SCAM ALERT*******

How to Avoid a Fake Check Scam

- INSIST ON CASH
- Don't accept a check for more than the selling price. You can bet it's a scam.
- Inform the Buyer that you'll wait two weeks before sending any merchandise.
- Never use money from a check to send gift cards, money orders, or wire money to strangers or someone you just met. Many scammers demand that you send money through money transfer services like Western Union or MoneyGram, or buy gift cards and send them the PIN numbers. Once you wire money, or give someone the gift card PINs, it is like giving someone cash. It's almost impossible to get it back.
- Toss offers that ask you to pay for a prize. If it's free, you shouldn't have to pay to get it.
