Independently published by students at Penn State

Jan. 14-16, 2019

Photo by James Leavy/Collegian

TAKING FLIGHT

Tracing the path of one artist to downtown State College

By Gabrielle Barone THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

Vol. 119, No. 34

William Snyder III always saw art as language; but his latest work, "Wild Geese," is inspired by words themselves.

Growing up in Bedford, Pennsylvania, Snyder, an adjunct assistant professor in Penn State's School of Visual Arts, showed a childhood talent for drawing and took private lessons once a week throughout elementary school.

Snyder quickly learned to see art like a language.

"[It] just became a part of how I understand and see things," Snyder 2014. said.

Before his latest project — a multicolored mural in downtown State College — took flight, he had to figure out how his own creativity worked.

Artistically inclined

Though involved with the arts growing up, Snyder said he gradually realized his desire for a creative career.

In high school, he studied abroad in a French town roughly three hours south of Paris. A fan of Van Gogh, Snyder had the opportunity to enthusiastically explore the Louvre and the Musee d'Orsay.

In 1998, he enrolled in Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. Snyder eventually transferred to the integrative arts program at Penn State, his father's alma mater.

After graduating in 2003, he went on to earn his master's degree from Penn State as well.

That's when he took "Art and Social Activism" with Lonnie Graham.

me to think beyond just drawing or dations course for those new to the painting a pretty picture, but how major. my work and I could engage with the world to make a positive difference," Snyder said.

creating and the social matters he was passionate about.

collegian.psu.edu

Soon, Snyder went out and began his first large-scale project about the Rwandan genocide, called "800,000 Acknowledge. Remember. Renew." It consisted of 2,500 books, displayed in 100 crates, designed to evoke memorial and storytelling. Most of the pages are empty, Snyder said, but people are allowed to print their hand in clay on a page.

The project was first shown at the Zoller Gallery at Penn State for Snyder's graduate thesis in 2006. It was later on display in the U.N. Secretariat Building Lobby in New York in on the project, adding a third year of graduate school to complete it.

He worked with community and high school groups, creating an instructional kit for them to learn how to bind 800,000 pages to represent the 800,000 people killed in the genocide.

Snyder has since moved onto other large-format projects, like #BigVespas, in which he created sculptures of Vespas, as well as "Wild Geese," a mural where geese fly over a geometric pattern. Graham looks forward to seeing what his former student creates next.

"It's very exciting to see an artist that has that range, that has these multiple levels of visual conversation," Graham said. "I love to see him continue to broaden his scope to deepen the level of his efficacy."

Flying High

In his everyday life, Snyder, a juried artist, now teaches a drawing course "[The class] was really pivotal for for non-visual arts majors and a foun-

> "Getting back to teaching has been said.

executive director for the Central Pennsylvania Festival of the Arts.

Bryant said he admires Snyder's work ethic and considers him an asset to the community.

"He's not a person who's going to sit there and let the world come to his door, and I think that that's great on his part," Bryant said. "More people need to do that."

Snyder, who had a full-time job until the end of 2016, is adjusting to pursuing art as a full-time career. In addition to teaching, Snyder will be closing out the group exhibit at West Chester University by giving a lecture.

He said that reflection and consid-Snyder spent two years working eration play a large part in developing new projects, especially finding influences within his environment.

"You kind of boil and interweave those connections and see what comes out," Snyder said.

When he was working on his #Big-Vespa series, he wanted to explore the connection between its stylistic and military history.

'One of my habits is that I've gained the responsibility, or feel the responsibility, to fulfill a vision if I get it," Snyder said. "That's what will drive me to finish something — problem solving and figuring that out, that's the exciting part for me."

'Make Art Happen'

Michael Black, creative director of BLACK SUN studio, has known Snyder for about five years. Black described Snyder as "all-in, passionate [and] next-level."

"William's contribution to the local community has invigorated and stimulated even the everyday non-observer," Black said.

Due to an interest in marketing, Snyder created an inspirational moti really fun because it's challenged me for himself: "Make art happen." The to reflect on what I know," Snyder motto made him feel like he was forcing art, Snyder said. He shifted to "let art happen," as a reminder to filter and exert less control when creating. "William has a unique and power-While Snyder was working at the ful voice in our local and national program, he met Rick Bryant, the to differentiate among emerging artists, William stands out and is easily recognizable. His technically sound, cleverly loud, and whimsically light style is super refreshing," Black said via email.

When he creates his own artwork, Snyder said he likes to find "the best medium for the project that properly articulates the thought," and he enjoys the problem-solving aspect of working in different mediums.

As well as the paint and design aspects of art, Snyder, who grew up woodworking, is also comfortable with carpentry, welding and fabrication.

Snyder was inspired to create "Wild Geese" after reading an eponymous poem by Mary Oliver about connection, and having a "pivotal moment for me to be encouraged for my own life about finding your place and deal-ing with that." Snyder also has anoth-er piece, "10,000 Daffodils," inspired by a poem by William Wadsworth, where a field of 10,000 manmade daffodils sit.

He did a digital rendering of the "Wild Geese" piece. After waiting 11 months for approval, the project moved forward.

Elaine Meder-Wilgus met Snyder through local theatrical productions. The alley where her store, Webster's Bookstore and Cafe, is located, also houses Snyder's flock of "Wild Geese."

"I love that he's always sort of thinking outside the box and looking for new ways to feature art as public work," Meder-Wilgus said. "The mural that he did on the side of our building here is beautiful. It just makes people happy — everyone takes their pictures in front of it."

Snyder hopes that viewers will take

Graham said Snyder showed "extraordinary levels of talent" in general renderings, drawings and artistic mance will also help further engage ability.

But there was a distance at that point between the art he was Zoller Gallery during his graduate art scene. In a day when it's difficult away other lessons from the mural – and the poem — as well.

He hopes his interest in perforstudents.

"You know, I think we're all trying to look for that connection to humanity, so it was a real crucial time for me to read that," Snyder said.

> To email reporter: grb5181@psu.edu. Follow her on Twitter at @gabbybarone98.

Taiwanese students connect through culture, identity

By Lauren Lee THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

Despite being born and raised in America, Angela Huang still like Taiwanese school. She saw it gets the question: "Where are you really from?"

"They ask me if I'm Chinese, and I say, 'I'm Taiwanese.' And they'd say, 'Same thing,'" Huang (freshman-premedicine) said. "But it's not the same thing."

To Huang, being Taiwanese is a big part of her identity — but so is being American. Her parents carried on their culture after leaving Taiwan and moving to the United States.

While Huang had friends in high school who were Asian, few were Taiwanese.

"With my American friends, I acted a little different in the sense that I would talk more about pop culture and Americanized things, like movies and celebrities,' Huang said.

Transitioning into college, some students, like Huang, grapple with how their cultures blend in with their new environment.

Attending Taiwanese-Chinese school on the weekends was Huang's only chance to meet people similar to her outside of Penn State. At this school, she learned about Taiwanese culture and Mandarin Chinese, the language of Taiwan.

For Huang, a major aspect of Taiwanese culture is the food. Lunch boxes known as "bian dang" and oyster pancakes were some of the traditional food sold at her Taiwanese school. In class, Huang learned Chinese yo-yo, in TASA, said the purpose of the or- students," Hou said. "Within a string suspended by two wooden sticks.

as more homework.

'But, I found it to be fun after while because I made friends there who were Taiwanese, so we such as THON and football were able to share the same experiences," Huang said.

For holidays, Huang and her family celebrate Chinese New Year and Mid-Autumn Festival. Her family would decorate the house and eat "hot-pot," or food prepared with a simmering pot of Penn State branch campuses. soup

Huang said she mostly uses Thanksgiving and Christmas breaks to focus on being with family, rather than celebrating the holidays themselves.

"I think it's nice to have this that my family and a few other families celebrate," Huang said. "It's a nice experience to share that with my family."

'Different Perspectives'

When Huang came to Penn State, she joined the Taiwanese American Student Association to stay in touch with her culture.

TASA is an organization where students can connect with other students with a Taiwanese background through cultural events.

'Most of the people in TASA are international students, so it's interesting to see the different perspectives," Huang said.

which she balanced two disks on ganization is to assist and sponsor native or American Taiwanese students at Penn State by At first, Huang said she didn't helping them adapt to the American lifestyle at college.

> Su (information and science technology) said the organization helps members attend events games where "general international students have a problem fitting [into] this culture at other organizations."

> Su said TASA currently has 101 paid members and also assists around 20 freshmen at other

As president, Su said the orga-As for American holidays, nization's goal is to expand to a wider group of people by welcoming more members from different backgrounds.

Flip of Culture

For fellow TASA member Vekind of bubble of a unique thing nus Hou, her experiences with Taiwanese culture and American culture were flipped compared to Huang's.

> Born in Taiwan, Hou (freshman-food science) later went to an international school in Shanghai for 15 years. She was exposed to American culture and learned how to speak English.

She was proud to be "Americanized" while living in Taiwan. And when she came to America for college, Hou said she did not experience much of a culture shock.

"Because my English sounds fluent, people were really surprised how Americanized I was Po-Ju Su, the president of compared to other international me they still say, 'I can't believe you're not from the States.' I feel like it's more of a culture shock for them.'

Angela Huang (freshman-premedicine), left, and Venus Hou (freshmanfood science) stand outside Pollock Commons, Friday, Nov. 16, 2018.

After being in America for a few months, Hou started to see a switch in how she felt about her Taiwanese identity. She started to feel more pride for her home country.

Although Hou was able to quickly make American friends, other international students have a harder time.

"I think it's a comfort zone," fident in their English, it's harder for them to start up a conversation with American kids.'

Through TASA, Hou and Huang are able to expand their cultural perspectives.

'Culture is a big thing that impacts identity," Huang said. "Being connected with my Taiwanese identity has really helped me grow into a more well-rounded person."

> To email reporter: ImI5489@psu.edu. Follow her on Twitter at @lauren_llee.

two or three months of knowing Hou said. "If they're not that con-

THE CRAWL

Aabha Vora/Collegian Joseph Senky crawls toward his father during the "Bassinet Bowl" during the men's basketball game against Michigan State at the BJC on Sunday, Jan. 13. The Spartans went on to win 71-56.

Follow the life of a college YouTuber

By Cassandra Kidwell THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

really brings up her YouTube channel to people, but with almost 500,000 subscribers, her time and realize all those people YouTube life is often intertwined with her student life.

Asencio (freshman - supply ter," Asensio said. chain management) makes content featuring her life as a college lems in high school related to student, from football game vlogs to college life stories on YouTube her channel, syd's vids.

Asencio said a lot of people do enjoy watching college related content. She added that it is very interesting to those younger and not in college to hear about ments stop them from making people's experiences, but also for those in college to compare their own experiences to hers.

Asencio said she created a previous channel in sixth grade, before a channel or you will spend too her current one.

whim one day because so many people found it and were talking about it," Asencio said, "Me being ity was pretty slow at the begin-my sixth grade shell of a self, I de- ning, until certain videos created leted it."

After this experience, Asencio Sydney Asencio said she never had a new mentality in not caring what others think.

"You just get thicker skin over that are saying negative thingstheir opinions don't really mat-

Asencio never really had probjudgmental or rude people. "There would be a few times where someone would play my video in class, but overall everyone around me was supportive," she said.

Asencio said many peoples' fears or judgetheir own YouTube channels. A lot of people tell her their intentions of starting a YouTube chan-At the start of her YouTube life, nel, but don't know where to start.

"You really just have to start much time just waffling over it "I deleted my channel on a and it will never happen," Asencio said.

She said that her channel activ-

a spark to ignite more constant views.

These ignitors were videos such as "25 Life Hacks Every Girl Should Know," a 3-year-old video that Asensio says she avoids watching at all costs, racking up three million views. Asensio's channel also has several others that have more than a million views.

Being that Asencio has had her channel for a few years, she said it has gone through many transformations. As she got older, her personality changed with her videos.

"When I was younger I would just try to imitate what everyone else was doing, and everyone was super bubbly at that time on You-Tube," Asencio said.

Now she tries to be more real, with sarcastic comments and a more conversational tone.

"I've always been a sort of harsh, sarcastic person, and I watch back the videos and know that wasn't the type of person I am," Asencio said.

Unlike TV, it is easy for creators like Asencio to create this casual relationship with their viewers, which is seen in many vlog style videos on the site. In an article from The Guardian, the site calls YouTube the new television for younger generations. This new popularity of YouTubers has turned the platform into careers for many.

"People start to understand and respect it more. Whenever I first started I didn't make any money so it was just a hobby, a lot of people forget that it is a job," Asensio said.

Professor Curt Chandler, who teaches and specializes in multimedia journalism, commented on the idea of YouTuber becoming a full-time job. "The original YouTube influencers were people interested in video blogging, the audience found them and then advertising followed," Chandler said, "But the second round of influencers are people who thought, 'Wow, I can make money if I'm entertaining enough.' Chandler said YouTube advertisers try to find the sweet spot of a passionate and authentic person, who have also

REPORTER TRYOUTS: January 16, 17 & 18 Anytime between 4:30 PM & 7 PM

PHOTO STAFF TRYOUTS: January 21 & 22 Anytime between 5 PM and 7 PM

for portraits on Nov. 13, 2018.

created a following.

Luckily, passion and authenticity can describe Asencio's four years on the platform, growing a supportive following and becom- stantly can be difficult because it ing more true to her character. is something she can cut out. It's Asencio said it has been enjoy- not like another job where she channel grow from a random population clicking on her recommended videos, to returning subscribers.

Although, advertising focusing and YouTube on because if I have a big midterm, all of my energy is going into that," Asencio said.

Asencio said uploading conhas to ask some-

"Sometimes it is kind of hard because if I have a big midterm, all of my energy is going into that."

Sydney Ascensio

er, Matthew Asenconfirmed Sydney's strong commitment to one to take a shift or call out. She said the flexibility

can make it easy to slack, so she tries to stick to a

Asencio's broth-

schedule.

able seeing her

cio,

it was just a hobby. A lot of people forget that it is a job." Sydney Asencio

"Whenever I first

make any money, so

started I didn't

Sydney Asencio (freshman-supply chain management) poses in downtown State College, on Nov. 13, 2018.

has been hard for Asencio. Being in school takes out a lot of opportunities for her because she cannot leave and take a trip for content, or agree to make ten sponsored videos because she has to prioritize school as well.

Many YouTubers do make the platform their full-time job, moving out to Los Angeles to try to create a name for themselves, but Asencio knew she wanted a degree for her future.

"Sometimes it is kind of hard the platform. "She made practice videos before she restarted her channel just so the first one she uploaded was good ... also she freaks out if she doesn't have enough time to upload," Matthew said.

Asencio's commitment supports her future plans — to simply continue what she's doing now, school and YouTube — for as long as possible.

To email reporter: cpk5276@psu.edu. Follow her on Twitter at @cassiewellkid.

>but how do i apply for a job?

Access over 30,000 organizations looking for Penn State talent.

Nittany Lion Careers is your gateway to interviewing on campus.

Learn more at bit.ly/2Ksnpak > your next steps starts here.

Student Affairs Career Services

COLLEGIAN

J.Ed. SCI 19-50

PennState Eberly College

IN A SERIES OF SIX WEEKLY FREE PUBLIC LECTURES PENN STATE LECTURES ON THE FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

Cosmic Messengers from Deep Space Launch a New Era of Discovery

MIGUEL MOSTAFÁ

Professor of physics and of astronomy and astrophysics at Penn State

The Astrophysical Multimessenger Observatory Network at Penn State aims to discover new phenomena by merging the world's leading observatories of weakly interacting neutrinos, strongly interacting nuclei, and wavelike oscillations in the fabric of spacetime into a single system for the first time. These linked detectors of astrophysical "messengers" complement detections by gamma-ray observatories. Learn how we now are probing the high-energy universe via all four fundamental forces.

Saturday, January 19

11:00 a.m. to about 12:30 p.m. Berg Auditorium, 100 Huck Life Sciences Building, Penn State University Park science.psu.edu/frontiers/ sci-comm@psu.edu • 814-863-4682

Jan. 14-16, 2019

Kelly Powers Jake A Editor in Chief Opinion Pa

Opinion Page Editor

ditor Business Manager

If politicians are scrutinized for language usage, let's be consistent

OUR VIEW

Regardless of party or comments, no politician is above reproach for language choice

Issue has been made recently over the topic of decorum as it relates to sitting members of the United States House of Representatives.

Democrat Rashida Tlaib from Michigan's 13th Congressional District recently caught flak for saying she wanted to "impeach that motherfer" at a rally referring to President Donald Trump.

Perhaps Tlaib genuinely feels that way, or perhaps she sees what Trump does in front of the camera and figures bombast is a good way to get in the press.

For her part, Tlaib's comment has drawn anger from both sides of the aisle with Rep. Jerry Nadler (D-N.Y.) saying "I don't really like that kind of language."

Senator Doug Jones (D-Ala.) raised an interesting point when he said "I don't think any of my constituents comes up to me and says that... They know better than to use that kind of language about the president of the United States, regardless of the coarse language that the president uses in public."

The point Jones makes about Trump's public rhetoric is an interesting and important one.

Prior to being elected, Trump spoke at rallies and demonized people from Mexico and other Central American countries by insinuating that many of them came here with the intention to do harm or had malicious motives.

Even while Trump has been in office, he's doubled down on the incendiary rhetoric, for instance, asserting there were "good people on both sides" during the Unite the Right Rally that occurred in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Jones said Tlaib's language is inexcusable regardless of what

Trump has said in public, even if it is clearly racist, which highlights the issue of decorum and the double standard that exists surrounding it.

Often times politicians use various oratory tactics to elicit a certain response from an audience, and if the other side is outraged, then a politician will play the "decorum card" whereas if their constituency is lukewarm and apathetic, the politician will respond in kind.

Representative Steve King (R-Iowa) demonstrated this as well when in a recent interview, he questioned when terms like "white nationalist" and "white supremacist" became offensive and was roundly rebuked by politicians on both sides.

Republicans and Democrats are calling into question King's comments and condemning him accordingly, but it's ironic considering the willingness of certain Republicans to stand idly by and not push back when Trump has said various questionable things in the past.

King's comments are far from new as he's made a name for himself as a flamethrower with a history of questionable remarks.

As a product of her remarks, Tlaib also attracted negative press and made a name for herself — although her being the first Palestinian-American and one of only two Muslim women elected to Congress should be far more notable and important to how she'll be as a politician. There's also been increased scrutiny of Tlaib's comments compared to King's.

Perhaps it's because Tlaib is a newcomer or a woman or a Muslim or all three, and perhaps it's also because these types of statements have become par for the course for King.

Data shows CNN, Fox News and MSNBC devoted just 29 minutes and 42 seconds to King and over two hours of airtime to Tlaib's comments.

King's comments are deplorable and should rightly be called out as such, and Tlaib's comments also likely should not have been said and should be deemed unappropriate. But where's the consistency?

As as long as there continues to be a double standard about what's acceptable for a politician to say and as long as the media deems saying an expletive to be more noteworthy than espousing racism, it's likely that politicians will self-censor themselves to the detriment of their constituents.

Men's hockey wasted its golden

MY VIEW | DYLAN JACOBS

Scan the QR code to download the official Daily Collegian app for iOS smartphones.

Page 3

opportunity against the Spartans

Things won't get easier going forward for Penn State. With No. 4 Ohio State coming to town next weekend followed by a trip to Yost Arena and Madison Square Garden to take on Michigan, stringing wins together will be difficult.

Jacobs

That is why the Nittany Lions needed two wins this past weekend over Michigan State.

Penn State had an opportunity to win two games against the Spartans, who were 6-11-3 going into the series.

They could have rose in the Pairwise rankings, but instead the Nittany Lions dropped to 16, which puts them firmly on the bubble.

Neither game this past weekend was a strong one for Penn State.

It had its moments, but according to Guy Gadowsky, they never had a strong effort throughout.

"Our identity, it's fine, I think it's a great way to play, I think it wins, but it's hard to do and you need everybody dialed in right from the start to do it..." Gadowsky said. "We showed flashes but I don't think there was a full period that we played the way we want to play."

Every team in the Big Ten can win on any given night, but the Spartans are undoubtedly the weakest of the bunch. So a different effort should have been expected.

Gadowsky is certain though Penn State did not underestimate Michigan State, even though it got off to slow starts in both games.

The Nittany Lions nearly stole Saturday's game, coming back from 3-1 down to tie it 3-3, but ended up losing 6-4.

"I think that was the worst mentality that we've come out with," Gadowsky said. "And obviously that's my responsibility to make sure that we're ready to play at the drop of the puck and clearly we weren't and clearly Michigan State was. I think regardless of what happened after the first period that set the tone."

So what happens next? The Buckeyes are one of top teams in the countries, and even though the Nittany Lions got a win in Columbus earlier this year, winning two in a row will be tough.

And even though they don't have to play two games at Yost Arena, a historically tough place to play for Penn State, winning there once is no given.

The Nittany Lions had an opportunity to win twice against a beatable team. If they would've won both, Penn State would have firmly been in the top-10 of the Pairwise and even if they split the next few series, would have been safe for the tourney. Now, with a loss against a bad team, the Nittany Lions need some wins to stay in it.

They've been here before, and the odds of them making the tournament is still pretty high.

But this loss certainly put an obstacle in the way of that goal.

Dylan Jacobs is a junior majoring in print journalism and is a hockey reporter for The Daily Collegian. Email him at dkj5109@psu.edu or follow him on Twitter at @DylJacob.

Head coach Guy Gadowsky answers questions from the media during the men's hockey media day on Thursday, Oct. 4, 2018.

We want to hear from you

Send us your comments on our coverage, editorial decisions and the Penn State community.

> Email: editorinchief@ psucollegian.com Online: collegian.psu.edu

Postal Mail/In Person: 123 S. Burrowes St., State College, PA 16801 Letters should be about 200 words. Student letters should include class year, major and campus. Letters from alumni should include graduation year. All writers should provide their address and phone number for verification. Letters should be signed by no more than two people. Members of organizations must include their titles if the topic they write about is connected with the aim of their groups. The Collegian reserves the right to edit letters. The Collegian cannot guarantee publication of all letters. Letters chosen also run on The Daily Collegian Online and may be selected for publication in The Weekly Collegian. All letters become property of Collegian Inc.

Who we are

The Daily Collegian's editorial

opinion is determined by its Board of Opinion, which is made up of members of its Board of Editors, with the editor in chief holding final responsibility for content. The opinions expressed on the editorial page are not necessarily those of Collegian Inc., a separate institution from Penn State.

About the Collegian

The Daily Collegian and The Weekly Collegian are published by Collegian Inc., an independent, nonprofit corporation with a board of directors composed of students, faculty and professionals. Penn State students write and edit both papers and solicit advertising for them.

During the fall and spring semesters as well as the second six-week summer session, The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday. Issues are distributed by mail to other Penn State campuses and subscribers.

Complaints

News and editorial complaints should be presented to the editor. Business and advertising complaints should be presented to the business manager.

COLLEGIAN

Collegian Inc. James Building, 123 S. Burrowes St. State College, PA 16801-3882 ©2018 Collegian Inc.

BOARD OF EDITORS

Editor in Chief Kelly Powers Managing Editor Kara Duriez Digital Managing Editor Andrew Kalmowitz Opinions Editor Jake Aferiat News Editor Patrick Newkumet Assistant News Editor Maddie Aiken News Social Media Editor Erin Hogge Features & Investigation Editor Alison Kuznitz Arts & Lifestyle Editor Kara Fesolovich Sports Editor Tyler King Assistant Sports Editor Matt Lingerman Sports Social Media Editor Dylan Jacobs Multimedia Editor Jack Hirsh Photo Editor Caitlin Lee Assistant Photo Editor Aabha Vora

To contact News Division: News, Opinions, Arts, Sports, Photo, Graphics, The Daily Collegian Online and The Weekly Collegian Phone: 814-865-1828 | Fax: 814-863-1126

BOARD OF MANAGERS

Business Manager Colsen Ackroyd Vice President Rachel Weber Advertising Manager Scott Witham Business Operations Manager Anfisa Kashkenova Creative Department Managers Hannah Degler, Leah Kochenour Promotions Managers Cody Mandell, Sam White Business Insights Manager

Greg Giliberti Sales Managers Andrei Mitrut, Pierre Coupin

To contact Business Division: Advertising, circulation, accounting and classifieds Phone: 814-865-2531 | Fax: 814-865-3848 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays

SPORTS TIME TO GRIND

As Penn State continues to struggle on offense, Pat Chambers knows his team has to get tough and grind out games

By Tyler King THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

With a little less than 15 minutes remaining in Sunday night's game, Penn State cut Michigan State's lead to 10. It was the closest the Nittany Lions had been since there was nine minutes left to play in the first half.

Hoping to keep the run going and pull within single digits, Pat Chambers inserted talented freshman Rasir Bolton.

Even though Bolton played just five minutes up to that point, he's one of the few dynamic offensive players the Nittany Lions have.

On his first defensive possession, Bolton lost his man, Ŝpartan sharpshooter Matt McQuaid, and allowed a wide open 3-pointer.

A few seconds later, Bolton got free for an open 3-pointer of his own, but missed badly.

Then on the following possession, Bolton chased McQuaid around a screen, but didn't get a hand up in time and McQuaid knocked down another 3-pointer.

Michigan State once again led by 16. Any momentum Penn State had was gone and Chambers saw enough. He called timeout and pulled Bolton. He didn't reenter the game.

Things are quickly spiralling out of control for Rasir Bolton.

The player who showed off his potential with three games with 20-plus points in the nonconference has yet to reach double digits since the calendar turned to 2019 and things don't seem to be less against the Spartans and getting any better.

Guard Kyle McCloskey (10) passes the ball to a teammate during the game against Michigan State at the Bryce Jordan Center on Sunday, Jan. 13. The Spartans defeated the Nittany Lions 71-56.

Bolton played just six minutes against Michigan State and missed both of the shots he took. He's now shooting just 38 percent from the field and 37 percent from 3-point range.

In the team's last four games, Bolton has made just 6-of-28 shots (21.4 percent) and has more turnovers (10) than assists (7).

Fellow freshman Myreon Jones, whose team-best 18 points Tech feels like a year ago, has struggled as well. He's got just three points in the last four games and just eight points in the team's six Big Ten games. He was scoremissed all five of his shots.

"They're shooting the ball well in practice," Chambers said after the loss to Michigan State. "I don't think the lights are too bright for them."

So, what is it that's causing Bolton and Jones to struggle this much? Have they hit the proverbial "freshman wall?"

"Yeah, maybe," Chambers admitted.

"At this point — middle of Januin the upset win over Virginia ary - this is something they've never experienced before. We've gotta make sure they have confidence and that's my job," Chambers added. "I'm going to sit and spend time with them and work with them mentally and physically.'

Bolton has been in and out of the starting lineup this season and even when it seems like he's starting to find his stride, he has a performance like the one against Wisconsin in which he went 2-for-10 from the field and just 1-of-6 from 3-point range.

At this point, Chambers is runbut he's going to keep trying because he doesn't have another option.

"I'm trying to manage him right now [and] put him in the best position to be successful," Chambers said. "We all struggle sometimes."

Against the No. 6 team in the nation, Penn State was once again getting zero production from its bench.

Jan. 14-16, 2019

Chambers knew he wasn't going to be able to outscore Tom Izzo's team so he put in freshman Kyle McCloskey, a freshman who transfered from Villanova after spending the first year of his college career playing football. "[McCloskey's] been relentless in practice for over a month,' Chambers said. "He's been in my sheet ready to go if I need him."

On Sunday night, he needed McCloskey.

The Delaware County native only attempted one shot in his 18 minutes of game action, but he's not in there for his offense. Mc-Closkey is in there to play hard and "grind" — a word Chambers said several times after the game.

"We needed to play with some toughness," Chambers said. "If we're not going to score the ball, we're going to grind it out. I'm going to put guys out there who are going to compete at the highest level. I felt like Kyle did that.'

McCloskey certainly looked active in the first meaningful game action of his career.

He grabbed a few rebounds, took a few charges and displayed a genuine effort on the defensive end of the floor.

"That's the Kyle I see every day ning out of ways to utilize Bolton, in practice. He gives 110 percent effort," Josh Reaves said. "He was just out there competing and out there trying. We just gotta have people out there grinding and that's what he does. He'll run through a brick wall for anyone on this team."

> To email reporter: tbk5155@psu.edu. Follow him on Twitter at @King_TylerB.

Upperclassmen continue to pull their weight in loss

By Caleb Wilfinger THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

already this season, Pat Cham- rebounds per game to lead the have not been enough to overbers was adamant his team will Penn State attack.

figure it out.

re-

weeks

players in the Big Ten, averag-For what feels like the 10th time ing 19 points and just over eight older members of the squad

Stevens continues to establish ness, and we expect that from himself as one of the premier them," Chambers said.

However, the efforts from the come Penn State's deficiencies.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

last victory and losers of eight of its last 11 games, Penn State is desperately searching for answers.

After Sunday's unceremonious defeat at the hands of No. 6 Michigan State, the Nittany Lions are no closer to solving their ailments on either side of the court. They currently sit at 0-6 in the Big Ten, rounding out the bottom of the league standings.

However, Chambers still believes in this group.

'We haven't put it all together yet, especially in the Big Ten," he said. "I know these guys are still locked in and they have belief in themselves, and each other. We still have 14 games to go in this conference, and we can turn this ship around right away.'

right to believe in his side is that this is a skilled bunch.

The Nittany Lions boast a rosand potential.

But, part of the challenge that comes with playing in one of the toughest conferences in the country is adapting to the high quality of play college basketball fans have come to expect with the Big Ten.

Right now the freshmen trio of Myles Dread, Rasir Bolton and Myreon Jones haven't quite figured that out yet, and it has showed in their struggles throughout the first six games of conference play.

"Our freshmen need to get tougher," Lamar Stevens said. "We need the young guys to step up because they're playing big time minutes now, and that's something that we preach to them every day [in practice].'

The struggles of the freshmen have been well-documented, and it very much looks like the firstyear players have a long way to go before things will get better.

Therefore, Chambers and his staff have had to lean on their experienced players, and -- for the most part -- the veterans have delivered.

In his 12th game back since re-Nearly three turning from an injury, Mike Watkins tallied 11 points and seven moved from its rebounds on 5-of-10 shooting, and did a good job of defending Nick Ward in a matchup between two of the better big men in the conference.

> figures in five of his 12 games played this year, including three double-doubles, two of which came in Big Ten play against Michigan and Nebraska.

> Lastly, Josh Reaves has come on strong of late after a slow start to league play.

> One of just two seniors on the roster, Reaves struggled mightily at the onset of the Big Ten schedule. But, the Fairfax, Virginia native has responded with two of his best performances of the season.

Reaves posted 20 points on 8-of-17 shooting at Nebraska, and Part of why Chambers has a followed that up with 11 points and a season-high nine assists against the Spartans.

On top of that, Reaves still ter that has no shortage of talent leads the Big Ten in steals and is currently the only player in the conference averaging more than two steals per game.

"I think Lamar has played well all season for us, and Josh has given us great energy and tough-

Stevens has posted 20 points or more in eight contests this season, but it doesn't feel like he's dominating games at the rate that he should.

A lot of this is due to the fact that the Nittany Lions are prone to falling behind early and need-Watkins has scored in double ing to shoot their way back into games via the three-point shot, something Stevens does not specialize in.

Reaves' effort and tenacity on defense is great, but it won't win Penn State games while its half-court offense continues to sputter and it can't buy a threepointer. And while Watkins looks like his old self as his confidence continues to grow, the Nittany Lions will need more production in the paint if they're to contend with the best the Big Ten has to offer.

"It's all about our leadership at the end of the day, making sure we stay positive out there,³ Chambers said. "As long as we come into work tomorrow and are able to identify and grow from our mistakes, we're gonna be in great shape going forward.

To email reporter: cjw5768@psu.edu. Follow him on Twitter at @caleb_wilfinger.

Aabha Vora/Collegian

is.

Ken Kalbach/Collegian

Coach Cael Sanderson looks on during the match at Rec Hall on Sunday Jan. 1. No. 1 Penn State defeated No. 19 Wisconsin 24-13.

Cael Sanderson takes ownership for struggles

By Ben Jenkins THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

past 10 years, Over the Penn State wrestling fans have become so accustomed If these guys lose a match, it's winning to job to go out and win national

But Sanderson has a different idea as to what his role is. And following Penn State's match against Wisconsin, he made his perception of his job description

"We didn't wrestle with a lot of fire, but usually that comes from feeling great," Sanderson said.

"That's my job to make sure

these guys feel good on match

In uncharacteristic fashion,

Penn State struggled early and dropped three of the first bouts

this season — and the first time since Penn State and

Iowa wrestled inside the Bryce

Jordan Center last season on

Feb. 10 — the Nittany Lions

The Nittany Lion came out on top following victories in the final four bouts Sunday afternoon to defeat Wisconsin

24-13, the mood inside Rec Hall wasn't the same as it normally

But during the time where trailed at the midway break.

That marked the first time

coach

they think it's

Sanderson's

Cael

abundantly clear

on the afternoon.

titles.

day."

Sanderson reaffirmed his faith in his team, but also that his job is about more than winning. "I'm not afraid to lose a match.

where losing was a possibility got to hurt and it should hurt," Sanderson said. "We've got to learn from it. You're not always going to feel great and adversity is always great preparation.

Sanderson admitted he too needs to learn from adversity while also crediting Wisconsin for its effort but turned most, if not all, of the blame for Penn State's lackluster performance towards himself.

Wisconsin left Rec Hall with four victories on the afternoon, two of which came as upsets as a pair of unranked Badgers defeated two top-10 ranked Nittany Lions in No. 4 Nick Lee at 141 and No. 9 Brady Berge at 149.

"They just beat us," Sanderson said. "You either score more points than them or they score more points than you.

"It's up to the individuals. They have to chose to be ready to go but it's my job to make sure that I'm not over-training them the week of a match."

Even though Penn State struggled throughout large portions of the afternoon, the Nittany Lions were lifted up by bonus point victories by Roman Bravo-Young, Mark Hall and Bo Nickal, as well as wins by Shakur Rasheed and Anthony Cassar

Visit collegian.psu.edu to read Penn State was trailing, and the full story.

Lamar Stevens (11) moves the ball forward during the game against Michigan State at the Bryce Jordan Center on Sunday, Jan. 13.

ARTS & LIFESTYLE

Multimedia gallery hits the HU

By Madeline McCabe THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

Upon entering the gallery and turning the corner into the exhibit room, viewers are transformed from being in the lively HUB to a pitch-black room -- the sculpture set in the middle casting the only light and sound. The visual and audio elements of the piece are set on an eight-minute continuous loop.

The HUB-Robeson Gallery is displaying a new multimedia exhibit by German artist, Ryoichi Kurokawa, entitled "Constrained Surface." The piece will continue to be on exhibit until Jan. 20, with a public reception being held just prior to its closing on Jan. 17.

Lindsey Landfried, senior gallery manager, recognizes the endless experiences viewers can have with this time-based sculpture.

"There's no real place to start or stop," Landfried said. "You could stay for eight minutes and see all of the visuals, you could stay for 30 minutes and see what it would be like over time to stay with those sights and sounds, or vou could come in for a minute and leave and have had a full experience of the work as well.³

Landfried first saw the project by Ryoichi Kurokawa while at the Wood Street Galleries in Pittsburgh. Following her visit, she interesting.

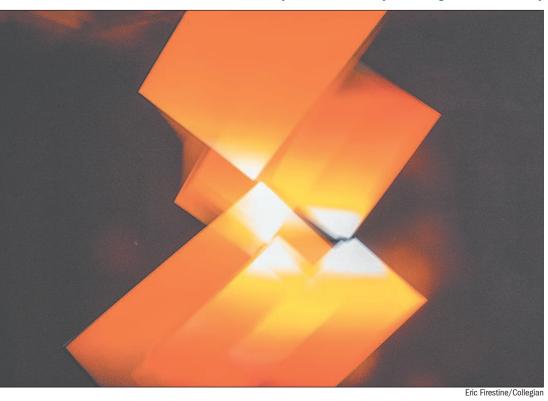

'I'm always hoping to find artconnect with and sometimes I think works that have an undenito do that," Landfried said. "For since her freshman year at Penn "If you ever go to EDM or any she thought students and the Kurokawa's piece and you're in- nication sciences and disorder) Penn State community would find undated by lights and hearing the said "Constrained Surface" is her piece you know something is happening, that there is an impact in work that people are going to a visceral way or an emotional response to the piece."

able act in them can be one way has been a gallery attendant relate to the piece," Kadosh said.

opportunity of bringing artwork example, when you're in Ryoichi State. Kadosh (senior- commu- concert these days, the visuals favorite piece in her four years being an attendant.

"I think it's the coolest piece we've had in my time here be-Audi Kadosh is a senior who cause I think a lot of our age can contacted the artist, seizing the The 'Constrained Surface' exhibit by Ryoichi Kurokawa at the HUB-Robeson Gallery on Friday, Jan. 11.

are a huge part of your experience and having this cool interaction between the audio and the visual on the screen is really unique and something we haven't had before," she said.

Sarah Kipp, exhibition coordinator, said she is particularly excited for this exhibit because of how unique it is and perspective it offers to students.

"I think people's perception of what art can be is rather limited, so my hope is that this project is going to open up that world of the expansiveness of what art really is and what it can be," Kipp said.

The upcoming reception will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 17, and it will provide food, music and the opportunity for the community to come together in an art environment.

The reception is to celebrate not only the "Constrained Surface" exhibit, but Lindsey Kircher's art exhibit as well. Kircher's exhibition is part of her senior thesis project and is being shown until Jan. 19 in Art Alley right next to the HUB-Robeson Gallery.

"I think both of these together is going to be a great opportunity and I really want as many people to take advantage of the show as possible," Kipp said.

To email reporter: mcm6125@psu.edu. Follow her on Twitter at @maddiemccabe

Reactions to R.Kelly allegations, series

By Alyshia Hercules THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

Popular R&B recording artist, writer and producer R. Kelly has come under fire in recent weeks after "Surviving R. Kelly" aired on Lifetime.

"Surviving R. Kelly" is a sixpart series that first aired on Jan. 3. The documentary detailed over 20 years of Kelly's alleged sexual misconduct toward young women of color. It also featured many of Kelly's reported victims, both inside and outside of the entertainment industry

In 1994, R. Kelly was reported to have been married R&B sing- ent and this is why people chose to of his recording artist, Sparkle, career after years of sexual miser Aaliyah Haughton. Haughton was 15 years old at the time of the marriage, and she began working with Kelly at the age of 14 to produce her first album "Age Ain't Nothin' But A Number." Kelly is featured in the album artwork.

The following year, the Haughton family had the marriage annulled and Haughton then cut all ties with Kelly until she died in 2001. The documentary and ensuing discussion has spread rapidly on social media and the news cycle, creating conversation about violence against women, especially within the entertainment industry.

"Our society deeply values tal-

6

1

3

4

9

5

3

8

8

4

7

5

2

5

9

1

ignore R. Kelly's harmful behavior towards young black women," said Gabriel Green, an African-American studies professor. "Our culture continues to prove that they do not care about women's suffering."

In the years following Kelly's marriage to a then-15 year old Haughton, Kelly continued to drop hits like, "I Believe I Can Fly" and the "Ignition (Remix)" further separating himself from the rumors of having sexual relationships with underage girls.

In 2001, a sex tape featuring Kelly and an unidentified female began to circulate. The female was later identified to be the niece who was 14 years old when the tape was recorded. The release of the tape was followed by lawsuits from other under aged girls claiming to have been in sexual relationships with Kelly as well. In 2002, Kelly was indicted on 21 child pornography charges.

Throughout the allegations, the "I Believe I Can Fly" released four albums, three of them going No.1 on the Billboard 200 Chart. After years of delays, his trial began in May 2008 and Kelly was found not guilty on all charges in June 2008.

'The fact that R. Kelly was still able to have a wildly successful the full story.

conduct allegations just shows our culture's lack of respect for Black women," Jada Warner (senior - anthropology) said. "His predatory behavior and actions were covered up by his wealth and popularity. It's scary and disgusting.

In 2017, Buzzfeed released a shocking article detailing a sex cult of six young black girls Kelly allegedly runs. The article shed light on the families of the young girls like the family of Jocelyn Savage, one of the "cult" members

Visit collegian.psu.edu to read

8

9

7

7

4

6

2

5

1

8

6

3

© Рарросом

7

3

2

4

6

1

4

9

ALLENIION

APPLICATIONS ARE NOW BEING ACCEPTED FOR THE PENN STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENT TRUSTEE AND THE STUDENT TRUSTEE SELECTION COMMITTEE Full-time, undergraduate and graduate students who are interested in becoming a member of Penn State's Board of Trustees, are asked to submit an application by February 15, 2019. Students who are interested in serving as an At-Large member of the Student Trustee Selection Committee are asked to submit an application by February 8, 2019. Additional information and links to applications can be found at: https://sites. psu edu/studenttrustee/

FOR RENT	1
BEDRM

TOWNHOUSE LEASE TAKEOVER in Coopers Pond. One female grad student and 2 friendly dogs. Private room and laundry. Email exb62@psu.edu for more details. Rent negotiable.

FOR RENT 2 BEDRM

UNIVERSITY GATEWAY 2 bedroom 2 bathroom furnished apartment on College Ave. across campus $525/ 4 people. August 2019- 2020. 814-482-0078

Bigar's Stars By JACQUELINE BIGAR

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 $\star\star\star\star$ Use the morning to the max, when others are more receptive. By the afternoon, your concerns change. A financial matter comes up for discussion, and you could have multiple thoughts regarding the issue. Choose to share what you feel is relevant. Tonight: Treat yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ If you greet this Monday feeling sluggish, do not be surprised. Know that this, too, shall pass. You have seen a situation from a different point of view, and might need to proceed in a different manner. You see the possibilities; those around you do not. Tonight: Remain open.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ A meeting or conversation in the morning could color your plans in the afternoon. You will deal with what occurs as a result of this adjustment. You have reason to smile and be more upbeat than you have been in a while. Maintain your sense of humor. Tonight: Keep it private

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★★ Remain sensitive to your options You do not always get along with a higher-up or elder. The way that you have your discussion could affect the outcome. Even when you disagree with this person, maintain respect; if you do, your relationship will get better. Tonight: As you like it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 $\star\star\star\star$ Be willing to take a stand. A close associate helps inspire you to take the lead with a major project. With all the excitement and feedback around you, staying anchored could be difficult. A higher-up seems off-kilter. Better to say nothing and just smile. Tonight: A must appearance. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 $\star \star \star \star$ Listen to news with openness, but don't commit to anything just yet. You could be surprised by an unexpected development that heads your way. Right now, you can't count on anyone else to come through for you. Others are too much in their heads. . Tonight: Say "yes.'

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

One-on-one relating can * be rewarding. However, you need to be ready for the other party to manifest what might seem like odd facets of his or her personality. Instead of criticizing or being put off, enjoy this person's differences. The unexpected occurs. Tonight: Opt for togetherness SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 $\star\star\star$ Defer to a loved one who has the right idea. Even when others have the best intentions, you can't always count on them to come through for you. They could run into unexpected and unanticipated developments. Despite obstacles, remain centered. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

Monday, Jan. 14, 2019

©2019 by King Features Syndicate Inc.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 $\star\star\star$ Pace yourself in order to get through as much as possible. Despite the fact that it's only Monday, you could be overloaded. Confusion surrounds a domestic or real estate issue. Try to avoid a confrontation at all costs. Time might help. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★★ You could be overly serious and raining on a close associate's parade. Try to be more sensitive to others. Verbalize what you're feeling; you might be delighted by what you hear. As a result, a new beginning becomes possible. Expect the unexpected. Tonight: Head home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 $\star\star\star$ When you're dealing with a roommate or family member, your more playful side emerges. You are quickly learning that matters pertaining to your domestic life or any real estate property you own could sprial out of control. Be prepared for anything. Tonight: Happiest at home

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 $\star\star\star\star\star$ You have the right words and the correct instincts to pull off a long-term desire. You could be surprised by what is occurring, which is triggering some odd behaviors or reactions. Maintain your sense of humor. Tonight: Adjust to the unexpected; you cannot change it.

18	Kind of hose	35						36		37				38
19	Sign of secrecy
20	Stocks and such	39					40						41
22	Proposes
24	High time?	42				43						44
26	Ski lift	45		 	46				47	 	48		-		-	+
27	Bodily properties	40			10						10
	Shade provider				49	1		50		51
35	Kind of press
36	Wallop	52	53	54					55		56			57	58	59
38	Born	60	-				61	_		62			63		-
39	Dwarf buffalo	00					01			02			03
40	Cheerless	64					65						66
41	Mideast port
42	Agent (Abbr.)	67					68						69
43	Kind of cake
44	Musical composition					Coj	oyright	©201	19 Puz	zleJu	nction.	сот
45	Lingo	Dow	n				13	Sea	als' m	eals			43 Iı	1	of
45 47	U	Dow	n						als' m nay b		nd					erous
47	Trial run	Dow 1	_	carote	ene		21	It n		e gra	nd		44 S			erous
47 49	Ų		_				21 23	It n Sta	nay b	e gra			44 S	tarch oot	y tub	erous
47 49 51	Trial run Bridle part	1 2	(ack b	oirds	e	21 23 25	It n Sta Ver	nay b re (at	e gra) ently			44 S ro	tarch oot howy	y tub
47 49 51 52	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel	1 2 3	Outb	ack b ecue	oirds entre		21 23 25 27	It n Sta Vei Lin	nay b re (at ry rec	e gra) ently cliffs			44 S ro 46 S 48 N	tarch oot howy Iame	y tub / , for
47 49 51 52 56	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty	1 2 3	Outb Barb	ack b ecue ese r	oirds entre		21 23 25 27 28	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski	nay b re (at ry rec ne of c	e gra ently cliffs blem			44 S ro 46 S 48 N	tarch oot howy Iame ow-v	y tub / , for vater	one mark
47 49 51 52 56 60	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt	1 2 3 4	Outb Barb Chin	ack b ecue ese r ing	oirds entre estau	rant	21 23 25 27 28 29	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tal	nay b re (at ry rec ne of o in pro	e gra ently cliffs oblem one's	own		44 S ro 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A	tarch oot howy fame ow-v .ctres	y tub / , for vater	one mark lian
47 49 51 52 56 60 61	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa	1 2 3 4	Outb Barb Chin offer	ack b ecue ese r ing	oirds entre estau	rant	21 23 25 27 28 29 30	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik	nay b re (at ry rec ne of o in pro ce as	e gra ently cliffs oblem one's ne lir	own		44 S ro 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A	tarch oot howy fame ow-v .ctres f sile	y tub 7 , for vater s Lil nt fili	one mark lian ms
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin	1 2 3 4 5	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu	ecue ese r ing rity s	oirds entre estau yster	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik	nay b re (at ry rec ne of c in pro ke as ke sor	e gra ently cliffs oblem one's ne lir	own		44 S ro 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A o	tarch oot howy fame ow-v .ctres f sile	y tub , for vater s Lil nt fili	one mark lian ms ear
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop	1 2 3 4 5 6	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part	ecue ese r ing rity s	oirds entre estau yster whirl	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik	nay b re (at ry rec ne of c in pro ke as ke sor time	e gra e gra cliffs oblem one's ne lir e	own		44 S rd 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A o 53 C	tarch oot howy fame ow-v .ctres f sile f sile nerg	y tub / , for vater is Lil nt fili ing g y sou	one mark lian ms ear rce
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64 65	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop Kind of check	1 2 3 4 5 6 7	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part Give	ecue ese re ing rity s it a v s pun	oirds entre estau yster whirl k	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik Mu "Tl	nay b re (at ry rec in pro ce as ce sor time ist-ha	e gra eently cliffs oblem one's ne lir e wes aids"	own		44 S ro 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A 0 53 C 54 E	tarch bot fame ow-v ctres f sile limb nerg	y tub , for vater is Lil ing g y sou la city	one mark lian ms ear rce
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64 65 66	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop Kind of check Red Sea peninsula	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part Give Feels	ecue ecue ese r ing rity s it a v s pun finde	oirds entre estau yster whirl k r	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33 34	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik Mu "Tl pla	nay b re (at ry rec in pro ce as ce as ce sor _ time ist-ha he Ma	e gra e ently cliffs oblem one's ne lir e ves aids" ght	own igerie		44 S rd 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A 53 C 54 E 55 N 557 C	tarch bot fame ow-v ctres f sile limb nerg	y tub , for vater s Lil ing g y sou a city salac	one mark lian ms ear rce
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64 65 66 67	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop Kind of check Red Sea peninsula Card catalog abbr.	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part Give Feels Path	ecue ese re ing rity s it a v s pun finde	oirds entre estau yster whirl k r	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33 34 37	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik Mu "Tl pla Mc	nay b re (at ry rec ae of o in pro- ce as ce as ce sor _ timo ist-ha he Ma ywrig	e gra eently cliffs oblem one's ne lir e ves aids" ght broth	own igerie		44 S rd 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A 53 C 54 E 55 N 557 C	tarch bot howy lame ow-v ctres f sile limb nerg levad reek	y tub , for vater is Lil ing g y sou a city salac	one mark lian ms ear rce y l
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64 65 66 67	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop Kind of check Red Sea peninsula Card catalog abbr. Blood pigment	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part Give Feels Patht Drop	ack b ecue ese ro ing rity s it a v s pun finde o behi	oirds entre estau yster whirl k r ind	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33 34 37	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik Mu "TI pla Mc Cla	nay b re (at ry rec ne of c in pro ce as ce as ce sor _ time ist-ha he Ma ywrig oses' l	e gra ently cliffs oblem one's ne lir e ves aids" ght broth	own igerie er		44 S rc 46 S 48 M 50 L 52 A 53 C 53 C 54 E 55 N 57 C	tarch bot howy fame ow-v ctres f sile f sile limb nerg f veck heese	y tub , for vater is Lil ing g y sou a city salac salac	one mark lian ms ear rce V 1
47 49 51 52 56 60 61 63 64 65 66 67 68	Trial run Bridle part Au naturel Gritty Like some yogurt Letter before kappa That is, in Latin Sandwich shop Kind of check Red Sea peninsula Card catalog abbr. Blood pigment Unit of money in	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11	Outb Barb Chin offer Secu part Give Feels Path Drop Aleh	ecue ese r ing rity s it a v s pun finde o behi ouse e dee	oirds entre estau yster whirl k r ind	rant n	21 23 25 27 28 29 30 32 33 34 37 40	It n Sta Ver Lin Ski Tak Lik Mu "Tl pla Mc Cla my	nay b re (at ry rec on pro- ce as ce sor _ time ust-ha he Ma ywrig pses' l assica	e gra ently cliffs blem one's ne lir e ves aids" ght broth l gy se	own igerie er		44 S ra 46 S 50 L 50 L 52 A 53 C 53 C 55 N 557 C c 558 V 559 K	tarch bot howy fame ow-v ctres f sile f sile	y tub , for vater is Lil ing g y sou a city salac salac	one mark lian ms ear rce y 1 2 2 2

The Sporting Life	Ζ	А	J	Т	A	W	D	0	V	0	J	Q	L	Е	G	Т	R	Ζ
Archery	Y	G	С	U	В	Т	А	Т	Н	L	0	Ν	Н	0	С	Κ	Е	Y
Autocross	R	N	v	ī	D	С	Q	Ρ	С	0	R	W	М	J	N	Е	A	W
Biathlon		- 11	1	-		0	2		Ŭ	Ŭ			IVI	_		_	-
Boxing	Е		С		Ν	0	T	D	Н	Ρ	Q	U	С	D	V	V	Q	Ζ
Croquet Curling	Н	F	L	L	А	В	Y	Е	L	L	0	V	G	S	T	J	А	Х
Cycling	С	R	Т	С	W	D	U	Т	D	Y	J	Р	F	В	А	J	Т	U
Discus	R	U	N	ĭ	ï	м	^		^	_			· .				F	С
Diving	R	Ŭ	Ν	J		М	A	R	A	I	Н	0	Ν		Y	Н		0
Dressage Fencing	А	S	G	S	W	М	Е	Е	Т	F	F	Κ	А	W	L	А	S	U
Hockey	Ν	F	С	0	Ρ	S	Κ	А	Е	Κ	Κ	L	Κ	С	Μ	U	S	R
Jai Alai	В	U	S	Q	S	Н	К	Ν	Y	S	А	R	М	Q	0	т	0	I
Judo									_					_		-	_
Karate	S	W	Ν	А	Х	Ρ	С	W	D		Е	R	Е	R	Н	0	R	I
Lacrosse Luge	Κ	V	G	Е	T	1	S	0	Т	Ν	Т	R	А	С	Κ	С	С	Ν
Marathon	U	F	Q	Ρ	Ν	А	F	F	D	В	V	Ν	w	т	С	R	А	G
Pole Vault	0		_				U		т Т	1	•			÷	Ē		Ŷ	Ŭ
Polo	0	Ρ	Q	G	1	Е	U	D	I	1	Ρ	Y	J	1	Е	0	L	Е
Rugby Sailing	Q	U	G	L	Q	Q	G	Ρ	С	А	V		С	Ρ	V	S	S	W
Slalom	G	Ν	Т	Х	0	В	Q	U	Т	1	С	1	Υ	Е	1	S	В	Н
Soccer	В	Ν	U	R	Х	S	1	A	ī	0	М	Р	N	D	Н	S	П	А
Surfing	-		č	•••	_		L _	/ \	L			·		-	•••		0
Track	G	G	С	Ρ	0	L	Е	V	А	U	L	Т	D	G	W	L	Κ
Volleyball

Non-stop study sesh? Aced.

From Monster Energy to Archer Farms coffee, shop and save close to campus.

Your Campus Target Beaver Ave & Fraser St

