Fully vaccinated? This is your guide to getting back to normal

Here is what you can safely start doing and the mitigation strategies you should continue to practice once you are fully vaccinated, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Someone is considered to be fully vaccinated two weeks after the second dose in a two-dose vaccine series or two weeks after a single-dose vaccine.

You can now ...

- Visit with people in a home or private setting without masks, even if they are not vaccinated.

- Travel domestically or internationally without a COVID-19 test or quarantining.

You should still ...

- Wear a mask and maintain social distancing while in public, around those who are unvaccinated and at higher risk of severe illness, and with unvaccinated people who do not live together.

- Continue washing your hands frequently, avoiding medium to large gatherings, and monitoring your symptoms — especially if you have been exposed to someone with COVID-19.
