

Missouri's football operations director one of few women in role

Brittany Boehm is one of seven women leading football operations at some of the biggest college football programs nationwide.

Out of 14 schools in the Southeastern Conference, there are two women at the helm of football operations: Boehm at Missouri, and Luci Strickland at Mississippi.

Of the 65 schools in the Power Five conferences, only seven have women running football operations. Besides MU and Ole Miss, the other five schools are Kansas State, Florida State, Virginia Tech, Texas and Washington.