

Local Archer Competes at 4-H Nationals, Team Oregon finishes 8th in Nation

By LINDA LEE
Curry Coastal Pilot

Isaiah Hodges, a 15-year-old archer from Brookings, competed for the first time at the national level this past summer at the National 4-H Shooting Sports Championships in Grand Island, Nebraska.

"Shooting the bow and meeting people are my favorite parts of the sport," Hodges said.

Hodges competed in the compound archery division. He, and the team, competed against other archers from across the country.

The event brought together 33 states and 124 competitors in the compound archery discipline alone. Held over a full week in Grand Island, Nebraska, the schedule was packed from start to finish, from equipment checks and practice sessions to opening and closing ceremonies, and of course, three full days of intense competition.

Day one featured the FITA round, day two was the Field competition, and day three was the 3D Target event. Team Oregon proudly held their own among the nation's best, finishing 8th in the nation, an achievement to be incredibly proud of.

The weather in Nebraska added an unexpected level of challenge. The week brought extreme heat, high humidity, sudden thunderstorms, and even a record 7.5 inches of rain in a single night, an amount they hadn't seen in years. That storm nearly canceled the 3D Target event, but thanks to the efforts of organizers and volunteers, all the targets were moved to a different field. The competition went forward, though it started late and extended well into the hot, humid evening.

And then, there was the wind. Strong, unpredictable gusts swept across the open fields, making every shot even more difficult. It tested the skill and focus of each competitor in a way that no indoor practice ever could.

"The young archers showed true grit and resilience, standing out in the open for hours with no shade, pushing through fatigue, heat, wind, and storms and never gave up," said Tiffany Hodges, Isaiah's mom.

Hodges credits archery with teaching him valuable life skills like patience, discipline, confidence and communication. He's also grateful for the support of his parents, coaches, and fellow archers, including James Anderson, who competed at nationals last year and has been mentoring Hodges.

"I've learned a lot from my coaches and teammates," Hodges said. "They've helped me improve my skills and confidence."

Hodges is hopeful that competing at nationals will open doors for him, including potential scholarships and opportunities to compete at higher levels. He's also excited to represent Brookings, and Oregon, at the national competition.

"It's been amazing to watch these kids grow as archers and as individuals," said Thompson who is proud of the progress Hodges and the other archers in the club have made. "They're learning valuable life skills and developing a strong sense of community."

The National 4-H Shooting Sports Championships is the largest shooting competition in the world, with participants from all over the country competing in various disciplines, including archery, muzzleloader, shotgun and more.

"I'm proud to be part of the Brookings 4-H community," Hodges said. "I'm grateful for the support I've received and I'm excited to see what the future holds."

As the nation's largest youth development organization, 4-H is a key program of the Cooperative Extension System, supported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). In Curry County, Oregon State University (OSU) Extension plays a crucial role in providing resources and guidance to ensure local youth thrive.

"Our mission is to provide hands-on learning experiences that help youth develop life skills, leadership and a sense of community," said a representative from the OSU Extension office. "With the support of Oregon State University, Curry County's

City of Brookings Staff Highlight: Kim Kennedy

By WENDY GIORDANO

If you've ever called city hall or stopped by the customer service window, chances are you've met Kim Kennedy. She's the friendly voice on the phone and the smiling face ready to help.

For nearly fourteen years, Kennedy has been providing customer service, answering calls, handling utility billing, accounts receivable, business licenses and transient lodging tax, all while making sure residents feel welcome and supported.

"Kennedy has been a cornerstone of our team at City Hall for nearly fourteen years," said Brookings City Manager Tim Rundel. "Her compassion, patience and integrity shine through in everything she does. Brookings is a better place because of her service and we are grateful for her dedication."

Before joining the City of Brookings, Kennedy worked in a variety of finance-related administrative management jobs. A long-time Brookings resident of more than thirty years, Kennedy and her husband have four children and six grandchildren.

When asked what she enjoys most about her work, Kennedy didn't hesitate. "The people. I love knowing that the work

I do makes a real difference in some people's daily lives. Whether I'm answering a question, solving a problem, or just offering a kind word, it's rewarding to be part of something that helps our city run smoothly. I do my best to be patient and helpful. I try to treat each person with respect and kindness and enjoy being able to help people walk away with answers, or at least a little less stress than when they came in."

Outside of work, she loves spending time with her family and friends, volunteering, enjoying a little quiet time, and being with her loyal doodle, Raye, who is always faithfully by her side.

The City of Brookings is grateful for Kennedy's dedication, kindness and service, qualities that make her an invaluable part of our team and a trusted connection for our residents.

"Kennedy has been the steady, welcoming presence our community counts on when they call or visit City Hall," shared Human Resources and Finance Director Lu Ehlers. "That kind of consistency builds trust, and Brookings is fortunate to have someone so dedicated to serving our residents with care and kindness."

Del Norte TriPLICATE Ceases Publication Under Country Media

Country Media Staff
The Wednesday, September 17, issue of the weekly Del Norte TriPLICATE was the newspaper's final edition under Country Media.

In 2019, Country Media, Inc. purchased the Del Norte TriPLICATE out of bankruptcy. It was a purchase that included the weekly Curry Coastal Pilot in Brookings, OR.

"When we decided to purchase these two publications out of bankruptcy six years ago, we were looking to add to our family of papers along the Pacific Coast," said Country Media's chief executive, Joe Warren. "We knew going in there would have to be changes to enable us to maintain sustainability of these failing businesses."

In addition to The TriPLICATE, Country Media owns nine Oregon newspapers, most of them along the Pacific coastline.

"The Salem, OR-based company will continue to publish the Brookings Curry Coastal Pilot," said Warren.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Representative Cliff Bentz is claiming he cannot hold in-person town halls because they are being disrupted by Indivisible. Indivisible is a volunteer-driven, nonpartisan organization focused on voter education, organizing, and peaceful protest in support of human rights, food assistance, healthcare, disability rights, gender equity, women's rights, bodily autonomy, and environmental protection.

I am a co-leader of ORD2 Indivisible. Our Federal Team meets with Bentz's staff a couple of times a month because he refuses to face us—even on Zoom. For months we have requested meetings with him, but we are continually denied. His staff says we are among the most polite and respectful constituents they meet. We come prepared with information, news articles, and studies from reliable sources such as the Congressional Budget Office. Where is Bentz's proof that we cause disturbances? He blames us for any disruption, regardless of the source.

What he is truly upset about is that we are educating voters and showing he is not representing them—he is representing the Trump administration and billionaires. He tells constituents he is not cutting SNAP, Social Security, or healthcare, yet he voted to cut $880 billion from these programs.

Oregon deserves a representative who listens and tells the truth. We need new leadership in 2026. If you know someone who would serve the people better, please contact us.

From Swimming Lessons to Scholarships: Gold Beach Rotary's Health Impact

Celebrating 75 Years of Rotary Partnerships

When the Rotary Club of Gold Beach talks about building a healthy community, they mean it. The Rotary Club of Gold Beach and Curry Health Foundation has built a partnership for a healthier Gold Beach.

Thanks to our ongoing collaboration with the Curry Health Foundation, which is the charitable arm of Curry Health Network, that vision has touched nearly every corner of our town.

"This partnership is a perfect example of how working together makes us stronger," said Anna Marie Curtis, President of the Rotary Club of Gold Beach. "The Curry Health Foundation shares our belief that everyone deserves access to health and safety resources, no matter how remote they live."

In a rural place like ours, where access to care and resources can be a challenge, Rotary of Gold Beach and the Curry Health Foundation have worked to change that by providing not just programs, but peace of mind for families.

Making Waves in Water Safety

One of the biggest sponsored events allows every Gold Beach 3rd grader at Riley Creek can now take part in swimming and water safety lessons.

"We've seen children go from too scared to step into the pool to confidently floating, swimming and even learning how to help a friend in trouble," said Curtis. "These aren't just lessons, they are life saving skills in a community surrounded by water."

In future, the hope is to be able to include our homeschool 3rd graders as well so that every youth receives these critical skills by the time they are in 4th grade, regardless of whether they attend our local elementary school or are schooled at home.

Supporting Families, Easing Stress

Through our High on Health Fundraiser partnership, the Rotary Club has also helped provide school supplies for every student K-6 at Riley Creek Elementary. For the past two years, parents haven't had to worry about the burden of back-to-school shopping and every child has started the year on equal footing with the tools they need to succeed.

Fighting Food Insecurity
This partnership has also supported food security programs. Last summer, 721 lunches were served to local youth through Curry Public Library and a network of partners including Christian Help Food Bank, Gold Beach Community Center, McKay's Market, Christina Haakenson, private donors and many amazing volunteers.

In addition, Gold Beach High School and Riley Creek Elementary have both received emergency GoPacks through collaborations with the Ford Leadership Group, Rotary of Gold Beach and the Curry Health Foundation, ensuring no child goes hungry.

Investing in the Future
The Rotary Club of Gold Beach and the Curry Health Foundation have also awarded scholarships to local youth entering health-related fields, building the next generation of doctors, nurses, physical therapists, psychologists and caregivers who will serve this community in years to come.

"These programs aren't just nice extras, they are investments in safety, health and opportunity," said Curtis.

New Short Fiction Contest Honors Eugene Author Cai Emmons

Open for submissions from Oregon and Washington Writers until October 31st

Oregon and Washington writers are invited to submit their unpublished short stories to the Cai Emmons Short Fiction Contest, a new regional literary contest honoring the life and legacy of acclaimed Eugene, Oregon, author Cai Emmons. Submissions are open until October 31, 2025.

Presented by Wordcrafters in Eugene, a literary arts nonprofit organization, the Cai Emmons Short Fiction contest celebrates bold, imaginative fiction reflecting the themes Emmons explored in her work—grief and loss, complex family dynamics, environmental issues, magical realism, and women's experiences and identities.

"Cai's vivid imagination and relentless spirit shine through her writing," said Jaeux Bartlett, Associate Director at Wordcrafters in Eugene. "This contest celebrates her legacy by uplifting writers who write with the same heart, depth, and daring."

The contest offers $1,900 in prizes, including a $700 Cai Emmons Short Fiction Contest Grand Prize, as well as $200 awards in categories such as magical realism, environmental/climate themes, female protagonist, family dynamics, experimental fiction, and aftermath of loss.

Finalists will be selected by a panel of volunteer readers, with final decisions made by acclaimed author and University of Oregon writing professor Miriam Gershow, who brings a wealth of experience in both short and long-form fiction.

Winning stories will be published in a professionally-produced anthology, launching in February 2026 at the Wordcrafters Be Writing Festival. All winners will receive a complimentary copy of the anthology.

Oregon and Washington writers can submit their original, unpublished short fiction (up to 3,000 words) via Submittable until October 31, 2025. The entry fee is $7 (or $5 for Wordcrafters members), with fee waivers available for BIPOC, QTGNC, and disabled writers upon request.

Submission guidelines, award information, and judging criteria can be found at: wordcrafters.org/cai-emmons-short-fiction-contest.

The Cai Emmons Short Fiction Contest is made possible through the support of the Emmons-Calandrino Family Trust to continue Cai's legacy of courageous, thought-provoking fiction.

About Cai Emmons
 Cai Emmons was the author of Weather Woman, Unleashed, Vanishing, Sinking Islands, and His Mother's Son, among others. Curry Coastal Pilot

The Wild Rivers Film Festival (WRFF) celebrated its third season with dynamic storytelling that showcased several dozen independent films from around the world with many of them shot in the Pacific Northwest.

The 2025 lineup included features, documentaries and shorts from around the globe that explored themes of identity, environment, resilience and artistic expression. Films were selected not only for their cinematic merit, but also for their ability to resonate with coastal communities and film lovers alike.

Spanning four screens and multiple venues in Brookings, the festival continued its mission to bring world-class indie cinema to the Southern Oregon Coast while supporting a local film economy and emerging regional talent. WRFF celebrates diverse voices in filmmaking with a focus on independent, innovative and socially impactful stories.

Making its North American premiere was Dezo Hoffman, a captivating documentary about the legendary photographer behind iconic images of The Beatles, The Rolling Stones, and other music legends.

Working with Hoffman

in London, during that time, was music journalist and Brookings' resident Lon Goddard, who was interviewed for the film for this intimate look at rock history through the lens of one of its most prolific visual chroniclers.

Among this year's highlights was the world premiere of Wild Wild Rivers, a bold new TV pilot produced by local youth during the 2025 Wild Rivers Film Workshop. Shot entirely in Brookings and Smith River, and supported by professional filmmakers from across the country, the show is a celebration of teen storytelling, regional culture and cinematic innovation.

This year's presenting sponsor was the Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation, whose continued support has helped elevate the festival as a cultural and educational cornerstone in Curry County.

Grants from the Roundhouse Foundation and the Brookings Harbor Education Foundation, along with support from Sutter Coast Hospital, Southwestern Oregon Community College Curry Campus, Coos Curry Electric Coop and Partnership for the Performing Arts helped make the 2025 film workshop possible.

WRFF is a nonprofit organization dedicated to bringing art and culture

On Set: Running camera and sound to the Wild Rivers Coast through independent cinema. By offering professional workshops, public screenings and filmmaker question and answers. WRFF continues to foster a vibrant film culture in one of Oregon's most scenic and inspiring regions.

"Every year, WRFF brings together passionate filmmakers whose stories spark imagination, conversation and change," said Bev Juday, WRFF Board President. "This year's winners exemplify the creativity and courage that inspire our festival community."

The festival concluded with an awards ceremony honoring outstanding achievements across features, shorts, documentaries and screenplays.

The Oregon Department of Aviation Celebrates Completion of Major Cape Blanco State Airport Runway and Electrical Improvement Project

CAPE BLANCO, OR – State and local officials joined the Oregon Department of Aviation (ODAV) for a ribbon cutting ceremony on August 21st to celebrate the completion of the extensive Runway and Electrical Improvement Project at Cape Blanco State Airport (5S6). This critical infrastructure upgrade significantly enhances safety, operational efficiency, and the long-term viability of this vital coastal aviation facility.

The ceremony marked the culmination of a multi-phase project, which began in August 2024 and recently concluded. Attendees included Senator David Brock Smith and Representative Court Boice. Key improvements included:

- Runway Resurfacing: The existing runway underwent resurfacing, addressing decades of wear and tear, and ensuring a smoother, safer landing and takeoff experience for aircraft. The runway was repaved the full 5,100 feet in length and is 75 feet wide.

- All New Airfield Lighting System: For the first time in half a century, the airport has functioning airfield lighting. An all-new LED airfield lighting system has been installed, providing superior visibility for pilots, especially during low-light conditions and inclement weather. This includes new runway edge lights, taxiway lights and signage, a new airport beacon, electrical building and regulator, lighted windsock, Runway End Identifier Lights (REILs) and Precision Approach Path Indicators (PAPIs) on each runway end.

The airport serves recreational pilots, agricultural operators, and provides a critical link for emergency medical flights and search and rescue operations. It also supports visitors to Cape Blanco State Park and surrounding attractions.

“Southwest Oregon, Curry County, our communities and residents are grateful for Oregon Department of Aviation’s investments in the Cape Blanco State Airport,” said Senator David

Brock Smith (R-Port Orford). “Since my time as the President/Director of the Port Orford & North Curry County Chamber of Commerce over 20 years ago,

I have been advocating for upgrades on infrastructure. The Cape Blanco Airport has always been identified as and will be, a critical emergency response hub after the Cascadia Subduction Zone event, expected to survive the earthquake and subsequent tsunami as well as rated to handle heavy loaded aircraft. This airport will be an important hub for all of southwest Oregon’s emergency response and recovery efforts. Additionally, the modernization of the lighting and approach systems, along new paving will assist with needed economic development, from opportunities for businesses, tourism, exports and more. We appreciate ODAV and their work at Cape Blanco, and their efforts for our rural airports across the state,” concluded Senator Brock Smith.

Representative Boice stated, “Under the leadership of Director Kenji Sugahara, it’s obvious that our Oregon Department of Aviation assures that our states 28 State Owned Airports are balanced in the scarce resource’s implementation throughout. The North Curry Cape Blanco Airport is an absolute treasure and seeing ODAV strategically place valuable funding into this facility is timely and an excellent investment. The Sugahara Teams vision of the future for our Economy, Emergency Preparation, Environmental safeguards and even Employment is a solid approach to wise growth, especially for Southern Oregon. As a former Curry Commissioner and now State Rep., I and my District 1 are grateful.”

The project was funded entirely by the state, including legislatively directed funds in HB 5202 in the amount of $2,598,406 and $1,222,779 from ODAV’s State Owned Airports Reserve (SOAR) Program. The Cape Blanco State Airport does not receive federal funding, making this state investment crucial to its long-term operation.

Team USA Surfer Calls for Oregon Coast Support to Grow Adaptive Surfing

Emily Purry, the only Oregonian adaptive surfer on Team USA, is on a mission to bring adaptive surfing to the Oregon Coast.

Purry, who is legally blind, began surfing at 40 and has since competed on the world stage. Now, as she represents Oregon with Team USA Para Surfing, she is calling on local coastal businesses, volunteers, and athletes to help expand opportunities for people with visual impairments and disabilities to participate in surfing.

"The Oregon Coast has some of the most beautiful waves in the world," said Purry. "I want to see them filled with athletes of all abilities. With local support, we can make the Oregon Coast a hub for adaptive surfing."

Purry is seeking:

- Local sponsors to support her Team USA journey and adaptive surf events.
- Volunteers to guide and assist disabled athletes in the surf.
- Athletes with disabilities in the Pacific Northwest who are ready to try surfing.

Her goal is to make adaptive surfing a permanent and celebrated part of Oregon's coastal culture - with support from the communities who call it home.
