Fair Planet Advisors:

Providing answers for clients looking to align their values with their investments.

JACOB BERTRAM
Columbia Gorge News

With each and every individual, non-profit, and business, Fair Planet Advisors is putting the power of sustainable investing into their client's hands.

It's a fact of our modern life that green-washing has become prevalent – that is, the practice of misleading customers about environmental impacts. But White Salmon-based financial planners Fair Planet Advisors are part of a growing movement truly walking the walk towards a more sustainable economy for future generations by empowering investors to make more informed decisions about where their money is going. “About three years ago, we decided to focus solely on socially responsible investing,” said Michelina Roth, co-owner of Fair Planet Advisors.

She along with husband and Certified Behavioral Financial Advisor™, David Roth, have aligned their business with international models of sustainable investing, including adopting ESG standards and earning the “Certified B Corporation” via B Labs www.bcorporation.net. While plenty of corporations today operate under a “profit for shareholders-first” mentality, Fair Planet Advisors has a different way of doing business. The B Corp certification acknowledges that business should consider all stakeholders, including shareholders along with customers, employees, supply chains and communities.

“We want to give sound financial advice, while still recognizing the emotions, values, and goals that are there for each individual client. It's twofold - a sustainable financial future for our clients and a sustainable world for today and future generations” David said. So what exactly are ESG criteria and what is unique about B Corp certification?

ESG, which stands for Environmental, Social, and Governance standards are a set of criteria used by socially conscious investors to evaluate a company's operations to screen for potential investments.

Environmental criteria consider how a company operates as a steward of nature, while social criteria takes into account a broad ranges of issues like human rights, non-discrimination, gender equity, poverty, and more. Governance relates to company and state leadership, executive pay, audits, internal controls, and shareholder rights.

In the same vein, certification as a B Corp from B Lab means Fair Planet Advisors have a proven track record of sustainability having received a score of 146.5 out of 180 from the rigorous independent audit meant to hold companies around the world to the standards for social and environmental impact.

“To have a world that we want our children to live in, both from a planetary perspective, but also from a social justice perspective, we really need to support those kinds of business practices evaluated by B Lab and make wise choices as to where we put our money both in our daily purchases and our investments,” Michelina said. “We're helping people divest from things they don't want to be in and invest in corporations that consider their supply chains, their employees and what is best for their customers.”

Michelina said they scored high on the certification due to their goals aligning so well with those of B Lab – “It's about empowering each individual client to make their own choices. And, as B Lab says, ‘systems were made by people and so they can be changed by people.’ At Fair Planet Advisors, we are empowering individuals to be part of creating that world that we all want to live in, by voting with their money.”

While the roots of socially responsible investments go way back in history, the development of specific tools designed to organize securities based on their social and environmental impacts in the digital era is relatively new. Additionally they enable shareholder activism which is raising the bar and accountability of corporate boards to consider things like plastic reduction, and carbon net zero target dates, to name a few.

ESG screening tools are just one of the ways the Roths maintain their standards in business. Through the use of screening tools, the Roths have the ability to filter out securities based on a client's values and interests. Fair Planet Advisors is on the cutting edge of what is becoming possible in the industry.

It's been a pleasure to be in business together, they said, helping people plan for their financial future while helping them invest in more sustainable securities.

“Early in my career, the common industry trends were to sell, sell, sell - just get the commission,” David said. “But, that was never me. That's not how I want to do business and it became clear that I need to be independent, so that I can always make the decisions that are best for our client's specific needs and values.”

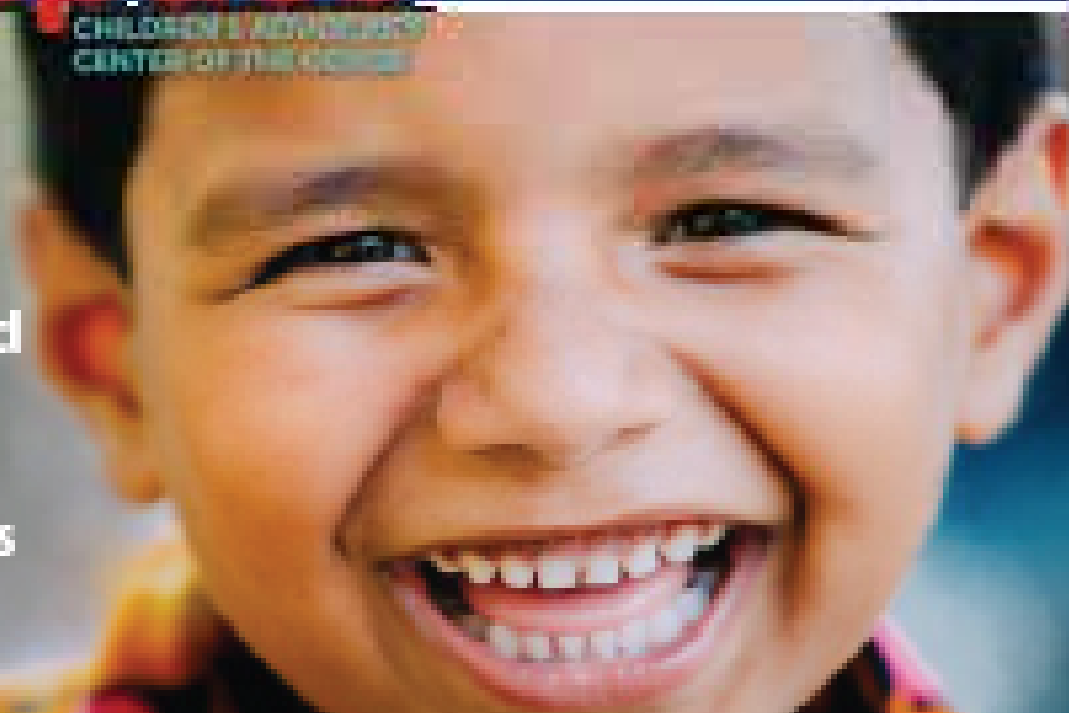

“Increasingly, I'm able to say we offer, ‘fantastic investment selections, aligned with the best fee structure for each individual client,’ with the myth being disproven that ESG/SRI strategies means accepting lower returns,” David continued. “So, I'm proud of it all. I want to open the doors and tell everyone about what we do. And that's a really good place to be.”

To schedule an appointment with Michelina & David, visit www.fairplanetadvisors.com, email at info@fairplanetadvisors.com or call at 509-398-8428. Fair Planet Advisors is located at 107 W Jewett Blvd., Ste 100 in White Salmon, WA

Mountain and River Dental: Treating patients ages one to 101

NOAH NOTEBOOM
Columbia Gorge News

HOOD RIVER — Doctor Michael Carley started his career in dentistry in one of the oddest places. While on a study abroad trip to New Zealand studying microbiology he was fascinated with the effects of bacteria on the environment and oral health. Backpacking from town to town, Dr. Carley was invited to check out a local dentist's practice in the city of Dunedin. 22 years later, he now owns and operates his own dentist practice in Hood River, Ore. called Mountain and River Dental and Associates. Dr. Carley will continue the legacy of exceptional dentistry that Dr. Patrick Freeman started.

On the Heights in Hood River, planted on the corner of 12th Street and B Street, Mountain and River Dental welcomes new patients regardless of age. Dr. Carley underwent extra training to work with children as young as one year old. He is also experienced in treating "tongue tie," which can prevent babies and infants from developing improper speech or feeding problems.

A family man himself, Dr. Carley married his wife, Shannon (a native Oregonian), and together they have three beautiful children. Previously living in Santa Barbara, the family made the move to Oregon to be closer to family. Dentistry fascinates Dr. Carley because he gets to bridge the science of oral health and the art of a new smile. Dr. Carley wants to give patients a healthy smile, but also a smile that they can feel good about.

"Not only can I fix teeth to improve patients' health," said Dr. Carley. "But I can also give them a new smile and a fresh sense of confidence in themselves."

Mountain and River Dental provides a warm welcome to those who may feel nervous about going to the dentist. They offer three different levels of relaxation. Depending on the patient's level of concern with the dentist, Dr. Carley and his staff help with breathing exercises to calm nervous patients. Dr. Carley also offers nitrous oxide — more commonly known as the "laughing gas" — or they can even sedate patients who want to be unaware as they have their dental work done.

"I like to acknowledge the fact people may have a difficult time coming to the dentist," said Dr. Carley. "I take time to understand the patient and offer personalized care to whoever I am treating."

Dr. Carley also uses the newest technologies to treat gum disease and cavities at the earliest stage to prevent problems and diseases from getting worse. He uses lasers and 3D scanners to provide the safest and most effective treatments, ranging from gum problems to more advanced treatment such as implant therapy and treatments to replace missing or broken teeth.

As COVID has made it difficult for anyone to get back to a sense of normalcy, dentists must follow even stricter precautions. Dr. Carley and his staff have implemented infections control that follows protocol and have air filters in every operating room.

The next time you visit Mountain and River Dental the office may look a bit different than before. They are in the process of making renovations to the office space which will create a warm and welcoming environment. New floors, window coverings, freshly painted walls and a welcoming atmosphere area will make all members of the family feel right at home.

Vehicle care done right at moderate prices.

Riverview
COMMUNITY BANK

GETTING TO KNOW

Matt Stoneberg

Hello

I am the new Branch Manager at Riverview Community Bank. I grew up all over the state of Oregon. I was born in Eugene, raised in Troutdale, college in Salem and I lived in Bend for 7 years. In 2012, a job opportunity came up in Hood River and I jumped all over it to be in the beautiful Columbia River Gorge. I have over 20 years of sales experience, 12 years of that in banking and 2 years in insurance. My wife, Angie, was born and raised in Hood River where she also works. We are blessed to be the parents of two kiddos, Hailey and Austin. We also have 4 dogs, 2 goats, 2 pigs, a rabbit, and 40 chickens. We both love the Gorge and the communities that are rooted here. Away from work, we enjoy camping, being outside, spending quality time with my family in the Willamette Valley and Angie's family here locally.
