

Discussions of West Area Plan, new developments continue

The plan guides development of 26 square miles on the western fringe of Columbia and is separated into three sections to account for each section's different challenges.

