House moves to impeach Trump

WASHINGTON — Poised to impeach, the House sped ahead Monday with plans to oust President Donald Trump from office, warning he is a threat to democracy and pushing the vice president and Cabinet to act even more quickly in an extraordinary effort to remove Trump in the final days of his presidency.

Trump faces a single charge — “incitement of insurrection” — after the deadly Capitol riot in an impeachment resolution that the House will begin debating Wednesday.

At the same time, the FBI warned ominously Monday of potential armed protests in Washington and many states by Trump loyalists ahead of President-elect Joe Biden's inauguration, Jan. 20. In a dark foreshadowing, the Washington Monument was closed to the public amid the threats of disruption. Acting Homeland Security Secretary Chad Wolf abruptly resigned.

It all added up to stunning final moments for Trump's presidency as Democrats and a growing number of Republicans declare he is unfit for office and could do more damage after inciting a mob that violently ransacked the U.S. Capitol last Wednesday.

Special to the Chronicle

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is investigating the harassment of this manatee. The animal was reported to federal authorities over the weekend when it was discovered with the words “Trump” scraped in its back. The animal was reported swimming in the Blue Hole, headwaters of the Homosassa River. The USFWS is looking for any information regarding the harassment of this animal. Call the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation hotline at 888-404-3922 to report information.

Feds seeking info on case of person who scraped ‘Trump’ onto manatee

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service is searching for information on the person or persons responsible for the harassment of a manatee discovered Sunday in the headwaters of the Homosassa River. The animal had the word “Trump” scraped into its back.

Craig Cavanna, senior federal wildlife officer and current investigating officer, said of the situation, “I cannot comment on a current, ongoing investigation.”

He added harassment of a manatee, protected by the Endangered Species Act, is a Class A, federal criminal offense punishable by a $50,000 fine and/or up to one year in federal prison.

The seasonal influx of the West Indian manatee is well known along the Nature Coast. The slow-moving, warm-blooded mammals seek sanctuary in the spring-fed waters along Citrus County's coastline making them accessible to swimmers and boaters. Laws protect the animals from harassment by swimmers and those operating vessels.

“It's been my experience that this is very out of character for this community,” Cavanna said. “Wildlife conservation is a core value in Citrus County. That's why it's called the Nature Coast.”

As the investigation continues Cavanna said, “we are following leads.”

The USFWS is encouraging anyone with knowledge of the incident to call the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission at 888-404-FWCC (3922). Information will be forwarded to the USFWS.

MANATEE DO'S AND DON'TS

Look, but don't touch manatees. Also, don't feed manatees or give them water. If manatees become accustomed to being around people, they can alter their behavior in the wild, perhaps causing them to lose their natural fear of boats and humans, which may make them more susceptible to harm.

■ Do not pursue or chase a manatee if you see one while you are swimming, snorkeling, diving, paddling or operating a boat.

■ Never poke, prod or stab a manatee with your hands, feet or any object.

■ If a manatee avoids you, do not chase the animal for a closer view.

■ Give manatees space to move. Avoid isolating or singling out an individual manatee from its group and do not separate a cow and her calf.

■ Keep hands and objects to yourself. Don't attempt to snag, hook, hold, grab, pinch, hit or ride a manatee.

■ Avoid excessive noise and splashing if a manatee appears nearby. The manatee may be resting and may surface without being aware of your presence. Noise and activity may startle the animal awake, which may put it in harm's way if it is frightened and leaves the area.

■ If the site you visit allows in-water activities near manatees, use snorkel gear and float at the surface of the water to passively observe manatees. The sound of bubbles from SCUBA gear or other devices may cause manatees to leave the area.

Former deputy takes deal; others head to trial

Charles Wigglesworth ended his child-sex case short of trial by accepting an offer sparing the fired Citrus County Sheriff's Office deputy from a mandatory life sentence behind bars.

During the Homosassa 31-year-old's court hearing Monday, Jan. 11, Wigglesworth pleaded no contest as part of a negotiated plea agreement to his five amended felony charges in exchange for 20 years in prison followed by 10 years of sex-offender probation.

Wigglesworth, who entered his plea before Citrus County Circuit Court

Aside from answering Howard's procedural questions, Wigglesworth did not give a statement about his case.

Wigglesworth was originally charged after his April arrest with two counts of sexual battery of a child younger than 12 and three counts of molesting a child younger than 12.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents apprehended Wigglesworth after Citrus County Sheriff's Office authorities asked the agency in late March to investigate their deputy, who was hired by the sheriff's office in July 2018.

His charges were connected to the sexual battery and molestation of a then-9-year-old girl in late March, and the molestation of another young girl from 2014 to 2016.

"Who knew were you capable of so much damage," the girls' mother told Wigglesworth in court. "I don't think you're a bad guy, I just think you're broken, broken in more ways than we will understand."

Had Wigglesworth been convicted of sexual battery, he would have been sentenced to a required prison term of life.

However, per her agreement with Wigglesworth, Assistant State Attorney Debra Munchel downgraded the charges to lesser offenses of attempted felonies.

Charles Vaughn, Wigglesworth's attorney, told Howard he and Munchel hit snags scheduling witness depositions, leading the lawyers to discuss plea offers that would keep Wigglesworth from serving a life sentence and the girls from being victimized in depositions.

Also in court on Monday:

■ After a motion was filed for the consensual withdrawal of George James Reider III's lawyer, Pamela Bauman, Howard ordered the Inverness 39-year-old to keep his private attorney as he heads into trial for the false imprisonment and attempted sexual battery of a local store clerk.

Howard denied Reider's and Bauman's request to remove Bauman as Reider's representation in his felony case, which the judge kept on for trial the week of Jan. 19.

"It's a stipulated motion, your honor," objected Bauman.

"It's still discretionary with me," the judge replied.

It's alleged Reider on the evening of Oct. 8, 2019, lured an employee of an Inverness auto parts store to the back of business and tried to sexually batter her before she was able to free herself and hide until Reider left.

Howard said Monday there was no basis in Reider's argument to remove Bauman, which centered around his claim Bauman did all she could for his defense. Reider told Howard he was planning to hire another attorney to better investigate favorable witness testimony of someone who was inside the store. Bauman said she spoke to and listed Reider's witness, but Assistant State Attorney Bryan Caughey, who was filing in for the listed prosecutor, Munchel, told Howard no such witness had been brought to Munchel's attention.

Reider also said he had concerns with video evidence detectives reconstructed with the woman's assistance. Caughey told Howard Munchel may plan to introduce the reconstruction to jurors if the judge rules it as admissible and probative. Reider faces a prison sentence of up to 20 years if convicted as charged. Bauman said prosecutors offered her client a five-year prison sentence — a plea deal Caughey said prosecutors wouldn't budge on.

"See you at trial," Howard said.

■ After arguing Assistant Public Defender Luke Waatti lied about his case and failed to pursue exculpatory evidence, Maurice Donte Carter was able to remove his attorney and represent himself at his upcoming trial for the beating of a woman.

Howard said Carter's comments against Waatti were unsubstantiated, made by "a person who's in a very bad situation," when he granted Carter's pro-se motion to get Waatti off his case. Howard also wouldn't appoint a new attorney to represent the Inverness 32-year-old at his trial the week of Jan. 19, finding Waatti has exhausted investigations into possible and relevant defenses. Carter was charged with aggravated battery and false imprisonment, and faces a prison term of between 15 and 30 years if convicted as charged.

It's alleged he struck a woman Dec. 23, 2019, to the point where she lost consciousness, and took her cellphone to keep her from contacting help. She was able to find an off-duty Florida Highway Patrol trooper while Carter left her in a running car as he shopped at Walmart.

Carter said Monday there are phone records and Walmart surveillance camera footage Waatti failed to acquire that would prove he wasn't holding the woman against her will. Carter filed a motion for Howard to subpoena his missing evidence, which Assistant State Attorney Kevin Davis and Waatti said either don't exist or don't pertain. Howard agreed with the attorneys in his dismissal of Carter's motion.

Carter asked Howard for a continuance so he'd have time to prepare for trial, but the judge said his case was too old for another postponement.

The Path aims to cool off clients

NANCY KENNEDY
Staff writer

Last March, a Citrus County couple donated their federal CARES Act stimulus money, $2,400, to The Path rescue mission to help finance a new roof for its shelter, the former Beverly Hills Motel.

They also challenged the community to do the same.

The challenge was a huge success. Combined with $50,000 from local Rotary Clubs and The Path's Giving Tuesday fundraising campaign, they raised enough to get a new roof plus an extra $30,000, which they used to repair two electrical panels in the cafeteria so a backup generator could be installed.

Now, the Beverly Hills-based nonprofit organization has another need and a fundraising idea that its executive director, DuWayne Sipper, jokingly calls "Stimulus 2."

The need

The shelter has 21 individual wall air conditioning units, which, combined, are expensive to run.

"Last August, it cost us $1,600 for electricity for just those (21 units)," Sipper said, adding that he talked to someone at Air Effects Air Conditioning &

executive director of The Path.

Heating, who explained that by replacing the wall units with central air conditioning the cost of electricity could be reduced by 50%.

The estimated cost for four central units plus carpentry costs for filling in the holes in the walls once the old units are removed would be about $50,000.

'Stimulus 2' idea

A local Citrus County resident has already given $10,000 toward the Path AC Project, and Sipper has donated his recent check from the second round of federal coronavirus relief money.

"I thought I'd put it out there that if folks want something to do with their $600, they can donate to us," Sipper said.

To donate all or a part of your coronavirus relief money to help The Path replace its air conditioning units, mail a check to The Path of Citrus County, P.O. Box 3024, Inverness, FL 34451.

You can also donate online at www.pathofcitrus.org.

Be sure to make a notation that this money is to go toward the "Path AC Project."

CCSO accreditation manager receives expert certification

Special to the Chronicle

Jody Farmer, Citrus County Sheriff's Office's accreditation manager, received the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies' (CALEA) Accreditation Manager Certification during a virtual CALEA conference, the agency announced in a news release.

"Congratulations to Mrs. Farmer on this exceptional accomplishment," Sheriff Mike Prendergast said in the release. "Her continuous endeavor as an expert in the process of accreditation has served our citizens well, ensuring that our office is held to the highest standards of public safety.

"Under her expertise, we look forward to persistently improving our performance and developing new, effective processes in response to our community's needs."

This certification program was coordinated through the Association of Public Safety Communication Officials (APCO) in partnership with CALEA. The APCO and CALEA hold three program sessions a year for experienced accreditation managers to become certified as an expert in the accreditation process. Farmer received an outstanding score of 99.8%, well above the required 80% passing grade during her session.

Currently, there are 732 accredited law enforcement agencies with CALEA. Farmer is one of seven managers to be certified during this program's session and is one of only 46 managers to be certified in the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Barbados.

The benefits of being a Certified Accreditation Manager is to establish a global understanding of the accreditation process, develop professional skills and abilities, serve as a portable professional resource, identify industry experts and recognize professional accreditation managers.

Before Farmer was able to attend this program, she had to meet the following criteria:

■ Must be the Accreditation Manager of record with CALEA for an actively enrolled agency in a CALEA accreditation program at the time of application.

■ Must be an Accreditation Manager of record for a CALEA enrolled agency for four consecutive years.

■ Must have been an Accreditation Manager of record with CALEA for one or more agencies that received one CALEA accreditation award without conditions Must have been a registered attendee at a CALEA conference within three years of certification application.

■ Submit a letter of recommendation from the current agency CEO.

■ Submit a letter of recommendation from assigned RPM (Regional Program Manager).

■ Submit Public Safety Official Peer letter of recommendation from another CALEA accredited agency.

■ Must have received PDMS (Power DMS) Standards Boot camp or Certified Professional Training within four years of certification application.

"President Trump gravely endangered the security of the United States and its institutions of Government," reads the four-page impeachment bill.

"He will remain a threat to national security, democracy, and the Constitution if allowed to remain in office," it reads.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi is summoning lawmakers back to Washington for votes, and Democrats aren't the only ones who say Trump needs to go.

Republican Sen. Pat Toomey of Pennsylvania joined GOP Sen. Lisa Murkowski of Alaska over the weekend in calling for Trump to "go away as soon as possible."

Rep. Liz Cheney, R-Wyo., encouraged House GOP colleagues late Monday to "vote your conscience," according to a person granted anonymity to discuss the private call. She has spoken critically of Trump's actions, but has not said publicly how she will vote.

Pending impeachment, Democrats called on Vice President Mike Pence and the Cabinet to invoke their constitutional authority under the 25th Amendment to remove Trump from office before Inauguration Day.

The Democrats' House resolution was blocked by Republicans. However, the full House is to hold a roll call vote on it Tuesday, and it is expected to pass. After that, Pelosi said, Pence will have 24 hours to respond. Next would be the impeachment proceedings.

Pence has given no indication he is ready to proceed on a course involving the 25th Amendment.

He and Trump met late Monday for the first time since the Capitol attack, a senior administration official said.

Trump and Pence had a "good conversation" in the Oval Office discussing the week ahead, and they pledged to continue working for the remainder of their terms, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss the private meeting.

Associated Press

No member of the Cabinet has publicly called for Trump to be removed from office though the 25th Amendment.

As security tightened, Biden said Monday he was "not afraid" of taking the oath of office outside — as is traditionally done at the Capitol's west steps, one of the areas where people stormed the building.

As for the rioters, Biden said, "It is critically important that there'll be a real serious focus on holding those folks who engaged in sedition and threatening the lives, defacing public property, caused great damage — that they be held accountable."

Biden said he's had conversations with senators ahead of a possible impeachment trial, which some have worried would cloud the opening days of his administration.

Senate Democratic leader Chuck Schumer was exploring ways to immediately convene the Senate for the trial as soon as the House acts, though Republican leader Mitch McConnell would need to agree. The president-elect suggested splitting the Senate's time, perhaps "go a half day on dealing with impeachment, a half day on getting my people nominated and confirmed in the Senate, as well as moving on the package" for more COVID relief.

As Congress briefly resumed Monday, an uneasiness swept government. More lawmakers tested positive for COVID-19 after sheltering during the siege. And new security officials were quickly installed after the Capitol police chief and others were ousted in fallout from the attack on the iconic dome of democracy. Some GOP lawmakers, including Missouri Sen. Josh Hawley, faced public blowback for their efforts on the day of the riot trying to overturn Biden's election.

House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer, D-Md., offered the 25th Amendment resolution during Monday's brief session. It was blocked by Rep. Alex Mooney, R-W.Va., as other GOP lawmakers stood by him.

Pelosi said the Republicans were enabling Trump's "unhinged, unstable and deranged acts of sedition to continue. Their complicity endangers America, erodes our Democracy, and it must end."

However, House Republican leader Kevin McCarthy, a Trump ally, said in a letter to colleagues that "impeachment at this time would have the opposite effect of bringing our country together."

He said he would review possible censure of the president. But House Republicans are split and a few may vote to impeach.

The impeachment bill from Reps. David Cicilline of Rhode Island, Ted Lieu of California, Jamie Raskin of Maryland and Jerrold Nadler of New York draws from Trump's own false statements about his election defeat to Biden.

Judges across the country, including some nominated by Trump, have repeatedly dismissed cases challenging the election results, and Attorney General William Barr, a Trump ally, has said there was no sign of widespread fraud.

The impeachment legislation also details Trump's pressure on state officials in Georgia to "find" him more votes, as well as his White House rally ahead of the Capitol siege, in which he encouraged thousands of supporters last Wednesday to "fight like hell" and march to the building.

The mob overpowered police, broke through security lines and windows and rampaged through the Capitol, forcing lawmakers to scatter as they were finalizing Biden's victory over Trump in the Electoral College.

While some have questioned impeaching the president so close to the end of his term, Democrats and others argue he must be held accountable and prevented from holding future public office. He would be the only president twice impeached.

House Democrats have been considering a strategy to delay for 100 days sending articles of impeachment to the Senate for trial, to allow Biden to focus on other priorities.

There is precedent for pursuing impeachment after an official leaves office. In 1876, during the Ulysses Grant administration, War Secretary William Belknap was impeached by the House the day he resigned, and the Senate convened a trial months later. He was acquitted.

CHRONICLE

HOROSCOPES

Birthday — Consider what makes you happy and adjust your life accordingly. The changes you make will help you see things more clearly. Choose your words wisely, and make sure you practice what you preach.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — It's OK to do things differently. Don't feel bound to tradition or to what someone wants you to do. A change will lift your spirits.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You will meet with opposition if you show signs of insecurity or confusion. Stand tall and be clear about what you want.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — You'll get the opportunity to explore something you want to pursue. How you represent yourself will make a difference.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — You'll have to rely on your connections to help you get ahead. A competitive individual will try to make you look bad.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Keep an open mind, size up situations and make decisions based on facts. Personal improvements, growth and unique friendships will develop if you use social media to your advantage.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Gather information. Trusting someone to take care of your business will set you back. Question everything and everyone before you agree to make a change.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — A change someone suggests will be useful for you emotionally, but not financially. Concentrate on creativity, romance and personal happiness.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — You'll have plenty of ideas, but consider your motives before you leap into action. A change will lead to uncertainty if you haven't thought matters through sufficiently. Be smart and take your time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Jump at the chance to learn something new or to use your skills differently. The more you know and have to offer, the greater the reward. Look at the trends, and be as versatile as possible.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't let your desire for change lead you down a rabbit hole. Don't trade one negative situation for another.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Let your intuition be your guide. Stay focused on knowledge and facts. Romance is favored.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Let go of negative baggage. Prepare to move forward with optimism, intelligence and a disciplined attitude. Giving anyone the chance to speak on your behalf will result in disappointment.

Chunky bootmaker
Dr. Martens to sell shares to public

LONDON — The maker of Dr. Martens boots, the chunky-soled footwear once championed by rebellious young people but now favored by celebrities like Rihanna, plans to sell shares to the public as the existing owners seek to profit from growth of the iconic brand.

Dr. Martens Ltd. said Monday that current investors plan to sell at least 25% of their stake in an initial public offering on the London Stock Exchange.

Permira Funds, a London-based private equity investor, bought Dr. Martens for 300 million pounds (currently worth $400 million) in 2014. Private equity firms seek to buy undervalued companies then restructure their operations and cut costs before selling at a profit.

Dr. Martens Chief Executive Kenny Wilson said the IPO underscored the brand's "global growth potential" after revenue increased by 39% over the past two financial years to an annual 672.2 million pounds ($900 million). The company is expanding online sales to complement revenue from 130 shops in 60 countries.

Conductor Rattle to leave London post
for Munich

LONDON — Simon Rattle is set to leave his job as musical director at the London Symphony Orchestra to lead the Munich-based Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra, the two organizations said Monday.

Rattle, one of the world's most acclaimed conductors, will become the German orchestra's chief conductor in 2023. He will retain a role with the British orchestra as conductor emeritus, the LSO said.

The German company said Rattle, 65, has signed an initial five-year contract to lead the orchestra and the Bavarian Radio Chorus.

Rattle said he was "thrilled" to accept the post and honored to succeed conductor Mariss Jansons, who died in 2019.

The U.K.-born Rattle took up the job in London in 2017 after 15 years as head of the Berlin Philharmonic. He said when the appointment was announced in 2015 that it would be his last major job in music.

News of his departure was lamented by many in the British arts community, who worry the country will lose cultural clout because of its departure from the European Union.

Rattle said his reasons for taking the job in Munich were "entirely personal, enabling me to better manage the balance of my work and be close enough to home to be present for my children in a meaningful way."

Although Rattle's exit is not directly linked to Brexit, the lack of a world-class concert hall in London may be a factor. Rattle took up the London job in expectation that a new home would be built for the orchestra, which is currently based at the Barbican center, a multipurpose arts venue.

Plans for a new concert hall in London have stalled. In a statement, LSO chairman David Alberman and managing director Kathryn McDowell said Rattle "will be taking forward a number of significant projects with us over the coming years working from our home base at the Barbican."

Once retired again he and his wife eventually, after being "Snowbirds", made Crystal River, Florida their home for the next 26 years where he made many friends.

Earl White

Earl is survived by five grandchildren, Melissa (Rich) Lemasters of Newton Falls, Krystal Marks of Boise, Idaho, Shawn White of Atlanta, Georgia, Adrienn Reed of Warren, and Michael Frondorf of Mercer, Pennsylvania. His nephews Cliff and Donnie White whom in both Florida and in Ohio did so much for him. Dan & Dave Miller, Tim, Joe, & Jeff Kovacich, and niece Debbie Hensley. He loved his six great grandchildren and one great great grandson. His lifelong friend Lula also brought him great joy.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 62 years Jeanne, who died in 2016; son Richard D. White and daughter Lynda A. Frondorf; his niece Diane Campbell; his two brothers, Orville and Dean White and sisters Bernice Miller and Evelyn Kovacich. He missed them all greatly every day.

Earl requested that no service be held, and respects everyone's way to individually say goodbye. He loved the Indians and the Browns, Burger King Coffee & French Toast Stix, the hot Florida weather and the fact he could be closer to family in Ohio rather than Florida. He despised Florida politicians (especially the governor), the outgoing president, and the damned Ohio cold.

A small graveside service will be held in Lordstown Cemetery, where he will lay next to his wife and daughter. Arrangements by Holeton-Yuhasz Funeral Home, Niles. Visit holetonyuhasz.com to view this tribute and share condolences with the family.

Michael Apted, 79

DIRECTOR

Michael Apted, the acclaimed British director of the "Up" documentary series and films as diverse as the Loretta Lynn biopic "Coal Miner's Daughter" and the James Bond film "The World Is Not Enough," has died. He was 79.

Michael Apted

A representative for the Directors Guild of America said his family informed the organization that he passed Thursday night. No cause was given.

An incredibly prolific director, Apted's legacy is perhaps most defined by the nine "Up" films, which followed the lives of 14 economically diverse British children from age 7 to 63.

The project started in 1964 with "Seven Up!" the brainchild of the late Canadian filmmaker Paul Almond.

Apted served as a researcher on the first film and took over as director seven years later, continuing to check in with the subjects every seven years.

Apted credited the late film critic Roger Ebert for bringing the series to the attention of American audiences. The ambitious project earned him an Institutional Peabody Award in 2012 and also had the honor of being satirized by "The Simpsons" in a 2007 episode. The last film, "63 Up," came out in 2019.

Apted was born in Aylesbury to a middle class family in 1941.

Native American land activist Carrie Dann dies in Nevada

Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — Carrie Dann, a Native American land rights activist, Nevada rancher and longtime leader of the Western Shoshone Nation, has died.

Dann and her older sister Mary Dann, who died in 2005, fought with the federal government for decades over ownership of their ancestral lands in central Nevada.

Born in Nevada's Crescent Valley in 1932, Carrie Dann co-founded the Western Shoshone Defense Project in 1991.

She died Jan. 1 at home of natural causes with family members near, said

Julie Cavanaugh-Bill, a friend and lawyer in Elko who worked with Dann on numerous defense project cases. She was believed to be between 86 and 88, but didn't have a birth certificate, Cavanaugh-Bill said.

Carrie Dann

Carrie Dann helped lead efforts to block several northern Nevada mining projects; was a staunch opponent of shipping nuclear waste to the Yucca Mountain site in southern Nevada; and sought relief for tribal residents affected by nuclear weapons testing.

She was among dozens of peace activists arrested during a 2011 anti-nuclear protest at the Nevada Test Site north of Las Vegas.

COVID-19 data on the FDOH dashboard is subject to change as epidemiological investigations reveal new information about a case.

According to the FDOH, 5,530 locals have been vaccinated against COVID-19 — an increase of 4,363 since Jan. 4 — with 17 of them completing their two-dose series.

A Florida Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA) report from Monday stated Citrus County had 61 people in hospitals with a primary diagnosis of COVID-19, two more than what was reported Jan. 4.

There was also 24% of hospital beds available in the county, according to the AHCA, and 7% of local adult intensive care units were open.

County Administrator Randy Oliver said Jan. 11 the CoreCivic-managed Citrus County Detention Facility is awaiting COVID-19 test results for one inmate.

Since the pandemic's onset, 146 inmates at the Lecanto jail tested positive for the virus and none have died.

CoreCivic spokesman Ryan Gustin said Monday none of the jail's 30 housing pods are under quarantine, and visitation remains in effect.

Gustin said another CoreCivic employee contracted the virus since Jan. 4, totaling 16 confirmed staff cases with 15 recoveries.

Those with questions about someone in the jail's custody can contact CoreCivic's Operations Concern Center by either calling 877-834-1550 or emailing Operations@CoreCivic.com.

For information about CoreCivic's response to COVID-19, visit corecivic.com/covid-19-response.

According to the FDOH on Monday, 212 cases were reported for inmates housed at correctional centers in the county, and for staff who live locally, but could also work at an outside facility. It's a decrease of three since Jan. 4.

Long-term care facilities in the county have documented a total 1,197 cases, up 48 since Jan. 4, according to the FDOH.

Since starting school Aug. 20 for the 2020-21 school year, the Citrus County School District recorded 350 cases — 118 staff, 232 students — as of Jan. 7.

Here are the number of COVID-19 cases ranked by Citrus County's 15 zip codes that were reported on Jan. 11:

Preventing Falls

Every year, millions of adults fall, leading to injuries and emergency room visits. Many of these falls and injuries can be prevented. Most all falls happen at home. Taking certain safety measures can prevent many falls.

Facts about falls

Here are some facts about older adults and falls:

- Older adults fall because of tripping.
- Falls are the most common cause of injury visits to the emergency room for older adults.
- Falls cause more open wounds, fractures, and brain injuries than any other cause.
- Falls are the leading cause of injury-related deaths in people older than 65.

Reducing the risk of falling

As you age, your risk of falling becomes greater. This is because of changes in vision and balance, along with other medical and physical conditions. Most people also lose bone density as they age, so the risk of broken bones from falls is a greater concern. Older adults can take steps to lower the risk of falling.

Here are ideas:

- Have your vision and hearing checked regularly.
- Know the side effects of medicines. Some may lead to loss of balance and coordination.
- Limit the amount of alcohol you drink.
- Wear rubber-soled and low-heeled shoes that fit properly and support your feet. Don't wear loose-fitting slippers that could cause you to trip.
- Be careful on wet or icy sidewalks.
- Exercise regularly to stay flexible and keep your bones strong.

Preventing falls at home

Take safety measures at home to reduce your risk of falling as you get older. Take these steps:

- Remove small rugs or use double-sided tape under small rugs to prevent slipping.
- Keep clutter to a minimum. Remove things from walking areas that you could trip over.
- Keep the temperature in your home at a comfortable level. This will keep you from becoming too dizzy from extreme cold or heat.
- Keep items used often within reach, so you don't have to rely on a step stool.
- Install handle bars next to toilets and bathtubs or showers.
- Use nonslip mats in bathtubs and showers.
- Improve the lighting in your home.
- Remove electrical cords from the floor in walking areas.
- Install handrails and lights on all staircases.

Balance and falls in older adults

Having good balance means you're able to control your body's position. Many things can cause problems with balance.

Medicines/Balance disorders

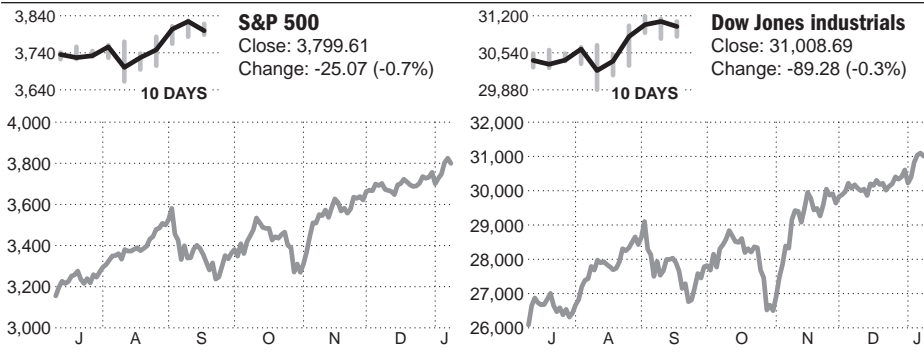

- Vertigo
- Benign Paroxysmal Positional Vertigo
- Labyrinthitis
- Ménière's Disease

See your healthcare provider if you:

- Feel unsteady
- Feel as if the room is spinning around you
- Feel as if you're moving when standing still
- Lose your balance

Shares in Twitter skidded in the first trading session since the social media platform banned President Donald Trump from its service. San Francisco-based Twitter said it shut down Trump's account Friday to reduce "the risk of further incitement of violence" following his supporters' bloody insurrection at the U.S. Capitol. Twitter also permanently banned two Trump loyalists — former national security adviser Michael Flynn and attorney Sidney Powell — as part of a crackdown on accounts promoting the baseless QAnon conspiracy theory. Many Twitter users complained over the weekend that they lost thousands of followers following the change. Investors closely watch the number of users a social media platform has because it directly affects how much advertising revenue they can generate.

Stocks down after four days of gains

Associated Press

Stocks pulled back on Wall Street Monday as markets around the world paused following record-setting runs. The S&P 500 fell 0.7%, breaking a four-day winning streak. Tesla, Amazon, Apple and other big gainers over the past year led the way lower, even as financial, health care and energy stocks notched gains. Treasury yields continued to rise. Analysts said a pullback was no surprise following the big rally recently for everything from stocks to bond yields to commodities amid a wave of optimism. With Democrats set to take control of Washington, investors expect Congress to try soon to deliver more stimulus to the economy through larger cash payments for Americans and other programs. That's building on top of enthusiasm already built about a powerful economic recovery coming later this year as COVID-19 vaccines roll out. The market managed to look past much of last week's bad news, including the attack on the U.S. Capitol on Wednesday, surging virus cases, and a disappointing employment report, said Julian

Emanuel, BTIG chief equity and derivatives strategist. That both speaks to the market's resiliency and could signal a change in attitudes. The S&P 500 dropped 25.07 points to 3,799.61. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 89.28 points, or 0.3%, to 31,008.69. The Nasdaq composite slid 165.54 points, or 1.3%, to 13,036.43. The three indexes set

VACCINE DISTRIBUTION

More planning needed in coming vaccine distributions

A vaccine effective against COVID-19 was developed and approved for use in record time, and manufacturers are churning out the precious liquid, but getting it from the manufacturer and in the arms of people is failing miserably.

When the vaccine was approved, the Trump administration promised that 20 million people would receive the vaccine by the end of the year, but the reality is that fewer than 4 million doses had been administered by this time.

As of last Friday, Florida had administered only about 30% of the doses the state has received, and in locations where vaccines have been administered, there have been long lines that stretched for miles, with centers running out of vaccine well before everyone in line received an injection.

The reason seems to be that there was never a realistic plan for getting from producing the vaccine to getting it into arms.

In some ways, the “plan” for getting the vaccine administered was reminiscent of the late 1970s comic TV show “Carter Country,” where the mayor of the fictional town would tell the police chief to “handle it, Roy, handle it.” When the police chief asked for more instructions, the mayor would just wave his hand and say “handle it, handle it.”

In the vaccine distribution, the federal government has handed states vaccine with some minimal advice for distribution, and in Florida, at least, the governor has told counties to “handle it.”

The result, of course, is that in the country there are 50 different plans (one for each state) for vaccine administration and in Florida there are 67 plans for distribution.

Florida initially followed CDC recommendations that the first to get vaccinated should be medical workers and those in long-term care facilities. But then, rather than follow CDC guidelines and vaccinating essential workers and those over 75, Gov. DeSantis directed that vaccine be offered to all of the state's 4.5 million seniors 65 and older, but without any focused plan for distribution.

DeSantis' defense of his breaking with CDC guidelines was that some of the essential workers are young and healthy and should not be vaccinated ahead of those 65 and older. It is hard to know if this is the right or wrong decision or if it was driven by politics or a genuine belief that this is the right way to distribute a scarce resource.

What is not hard to know is that there has been chaos and unevenness in distribution, with thousands waiting in long lines or sleeping overnight in their cars hoping to get vaccinated while others reached jammed phone lines or crashed websites hoping to get an appointment and others got vaccinated.

With most of the vaccinations still to come, it is not too late for the state to develop and clearly articulate a plan for continuing vaccinations that can help bring more equity and order to the process, and a plan that can be understood and followed by everyone involved, from those responsible for distributing and administering the vaccine to those receiving it.

THE ISSUE:

COVID-19 vaccine not reaching public.

OUR OPINION:

A massive failure of planning.

Hot Corner: VILLAGER'S VACCINES

■ This is Jan. 8. I just finished reading the (front-page) article on the vaccines and on Page A6, the first two people to receive it are from The Villages. Aren't these doses supposed to be for Citrus County residents? And why isn't somebody checking identifications?

Editor's note: The vaccine was available to anyone older than 65 regardless of where they live.

■ I'm calling in reference to Jan. 8 (Page A6), the picture showing Michael Bergeron of The Villages is administered a dose of the COVID-19 vaccine with his partner, Nancy Alexander. Why are they coming into Citrus County to get their shots and why were they allowed to get their shots? I thought it was for Citrus County residents.

You want to get your act together, people. There's a lot of senior citizens here that need the shot. Don't give it to people that live in other counties. Let them go get it at The Villages. They get everything else.

■ I read in today's Chronicle that the first shot of COVID-19 vaccine went to someone from The Villages. That's really helping the people of Citrus County.

■ I was shocked and dismayed this morning when I read that the first two people to receive the COVID vaccine were from The Villages. I thought these doses were for Citrus County residents only. It just doesn't seem fair.

Find some common ground

I am a student at Lecanto High School. I would like to offer my view that many of the leaders should be acting much more maturely. Adult politicians and citizens calling each other socialists, racists or fascists as a straw man argument is riddled with errors.

As a kindergartener at Homosassa Elementary, I was taught to respect, be responsible and be kind. I believe there is an alarming paucity of these values in today's politics. We have elected officials calling each other demented, crazy or a great lie. There is no shortage of supporters of this brand of politics; indeed, there has been an entire presidential campaign launched with these values, as well as more than a few senatorial and gubernatorial campaigns. Instead of attacking “the radical socialist agenda” or “the fascist/racist traitors” and creating your own version of “Two Minutes Hate,” please sit down and have a debate. Be civil and find some common ground. Everyone has at least something in common politically, despite what it may seem.

As part of our education, students are introduced into the processes of government. Of course, some of my friends have very different views about the two main contenders for the presidency. Yet we are all able to sit down and have civil debates and conversations about what we believe in. In this regard, the first presidential debate was a joke. To me, it was symbolic of what American politics has deteriorated into: a bunch of name callings and decorum breaches.

I cannot profess that I am the voice of all students. Yet I know that among my peers, many of them admire the days of Ronald Reagan, and many don't. The media took sides around President Reagan, similar to what we have today. But Reagan was a skilled orator, able to heal relations with the public, which is one key difference. Inflammatory and instigative rhetoric is not becoming of American citizens, something our elected officials would do well to understand. The old adage goes, “wisdom comes with age.” As part of the successor generation, may I suggest our leaders start showing this?

While I'm not an expert, I don't think we hurt business at the mall, traffic on a major highway was not disrupted, along with the businesses. Floats could be more creative since they didn't have to move. Children were corralled instead of running in the street. We had the heater on. Life was good!

Start planning for second dose

Citrus seniors citizens are now beginning to get their first dose of the COVID vaccine after putting up with trying to get through dropped calls or crashed websites to make a reservation or waiting in long lines to get the vaccine. In 28 days, those same seniors will need the second dose at the same time other seniors and likely added groups are still trying to get their first dose. Citrus County needs to be planning ahead on how to support both activities, especially with doses being limited in supply.

We need to have a plan to support, schedule and administer those needing a second dose separately from but still integrated with those waiting for the first dose in order to ensure both needs can be simultaneously and efficiently satisfied. After all, as important as the first dose is, it has very very limited effectiveness if the second dose isn't given shortly after the 28-day wait period. There is no reason not to establish one plan that supports both activities now, while there is still time. It's not as simple as just having two lines when the current methods to reserve a spot or waiting in long lines are overwhelmingly burdensome and stressful. And it's

Long drive for a COVID vaccine

Thursday I spoke with a neighbor who had just gotten his COVID-19 shot at Publix in Inverness. On Monday, I will drive 60 miles, 120 round trip, to get my shot at a VA clinic in New Port Richey. I am 85 years old. I will make this trip again in February. I am happy to get the shot. I am not happy I have to go so far to get it.

Thanks to John Stewart

John Stewart continues to provide helpful information to our veterans in his columns, however, I feel obligated to provide a little correction to his column that appeared in the Jan. 10 edition. He stated that after passage of some Congressional actions, approved and signed by our president, that we'll see very important changes in support of our veterans and families. It is true that the NDAA, which includes pay raises for our military and, among other things, the addition of presumptive conditions to Agent Orange, are included in the NDAA. However, all should all be fully aware that President Trump vetoed this bill, which was eventually overridden by Congress. President Trump did not approve or sign this bill. He was more concerned about provisions to protect social media and changing the names of military bases.

John, please keep up the good work; however, give credit where credit is due.

Campaign steps up

The U.S. is entering the second month of the biggest vaccination drive in history with a major expansion of the campaign, opening football stadiums, major league ballparks, fairgrounds and convention centers to inoculate a larger and more diverse pool of people.

After a frustratingly slow rollout involving primarily health care workers and nursing home residents, states are moving on to the next phase before the first one is complete, making COVID-19 shots available to such groups as senior citizens, teachers, bus drivers, police officers and firefighters.

Emily Alexander, a fourth-grade teacher in hard-hit Arizona, got vaccinated in a round-the-clock, drive-thru operation that opened Monday at the suburban Phoenix stadium where the NFL's Arizona Cardinals play. She said she hopes it means she can be reunited in person with her students and colleagues before the end of the year.

"I miss the kids so much," the 37-year-old Alexander said. "I'm really looking forward to seeing them and their families, being able to hug them. That has just been so tough."

'The most dangerous time': UK sees toughest virus threat yet

LONDON — The U.K. opened seven mass vaccination centers Monday as it moved into the most perilous moment of the COVID-19 pandemic, with exhausted medical staff reeling under the pressure of packed hospitals and increasing admissions.

England's chief medical officer, Dr. Chris Whitty, warned people to strictly follow measures to prevent the spread of the virus while they wait their turn for a vaccine shot. The government is trying to vaccinate some 15 million people by Feb. 15 — but Britain's National Health Service is struggling to treat those who are ill now.

"I think everybody accepts that this is the most dangerous time we've really had in terms of numbers into the NHS," Whitty told the BBC.

People in the U.K. already face severe coronavirus restrictions but political leaders are considering tightening the rules further as a new, more transmissible variant of COVID-19 aggravates the health care crisis. Leaders want to vaccinate the country out of the crisis, but with hospitals under siege, they must persuade the public to take prevention methods more seriously.

"We don't rule out taking further action if it's needed, but it's your actions now that can make a difference: Stay at home!" Health Secretary Matt Hancock said during a press conference Monday.

Britain, with over 81,000 dead, has the deadliest virus toll in Europe and the number of hospital beds filled by COVID-19 patients has risen steadily for more than a month. English hospitals are now treating 55% more COVID-19 cases than during the first peak of the pandemic in April.

"Everybody knows what they need to do. And I think that's the key thing — minimize the number of contacts," Whitty said.

England last week entered a third national lockdown that closed all non-essential shops, schools, colleges and universities for at least six weeks. The lockdown is slightly looser than the one in the spring with many more workplaces and businesses open, but police across the country have issued fines for breaking rules that require people to stay home except for essential reasons such as exercise or grocery shopping.

— From wire reports

where a more contagious variant of the virus is raging out of control and deaths are soaring, seven large-scale vaccination sites opened Monday at such places as a big convention center in London, a racecourse in Surrey and a tennis and soccer complex in Manchester.

Across the U.S., where the outbreak has entered its most lethal phase yet and the death toll has climbed to about 375,000, politicians and health officials have complained over the past several days that too many shots were sitting unused on the shelves because of overly rigid adherence to the federal guidelines that put an estimated 24 million health care workers and nursing home residents at the front of the line.

About 9 million Americans have received their first shot, or 2.7% of the U.S. population, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Experts say as much as 85% of the population will have to be inoculated to achieve "herd immunity" and vanquish the outbreak.

Many states are responding by throwing open the line to other groups and ramping up the pace of vaccinations, in some cases offering them 24-7.

In California, one of the deadliest hot spots in the U.S., a drive-thru vaccination center was set up outside the San Diego Padres' ballpark, with plans to inoculate 5,000 health care workers a day. Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles will also be pressed into service by the end of the week.

Gorillas test positive for coronavirus at San Diego park

SAN DIEGO — Several gorillas at the San Diego Zoo Safari Park have tested positive for the coronavirus in what is believed to be the first known cases among such primates in the United States and possibly the world.

The park's executive director, Lisa Peterson, told The Associated Press on Monday that eight gorillas that live together at the park are believed to have the virus and several have been coughing.

It appears the infection came from a member of the park's wildlife care team who also tested positive for the virus but has been asymptomatic and wore a mask at all times around the gorillas. The park has been closed to the public since Dec. 6 as part of the state of California's lockdown efforts to curb coronavirus cases.

Veterinarians are closely monitoring the gorillas and they will remain in their habitat at the park, north of San Diego, Peterson said. For now, they are being given vitamins, fluid and food but no specific treatment for the virus.

"Aside from some congestion and coughing, the gorillas are doing well," Peterson said.

While other wildlife has contracted the coronavirus from minks to tigers, this is the first known instance of transmission to great apes and it is unknown if they will have any serious reaction.

Mississippi governor signs law for new flag design

JACKSON, Miss. — Mississippi hoisted a new state flag without the Confederate battle emblem on Monday, just over six months after legislators retired the last state banner in the U.S. that included the divisive rebel symbol.

The new flag has a magnolia and the phrase, "In God We Trust." Voters approved the design in November, and Gov. Tate Reeves on Monday signed a law to make it an official state symbol.

"A new chapter in our history begins today," one of the leaders in changing the flag, Republican House Speaker Philip Gunn, told more than 100 people who gathered in near-freezing weather to watch the new flag being raised outside the state Capitol.

Just before signing the law, Reeves said the old flag with the Confederate symbol was "a prominent roadblock to unity."

"When many looked at our former flag, they just saw a symbol of the state and heritage they love. But many felt dismissed, diminished and even hated because of that flag," Reeves said. "That is not a firm foundation for our state. So today, we turn the page."

Momentum to change the Mississippi flag built quickly in June as protests against racial injustice were happening across the nation. Legislators created a commission to design a new flag, specifying that the banner could not include Confederate imagery and that it must include "In God We Trust."

Libyan man sentenced to life for deadly UK park stabbings

LONDON — A Libyan man who stabbed three friends to death as they sat in an English city park on a summer evening was sentenced Monday to life in prison with no chance of parole.

Judge Nigel Sweeney said Khairi Saadallah should be given a rare whole-life prison term for the "ruthless and brutal" attack. He said it was "a rare and exceptional case in which just punishment requires you must be kept in prison for the rest of your life."

Friends James Furlong, 36, David Wails, 49, and Joseph Ritchie-Bennett, 39, were enjoying a warm Saturday evening in Forbury Gardens park in Reading when they were stabbed. Each died from a single stab wound in an attack that lasted barely a minute. Three other men were injured.

"His attack on them was so swift, ruthless and brutal that none of them had any chance to react, let alone to defend themselves," the judge said during the sentencing hearing at London's Central Criminal Court.

India's quick nod to homegrown COVID-19 vaccine seeds doubt

NEW DELHI — As the director of a large hospital in the Indian state that has seen the country's most coronavirus cases, Dr. S.P. Kalantri had been waiting for the day a vaccine would be approved and bring protection not only to his community but also himself.

But now he has his doubts about getting the shots after India took a regulatory shortcut to approve a vaccine by Indian drugmaker Bharat Biotech before late clinical trials showed it was effective in preventing illness from coronavirus infections.

"I'd rather wait and watch," said Kalantri, who runs a hospital in Maharashtra state's Wardha district.

He's not alone. Several groups and unions representing scientists and doctors have also expressed their concerns over scant evidence of the effectiveness of the vaccine.

Many scientists have said that approving a vaccine without evidence from late trials is risky and a lack of transparency in the approval process could increase vaccine hesitancy in the world's second-most populated country, where more than 10.4 million coronavirus cases have been reported among the nearly 1.4 billion people.

Big business backing away from GOP

JOSH BOAK, BRIAN SLODYSKO AND TOM KRISHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Corporate America is quickly distancing itself from President Donald Trump and his Republican allies, with many of the biggest names in business — Goldman Sachs, Coca-Cola, Ford and Comcast — suspending political donations after a Trump-inspired mob ransacked the U.S. Capitol in a deadly and violent spree last Wednesday.

For now, the move is about affirming the rule of law and the clear results of an election that will elevate Democrat Joe Biden to the presidency. But it also signals that companies are growing skittish about lawmakers who backed Trump's false claims of election fraud, possibly depriving Republicans of public backing from business groups who until recently were the heart of the GOP's political brand.

"This is spreading like wildfire," said Jeffrey Sonnenfeld, a professor at Yale University's management school who consults with CEOs. "The U.S. business community has interests fully in alignment with the American public and not with Trump's autocratic bigoted wing of the GOP."

Yet the pausing of donations announced by many companies — including Marriott, American Express, AT&T, JPMorgan Chase, Dow, American Airlines and others — was unlikely to deliver a serious blow to Republicans in Congress who voted to overturn Biden's win.

"These are symbolic pledges," said Sheila Krumholz, executive director of the Center for Responsive Politics, a non-partisan group that traces the role money plays in politics. "This is just one source of revenue and for some it's vanishingly small, particularly in the Senate."

Corporate-sponsored political action committees are limited to donating $5,000 per candidate each year. In races that often cost incumbents millions of dollars, such contributions account for just a small fraction of the overall fundraising picture.

Take Sen. Josh Hawley. The Missouri Republican has drawn widespread scorn, including from longtime supporters and Senate Republican leadership, for becoming the first senator to announce he would oppose the certification of Biden's victory.

Since 2017, when he launched his Senate bid, only about $754,000 of the $11.8 million he raised came from corporate PACs and trade groups. That accounts for about 15% of his total fundraising haul, according to an analysis of campaign finance disclosures.

What's more, Hawley wasn't the biggest spender in his race. Outside conservative groups, including those affiliated with Republican leadership, were the ones who dropped the lion's share of money that helped him oust former Democratic Sen. Claire McCaskill. Such groups are largely insulated from the corporate donation pause.

Still, greeting card maker Hallmark went a step further than most companies. The Kansas City-based company has asked both Hawley and recently elected Kansas Sen. Roger Marshall to return its contributions because of their votes opposing Biden's win.

"Hallmark believes the peaceful transition of power is part of the bedrock of our democratic system, and we abhor violence of any kind," Hallmark spokeswoman JiaoJiao Shen said in a statement.

New cancer drugs can give hope

I recently saw a 45-year-old gentleman who presented with shortness of breath and a cough. His workup with a CT scan showed a large lung mass.

Dr. Sunil Gandhi

A biopsy showed he had lung cancer. A PET scan showed that the cancer has progressed to his bones. This is stage 4 NSCLC, or non-small cell lung cancer. This is considered incurable.

Cancers are caused by uncontrolled abnormal growth of normal cells. This is caused by acquired genetic changes — those which cannot be transmitted. Most cancers are not hereditary. These acquired genetic changes are changes caused by environment, lifestyle or behavior exposures.

Until now, when we used to diagnose cancer, criteria like site and stage were the main determinants of treatment and prognosis. This is rapidly changing. Now, molecular diagnosis is making a big difference. Now, we can analyze the cancer cells for hundreds of genetic changes.

We also have developed many new drugs that target some of those genes. Those drugs tend to be highly effective and less toxic.

In NSCLC, we have found almost eight to 10 different drugs that target specific changes.

I sent my patient's cancer for special genetic analysis. He was found to have an abnormal ALK gene. This change or mutation in the gene, along with his smoking, caused his cancer. Only about 5% or 1 out of 20 lung cancer patients have this genetic change with ALK.

Now we have at least four different drugs that inhibit ALK and are highly effective. My patient was started on one drug and within a week or so, his appetite improved and pain improved.

He was advised to take the pill at home. His ultimate prognosis depends on how well he responds.

So, the molecular diagnosis changed his treatment and prognosis drastically. This is done from cancer tissue. I am doing this in all patients with stage 4 cancer and it is affecting care of lots of patients in a positive manner. This is becoming the new standard of care.

Similarly, there are many other targets used in different cancers. In the near future, cancer will be more known by what molecular pathway is affected rather than where it started. For example, instead of saying breast or lung cancer, more important will be what is its molecular biology?

Cancer management is rapidly changing, and new advances are happening very fast. I strongly encourage every cancer patient to keep their hopes alive.

Dr. Sunil Gandhi is a hematologist and oncologist. He is the volunteer medical adviser of the Citrus Unit of American Cancer Society. Write to 521 N. Lecanto Highway, Lecanto, FL 34461, email sgandhi@tampabay.rr.com or call 352-746-0707.

Calm meditation, taking deep breaths, can make things better

How do I know what type of music to play for a patient? Ah, the heart of the matter ... the answer lies in a mixture of science, intuition and listening.

Adele Jacobson
MUSIC IN MEDICINE

Before I ever enter a room — actually, before I enter a facility — I strive to shift my mental focus away from me. If you consider for a moment what you think about when you are self-absorbed, it always concerns issues from the past or plans/worries of the future. So the trick is to drop thoughts of yesterday or tomorrow. Focus on the moment.

Live in the moment. By doing this, I shift my concentration completely outward. And this is the whole trick of being able to communicate effectively with a patient. So focus on the moment. How?

As I near the facility, I stop and meditate. This is not an elaborate process. Just controlled deep breathing and perhaps a silent mantra. Slow, deep breaths until I feel myself relax.

It never fails to amaze me how much is happening around me that I had not noticed before — the birds are singing, the wind is rustling leaves in a tree, the sun is casting shadows across a parking lot, the sound of traffic is a white noise in the background.

This outward awareness always lifts my mood.

Such calm meditation eliminates all the worries or thoughts or plans I had. Now I am fully aware of what is around me. And I'm ready to accept whatever I encounter.

At the doorway, I try to stop again to breathe deeply a few times ... a quick and easy shortcut to meditation. I open my mind to whatever I might find in the room. All prejudices, all preconceived notions: they are left outside. If those get carried into the room, I won't be open to what I find.

Now, if I'm lucky, the real magic begins. The interpersonal communication that can be transmitted unconsciously between people comes into play.

Recent research has proven that the heart and body emits electrical charges that radiate at least three feet from the human body. I can tell you, it goes much farther than that, because I usually sit about six or so feet away, and I when I am properly focused, I can feel this energy field.

Once I have tapped into the patient's energy, it carries me along and tells me what to play. At this point you may be thinking that I'm half crazy. But I can tell you, when I am in the happy place of being able to listen to the patient's vibrations, my playing is much more effective.

It doesn't always work this way. Sometimes, my mood is out of kilter, I fail to meditate; I fail to move into the moment. And then I struggle to connect with the patient. I may get lucky and hit the right sound, but it is much less likely to be a successful session.

How long does all this take? Four minutes in the parking lot, maybe. And less than a minute at the door to the room. This is time well spent for the rewards it produces.

Now, I must admit there are other tools I use assess a patient's needs. Sometimes a nurse has asked me to play for a patient, telling me what she thought the overriding concern was.

If the patient is in the Critical Care Unit, then monitors will tell me heart rates, heart rhythms, blood pressure, breathing patterns and oxygen levels. Those are sure-fire indicators as to what the critical issues are.

The patient may be groaning, may be talking incoherently, may be non-verbal but awake. He may be curled up in a fetal position, or sitting comfortably in a recliner. Or he may be unconscious.

If I am in the moment and ready to open to the patient's condition, then I will read these clues, and usually come up with the best music for him.

Now ... if we can just get this pandemic behind us so I can get back into medical facilities and play.

Sparkling water: Is drinking it bad for your teeth?

I was reading my daily email from the American Dental Association this week and thought it would be a good idea to use this informative piece from them for the intended purpose, to educate the public. I will make a few notes of my own at the end of their piece. I hope you learn something from it.

Is sparkling water bad for my teeth?

Is the satisfying fizz of your favorite sparkling water putting you at risk for tooth decay? Because any drink with carbonation — including sparkling water — has a higher acid level, some reports have questioned whether sipping sparkling water will weaken your tooth enamel (the hard outer shell of your teeth where cavities first form). So, is sparkling water affecting my teeth?

According to available research, sparkling water is generally fine for your teeth—and here's why.

In a study using teeth that were removed as a part of treatment and donated for research, researchers tested to see whether sparkling water would attack tooth enamel more aggressively than regular lab water. The result? The two forms of water were about the same in their effects on tooth enamel.

Dr. Frank Vascimini

This finding suggests that, even though sparkling water is slightly more acidic than ordinary water, it's all just water to your teeth.

Protecting your teeth

■ Sparkling water is far better for your teeth than sugary drinks. In addition, be sure to drink plenty of regular, fluoridated water, too — it's the best beverage for your teeth.

Water with fluoride naturally helps fight cavities, washes away the leftover food cavity-causing bacteria feast on and keeps your mouth from becoming dry (which can put you at a higher risk of cavities).

■ Be mindful of what's in your sparkling water. Citrus-flavored waters often have higher acid levels that do increase the risk of damage to your enamel. Plan to enjoy these in one sitting or with meals. This way, you aren't sipping it throughout the day and exposing your teeth over and over again to the slightly higher level of acid it contains.

■ Sparkling water brands with added sugar can no longer be considered just sparkling water. They are a sugar-sweetened beverage, which can contribute to your risk of developing cavities.

So remember — sparkling or not — plain water is always the best choice.

While in elementary school one of my sons did a science experiment similar to what was mentioned above. He found out that one of the very popular sports drinks was one of the most acidic and enamel-damaging drinks we may readily drink. Obviously, it is not a good idea to drink a drink like that on a regular basis.

Also, many of the newer energy drinks are also highly acidic. Needless to say, it would be smart to limit your exposure to those, as well. I hope you found this article interesting. In light of the popularity of flavored seltzers and sparkling water, I thought it would be good to address this question. Now you can enjoy your favorite one.

Annie offers advice

Dear Annie: My youngest daughter, “Marta,” is beautiful and caring but intellectually challenged. I have always encouraged all my kids to do what makes them happy, and she is no different. A couple of years ago, she met a wonderful man through mutual friends, “Brian.” After dating for almost a year, they married last fall. We could not ask for anyone more caring and giving. Brian makes Marta his first priority as a spouse, partner and friend in his life.

DEAR ANNIE

The reason I’m writing: My second-youngest daughter, “Elle,” who is 27, is getting married this fall and wants to invite Marta but not Brian.

Elle and her fiancé would have preferred to skip this whole ordeal altogether and just get married at the courthouse. But they are doing the wedding his parents want (spending money that is supposed to be saved for a down payment on a house, but I digress). Elle has been really stressed out about it from the outset.

They said that they are only inviting people they talk to regularly and that Brian isn’t someone they talk to regularly.

Brian and Marta were already saving up money for both of them to go. Additionally, Marta is not capable of getting there herself because of her aforementioned disability. I said all this to Elle, but she still said Brian can’t come. I said, “Then maybe we won’t come, either, because it’s not fair that you’re treating your sister this way.” Now Elle is not talking to me or Marta and blocked my number and my messages online.

Am I wrong here? I do understand that they haven’t wanted the wedding from the beginning. But now that they’re having one, I think it would be wrong to exclude her brother-in-law. Family is family, whether you talk every day or not. — Wedding Woes

Dear Wedding Woes: You’re not wrong, but you can’t force them to do what’s right. Though it does strike me as odd to exclude a brother-in-law, this isn’t my wedding -- and it’s not yours, either. If Elle and her fiancé don’t want to invite Brian, that’s their mistake to make.

Bucks pull away, beat Magic

Hayward scores 34 points, Hornets rout Knicks 109-88

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Giannis Antetokounmpo returned from a one-game absence because of a minor back injury and scored 22 points as the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Orlando Magic 121-99 on Monday night.

Antetokounmpo, the reigning two-time NBA MVP, started slowly and battled through second-half foul trouble before coming alive in the fourth quarter. Milwaukee won a second straight and beat Orlando for a fifth consecutive time in the regular season.

Khris Middleton finished with 20 points and 10 rebounds for the Bucks, while reserve Bobby Portis played well for a second straight game, scoring 20 points.

Nikola Vucevic had 28 points and 13 rebounds to lead the short-handed Magic, who have lost three straight since Markelle Fultz was lost to a season-ending knee injury. Aaron Gordon had 21 points, eight assists and five rebounds and contributed solid defense against Antetokounmpo.

Milwaukee missed 17 of its first 24 3-point shots but drilled six 3s in the fourth quarter. Seconds after Gordon spectacularly dunked over Antetokounmpo to get the Magic within 88-86, Milwaukee's superstar forward hit a straight-on 3-pointer that quieted the pandemic-restricted crowd of 3,248 and started a 22-2 Bucks run.

The teams were playing for the first time since last August, when they squared off in a first-round playoff series in the bubble at Walt Disney World. Orlando won Game 1 of that series before Milwaukee captured the next four. Milwaukee also won the four regular-season meetings with Orlando last season.

Milwaukee led 63-54 at the half despite missing 13 of its first 17 3-point shots. The Bucks forced eight turnovers in the second quarter and 11 in the first half and turned those Magic mistakes into 17 points.

Bryn Forbes added 14 points and three 3s for Milwaukee, which shot 50.5% from the floor.

Hornets 109, Knicks 88

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Gordon Hayward scored 34 points and the Charlotte Hornets beat the New York Knicks 109-88 for their fourth straight win.

Devonte Graham had 19 points and seven assists for Charlotte, and P.J. Washington had 13 points as the Hornets handed the Knicks their third straight defeat.

Kevin Knox had 19 points to lead the Knicks, and Mitchell Robinson had 12 points and 11 rebounds.

The Hornets scored 24 points off 17 Knicks turnovers. Charlotte committed 10 turnovers while climbing above .500 for the first time this season.

youngest player in NBA history to record a triple-double on Saturday night against the Hawks, was 3 of 13 from the field and finished with eight points, a career-high 14 rebounds and seven assists.

Wizards 128, Suns 107

WASHINGTON — Bradley Beal scored 34 points and the Washington Wizards snapped their three-game losing streak and won at home for the first time this season, beating the Phoenix Suns 128-107.

Devin Booker lead Phoenix with 33 points. Chris Paul had 14 points and 11 assists. Mikal Bridges also had 14.

Hawks 112, 76ers 94

ATLANTA — Trae Young scored 26 points, including the first three baskets of Atlanta's dominant start to the second half, and the Hawks beat the short-handed Philadelphia 76ers 112-94.

De'Andre Hunter and Brandon

Goodwin had 15 points as the Hawks snapped a four-game losing streak.

Joel Embiid led Philadelphia with 24 points and 11 rebounds. Isaiah Joe had 18 points.

Grizzlies 101, Cavaliers 91

CLEVELAND — Dillon Brooks scored 21 points and the Memphis Grizzlies recovered after blowing a 16-point lead to beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 101-91.

Brandon Clarke scored 15 points and Tyus Jones had 13 points, seven assists and three steals for the Grizzlies, who won their second straight and improved to 3-1 on the road.

Memphis led 73-57 late in the third quarter, but Cleveland responded with a 27-8 run capped by Damyean Dotson's basket with 6:43 remaining in the fourth to go ahead by three.

Cavaliers center Andre Drummond had 19 points and 14 rebounds for his 11th straight double-double.

Gonzaga, Baylor 1-2 in AP Top 25

Associated Press

Gonzaga and Baylor were the top two teams in The Associated Press preseason men's college basketball poll. After eight weeks of twists and turns, that hasn't changed.

The Zags received 63 of 64 first-place votes from a national media panel in the poll released Monday and the Bears had the other one. Villanova, Texas and Iowa rounded out a top 5 that remained the same from last week.

Gonzaga and Baylor split most of the first-place votes in the preseason AP Top 25, but the Zags have become the clear-cut No. 1 after stringing together a series of routs.

Gonzaga (12-0) has wins over No. 5 Iowa, No. 6 Kansas, No. 13 West Virginia and No. 18 Virginia, the closest game a five-point win over the Mountaineers.

UConn RISING

Dan Hurley was hired in 2018 to try rebuilding a UConn program that had fallen from the elite. The Huskies reached the national championship game in 2014 but went to the NCAA Tournament only one more time before Hurley was lured from Rhode Island.

UConn won 19 games before the remainder of last season was canceled due to the coronavirus pandemic and the Huskies reached a milestone in this week's poll, entering at No. 25.

It's UConn's first appearance in the AP Top 25 since reaching No. 18 in 2016-17. The Huskies (6-1) have had five games canceled or postponed because of COVID-19 issues but have played well when they've been on the court.

UConn's only loss was in overtime to Creighton last month and the Huskies beat Butler and Marquette last week.

RISING/FALLING

Clemson climbed seven spots to No. 12 this week after returning to the poll a week ago. The Tigers beat North Carolina State by four last week.

No. 23 Minnesota lost seven spots after losing to No. 7 Michigan and No. 5 Iowa last week. No. 22 Oregon dropped five places following a loss to Colorado and a win over Utah.

IN AND OUT

Louisville is back in the rankings at No. 16 after beating Virginia Tech. The Cardinals were not ranked the previous three weeks after reaching No. 23 on Dec. 14.

No. 21 Ohio State returned to the poll after a one-week absence following a win over Rutgers. The Scarlett Knights dropped out from No. 15 following a three-game losing streak.

Michigan State dropped out from No. 23 after losing to Purdue, and Florida State is out from No. 25 following three straight postponements.

No. 25 Washington St earns 1st ranking in women's AP Top 25

Kamie Ethridge was surprised to hear that Washington State had never been ranked before.

Now the Cougars coach can add that to the team's list of accomplishments: They entered The Associated Press women's college basketball poll at No. 25 on Monday.

The ranking comes a day after Washington State beat then-No. 7 Arizona 71-69 in overtime on a buzzer-beating layup by freshman Charlissee Leger-Walker.

While Washington State was enjoying its first ranking, Stanford tightened its grip on the No. 1 spot in the poll. The Cardinal received 29 of the 30 first-place votes from a national media panel. They were followed by Louisville, North Carolina State, UConn and South Carolina.

SCAM ALERT**

1. NEVER ACCEPT A CHECK FOR MORE THAN YOU ASK.

2. INSIST ON CASH

3. USE ANOTHER FORM OF PAYMENT. (SUCH AS WIRE TRANSFER)

4. IF POSSIBLE, GO TO THE BANK WITH THE PERSON PAYING YOU.

5. INFORM THE SELLER, THAT YOU'LL WAIT TWO WEEKS BEFORE SENDING ANY MERCHANDISE

Avoid CASHIER'S CHECK FRAUD.

How to Avoid a Fake Check Scam

- INSIST ON CASH
- Don't accept a check for more than the selling price. You can bet it's a scam.
- Inform the Buyer that you'll wait two weeks before sending any merchandise.
- Never use money from a check to send gift cards, money orders, or wire money to strangers or someone you just met. Many scammers demand that you send money through money transfer services like Western Union or MoneyGram, or buy gift cards and send them the PIN numbers. Once you wire money, or give someone the gift card PINs, it is like giving someone cash. It's almost impossible to get it back.
- Toss offers that ask you to pay for a prize. If it's free, you shouldn't have to pay to get it.
