

COVID-19 testing more easily available

BY JILLIAN WARD
Staff Writer

Tests for the novel coronavirus, or COVID-19, will become more easily accessible for Oregonians this week.

Jonathan Modie, lead communications officer for the Oregon Health Authority Public Health Division and one of the public information officers on the COVID-19 response, said that the Oregon State Public Health Laboratory has received packages Tuesday, March 10, that will allow it to continue its testing and more will arrive Wednesday, March 11. This will provide enough materials to have tests for upwards of 4,800 people.

“That’s good news,” he said. “We also expect clinical labs at a handful of hospitals to go online next week. There are two commercial laboratories that are now offering COVID-19 testing. One is LabCorp and the other is Quest Diagnostics. They are offering testing and clinicians, at their discretion, can take advantage of that opportunity.”

He advised folks to speak with their healthcare providers if they are experiencing or have experienced symptoms and from there clinicians can choose to test patients. It is no longer required clinicians to ask the Oregon Health Authority for approval to test a suspected COVID-19 patient and then to have OHA to request a test from the Centers for Disease Control.

However, the Oregon State Public Health Laboratory wants to ensure that people who are most sick get tested. This includes people who are hospitalized, have evidence of a lower respiratory viral infection or viral pneumonia, or those who test negative for the flu.

“Those are folks who are most sick and we want to make sure they get tested,” he said.

When asked about possible cases in Coos County, Modie said no confirmed cases are being reported at this time.

“I can tell you the situation is changing by the hour,” he said. “COVID-19 is now in the community in Oregon. There is community transmission and is just as likely to happen in Coos County as any of the other counties ... We have seven counties so far that have cases and I think we’re expecting more.”

Modie advised that people can take steps now to protect themselves and their family members by washing their hands with soap and water for 20 seconds or use hand sanitizer if soap and water is not available. Of course, covering coughs and sneezes can also prevent the spread of the disease.

“Absolutely stay home if you’re sick

Coronavirus impacts Chetco Activity Center lunches

BY BRIAN WILLIAMS
Pilot Editor

The Chetco Activity Center will not be serving a sit-down lunch to visitors for the next two weeks in the wake of Gov. Kate Brown’s coronavirus recommendations.

A to-go lunch will be available to people at the center located at 550 Chetco Lane in downtown Brookings, stated Chetco Activity Center board member Glenda Groff in an email to The Pilot shortly before 1 p.m.

“All other activities (at the center) will continue as usual,” Glenda wrote, including the Meals on Wheels program.

The announcement was made midday Friday, March 13, proving that when it comes to the coronavirus change happens quickly. A couple of hours earlier that day, it was business as usual for the center.

Mid-Friday morning, some of the center’s regulars sat in the dining room drinking coffee and talking. Of course, they were all sitting a little farther apart than usual.

Bottles of hand sanitizer could be seen everywhere and notices about how to properly wash your hands were posted on doors, walls and windows as the state and nation attempt to curb the spread of the coronavirus.

“We are going to stay open,” said Groff at the time. “We are going to follow the guidelines.”

Effective immediately, all large gatherings in the state of Oregon over 250 people will be canceled for four weeks until April 8, Brown said during a Thursday, March 12, news conference. For the elderly and people

Spring Whale Watch Week returns March 21-29

The Spring Whale Watch Week event returns to the coast March 21-29 to celebrate the more than 25,000 Gray whales expected to migrate north past Oregon over the next few months.

Trained volunteers will be stationed 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day at some of best whale watching sites on the coast, ready to help visitors spot the whales and to answer questions about the animals. A map of the whale watching sites is available online on the official whale watch webpage on the Oregon State Parks website.

Due to lower volunteer turnout this year, not all sites will be staffed by volunteers or park rangers. Check the whale watch webpage for the latest information and updates before heading to the coast.

Whale spotters can also visit the newly-reno-

COVID-19 UPDATES

Governor Kate Brown announces statewide school closure

STAFF REPORT

Governor Kate Brown announced the closure of all Oregon K-12 schools late Thursday night, March 12. The announcement came just hours after Brookings Harbor School District and Central Curry School District 1 had announced cancelations of all field trips, large gatherings for concerts and events, and sports competitions.

The closure from Monday, March 16 through Tuesday, March 31 is due to staffing challenges and health concerns about the public health threat of coronavirus, according to a press release from Governor Brown.

Local school districts have provided additional information for parents and the surrounding community.

Brookings Harbor School District

“During this extended ‘Spring Break’ all school activities, including athletic events and practices, are canceled,” according to a press release from Brookings Harbor School District interim Superintendent Chris Eberhardt. “Extending spring break is a preventative measure to help slow the spread of COVID-19 (also known as ‘novel coronavirus’) and its impacts on our citizens and health care systems.

“Our food service director and community food bank partners have already met to identify strategies to provide meals to students next week and we hope to be able to share details with student families as soon as possible of a process where meals may be distributed and/or picked-up.

“Due to the abruptness of the school closure, there will be no required academic work assigned to students to complete online or via packets during the break. We will share more information and resources on this topic as the end of the break nears.

“This dynamic and historical public health situation has no precedent and is changing daily. We will do our best to keep families informed on developments. We hope you all stay safe and healthy and we look forward to seeing all our students again on Wednesday, April 1.”

Central Curry School District 1

“There will be free meals provided for students/children ages 0-18 during the week of March 16-20 and March 30-31,” said CCSD1 Superintendent Tim Wilson. “Breakfast and lunch will be served from 9-11:30 a.m. at Riley for students and staff’s return. For continuous updates, refer to the district web site at www.ccsd.k12.or.us Creek (School) starting on Monday, March 16. We are in final stages of arranging meals to be picked up at other sites in the district. I will announce that change when approved. This is a grab-and-go meal. “There will be no school activities held, including the ASCEND program, during this time period. District custodial employees will continue with its deep cleaning in preparation or through the district-approved Facebook pages that

Census Bureau issues statement regarding coronavirus and upcoming count

On March 11, the U.S. Census Bureau said it is carefully monitoring the coronavirus (COVID-19) situation and will follow the guidance of federal, state and local health authorities. They have also established the Census Bureau COVID-19 Internal Task Force to continuously monitor the situation and update our Pandemic Addendum to the Census Bureau Continuity of Operations (COOP) Plan.

Their preparation and contingency planning centers on two key principles: “The health and safety of our staff and the public is of the utmost consideration and importance. We must fulfill our constitutional obligation to deliver the 2020 Census counts to the President of the United States on schedule, and we must adhere to our core task of counting everyone once, only once, and in the right place.”

The key message right now for anyone with questions about how COVID-19 will affect the 2020 Census: It has never been easier to respond on your own, whether online, over the phone or by mail — all without having to meet a census taker.

From March 12-20, households will receive the first of several invitations to participate in the 2020 Census.

The Census Bureau is encouraging everyone to respond online as soon as you receive your invitation with the provided instructions to go online. Instructions include the web address for the online questionnaire in English as well as where to respond online in 12 additional languages — ensuring over 99% of U.S. households can respond online in their preferred language.

The invitation will also include phone numbers for English and the 12 additional languages — ensuring over 99% of U.S.

households can respond over the phone in their preferred language. Telephone assistance is available seven days a week for those who prefer to respond by phone.

Some households — in areas less likely to respond online — will receive a paper questionnaire in the first mailing; all households that have not responded online or by phone will receive a paper questionnaire between April 8 and April 16. The paper questionnaire includes a prepaid postage envelope to return it by mail.

Census takers plan to conduct the nonresponse followup operation in a handful of communities beginning as early as April 9, and across the country on May 13. Households can still respond on their own during this phase (online and phone response is available through July 31).

“The Census Bureau will closely follow guidance from public health authorities when conducting this operation, as we do when conducting all field operations. If we need to delay or discontinue nonresponse follow-up visits in a particular community, we will adapt our operation to ensure we get a complete and accurate count,” officials stated. “Currently, we are successfully conducting fieldwork for some of our non-decennial surveys by phone in areas where we are seeing an outbreak.”

Similarly, partnership specialists are working with local partners and conducting meetings that may have been in person by phone and teleconference. “We designed our 2020 operations precisely so we could offer multiple ways to respond. In so doing, we are able to make necessary adaptations at the local level for special operations as well,” officials stated.

For instance, “group quarters,” the operation which counts people in nursing homes, college dorms, prisons and other institutional living facilities, includes a myriad of ways to respond, such as via eResponse, paper listing or self-enumeration by the facility. The same is true for “service-based enumeration” which counts people experiencing homelessness at the site where they receive services. The site administrators have multiple options for response.

“In short, where a community, facility or service organization makes a change that would affect any field operation, we will adapt to make sure we are getting the same population counted another way,” officials stated. We will work to share information about any change in operations with local authorities, community partners and the media. We will also work with community partners to continue to encourage self-response through the end of the nonresponse follow-up phase.”

The Census Bureau has a significant contingency budget to address costs of operational changes. As needed, they will hire additional workers, manage operations out of different offices or mail additional reminders or questionnaires to areas affected by an outbreak.

“We will continue to monitor the situation and take appropriate steps in consultation with public health authorities,” officials stated.

CDFW seeks artists to enter annual California Duck Stamp Art Contest

The California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) invites artists to submit original artwork to the 2020-21 California Duck Stamp Art Contest. Submissions will be accepted April 27 through May 29.

The contest is open to U.S. residents 18 years of age or older as of Feb. 27. Entrants need not reside in California.

The winning artwork will be reproduced on the 2020-21 California Duck Stamp. The top submissions will also be showcased at the Pacific Flyway Decoy Association’s art show in July.

The artwork must depict the species selected by the California Fish and Game Commission, which for the 2020-21 hunting season is the canvasback. These fast-flying, diving ducks are the largest of their genus, Aythya, and are characterized by a white back with a reddish-brown neck and head that slopes gently into a long black beak. In California, the canvasback migrates along the Pacific Flyway to wintering grounds on lakes, estuaries and protected bays.

The design is to be in full color and the medium (or combination of mediums) of the artist’s choosing, except that no photographic process, digital art, metallic paints or fluorescent paints may be used in the finished design.

Photographs, computer-generated art, art produced from a computer printer or other computer/mechanical output device (airbrush method excepted) are not eligible for entry and will be disqualified. The design must be the contestant’s original hand-drawn creation.

The entry design may not be copied or duplicated from previously published art, including photographs, or images in any format published on the Internet.

All entries must be accompanied by a completed participation agreement and entry form. These forms and the official rules are available online at wildlife.ca.gov/duck-

-stamp/contest.

Entries will be judged in June. The judges’ panel, which will consist of experts in the fields of ornithology, conservation, and art and printing, will choose first, second and third-place winners, as well as an honorable mention.

Since 1971, CDFW’s annual contest has attracted top wildlife artists from around the country. All proceeds generated from stamp sales go directly to waterfowl conservation projects throughout California.

In past years, hunters were required to purchase and affix the stamp to their hunting license. Now California has moved to an automated licensing system and hunters are no longer required to carry the physical stamps in the field (proof of purchase prints directly onto the license).

However, CDFW will still produce the stamps, which can be requested by interested individuals at wildlife.ca.gov/licensing/collector-stamps.

Oregon reports first death to COVID-19

A 70-year-old man in Multnomah County is the first person to die from COVID-19 in Oregon. The Multnomah County resident was hospitalized at the Portland Veterans’ Affairs Medical Center and succumbed to his symptoms on Saturday, March 14.

The individual is not connected to the cases at the Oregon Veterans’ Home in Lebanon.

“While we knew we would arrive at this day at some point, it doesn’t lessen the impact,” said OHA director Patrick Allen. “Our thoughts and deepest sympathy are with the family of this individual who honorably served his country.”

The individual, who had underlying health conditions, tested positive for COVID-19 on March 10. The individual had no known contact to a confirmed case and had not traveled to a country where the virus is circulating.

“This is a sobering reminder that this virus is in our community and can be serious for older people and those with underlying conditions,” said Dr. Jennifer Vines, Multnomah County Health Officer. “This loss has motivated us to continue our efforts to minimize the impact of this virus on our community.”

State: 3 new presumptive positive COVID-19 cases

Oregon now has a total of 39 people who have been diagnosed with COVID-19. The Oregon Health Authority announced Sunday afternoon, March 15, three new cases of the novel coronavirus as of 11 a.m.

OHA is reporting one new case in Yamhill County, one new case in Deschutes County, and one new case in Linn County. The Yamhill County and Deschutes County cases are believed to be community acquired.

The case in Linn County is a staff member at the Oregon Veterans’ Home in Lebanon, which currently has nine residents who have tested positive. The employee was sent home when symptoms appeared and has remained in isolation ever since, in accordance with established infection prevention protocols and public health guidelines.

Oregon Department of Veterans’ Affairs is working closely with OHA to coordinate and prioritize testing for residents and staff at the Oregon Veterans’ Home in Lebanon.

“Protecting our dedicated staff, along with our residents, has always been the highest priority. All infectious disease control precautions were, and continue to be, taken to mitigate the spread,” said ODVA Director Kelly Fitzpatrick. “I cannot speak highly enough of the herculean efforts these staff members have taken to continue to provide exceptional care to our honored residents even before this outbreak. They are truly going above and beyond, and all efforts are being made by ODVA, our state agency partners, and our Linn County partners to support them in their critical work.”

The COVID-19 virus spreads like the flu, when someone who is sick coughs or sneezes close to another person (close means within about 6 feet). No group of people is more likely to get COVID-19 or spread it to others.

“I know it’s difficult to learn that we are seeing more active community spread of COVID-19, but this is something we’ve been expecting,” said Dean Sidelinger, M.D., M.S.Ed,

State Health Officer and Epidemiologist, OHA Public Health Division. “It’s a good reminder to take steps to protect yourself, and vulnerable friends and family members, by washing your hands, covering your coughs and sneezes, and staying home and away from others if you’re sick.”

Officials continue to urge all Oregonians to take steps to protect themselves, their families, and those who are most vulnerable to complications from COVID-19. Those considered “high risk” include adults 60 and older, or anyone with a serious health condition, including lung or heart problems, kidney disease, diabetes, or anyone who has a suppressed immune system.

People vulnerable to complications should follow federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommendations to stay home as much as possible and avoid gatherings.

Every resident should take these basic steps to protect themselves and those most at risk:

- Never visit a hospital or long-term-care facility if you have a fever or cough.
- Cover your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds.
- Regularly clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces like bathrooms, desks, countertops, doorknobs, computer keyboards, faucet handles, toys and cell phones.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, or mouth with unwashed hands.
- Stay home and away from others if you are ill.

After someone contracts COVID-19, illness usually develops within 14 days. Symptoms mirror those of the flu, including fever, cough, runny nose, headache, sore throat and general feelings of illness.

Commissioner Court Boice
Thanks Citizens -- Optimistic about the Curry Future

2020 will be a great time for America,
Oregon and our County

Sending gratitude to my Curry friends and all the people I am privileged to represent. I never expected that the decision my family and I made to run for a second term would result in no one else filing. I find that gratifying, very humbling, and motivation to work even harder!

We have a lot of difficulties here, but we also have many great opportunities. As we simultaneously prepare for a wonderful tourism season and a safe and quiet fire season, I am grateful to have the rest of this year, then 4 additional years to build on our successes and continue working to accomplish our goals.

I’m pleased that we have two excellent candidates running for the seat currently held by Sue Gold. You’ll be choosing either John Herzog or Shelia Megson. They each have the energy, heart, experience, integrity and fulltime dedication to team up and help move our County to a sound financial foundation.

- * Both would stand with me in understanding the importance of Law Enforcement, Public Safety and Public Security.
- * Both would stand with me in fiercely protecting our communities from Catastrophic Wildfire.
- * Both would stand with me in the pursuit of continued and long-term improvement of Health Care.
- * Both would stand with me in working for the best economic vitality on the Oregon Coast.

Friends, associates and concerned citizens are saying I have a renewed responsibility to lead and get the Curry work done. You can count on a full ‘Court’ press to rise above and address every county issue head-on. So, let’s do our very best to unite the entire County and work together as we continue to move forward.

You can still vote for me on May 19th, but will notice no opponent. Thanks again for your support, confidence and trust! Jer. 29:11

OBITUARIES

Mark Richard Getty
May 25, 1952 – February 4, 2020

Mark Richard Getty, a 45-year resident of Brookings-Harbor, Oregon, died at home on February 4, 2020. Mark was 67.

Mark is survived by his mother, Coral Getty of Citrus Heights, CA; his brother, Greg Getty of Berkeley, CA; his sister, Erin Albert of Albany, CA; his daughter, Samantha Getty of Brookings; his son, Chris Jones of Folsom, CA; and grandchildren, Araya Bateman, Tatum Daniels-Getty and Dakota Daniels-Getty of Brookings; his ex-wife Vicki Jones of O'Brien, OR and her daughter, Michelle Ramsey of Loomis, CA; his ex-wife, Marla Morrow, and her children, Cara Watling and Corley Watling of Kerby, OR. Mark is predeceased by his father, Richard Getty, of Loomis, CA; and brother, Brad Getty of Auburn, CA.

Mark was the proprietor of Getty's Auto, Boat & Upholstery in Brookings-Harbor since 1975 when he left the California heat for the Oregon coast. A master craftsman, Mark was known for his attention to detail and his artistry with leather. His clients included local fishermen and the U.S. Coast Guard. Mark would delight his daughter, and later, grandchildren by turning upholstery scraps into fantastic costumes for make-believe. He could be seen around town riding his homemade electric bike. Mark enjoyed his daily soak in the hot tub, the beauty of the Chetco River, and delving into the mystery of humankind's origins.

Born May 21, 1952 in Sacramento, CA, Mark attended Del Oro High School in Loomis, CA and received an Associate of Arts in Forestry at Sierra College. As a youth obsessed with sports cars, Mark started restoring them, teaching himself how to sew panels and seats, thus learning the trade that would carry him through his days.

Mark will be remembered for his ingenuity, creative energy and generosity of spirit.

Friends are invited to post memories and stories to rememberingmarkgetty@albertnet.us in at-risk groups, she recommended they stay out of groups of 10 or more. Easier said than done for people that rely on services available through establishments like the Chetco Activity Center. "Like I said a lot of the people, this gentleman over here for instance probably isn't going to cook for himself, he probably doesn't even shop," Groff said. "A lot of our regulars depend on the center." Groff happily pointed out they were using the social distancing recommendations — at least 3 feet of space between you and another person — announced by Gov. Brown too; watch it on the Oregon State Parks YouTube channel each day during the event, or catch the archived streams throughout the week. In light of the evolving COVID-19 situation, Oregon Parks and Recreation Department is prioritizing visitor health and will not provide shared binoculars at viewing sites. Visitors are encouraged to on Thursday. They'd also shut down their salad bar and were preparing to serve individual salads each with their own dressing container. A sit-down lunch Monday through Friday is what brings people, mostly seniors, to the Chetco Activity Center. Most of the tables can seat up to six people but can easily be rearranged to keep people about 3 feet apart, Groff said. Groff knew that closing the dining room for lunch was a strong possibility and they'd talked about what they would do if it became a reality. "I just hope it's only for two weeks and not four," said Groff optimistically. The center also hosts and organizes many activities such as card games and Bingo and the plan at least for now is to continue stay home if they are feeling sick. More information about the agency's response to COVID-19 is on the official FAQ page on the Oregon State Parks website. Gray whales migrate north along the coast annually during spring, following a route to Alaskan waters after spending the winter in the warm lagoons off the coast of Baja, Mexico. Many of the Gray whales will be accompanied by their new calves, born during the winter. The first large groups of whales swim by Oregon mid-March and the migratory stream typically continues into June. providing those social activities. "We want to continue to help people but not put them at risk and we are trying to walk that fine line," Groff said. "We are trying to be really open with what is our responsibility and what is the individual's responsibility." People who are not feeling well are being advised to seek medical attention or stay home. The center received calls from people asking if the activities were going to continue, specifically the card games. Groff said the games can draw close to 10 people. "I had two this morning (Friday) from concerned card players that we might close the card room and that's their life," Groff said. "So I'm saying to the people that want to close the games choose not to come, you are an adult, choose not to come." For more information on the Chetco Activity Center, visit online www.chetcoac.org.

Memorial date and details to be announced.

DEAR ABBY

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Couple's trust issues multiply when old girlfriend reappears

DEAR ABBY: I dated a guy for 10 months. We constantly fought because of his lack of trust. He had been burned in previous relationships. He said, "Trust is earned, not given," which isn't my philosophy. After a recent argument (about lack of trust), I told him this attitude is a deal-breaker, and he needed time to reflect on his issues. I talked to him several days a week during the process, and we weren't intimate during that time. I decided to have dinner with him at his apartment last night to further discuss the situation, only to have an old girlfriend ring his doorbell, upset. It seems that during the last five weeks, he had started seeing her again and slept with her while attempting to make amends with me. When I asked about her, he told me he thought we were done, and he was trying to put a Band-Aid on his pain. What to do? He has great qualities but is so jealous and suspicious. Will he ever improve, or will I always be trying to prove myself? I believe he cares for me, but his actions with the old girlfriend negate this. I cannot even begin to rationalize his thought process. -- GETTING TIRED OF IT DEAR GETTING TIRED: This guy is suspicious because HE isn't trustworthy. There's a saying attributed to historian, civil rights activist and author W.E.B. Du Bois: "A man does not look behind the door unless he has stood there himself." People are often jealous and controlling because they are insecure. Your boyfriend ran back to his old girlfriend because he was unable to be alone, even for a brief period. Be smart. Wake up and lose him. You can do better. DEAR ABBY: My father was physically abusive to me when I was a child, and distant and emotionally abusive when I was a teenager. Because of it, I had low self-esteem and was extremely depressed for most of my life. I confronted him when I was an adult, and he tried to explain why he was that way, but never apologized. He is now 93 and in a nursing home. He probably won't be alive much longer. I would like to get closure by telling him the extent to which his behavior damaged my life, but I know it would hurt him. Should I look for the closure I have needed all of my life, or keep it to myself to spare his feelings? -- HURTING STILL IN COLORADO DEAR HURTING: If you have things you need to get off your chest to your father, as painful as they may be, then do it. Explain calmly, in an even tone of voice, how important validation is to children as they develop, and how deeply his physical and emotional abuse has affected your life. I agree that he owes you an apology, but do NOT go there expecting one because he may be incapable of it.

Why Schools Were Closed

“Schools are critical institutions that provide important services for all our students, but especially our most vulnerable, and during this crisis I have worked hard to ensure those critical services continue. So many of our families depend on school in order for parents to go to their jobs, and for students to access health care and receive nutrition assistance,” said Gov. Brown.

“However, I have heard from superintendents, school board members, teachers, parents, and students that it has now become impossible to functionally operate schools due to workforce issues and student absences. Schools are experiencing critical shortages in staff, and superintendents are concerned for school personnel who are at elevated risks such as those over age 60 and those with underlying medical issues.

“I want to be very clear: sending Oregon children home will not stop the spread of the coronavirus. While children are home, when at all possible, they should not be in the care of older adults or those with underlying health issues that are most at-risk from COVID-19.

“This is a trying time for our community and I am reluctant to increase the burden on families who are already struggling to adapt to and stay healthy during this crisis. However, we are left with little choice in light of school districts’ staff capacity and operational concerns. I want to thank all of the teachers and school employees who have worked hard to keep our schools open until now,” Gov. Brown said.

What’s Next

Per the Governor’s directives and with the support of the Oregon Department of Education and the state’s Early Learning Division, during the closure:

- School districts are directed to develop plans for returning to school that accommodate the ongoing impacts of coronavirus. Staff should utilize the final two days of March to finalize plans for operating schools under updated measures, with students expected to return on Wednesday, April 1.
- Districts are tasked with developing plans to continue nutrition services during the closure.
- The Oregon Department of Education will examine the impact the closure will have on instructional time.
- School districts will ensure adequate cleaning supplies for increased cleaning protocols following the closure.
- The Early Learning Division will support child care programs and will work to identify resources to support child care needs for our most vulnerable families, as well as health care professionals and first responders.

“We are in close communication with school districts across the state, and they will be communicating regularly with their school communities throughout the closure period,” said Colt Gill, Director of the Oregon Department of Education. “Due to the evolving nature of this crisis, these timelines will be reevaluated in late March in consultation with school administrators.”

Gov. Brown signs executive order to curb climate change

BY BRIAN WILLIAMS
Pilot Editor

Less than a week after a Republican walkout killed a controversial cap-and-trade bill, Senate Bill 1530, Oregon Governor Kate Brown signed an executive order on climate change.

Gov. Brown announced and signed Tuesday, March 10, a new executive order on climate, setting new science-based greenhouse gas emissions goals and directing state agencies to put new measures into effect to lower the state's greenhouse gas emissions to meet Oregon's climate goals.

"Immediate and comprehensive efforts are needed to tackle this scourge that is devastating the Oregon we know and love, and a smart approach can both protect the environment and grow our economy," the governor said.

Brown explained the reasons behind the 14-page executive order that aims to significantly curb greenhouse emissions during a press conference Tuesday.

"I've heard it loud and clear from our young people in Oregon: climate action is crucial and urgent. If we adults don't take action right away, it is the next generation that will pay the price. We owe it to them to do our part to ensure that the globe they inherit is on a better trajectory than the one it's on today," said Governor Brown.

After last year's similar defeat of Democrat driven House Bill 2020, Gov. Brown said she was "not backing down" on climate change action and pledged to use her executive authority to take action.

"Last July, I committed to Oregonians that if the Legislature failed to take necessary action this year, I would use the tools available to me as the Chief Executive to address climate change. And that is exactly what I am doing today," Gov. Brown said.

The Governor's Office has been working on the executive order for almost a year and is similar to SB 1530.

The executive order updates the existing state carbon emissions goals to reflect the current science, setting a standard of 45% reduction from 1990 levels by 2035 and an 80% reduction from 1990 levels by 2050.

"This executive order is extensive and thorough, taking the boldest actions available to lower greenhouse gas emissions under current state laws," Brown said. "As a state, we will pursue every option available under existing law to combat the effects of climate change and put Oregon on a path we can be proud to leave behind for our children."

Some differences from SB 1530 that are in the order including directing agencies to alter building codes to prioritize energy efficiency, and to further ratchet down the carbon intensity of gasoline. There are provisions for updated energy efficiency standards for appliances and directives for reducing food waste.

All state agencies will be asked to make climate action a top priority when making decisions. The order will directly impact 18 state agencies and commissions.

The order also outlines a variety of means to reach the new goals, including:

- Sector-specific caps on climate pollution: Directs the Environmental Quality Commission to set and enforce sector-specific caps on climate pollution for three of the largest sources of emissions in the state: transportation fuels, natural gas, and large industrial polluters. Caps will decline over time to meet the state's greenhouse gas reduction goals.
- Doubles the Clean Fuels Program: To reduce climate pollution from cars and trucks by 20% by 2030, and 25% by 2035, the state will more than double the Clean Fuels Program. "This is the most ambitious Clean Fuels goal in the country. It will substantially reduce carbon emissions in the transportation sector, using a model proven to reduce pollution at a very minimal cost," Brown said.
- Higher energy efficiency for buildings and appliances: Directs the state's building codes division to move rapidly to increase energy efficiency requirements for new buildings and directs the Oregon Department of Energy to make Oregon's appliance efficiency standards equal to the most stringent in the country.
- Strategic plan to accelerate the usability of electric vehicles: Directs the Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) to create a statewide public electric charging plan to accelerate the usage of electric vehicles across the state.
- Emissions-conscious transportation spending: Directs ODOT to develop a tool to evaluate all future transportation spending, including road expansion, through the lens of reducing greenhouse gas emissions, and requires regional transportation planning organizations in the state to follow suit.
- Accelerates the transition to clean energy resource in the utility sector: Directs the Public Utility Commission (PUC) to help utilities achieve the new emission reduction goals, and directs the PUC to implement the recommendations of the Governor's Council on Wildfire Response to safeguard the state's grid from the growing risks and severity of wildfires.
- Adds climate action as a top priority for agency decision making: Directs state agencies to add climate action as a lens for all of their work, which will lower carbon emissions across current agency activities, including as agencies spend the state's budget on goods and services.

The order was lauded by Democrats at the Capitol and climate groups. Southern Oregon Climate Action Now co-facilitator and board president Alan Journet witnessed the signing.

"It's incredibly valuable," Journet said on Wednesday from his home. "We have been working on this for a long time. It should be effective and something we need to do. We (Oregon) have to be a leader. If we don't all do it. It won't get done.

"We appreciate and are excited that Gov. Brown has come through," Journet said. He was disappointed to see SB 1530 get squashed but glad to see that many of its goals were in the executive order.

Some of the finer details related to the order still have to be worked out. The provisions are slated to take effect "no later than January 1, 2022," the same time SB 1530's regulations were expected to come online.

"However, there will be significant opportunity for public input. Full details will be hammered out during agency rulemaking processes," Gov. Brown said.

Not everyone is happy with the executive order and believe it will end up in court. Curry County was one of many rural counties to send letters opposing SB 1530.

At least initially, Curry County Commissioner Court Boice does support some of the governor's steps, but overall believes they're too restrictive, demanding and simply go too far.

He stated, "It's the wrong focus. We should never forget nor give up our fabulous 'renewable natural resources' and the incredible numerous ways the Oregon landscape sequesters carbon. We have a moral obligation to rebuild our magnificent forests, watersheds, wildlife habitats, rivers and incredible fish runs. This should go before the vote of our citizens."

The Governor's Office said it worked closely with the Oregon Department of Justice in anticipation of this.

"If opponents to my executive order are really concerned about the cost of litigation — particularly Republicans — they should have stayed in the Capitol and completed their work and done their job," she said.

The full executive order is available online at www.oregon.gov.

Council: Design to begin on Ransom Avenue project

BY BRIAN WILLIAMS
Pilot Editor

Brookings City Councilors wasted no time at Monday's meeting, moving forward on Ransom Avenue road work, appointing one person to the Budget Committee and re-appointing two people to the Planning Commission.

The regular meeting from start-to-finish took less than 10 minutes and all of the votes were unanimous 5-0.

Business owner Doug Brand was appointed to the Budget Committee. Forester Cody Coons and real estate broker Michelle Moroskyto the Planning Commission.

enlisting Dyer Partnership Engineers and Planners of Coos Bay to do the design work for the Ransom Avenue Street Improvement Project for an estimated $33,800.

City Public Works and Developmental Services Director Tony Baron explained the city plans on improving Ransom Avenue from Fawn Drive to Pioneer Road, approximately 530 lineal feet.

Work includes removing and replacing the pavement and stabilizing areas where the pavement has failed. Infrastructure work includes a new 12-inch storm drain and a 6-inch French drain to facilitate drainage in the area.

The total construction cost for the project was estimated at $265,000 and is budgeted from the City of Brookings fuel tax revenues.

"Super nice to see the gas taxes doing exactly what we want them to do," said Councilor Brent Hodges. "I've had many comments about the streets getting better."

The project is part of the city's five-year street improvement plan that was presented to the council in 2018.

Baron said the city expects to go out to bid on the Ransom project in late spring — May to June — with the road work starting in early summer and being completed before school starts.

The next City Council meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Monday, March 23, in the City Hall Council Chambers, 898 Elk Dr., Brookings.

Roosevelt elk collaring effort seeks to reduce conflicts along North Coast

State biologists are learning a great deal about California's largest land mammal.

Roosevelt elk are one of three subspecies of elk native to California, joining the Tule elk (the smallest of the three) and the Rocky Mountain elk. While a bull Rocky Mountain elk will have larger and more impressive antlers, the Roosevelt elk bests it in body mass. A bull Rocky Mountain elk can reach 700 pounds while a bull Roosevelt can exceed 1,000 pounds.

In an attempt to close the knowledge gap, CDFW recently initiated one of the largest Roosevelt elk capture-and-collaring efforts in state history, targeting a population of Roosevelt elk living along the U.S. 101 corridor in Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

The effort is part of an ongoing study that began in 2016, explained Carrington Hilson, CDFW's lead elk research biologist on the North Coast. The study will continue through 2025.

Since November, Hilson and her colleagues have affixed GPS tracking collars on 24 cow Roosevelt elk in Humboldt and Del Norte counties to monitor their movement and migration. CDFW biologists plan to collar another 14 cows this winter.

Despite their massive size and majestic appearance, Roosevelt elk have proved an elusive research subject because of the dense forests they inhabit. Aerial surveying and trapping — standard tools for counting and collaring deer, elk and bighorn sheep in more open parts of the state — can be challenging for Roosevelt elk moving in and out of heavy coastal timber.

While deer often can be darted and tranquilized using a biologist's truck as cover, Roosevelt elk are warier and vehicle-shy, often requiring a lengthy stalk and serious hunting skills to get within the 50-yard effective range of a dart gun. In some cases, it can take more than 100 hours to capture and collar an individual Roosevelt elk.

Several ancillary projects — estimating populations using fecal DNA, looking at calf survival and understanding habitat use — are also underway at Humboldt State University in Arcata in coordination with CDFW that will add to the state's body of knowledge.

A few factors are driving the research interest, explained Kristin Denryter, the Sacramento-based senior environmental scientist who oversees CDFW's Elk and Pronghorn Antelope Program. The first is an increasing number of human-elk conflicts along the U.S. 101 corridor that include vehicle collisions, property damage and agricultural losses suffered by North Coast farmers and ranchers.

The second driver is technology. Advances in GPS tracking collars make them an increasingly valuable research tool. The new elk collars record data every six hours over the life of the study and deliver that information daily to CDFW biologists.

Lastly, there is the California Essential Habitat Connectivity Project and U.S. Department of the Interior Secretarial Order 3362 (SO 3362).

Signed in 2018, SO 3362 directs federal agencies to work with California and other western state wildlife agencies to improve the quality of big-game winter range habitat and migration corridors on federal land. The order provided funding for CDFW to acquire the 38 GPS tracking collars and accelerate its research efforts. The collar data will improve understanding of movement and habitat use to inform habitat enhancement on public lands as well as help guide development of potential crossing structures to not only improve habitat connectivity but to also improve public safety by reducing vehicle collisions. CDFW has partnered with CalTrans on improving connectivity as part of the California Essential Habitat Connectivity Project.

A Roosevelt elk stakeholder group made up of CDFW representatives, tribal interests, farmers, ranchers and local officials is also being developed.

Official estimates put the Roosevelt elk population along the U.S. 101 corridor in Humboldt and Del Norte counties at 1,600 animals. Biologists, however, suspect those estimates to be low. In an attempt to reduce growing human-elk conflicts, CDFW issued 20 additional Roosevelt elk tags during the 2019 hunting season through its SHARE program, which provides public hunting opportunities on private land through cooperating landowners. CDFW is currently petitioning the California Fish and Game Commission to increase the allotment of Roosevelt elk tags available along the North Coast in the 2020 fall hunting season.

Translocations, limited hunting, high calf survival, and conservation management have all helped boost Roosevelt elk populations from lows in the early 1900s to a robust statewide estimate today of 5,700 animals. Roosevelt elk also occupy parts of Mendocino, Trinity, Shasta, Tehama and Siskiyou counties.

The U.S. 101 corridor population in Humboldt and Del Norte counties has proved particularly adaptable — as comfortable roaming the beaches of state parks as they are grazing in open alfalfa fields or wandering underneath the forest canopy. That's made them especially popular with tourists and some locals but not so much with farmers and ranchers suffering property damage and crop losses from the expanding herds.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE Robert Wade Addington

CVPB-2020-7005

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Robert Wade Addington

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Randall Addington, in the Superior Court of California, County of Del Norte. The petition for probate requests that Randall Addington be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
3/27/2020 Time: 10:00am Dept.: 2
Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

DEL NORTE COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS SUMMARY OF PROPOSED ORDINANCE 2020-009

AN ORDINANCE ADOPTING AND CODIFYING THE STATE MODEL WATER EFFICIENT LANDSCAPE ORDINANCE

Pursuant to Government Code 25124, the following is a summary of an Ordinance introduced at the Tuesday, March 10, 2020 Board of Supervisors' meeting, Regular Session, by the following polled vote:

AYES: Supervisors Cowan, Howard, Hemmingsen, Berkowitz, Gitlin
NOES: None

This ordinance recognizes that the Water Conservation in Landscaping Act and related authorities required local agencies to adopt the model ordinance created by the State Department of Water Resources or an ordinance that is at least as effective in conserving water as the updated Model Water Efficient Landscape Ordinance (MWELO) and that if the local agency did not affirmatively act, the model ordinance would be in effect in the jurisdiction. Del Norte County, therefore, implemented the Model Water Efficient Landscape Ordinance (MWELO) by default and has been required to follow such. This ordinance officially adopts and codifies the MWELO.

The MWELO's objectives are: Encourage appropriate use and groupings of plants; Establish "water budgets" for properties; Require automatic irrigation systems and schedules; Require soil assessment/soil management; Include landscape maintenance practices; Encourage the capture and retention of storm water onsite; Promote use of, and manage, recycled water resources; and Minimize overspray and runoff. New and rehabilitated properties would be subject to the ordinance if they fall within the standards of applicability. The ordinance applies to the following landscape projects: new construction projects with an aggregate landscape area equal to or greater than 500 square feet requiring a building or landscape permit, plan check or design review; rehabilitated landscape projects with an aggregate landscape area equal to or greater than 2,500 square feet requiring a building or landscape permit, plan check, or design review; existing landscapes limited to Sections 493, 493.1 and 493.2 of the State MWELO; new and rehabilitated cemeteries are limited to Sections 492.4, 492.11, and 492.12; and existing cemeteries are limited to Sections 493, 493.1 and 493.2 of the MWELO. Exemptions are permitted for registered local, state or federal historical sites, ecological restoration projects that do not require a permanent irrigation system, mined-land reclamation projects that do not require a permanent irrigation system, and plant collections that are part of botanical gardens and arboreta open to the public. Where irrigation is not proposed or is only proposed within the square footage parameters listed above, the project is not subject to the ordinance. For larger irrigated landscapes, applicants also have the option of following the performance design measures which require full compliance with the MWELO. Requirements include submission of a Water Efficient Landscape Worksheet, a Soil Management Report, a Landscape Design Plan, an Irrigation Design Plan and a Grading Design Plan. Preparation of these plans requires the expertise of a licensed or certified professional including but not limited to certified landscape irrigation auditors, licensed landscape architects, licensed landscape contractors, other persons authorized by State law to design a landscape, other persons authorized by State law to design and install an irrigation system, licensed professionals authorized by law to prepare a grading design plan and professional engineers. Additionally, the Soils Management Report requires the collection of a soil sample that must be analyzed in a laboratory and be provided to preparers of the various reports for their analysis. Recycled water, gray water, and rainwater retention are mentioned in the MWELO and are subject to existing law. There is a provision for public education and model homes are required to use signs and information to demonstrate the principles of water efficient landscape. The MWELO states an effective precipitation that local agencies may consider. An option is provided to local agencies to collaborate with or designate another agency to implement the provisions of the model ordinance. Further, there is a reporting requirement for local agencies to report implementation and enforcement. The MWELO is found at Chapter 2.7, Division 2, Title 23 of the California Code of Regulations for review.

The ordinance is exempt from review under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to State CEQA Guidelines Section 15307 (14 CRR 15307) and Section 15308 (14 CCR 15308). If any section of the Ordinance is for any reason held to be unconstitutional or invalid, such decision will not affect the validity of the remaining portion of the Ordinance.

The effective date of the ordinance is 30 days from passage. A full copy of the ordinance is available for review in the Board of Supervisors office at 981 H Street, Suite 200, Crescent City, CA during normal business hours.

A Public Hearing on this Ordinance will be March 24, 2020.
Dated: March 12, 2020

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING BEFORE THE BROOKINGS PLANNING COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing will be held before the Brookings Planning Commission on Tuesday, April 7, 2020 at 7:00 PM in the Council Chambers of Brookings City Hall, 898 Elk Drive, Brookings, OR 97415.

In the matter of File No. MC-1-20 (CUP-1-10), a request for approval of a Minor Change of a Conditional Use Permit changing property owner name of 223 Memory Lane, Assessor's Map No. 4113-08BA; Tax Lot 00206. The applicants are Heidi and Jeff Rich. The criteria used to decide this matter is found in Section 17.124.170 Short-term Rentals and Section 17.116.090 Minor Change of the Brookings Municipal Code (BMC). This is a Quasi-judicial hearing and the Planning Commission will make a decision on the matter.

The public is invited to attend and participate in the public hearing. All persons wishing to address this matter will have an opportunity to do so in person at the hearing or by submitting written evidence to the Brookings Planning Department at the address above. If you wish to speak at the hearing, you will be asked to sign in and afforded five (5) minutes to speak. Failure to raise an issue accompanied by statements or evidence sufficient to afford the Planning Commission and parties an opportunity to respond to the issues precludes appeal to the Oregon Land Use Board of Appeals (LUBA).

A copy of the application, all documents and evidence submitted on behalf of the applicant is available for public inspection at no cost at the Brookings Planning Department, 898 Elk Drive, Brookings, OR. The staff report prepared in this case will be available seven days prior to the hearing. Copies of documents may be obtained at reasonable cost.

All public meetings are held in accessible locations, auxiliary aids will be provided upon request with advance notification. Please contact 541-469-1103 to make appropriate arrangements or for additional information. TTY 800-735-1232.
