

The Daily Raven

A Russell Blvd and Columbia Missourian production

$1.50

Thursday, March 17, 2016

Russell University Begins

Star Wars S.T.E.M.

S.T.E.M.

Meredith Flippin

COLUMBIA - Star Wars stem is a class that teaches you about the galactic fantasy Star Wars. In this class you could learn how to make the Millennium Falcon and Light sabers. But Star Wars S.T.E.M. was not always a class without Rebecca Jones, because she created Russell U. And star wars S.T.E.M. was not always a class. It was only recently created. The teacher of Star Wars is Dustin Hurst, husband of Katie Hurst. She is the Russell U director. Student Alana Hoover said "the teachers are fun because they know a lot about Star Wars." In this class you do not have to know about Star Wars to make Star Wars figures.

Peg Pella: Folklore Genius

Eli Vincent

COLUMBIA - Have you ever wondered what Native Americans did in the past? Well if you do, I suggest talking to Peg Pella. Peg teaches 3rd, 4th, and 5th grade folk lore. She started to become interested into folklore when she was in college. She says that the kids are great and that she has a lot of knowledge with kids. When I walked in they were doing pictographs. Pictographs are the symbols you see on leather and on cave walls. Pictographs tell stories about what has happened. The kids have papers that tell you what the symbols mean. "In college my friends and I had a secret code." Peg says. Peg thinks that her class will succeed in life and they will use code when they are older.

St. Patrick's Day 2016

Yazin Merayyan

COLUMBIA - 9:00 A.M., today coach's RTI never suspected that the local school coach became the now legendary St. Patrick's day ninja. It as any other day when it happened. I right now have a witness. "Coach got a scarf from his wife and put it on his face like a ninja mask." Also, "a four leaf clover head light" says Meredith Flippin. I myself wonder if the St. Patrick's day ninja will ever appear ever. I need every person who has gym class to encourage coach to bring back the St. Patrick's Day ninja back now. Also reward for finding coach's leprechaun hair.

