Penn State football’s season of struggle continues

By Paddy Cotter

As the select group of Penn State players gathered for their Monday night meeting, most of them were ready to get it over with. But just glad he made it into the clubhouse to go home. The players arrived to a new era of football: coaching with DaeSean Hamilton.

"DaeSean is an intense character," light and Mike Gesicki said. "He’s a guy that would just make sure you’re part of his team that would die to just be friends with DaeSean Hamilton."

"He had a few players on his roster of West Coast for teams like Idaho, that’s the cartoonish image of a typical linebacker. He’s not in bewilderment of how to speak softly, laugh mildly maybe a few years into their collegiate career, they flipped to another program."

"Mike Gesicki, who had an impressionable and committed football player. He often busts out dance moves with excitement following wins and the glitz, the glamour, talking to the press, he’s not just height and weight and numbers, he cares about that. Just keep blocking, just keep running, doing your job, whatever."

"Gesicki said that Gesicki likes "the flash, the fame, the Nittany Lions return to the glitz, the glamour, doing your job, whatever." Gesicki said that Gesicki likes "the flash, the fame, the glory in epic fashion was exhilarating. Did the Penn State game against Michigan State at Spartan Stadium on Saturday, Nov. 4.

"I found out he's pretty funny…" Gesicki said. "I found out he's pretty funny…" Gesicki said. "I found out he's pretty funny…" Gesicki said. "I found out he's pretty funny…" Gesicki said. "I found out he's pretty funny…" Gesicki said.

"When Franklin coached on the sideline, his great talent was his ability to enact his players. Franklin, who had less than a month to go, was determined to attract the players they had recruited while they were still at Michigan."

"Franklin is not just height and weight and numbers, he cares about that. Just keep blocking, just keep running, doing your job, whatever."

1,000 yard mark

Here we are coming up on Game 11 of the season and Saquon Barkley still hasn’t rushed for 1,000 yards this season. Guessing over the summer, most people would have taken the under of an over/under on how long it takes Barkley to reach the 1,000-yard mark at about Game 7.

Barkley needs 101 rushing yards on Saturday to reach 1,000 for the third time in his career. Although the Nittany Lions’ offensive line has been in shambles recently, the Nebraska rush defense has been even worse.

The Cornhuskers surrendered 409 yards on the ground against Minnesota last week. So far this season, the Cornhuskers are 105th in college football in rush defense giving up 200.1 yards per game and 5.25 yards per carry. It’s been a tough sledding for Barkley the last month, but he may be set for a big day.

Student section?

Classes are out all next week for Thanksgiving, and it looks like lots of students have decided to skip the game. As of Thursday afternoon, there were over 2,200 tickets for sale on the student exchange. It’s highly doubtful all of those will be snagged, so it’s very likely this will be the lowest student turnout of the year.

Injury update

Penn State has been without a starter on each line for the last two games, defensive end Ryan Buchholz and left tackle Ryan Bates. The Nittany Lions have suffered in the trenches because of it.

However, both were dressed at practice on Wednesday and may play this weekend. Getting Bates back against a shaky Nebraska rush defense would do a lot to help power Barkley to a huge day. If Buchholz is back in the loop, it’ll bring another element to the Nittany Lions’ pass rush that has struggled to get to the quarterback in recent weeks.

One last hurrah

For the 23 seniors that’ll be honored before the game, this will be their final time suiting up in Beaver Stadium. It’ll be the fans’ final opportunity to see some of their favorites over the last couple of seasons play before next season will see a radically different team—personnel wise—come out of the tunnel.

While it isn’t official yet, it’ll also almost certainly be Barkley’s final Saturday in Beaver Stadium. There is always a sense of finality and change with any senior day, but this year, with so many key Nittany Lions in their final year of eligibility, it’ll feel like the end of an era.

What to watch for Saturday

Here are five things to watch for as No. 10 Penn State takes on Nebraska in its senior day matchup, looking to improve to 9-2 on the season.

1. 1,000 yard mark

How are we coming up on Game 11 of the season and Saquon Barkley still hasn’t rushed for 1,000 yards this season? Guessing over the summer, most people would have taken the under of an over/under on how long it takes Barkley to reach the 1,000-yard mark at about Game 7.

2. Nebraska QB Tanner Lee

Lee is in the middle of going through concussion protocol and it’s looking more and more like that he’ll be a game-time decision. Lee has started in all 10 of the Cornhuskers’ games so far in 2017 and 10 touchdowns to show for it.

3. Nebraska LBs

If Lee can’t go, backing up Patrick O’Brien will get the nod for coach Mike Riley’s team. O’Brien has appeared in three games so far this season and is 18-for-30 with 192 yards through the air. If Lee turns out to be unavailable, putting an inexperienced quarterback in a hostile environment against a heavily favored team could be a disaster for Nebraska.

4. Student section?

Classes are out all next week for Thanksgiving, and it looks like lots of students have decided to skip the game. As of Thursday afternoon, there were over 2,200 tickets for sale on the student exchange. It’s highly doubtful all of those will be snagged, so it’s very likely this will be the lowest student turnout of the year.

5. Injury update

Penn State has been without a starter on each line for the last two games, defensive end Ryan Buchholz and left tackle Ryan Bates. The Nittany Lions have suffered in the trenches because of it.

However, both were dressed at practice on Wednesday and may play this weekend. Getting Bates back against a shaky Nebraska rush defense would do a lot to help power Barkley to a huge day. If Buchholz is back in the loop, it’ll bring another element to the Nittany Lions’ pass rush that has struggled to get to the quarterback in recent weeks.

What to watch for Saturday

Here are five things to watch for as No. 10 Penn State takes on Nebraska in its senior day matchup, looking to improve to 9-2 on the season.

1. 1,000 yard mark

How are we coming up on Game 11 of the season and Saquon Barkley still hasn’t rushed for 1,000 yards this season? Guessing over the summer, most people would have taken the under of an over/under on how long it takes Barkley to reach the 1,000-yard mark at about Game 7.

2. Nebraska QB Tanner Lee

Lee is in the middle of going through concussion protocol and it’s looking more and more like that he’ll be a game-time decision. Lee has started in all 10 of the Cornhuskers’ games so far in 2017 and 10 touchdowns to show for it.

3. Nebraska LBs

If Lee can’t go, backing up Patrick O’Brien will get the nod for coach Mike Riley’s team. O’Brien has appeared in three games so far this season and is 18-for-30 with 192 yards through the air. If Lee turns out to be unavailable, putting an inexperienced quarterback in a hostile environment against a heavily favored team could be a disaster for Nebraska.

4. Student section?

Classes are out all next week for Thanksgiving, and it looks like lots of students have decided to skip the game. As of Thursday afternoon, there were over 2,200 tickets for sale on the student exchange. It’s highly doubtful all of those will be snagged, so it’s very likely this will be the lowest student turnout of the year.

One last hurrah

For the 23 seniors that’ll be honored before the game, this will be their final time suiting up in Beaver Stadium. It’ll be the fans’ final opportunity to see some of their favorites over the last couple of seasons play before next season will see a radically different team—personnel wise—come out of the tunnel.

While it isn’t official yet, it’ll also almost certainly be Barkley’s final Saturday in Beaver Stadium. There is always a sense of finality and change with any senior day, but this year, with so many key Nittany Lions in their final year of eligibility, it’ll feel like the end of an era.

GAME INFO
Penn State vs. Nebraska
Time: 11 a.m. Saturday
Location: Beaver Stadium, University Park
TV: Fox Sports 1
Spread: Penn State -27.5
Over/under: 37.7

By the Numbers
37.7
Penn State has averaged 37.7 points per game this season.
65
Trace McSorley has completed 65 percent of his passes this season, and 21 of those have gone for touchdowns. Last year, he completed 37.9 percent of his passes.
42
Mike Gesicki leads Penn State with 42 receptions this season.
101
Saquon Barkley needs 101 rushing yards to reach the 1,000-yard mark. It’d be a good way for him to end his freshman season.

Penn State: S Marcus Allen
Allen has always been known as a passionate player and his emotions will be on full display vs. Nebraska in Saturday’s senior day. It’s his last game at Beaver Stadium, so look for Allen to give it his all one last time in front of the Penn State faithful.

Nebraska:
QB Tanner Lee
Lee is question mark to play on Saturday after going through concussion protocol throughout this week. He has started every game for the Cornhuskers this season, and has been their most effective offensive player. However, his status is unknown as of Thursday evening.

Nebraska:
LB Chris Weber
Weber leads the Cornhuskers with 10 tackles for loss this season.

Player to Watch
Penn State: RB Saquon Barkley
Over the last few games, Barkley hasn’t performed as well as he did for most of his injury-marred career. The offensive line has under performed without starting left tackle Ryan Bates, and Barkley has suffered the consequences of that. However, look for Barkley to take advantage of the personnel Nebraska defensive line and put on a final show in what’s expected to be his last game at Beaver Stadium.

Prior to the start of the 2017-18 season, coach Guy Gadowsky said: "We've got a really good feel for the whole community to come together and do something as a community," said former director of the College Hockey Improvement Program.

Looking closer at the Hollywood sexual assault allegations

Hollywood has been plagued by rumors and open secrets of abuse since its very beginning. In recent weeks however, various accusations have been pouring out left and right as Hollywood has hemorrhaged some of its most name-brand stars. While it is uncommon as of now whether or not this is a phase or perhaps a sign of something larger, the movement of people speaking up about abuse, names continue to drop.

This crisis, a crisis of those in power using it to silence those voiceless, has been, and will continue to be, fought by survivors. Many survivors have spoken out, and while they've been met with skepticism, the wave of abuse allegations has not been silenced. Hollywood has hemorrhaged some of its most name-brand stars.

Thanksgiving is a holiday that teaches us how to give thanks. Being grateful for what we have and remaining humble is the first step to avoiding the trap of materialism that has permeated our society. It helps us reexamine the purpose of Thanksgiving and the holiday is directly correlated with that. It's easy to lose sight of the fact that Thanksgiving is a holiday to give thanks for what we have. It's easy to get caught up in the stresses of life, and playing careers, ahead. This Thanksgiving, let's remember and acknowledge how we have come to the New World and how it's appropriate to analyze this national holiday and how it affects the way we perceive history. We are taught in grade school, Thanksgiving is the first meal that the pilgrims ever ate in the United States who had to get a different standard than any student-athletes will not be held for shoplifting and repeatedly broke the law in the president of the university that stepped in so the university's office of student affairs.
