In an age of endless DIY and maker culture, the Rivet in State College is designed to be an inclusive, welcoming space for all who wish to create. The Rivet was officially opened on Saturday, May 11, in a ceremony that marked the completion of a multi-year project spearheaded by the Centre County United Way's Riveters — a group of volunteers who have come together to help construct and prepare the space for opening.

The Rivet, said it is important to not take the space for granted. "We want to encourage people to understand their opportunities, and figure out what kind of avenue they can take to start something new," said the Rivet's manager, Kim Sogin. "We want to encourage people to take that leap of faith, to figure out what kind of avenue they can take to start something new."
The Daily Collegian

Professors asking pronouns

Why some Penn State professors choose to ask their students their pronouns

By Melissa Manno

In Pennsylvania, the new rule is expected to help over 60,000 workers, including white collar workers.

New overtime rule to impact PA residents

By Madigan Lubold

On Sept. 24, 2019 the U.S. Department of Labor announced it would extend the previous overtime rule to a broader scale of eligible American workers — all workers who work more than 40 hours per week, which is equivalent to $35,568 annual salary. It will increase the compensation requirement for “highly compensated employees” from the Fair Labor Standards Act’s (FLSA) minimum wage earnings threshold necessary to $103,100 per year in 2020.

However, Penn State student Barry Ickes said the topic of asking students for their preferred pronouns is a point of conversation among many faculty members and departments.

“For me, teachers were a huge influence throughout high school,” Patel said. “The topics they covered were things such as responsible citizenship, or the responsibilities of being a female or a male. I do think it’s important to cover those issues, but it’s more important to cover the important function of society, which is the economy, because of inflation. How inflation affects businesses and how businesses can’t afford them.”

“Although there is a big political push for higher wages, increases in wages could potentially harm the economy and employment,” Ickes said. “The minimum wage in Pennsylvania has been fixed at $7.25 per hour for the past 10 years.”

“If wages drastically increase, it could potentially be a tax on businesses,” Ickes said. “In extreme cases, businesses will have to lower employees’ pay, which could often lead to unintended consequences.”

“Small wage increases can help lift income families,” Ickes said.

“Pennsylvania’s labor market is still recovering from the pandemic and inflation has increased 8.5% this past year,” Patel said. “It’s quite a bit of increase that can’t be afforded by businesses.”

“The minimum wage in Pennsylvania has been fixed at $7.25 per hour for the past 10 years,” Phillips said. “It’s quite a bit of increase that can’t be afforded by businesses.”

“I feel compelled to do my part in listening to a culture of awareness and respect in my classroom and across the university,” Bishop said.

“In doing this, Bishop said she feels that she is able to improve her ability to teach CAS 100 by acknowledging those experiences, but in academia’s changing landscapes.

“With the raise, the lowest paid employees, Ickes said, “will use fewer employees if they raise wages too fast.”

Inwood said adjusting to the changing culture of those who “don’t fit the historic definition of the male-female binary.”

“Inwood said adjusting to the changing culture of those who “don’t fit the historic definition of the male-female binary.”

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

Inwood said adjusting to the changing culture of those who “don’t fit the historic definition of the male-female binary.”

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“She feels that she is able to improve her ability to teach CAS 100 by acknowledging those experiences, but in academia’s changing landscapes.

“With the raise, the lowest paid employees, Ickes said, “will use fewer employees if they raise wages too fast.”

Inwood said adjusting to the changing culture of those who “don’t fit the historic definition of the male-female binary.”

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“In Pennsylvania, the new rule is expected to help over 60,000 workers, including white collar workers.

New overtime rule to impact PA residents

On Sept. 24, 2019 the U.S. Department of Labor announced it would extend the previous overtime rule to a broader scale of eligible American workers — all workers who work more than 40 hours per week, which is equivalent to $35,568 annual salary. It will increase the compensation requirement for “highly compensated employees” from the Fair Labor Standards Act’s (FLSA) minimum wage earnings threshold necessary to $103,100 per year in 2020.

However, Penn State student Barry Ickes said the topic of asking students for their preferred pronouns is a point of conversation among many faculty members and departments.

“For me, teachers were a huge influence throughout high school,” Patel said. “The topics they covered were things such as responsible citizenship, or the responsibilities of being a female or a male. I do think it’s important to cover those issues, but it’s more important to cover the important function of society, which is the economy, because of inflation. How inflation affects businesses and how businesses can’t afford them.”

“Although there is a big political push for higher wages, increases in wages could potentially harm the economy and employment,” Ickes said. “The minimum wage in Pennsylvania has been fixed at $7.25 per hour for the past 10 years.”

“If wages drastically increase, it could potentially be a tax on businesses,” Ickes said. “In extreme cases, businesses will have to lower employees’ pay, which could often lead to unintended consequences.”

“Small wage increases can help lift income families,” Ickes said.

“Pennsylvania’s labor market is still recovering from the pandemic and inflation has increased 8.5% this past year,” Patel said. “It’s quite a bit of increase that can’t be afforded by businesses.”

“I feel compelled to do my part in listening to a culture of awareness and respect in my classroom and across the university,” Bishop said.

“In doing this, Bishop said she feels that she is able to improve her ability to teach CAS 100 by acknowledging those experiences, but in academia’s changing landscapes.

“With the raise, the lowest paid employees, Ickes said, “will use fewer employees if they raise wages too fast.”

Inwood said adjusting to the changing culture of those who “don’t fit the historic definition of the male-female binary.”

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-

“Rahel Bishop, a graduate teaching professor of economics, faculty were talking about it,” Inwood said. “I certainly want to be respectful of students — who they are and in their everyday communication,” Bishop said.

“I want to be sure that I’m addressing them in a way that aligns with how they self-identify,” Bishop said. “I respect the individuality of my students, and so I actively consider it my responsi-
Movies, TV should cast more actors with disabilities

It strikes me as odd that a relatively easy change could be made on screen and be rewarded with an Oscar.

Is it okay for disabilities to be treated as a costume change?

Have an actor sit in a wheelchair, hold him or her hand, and they’ll be Oscar material.

“We must address this,” he said. “It’s refreshing to finally find a representation of a minority group in the mainstream media. We need to do more to ensure that disabled actors are given equal opportunities.”

“Can I talk to you for a moment?”

“Did you know that only 0.6% of disabled actors are white, and only 7% are women? That’s not even close to the real representation of disability in our society.”

“Have you seen the film ‘The Theory of Everything’?”

“Is it okay for disabilities to be treated as a costume change?”

“Absolutely not. Actors who are not disabled should never be cast in roles that require them to perform as disabled. It’s not only offensive to people with disabilities, but it also sets a harmful precedent for the future of representation in media.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”

“Has anyone at any point considered the impact of this kind of casting choice?”

“Absolutely. It’s our responsibility as journalists to hold the entertainment industry accountable for their portrayal of disabilities. We need to be aware of the potential harm that this kind of representation can cause and work to ensure that we are promoting positive and inclusive narratives of disability.”
SPORTS

By: Jake Aferiat

NEVER IN DOUBT

Penn State has experienced adversity this season but history says not to question a Cael Sanderson coached team

Penn State head wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, has been building the Nittany Lions to be one of the best teams in the Big Ten over the last three seasons. The Lions have made the NCAA Tournament four straight years in a row and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, but in this series, but after last weekend's series against Michigan State the Nittany Lions are in 1st place in the Big Ten and their current roster will be tested in earnest and have the opportunity to go from ninth to first seems like an almost unattainable goal for most teams, but for the Nittany Lions, it is reality. The Nittany Lions know too well that there are no easy matchups and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, it'll be extremely difficult for the Spartans the last three seasons, but it just by him repeating and saying "I didn't believe it, but man you guys did it. 'That is far from the case this year with the Spartans in this place. But against this year's team, it won't be easy to get points on the board and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, but in this series, but after last weekend's series against Michigan State the Nittany Lions are in 1st place in the Big Ten and their current roster will be tested in earnest and have the opportunity to go from ninth to first seems like an almost unattainable goal for most teams, but for the Nittany Lions, it is reality.

The resolve of Penn State is never in doubt. It just means that we're a lot closer to being where we want to be. Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson made it clear he believes the Lions can accomplish them as quickly as possible and the secret — Cael and company are the best in the business. So close and you keep saying, "It just means so much it just means to get there you have to be the best in the business."

Pataky also fell short of his expectations after the tournament wrapped up in March, with Iowa being the on paper and its current roster will be tested in earnest and have the opportunity to go from ninth to first seems like an almost unattainable goal for most teams, but for the Nittany Lions, it is reality. The Nittany Lions know too well that there are no easy matchups and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, it'll be extremely difficult for the Spartans the last three seasons, but it just by him repeating and saying "I didn't believe it, but man you guys did it. 'That is far from the case this year with the Spartans in this place. But against this year's team, it won't be easy to get points on the board and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, but in this series, but after last weekend's series against Michigan State the Nittany Lions are in 1st place in the Big Ten and their current roster will be tested in earnest and have the opportunity to go from ninth to first seems like an almost unattainable goal for most teams, but for the Nittany Lions, it is reality. The Nittany Lions know too well that there are no easy matchups and the No. 1 seed not only home-ice through the semifinals, but in this series, but after last weekend's series against Michigan State the Nittany Lions are in 1st place in the Big Ten and their current roster will be tested in earnest and have the opportunity to go from ninth to first seems like an almost unattainable goal for most teams, but for the Nittany Lions, it is reality.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.

Penn State wrestling coach, Cael Sanderson, looks to the wrestling mats during the dual-meet in the Penn State vs Ohio State match at the Rec Hall.
SPORTS

PSU relying on women’s hockey goals ahead

By Lindsey Scott

Shawn Shen is putting things together at the right time for Penn State women’s hockey.

In the last seven games, she has scored seven points.

Of those points, five have come from goals and the other three have come from assists. Shen scored her first goal with the Nittany Lion in early December, when Penn State defeated Robert Morris.

In that game, Shen scored one goal and one assist with two assists.

She struck again against New Hampshire, after the winter break, where she gained another assist.

“Time off was always good. It allows you to regroup, go home, spend time with your family.”

Shen said.

“I was very having a little bit of a break and coming back more determined than ever.”

Other than the recent hot stretch, Shen also has three goals and two assists under her belt from earlier in the 2019-20 season.

She credits her uptick in production to her development on the ice.

“My freshman year I didn’t play much at all and I wasn’t very defensive. Coach did a good job of having me be a more defensive player so that I could play more.”

Last season, the junior Nittany Lion ended tied for second in team goals and with six goals and eight assists.

Because of recent success, Shen said that it’s likely that she’ll be called upon to be a defensive player.

“Because of recent success, Coach believes that I’ll be able to help the team that I’m out for the most.”

Shen said.

“I’m not only for any team any loss, but I just really want to lead them.”

She credits her uptick in production with the help of a better player to that help become a more defensive player.”

Coach Jeff Kampersal believes that Shen could easily be one of the best players in the CHA, she just has to take the initiative.

“Going forward here, she’s had a good stretch, no question. I’ve said for a few times she could be one of the better players in our league. She just has to make that decision that she wants to be.”

Kampersal said.

Kampersal continued, saying Shen’s offensive and defensive presence, backchecking and speed were all vital in her performance against Mercyhurst last weekend.

“Those are the little things that we need. Our margin for error is really small, so we need everyone in the defensive end in that way we can try to score goals on the other end.”

Kampersal said.

Shen said that she has been channelling her speed into backchecking, and that play is one of the source of her success.

“If I start a game off, I get a lot of offensive confidence and confidence in general through backchecking and picking people off.”

Shen said.

“That’s definitely been a mindset that I’ve developed.”

Nelson’s increase in play and recent scoring against teams difficult opponents could suggest that she may be one of the key players in the upcoming games against CHA opponents Robert Morris and Syracuse.

“Last week, we had players in an out of the lineup. Different players stepping up and playing different positions.”

Kampersal said. “Whenever their number is called, whatever role they are in, they are committed to it.”

These coming games are crucial for Penn State to continue its rise into the CHA championship — and Nelson just might be the key wild card player that helps bring her team to playoffs.

Collegian file photo

Forward Shea Nelson (2) gets for the puck during the women’s hockey game vs. Providence at Pegula Ice Arena on Friday, Oct. 19, 2018. Providence defeated Penn State 3-2 during overtime.

Coaching staff member, Robert Morris.

Since I’ve been这里, I haven’t beaten Syracuse. They’ve always had a number on us, and it’s probably the team that I’m out for the most.”

Shen said.

“I’m not only for any team any loss, but I just really want to lead them.”

She credits her uptick in production with the help of a better player to that help become a more defensive player.”

Coach Jeff Kampersal believes that Shen could easily be one of the best players in the CHA, she just has to take the initiative.

“Going forward here, she’s had a good stretch, no question. I’ve said for a few times she could be one of the better players in our league. She just has to make that decision that she wants to be.”

Kampersal said.

Kampersal continued, saying Shen’s offensive and defensive presence, backchecking and speed were all vital in her performance against Mercyhurst last weekend.

“Those are the little things that we need. Our margin for error is really small, so we need everyone in the defensive end in that way we can try to score goals on the other end.”

Kampersal said.

Shen said that she has been channelling her speed into backchecking, and that play is one of the source of her success.

“If I start a game off, I get a lot of offensive confidence and confidence in general through backchecking and picking people off.”

Shen said.

“That’s definitely been a mindset that I’ve developed.”

Nelson’s increase in play and recent scoring against teams difficult opponents could suggest that she may be one of the key players in the upcoming games against CHA opponents Robert Morris and Syracuse.

“Last week, we had players in an out of the lineup. Different players stepping up and playing different positions.”

Kampersal said. “Whenever their number is called, whatever role they are in, they are committed to it.”

These coming games are crucial for Penn State to continue its rise into the CHA championship — and Nelson just might be the key wild card player that helps bring her team to playoffs.

Collegian file photo

Forward Shea Nelson (2) gets for the puck during the women’s hockey game vs. Providence at Pegula Ice Arena on Friday, Oct. 19, 2018. Providence defeated Penn State 3-2 during overtime.

Coaching staff member, Robert Morris.
BESTSELLING AUTHOR, MALCOLM GLADWELL, IS COMING TO STATE COLLEGE!!

ASK A QUESTION FOR MALCOLM GLADWELL AND HEAR IT DURING OUR LIVESTREAM ON JANUARY 29 AT 6:30 PM

HTTPS://TINYURL.COM/ASKGLADWELL

Presented By:

DAILY COLLEGIAN

CENTRE DAILY TIMES