KNOX KERANEN

Court Boice has stepped down as the chair of the Curry County Board of Commissioners. He will maintain his role as a full-time commissioner.

After failing to call an emergency meeting last week to address a spike in COVID-19 cases, Boice said he “can no longer justify wasting time trying to lead this current board,” during an August 18 regularly scheduled meeting.

However, Boice also cited a snafu over a parking space at the County Annex Building as a reason for stepping down.

The spot in question is located on the East side of the building along Colvin Street and is designated as a commissioner’s spot. During a July 21 board meeting, Boice said he does not use his commissioner’s space and requested the board re-designate it as public parking due to limited parking around the annex building. According to Boice, Treasurer David Barnes was using the spot.

“In the interest of serving the public and making it easier for them, I think this is a simple matter,” said Boice.

Commissioner John Herzog was also supportive of making more parking available to the public, however, he said the space Boice mentioned was not ideal.

Herzog said the hill on Colvin Street is too steep and the parking spaces on the East side of the building are narrow. Instead, he recommended they make some

DeFazio: GOP shares blame in Afghanistan

By DAVID RUPKALVIS

Congressman Peter DeFazio agreed the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan could have been handled better, but pointed most of the blame to the Republican administrations over the last two decades.

During a virtual town hall last week, DeFazio discussed several issues going on in the nation's capital and across Oregon.

DeFazio said he much prefers in-person town halls but due to the recent surge of COVID-19, he said in person would be too dangerous.

"We've all seen on television the tragedy unfolding in Afghanistan," DeFazio said. "First of all, Oregon was heavily involved with our National Guard units multiple times. Remember, the key objective was to eliminate or at least cripple Al Queda and to get Osama bin Laden, which we did."

DeFazio said the problems in Afghanistan really began when that mission changed.

"It could have been better," he said. "The whole world was behind us after 9/11. We could have defied history, but Donald Rumsfeld moved us to Iraq to change the course."

Juvenile department getting its own space

KNOX KERANEN

Curry County’s juvenile department will soon relocate to the Colvin Building.

Also referred to as a juvenile court, a juvenile department provides sanctions and services to youth ages 12-17 who have been referred by law enforcement for committing a crime. Currently, the county’s juvenile department is located within the county courthouse in Gold Beach, which also houses the sheriff’s office and the jail.

Wendy Lang, director of the juvenile department, highlighted the need for a new space during a board of commissioners meeting last Wednesday. Lang said it's been difficult to maintain confidentiality in the small office

Health care workers, K-12 school staff now mandated to get vaccinated

Governor Kate Brown has announced two new vaccination measures to address Oregon’s hospital crisis, caused by the Delta variant surge.

Brown said the measures will help keep Oregon students safe in the upcoming school year and minimize disruptions to in-person instruction.

Oregon’s vaccination requirement for health care workers will no longer have a testing alternative. Health care workers will be required to be fully vaccinated by October 18 or six weeks after full FDA approval, whichever is later.

All teachers, educators, support staff, and volunteers in K-12 schools will be required to be fully vaccinated by October 18 or six weeks after full FDA approval, whichever is later.

Brown made the announcement during a Thursday, Aug. 19, media briefing.

“With over 845 Oregonians hospitalized from COVID-19 and 226 Oregonians in our ICU’s (intensive care units), our hospital and ICU beds are over 93% full,” Brown said. “Overwhelmingly, the Oregonians who are being hospitalized or who are dying from COVID-19 are unvaccinated.”

“Our hospital system is on the verge of collapse,” Oregon Health Authority Director Patrick Allen said. “Patients are spending days in emergency rooms because critical care beds aren’t available. Patients are parked in hallways and staffing is critically short.”

Allen said more than a quarter of the adult population remains unvaccinated.

New death reported as COVID surges

KNOX KERANEN

Curry County tallied its 14th death from the COVID-19 virus last Thursday — a 90-year-old woman who died at Curry General Hospital.

Additionally, the county reported 61 new cases from Friday to Monday and an additional 24 cases Tuesday, according to data from the Oregon Health Authority.

Ginny Williams, CEO of Curry Health Network, said the health network will most likely activate its surge plan this week. Activating the surge plan could mean reallocating nurses, postponing all surgeries, as well as consolidating areas of the hospital and other health care facilities to make room for COVID patients.

“What you’re seeing in statistics reported we are definitely seeing as a reality at Curry Health Network,” said Williams.

Currently, Curry General has six COVID patients admitted, which is the most since the beginning of the pandemic. Additionally, the Brookings Emergency Department saw 41 patients Monday, many of them COVID-related, according to Williams.

Williams said the health network is considering setting up a temporary outpatient clinic, such as a tent outside an existing health care facility, potentially to conduct monoclonal antibody therapy.

According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, monoclonal antibodies are laboratory-made proteins that mimic the immune system’s ability to fight off harmful antigens such as viruses. Sotrovimab is a monoclonal antibody that is specifically directed against the spike protein of COVID-19, and is designed to block the virus’ attachment and entry into human cells. The FDA approved emergency use of monoclonal therapy for COVID-19 in May.

Earlier this month, Gov. Kate Brown deployed 1,500 National Guard members to assist at 20 hospitals throughout the state. Williams said the and allowing the Taliban to take over, DeFazio said it would have happened regardless of who was president.

"This was inevitable," he said. "President Trump cut a deal with the Taliban for withdrawal by May 31. President Biden extended that a little longer. This could have been planned better. We could have done a better job getting Americans out and getting Afghans out who provided such a tremendous service to our troops and our diplomats. Now, they're trying to make up for that, and hopefully they will succeed."

While DeFazio said there is a lot of work to be done in Congress, he said there have already been a lot of successes since Biden took office.

"It's already been a productive Congress," he said. "We passed the American Rescue Plan in March without a single Republican vote. With the assistance of the plan, we've created 4 million jobs in the last six months, the most robust economic growth in more than 30 years."

DeFazio also applauded some more legislative victories.

"I finally got the harbor trust fund freed up after a couple of decades of work, which will mean we'll be able to keep our ports better dredged on the Oregon Coast and around the country, making it safer for commercial fishing, for recreation and for large harbors like Coos Bay to better stimulate the economy and bring in better commodities."

While there have been some successes, DeFazio said there is still work to do.

"The next thing on the agenda is the infrastructure bill," he said.

"I've been working really hard with the administration and the Senate to try to move the bill that's long overdue. The federal government has not made a significant investment in our crumbling infrastructure in a couple of decades."

While DeFazio said he hopes something gets done quickly, he said the bill that came out of the Senate is not the answer.

Curry County reported the third most per capita cases in the state on Tuesday, trailing only Douglas and Josephine counties. Last Thursday, the county recorded its 14th death since the beginning of the pandemic. Curry Health Network is likely to activate its surge plan due to COVID this week.

health network applied for 18 of those guard members to assist Curry General, but she still wasn't sure if they would be approved. She said she would likely find out later this week.

"They did already tell me that personnel was getting really tight, so I'm not confident that we will be able to get National Guardsmen here, but we definitely identified a need for them," said Williams. "If at a minimum, all we got was five of them that would help us tremendously."

While the other larger population counties in Southern Oregon — Jackson, Coos, Douglas and Josephine — are experiencing dramatic case numbers, Curry is keeping up in cases per capita.

"It's not just those counties; and remember we are an older county, so our population is at higher risk, and even though we are smaller, every one of our patients counts just like theirs," said Williams.

In fact, Curry County reported the third most per capita cases in the state on Tuesday, trailing only Douglas and Josephine counties. Curry also reported a 17.7% test positivity rate. Williams said the Delta variant has put rural counties at greater risk.

"Early on in this thing it definitely felt like a metro kind of infection, where people are on top of each other, but now with the Delta variant being so contagious it doesn't matter whether you are in a rural place or not."

Regarding the state's vaccine mandate for health care workers, Williams said they are still waiting for clearer guidance from the state about who can qualify for exemptions, but they plan to follow the rule. This week, Curry County hit a milestone in the race to vaccinate, with exactly half of residents now fully vaccinated.

public spaces available in the lot on the North side of the building, which is a flatter area, and is where Boice parks.

"For older folks I think it's easier for them to go into that parking lot, they can get turned around and pull in head first," said Herzog.

Commissioner Chris Paasch said Barnes was using the commissioner's space because he and the treasurer had traded places in order to accommodate Paasch's breathing difficulties with a shorter walk. Paasch also echoed Herzog's concerns about making the Colvin Street spaces public.

"With this hillside, it's not only dangerous to have cars pull-in and back-out, it's also probably very difficult on that hill for people to push their doors open," said Paasch.

Boice did not agree the spots on Colvin Street were dangerous.

"I've been here four and a half years and I've never heard of somebody getting into any kind of wreck. Those are the two most convenient spots," said Boice.

Ultimately, the board unanimously voted in July to designate two public parking spots in the lot across the street, as well as an additional space on Colvin Street, which is the flatter of the two spaces — but it was not the spot Boice was determined to make public.

After announcing he would be stepping down from chair at the August 18 meeting, Boice doubled down on his demand for the commissioner's space to be re-designated as public parking.

"There's nothing inappropriate in me claiming the commissioner's spot for the public; bottom line," said Boice.

Paasch said he was surprised Boice was continuing the parking debate.

"I always appreciated Treasurer Barnes doing what he did, I thought it was a very kind gesture, and it seems like it created something that it didn't need to be. I am not picking on anyone here, I am just surprised at how much time we've spent on this when we've got so much to do," said Paasch.

Once again, Boice's request fell flat.

In an August 19 email to the Pilot, Boice wrote, "I simply requested Commissioners Paasch and Herzog to please have Barnes move one spot south, which is truly only a distance of about 8 feet. This would have properly opened the very best parking location for the public...I failed with both commissioners and Mr. Barnes, and I am ashamed that this simple request has become terribly political."

Without the responsibilities of chair, Boice said he will have more time to focus on county issues, such as COVID-19, fire prevention and "blocking out of control spending." Boice was appointed to the position in January.

Following a pair of 2-0 votes, Herzog was elected as the new chair and Paasch took his previous spot as vice chair. Boice abstained from both votes.

Opinion & Letters

Guest Opinion The Colorado River is sending us a message

By GARY WOCKNER

It feels like an apocalypse in the Southwest — wildfires, floods, drought, heat, smoke. This was not the norm when I moved to Colorado 35 years ago. Climate scientists may have predicted the arrival of these extreme events, but many admit their predictions have come true faster than they expected.

One outcome they pinpointed was the impact of heat and drought on water flows in the Colorado River. For the last 20 years this new climate, combined with booming human population growth, has parched landscapes, drained reservoirs and incited talk of water wars across the region. Lake Powell on the Colorado River, and Glen Canyon Dam which creates the reservoir, have become casualties of this strained environment.

Lake Powell is the second largest reservoir in the United States, but in the last year alone its water level has dropped 52 feet and the reservoir now sits at 31.4% full.

If you're a pessimist, that's over 68% empty. Water managers are already imposing cuts in water deliveries in some states; all their choices are filled with political pitfalls.

A further complication is that the federal government operates a hydroelectric plant at Glen Canyon Dam that provides cheap electricity to parts of the Southwest. The day is coming when the hydroelectric turbines will stop for want of water to spin them.

To save the lake and generate electricity, the government needs water. But where will that water come from?

Upstream of Lake Powell, in Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico are millions of acres of irrigated farms and ranches that suck massive amounts of water out of the Colorado River before it reaches Lake Powell. If those farms and ranches quit taking water and instead ran that water downstream, the lake and its electricity could be saved. To ensure that outcome, the federal government has hatched a plan it calls "demand management," which proposes to buy or lease massive amounts of farm and ranch water to prop up Lake Powell.

On the one hand, the farmers and ranchers would get paid for the water, and likely paid very well. If I were a rancher who owned water, I'd sit comfortably until the offering price for my water made me even more comfortable.

On the other hand, lots of people and businesses believe that irrigated farming, ranching and outdoor recreation are not only central to the region's economy, but also to its culture. Should that economy — and the soul of the Southwest — be sacrificed to save a manmade reservoir and its hydroelectricity?

I'm torn by this dilemma. If farms and ranches are dried up, more water flows down the river. More water in the river benefits fish and the environment. But there's another solution: We can save farms and ranches and instead drain Lake Powell, freeing the Colorado River to flow free through 169 miles of a drowned and beautiful place called Glen Canyon.

There's always the "save hydroelectricity" argument, but it's a red herring. There are other ways to generate electricity, including wind and solar. In fact, if you've ever stood near Glen Canyon Dam and its hydropower plant, you can't help noticing that it's surrounded by millions of acres of dry, sun-drenched landscape that would make a great place for a solar electricity farm.

Electricity can be replaced; farms and ranches cannot.

As we grapple with these tradeoffs, it's important to remember that even lower water flows are projected for the future, plus more severe heat and drought that will become the "new normal" for the Colorado River and the entire region. Lake Oroville, California's second largest reservoir, now has inactive hydro turbines because there's not enough water to turn them, its dusty lakebed a harbinger of what's to come for Lake Powell.

Let's also remember that Glen Canyon Dam was finished in 1963 and it and Lake Powell are only 58 years old. The region lived without them before, and it can live without them again. Now, nature is forcing our hand, telling us that it's time to breach the dam and let the Colorado River run free.

Paper 51

Thank you, St. Timothy's

As you are well aware, St. Timothy's Episcopal Church has been in the news lately, first for stepping to feed the needy when other churches closed down during the pandemic. Now they are again making news because they have once again stepped up to provide COVID testing and vaccinations when the city of Brookings (in the absence of a Public Health Department) has done nothing for its citizens,

It seems the bone of contention is that the neighbors are upset by the additional traffic caused by these services. An understandable problem. However, many of the other churches in town have very large parking lots and large community halls. If they were to step up and offer assistance to St. Timothy's - just think what a difference that would make! In other words - a problem shared is a problem halved.

I suggest that all pastors and their flock find and read Martin Luther's "Whether one may flee from a Deadly Plague" written in 1527. It is only eight pages long but very pertinent to the problem we are facing. I suggest the city council of Brookings read it, too.

Lastly, thank you to Father Bernie and his team for all they do for the people of Brookings and even further afield.

Veronica Spalding
Brookings

Let's end this thing

In the last 14 days, Curry County has had 308 cases, almost three times the number for the previous two week period (105), which means almost 36% of the COVID cases we've had in the last 18 months have happened in the last four weeks.

Gordon Clay
Brookings

Stop feeding the bears

St. Timothy's is a neighborhood church. If their neighbors no longer feel safe, then St. Timothy's needs to be held accountable as would any other neighbor that was making life difficult for others.

Before moving to Brookings, my wife and I lived in a middle-class neighborhood and the church across the street started doing homeless outreach programs. We were living in the house that my wife was born in and would have stayed, but we had people living in their cars in front of our house, sleeping on the sidewalks, making our library and park off limits to the residents and stealing everything that wasn't tied down.

These problems weren't being addressed by police or church officials, so we felt we had to leave so we could feel safe. To those people who commented on the lack of compassion of the church neighbors, walk a mile in their shoes.

Like most people, we feel empathy for those that are homeless by circumstance and are glad that there are programs that exist to help them get back on their feet. But the vast majority are homeless by choice. Whether it's an unwillingness to work or substance abuse, when you feed the bears, they forget how to hunt and they just look for the next handout.

Stand against tyranny

I would like to thank the Curry County Board of Commissioners for standing against tyranny.

"It is of great importance in a republic not only to guard the society against the oppression of its rulers, but to guard one part of the society against the injustice of the other part."

James Madison Federalist

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800- 280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-19- 873491-AB. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 800-280- 2832, or visit this internet website <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-19-873491-AB to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.~ NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 094721-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 094721-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. they're in now.

"If there's a youth in our office, I can't even be on the phone because you can hear everything in our office," said Lang. "We literally have a piece of blue painter's tape on the floor to keep kids on one side and confidential records on the other."

As it's against the law to hold youth in an adult jail, and there's no youth holding center, Lang said they are keeping detained youth at their desks.

"It wasn't too long ago that I sat in my vehicle outside with the youth in the backseat...because we just didn't have a secure place to keep the youth."

Typically, local juvenile departments are responsible for operating alcohol and drug prevention education programs in the county. Lang said they are in the process of hiring an employee to operate those programs, however, there's no room for them in the office.

Lang recommended the county move the juvenile department into the Colvin Building, which is currently unused.

Most recently, the county-owned building on Colvin Street housed the Curry Homeless Coalition, but it has remained vacant since CHC's lease expired in December 2020.

"I believe this is an opportunity for the juvenile department to go in and make it a full-center, with little or no cost to the county," said Lang.

After completing a few minor renovations, Lang said the department could move in and use the new space to expand services, including kick starting their alcohol and drug education program.

Commissioner John Herzog, who recently toured the Colvin Building with Lang, was in favor of the move.

"I think it's a use for that building that would be fantastic," said Herzog.

Commissioners Chris Paasch and Court Boice were also in favor of the move, and the board voted unanimously to approve it.

Evans featured artist at Manley Art Center

Mandate

variant is tightening," Oregon State Epidemiologist Dean Sidelinger said.

St. Charles Medical Center Bend's Chief Physician Jeff Absalon also joined the Zoom media briefing.

"I can't overstate this," Absalon said. "What we are going through right now is unimaginable. We are overwhelmed and this is really a dire situation."

Absalon said health care workers are suffering from moral injury because they are not able to care for their patients due to the surge.

Brown said the state doesn't have enough health care professionals to treat patients.

"We are all at risk right now when our hospitals are full," Brown said. "There may not be a hospital bed for you if you have an unexpected emergency. When ambulances have no where to go, people die from preventable deaths."

Brown said she is deploying all available resources to help, including deploying the National Guard and nurse strike teams, establishing temporary decompression units to free up bed space and removing barriers to discharging patients who no longer require hospital-level care.

Oregon has made requests to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the Biden-Harris administration, Brown said, for additional federal resources and support.

Brown has formed a Hospital Care Prevention and Response group consisting of health care stakeholders to problem solve in real time and suggest new measures to aid health care workers and hospitals during the ongoing-hospital crisis.

"We cannot wait for help to come," Brown said. "We must proactively implement solutions right now."

Brown said additional health and safety restrictions may be needed.

"All options are on the table," she said. "The best way to keep businesses open and families working is to get vaccinated," she said.

Sidelinger said the pandemic isn't confined to unvaccinated adults.

"Children are getting sick with COVID-19 in Oregon," he said. "Pediatric cases are highest among 12 to 17 year olds."

Oregon Education Department Director Colt Gill explained that protocols put into place last year at Oregon's schools are an effective protection for students.

"Face coverings, social distancing and other practiced protocols are in place and we are encouraging students who are eligible to get vaccinated."

In responding to reporters questions about mandating vaccinations for eligible students, Brown said, all options are on the table.

"We are exploring every possibility," she said.

Brown, Sidelinger, Allen, Gill and Absalon all urged people who have not been vaccinated to get vaccinated.

Reaction

The Oregon Education Association President Reed Scott-Schwalbach released

the following statement in part following Brown's announcement.

"OEA believes that today's vaccine requirement will help provide stability for our students this fall and will help improve safety in our schools and in our communities. The science on this issue is clear. Vaccines, coupled with other proven public health mitigation strategies, are the best way to ensure our schools stay open and are a safe place for students to learn and for educators to teach.

"We urge districts throughout the state to work collaboratively with educators on how this mandate is implemented at the local level and to continue efforts to maintain additional public health mitigation strategies such as the use of personal protective equipment, frequent testing, social distancing, ensuring proper ventilation and frequent disinfecting in our public schools."

Oregon Nurses Association President Linda Pond said the new state mandate will likely increase vaccination rates among those workers but will also put additional pressure on an already dangerous nurse staffing crisis in Oregon. Pond said some health care workers opposed to the vaccine mandates will leave the profession before accepting a mandate.

"Governor Brown's previous rule that required weekly testing with a waiver for health care workers who show proof of vaccination was a reasonable compromise that encouraged vaccination while protecting public health," Pond said. "We call on hospitals and health systems to focus on nurse retention and recruitment, invest in health care workers serving on the frontlines and open up a space at the decision-making table so they can hear from frontline nurses and caregivers. We must work together to protect our communities during this crisis."

Pond said the Oregon Nurses Association believes that the COVID-19 pandemic has shone a light on the deep fractures in the health care system.

Author Ash Davidson to visit Curry Public Library

Debut author Ash Davidson will visit Curry Public Library in September to discuss her epic, immersive novel Damnation Spring and to sign books. The event will take place Tuesday, September 7, at 11 a.m. outdoors at the library. The first 22 people to RSVP will receive a free copy of Damnation Spring when they attend the event. Curry Public Library also invites the community to read Damnation Spring and join in for a virtual book discussion on Thursday, September 23, at 5:30 p.m. For information, or to RSVP for either event, visit www.currypubliclibrary.org. Damnation Spring is Davidson's debut novel and is set in a Northern California logging town in the redwoods during the late 1970s. The town is wrrenched in two by a mystery that threatens to derail its way of life. Damnation Spring was released on August 3 and reviews have been glowing. Library director Jeremy Skinner believes that the author's personal story of growing up in northern California and the narrative of Damnation Spring will resonate with many people in our community. "It's not every day we are able to host an author that speaks fluently in the language of trees, logging and the coastal mindset. We hope that the community will take advantage of this opportunity and join us for her visit." Ash Davidson was born in Arcata, California, and attended the Iowa Writers' Workshop. Her work has been supported by the Arizona Commission on the Arts and MacDowell. She lives in Flagstaff, Arizona.
