SERVING CURRY COUNTY SINCE 1946

Brookings, Oregon

Opening Ceremony at the Fair

Carol Hungerford
Publisher

Two really large steps forward

Steve and I are meeting an increasing number of nice, helpful people in our new communities of Crescent City, Brookings and surrounding area.

And we're fortunate to be working with some equally helpful, quality people staffing The Triplicate and The Pilot.

One of those staffers is Jeremy Ruark, who's actually been employed by Country Media for a decade.

Before joining Country Media, Jeremy had worked for, among other media organizations, KGW-TV in Portland and KVAL-TV in Eugene. He's also served as corporate radio news director for a Central Oregon radio group.

His first management assignment for us was as editor and publisher of our weekly Seaside Signal, then later as editor for eight years of our weekly newspaper in Lincoln City. Not long ago, we again promoted Jeremy, this time to editor and publisher of our two weekly newspapers in St. Helens and Clatskanie in Columbia County, Oregon.

A day or so after assuming ownership of The Pilot and The Triplicate on July 1, we asked Jeremy to spend a month in Brookings helping us staff the news side. Jeremy says he wants to remain at The Pilot as our long-term editor.

We couldn't be happier!
Despite being a much-seasoned newsmen with several decades of experience, Jeremy is not one to retire in place while boring you with tales of his successes in years past. Rather, whatever his current job, it has always brought out his best work.

One of Jeremy's key strengths is his insistence on building meaningful, trusting relationships with readers and news sources alike. He truly wants to do best by everyone, with no regard for social status or office.

Another of his strengths, stemming from his work in broadcasting, is his insistence on using digital media ... up-to-the-minute reporting via the newspaper's website and social media (that will materialize as we enhance our digital sites).

He's the perfect fit for our company's mission in Curry and Del Norte counties.

So please join us in welcoming Jeremy as The Pilot's new editor!

Meantime, we say thank you and good fortune to three

PELICAN BAY STAFF IS EVACUATED, ISOLATED

Cody Mann
Staff writer

More than a hundred
Pelican Bay State Prison employees were quarantined after a suspicious substance was found in a letter. The employees were reportedly released the following morning.

A statement from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) said a letter that claimed to contain a suspicious substance was received Tuesday, July 23, in the administration building at the prison. Investigators sealed the letter in a bag to contain the threat of exposure and the building was evacuated.

No injuries were reported and an investigation is ongoing. Prison officials from the state are working with local, state and federal law enforcement agencies to identify the substance contained in the letter. CDCR said local law enforcement was considering potential secondary exposures and taking necessary steps to mitigate safety concerns.

A Humboldt County-
based hazardous material team was called to the prison the day the letter was received. Preliminary testing was done and the FBI is conducting follow-up testing of the substance inside the envelope.

CDCR assistant secretary
Jeffrey Callison said results of the FBI analysis have not yet been received. He confirmed that the prison's administration building remained closed as of press time.

Terry Thornton, CDCR
deputy press secretary, gave a statement to news station KRCR in which he said 116 employees who work in the administration building,
mailroom and warehouse were put on a precautionary quarantine because of the suspicious letter. He said the employees were released Wednesday morning with no signs of illness or injury.

Operations at Pelican Bay
State Prison are otherwise normal and the inmate population is unaffected, according to Thornton.

Centinela State Prison
reportedly received a similar letter and evacuated staff from its mailroom. There were no injuries reported in that incident either.

Arts, crafts event to occupy Stout Park

The Pelican Bay Arts Association will host the seventh-annual "Festival of Art" the weekend of Aug. 3-4.

This fine-art and crafts festival will include juried original works from more than 70 vendors, as well as the "Kid's Art Zone," live music hosted by KCIW, creative art demos and a food court.

"This event is a wonderful thing for the community and all of our talented artists," said event coordinator Leslie Wilkinson.

The festival will be held at Stout Park, adjacent to the Manley Art Center and Gallery on Oak Street.

It has become widely recognized as the best art festival on the southern Oregon coast, said Wilkinson.

"Multiple art genres, including fine art (painting, drawing, pottery), fiber arts, crafts, jewelry, and photography make the festival a one-of-kind gathering for regional and local emerging and established artists creating unique artwork," she said.

"Attendees will be able to find new, one-of-a-kind pieces available for sale, while enjoying the casual atmosphere among the shade-covered walkways in Stout Park.

"Here Fishy Fishy," by Steelmyart, a nod to all our wonderful sea creatures.

"I think that really makes us stand out in the world of art festivals."

Back by popular demand will be the "Kid's Art Zone," hosted by Soroptimist International of Brookings. Located near the food court, the kid's zone will offer crafts for youngsters to make while parents take a lunch break.

There will be coffee and pastries available, craft beer and wine, plus BBQ sandwiches, hot dogs and crepes.

"Another thing that makes us special is our music," Wilkinson said. Scheduled musicians hosted by KCIW will include Lon Goddard, Connie Houston and Rapp Brush, among others.

And there will be an open mic noon-3 p.m. on Saturday for those wishing to perform.

"Of course, our event wouldn't be complete without the railway running" Wilkinson said. "Tony Parrish will have the Stout Mountain Garden Railway running both days.

"The Stout Mountain Railway is a crowd-pleaser, delighting kids and adults alike," she said. "A great way to let your imagination take over while watching the trains wind through Stout Mountain."

More information is available in the insert included July 31 in both the Curry Coastal Pilot and the Del Norte Triplicate.

Curry 4-H: Supporting kids (and Buster) at the county fair

Randy Robbins
For the Pilot

The Curry County Fair was in full swing on grand-opening day July 24. Down in the animal pavilion, a favorite attraction was one of the critters. Amidst turkeys, cattle, horses, ducks, chickens, goats and more, hosted by the Curry County 4-H Club, was a sky-blue, sweated sheep that goes by the name Buster. "Hello! Can I answer any questions you have about sheep?" asked Buster's owner, Atticus Wahl, offering a ready handshake.

Wahl, a 17-year-old Pacific High School student, is knowledgeable, polite and poised when it comes to all things lamb. She joined the Curry County 4-H Club with her cousin when they were both 9 years old.

As to why she raises sheep, she doesn't try to pull the wool over your eyes.

Declared Wahl: "I love sheep! They are mild-mannered. And sheep ranching runs in my family."

Wahl said her grandmother and two of her sons began raising the animals in the Langlois northern reaches of Curry County, an area known for legendary wool products.

The younger Wahl brushes back a lock of black hair and grins mischievously, acknowledging, "I wouldn't mind raising a goat." For that matter, she laughs, looking around quickly and confessing, "Or maybe even ... a steer!"

At the same time, she admits the option of raising goats is "off the table" because Wahl's mom says goats are "too ornery."

Buster, for his part, is oblivious to the press invading his cage, concentrating instead on munching away at his grain cereal.

Buster's soft, snowy white coat has been brushed to perfection. His facial markings are black, common for a Hampshire/Suffolk mix.

Wahl explained that Buster is known as a wether, a male sheep that's been castrated to eliminate impregnating females and to improve the marketability of the animal for size and appearance when it goes to market.

"You don't want an animal that is too fat or too thin," she said. "Buyers are wanting a well-filled-out animal at sale."

On the other hand, "Does that date with destiny make it tough on 4-H kids tending livestock?" Wahl is asked.

She ponders a bit, then says, "When I was younger, (her animals) were too much like pets. Then, I only wanted to show them."

"Now I understand this is part of the lifecycle and I try not to get too attached. The whole point is to take very good care of them while they are here."

Wahl said she likes getting together with "other clubbers" about once a month. 4-H has been with the Curry County Fair since its inception more than 50 years ago.

"I like the way 4-H helps us to learn lots of life lessons for success," said Wahl, "by teaching us to work hard. And that hard-work ethic pays off in life no matter what you choose to do.

"We aren't afraid to get a little messy."

The county fair winds up today.

Earthquake safety project is planned for Brookings City Hall

Jeremy C. Ruark
Pilot Editor

A $1.2-million seismic retrofit project at Brookings City Hall is expected to begin in the next few weeks.

The project will include reinforcing wall and roof diaphragms on the police and fire wings of city hall.

It also includes providing a separation joint between the administration wing, which includes the water, finance, city manager and public works development services offices, and the police and fire wings.

Brookings City Manager Janell Howard said the work is essential in ensuring that police and fire personnel can respond to calls during a major earthquake.

"The building will be seismically sound," said Howard. "Therefore, police and fire will be able to respond in emergencies."

Howard said that during the construction, no police equipment will be moved. However, some non-critical fire equipment will be moved to another city-owned facility.

She said no personnel will be moved while the project is ongoing.

"We do not anticipate disruption at city hall to the public," Howard said.

The city is using a seismic-rehabilitation grant of $1,287,988 from Business Oregon for the improvements to the police and fire wings of the city hall complex.

A local match of $209,672 will be taken from the city's capital projects reserve fund and/or from urban renewal expenditures.

Howard said the city would use grant funds from Business Oregon to pay the engineering fees associated only with the seismic retrofit work identified in the contract, estimated to be $164,500.

The city selected WRK Engineering in 2017 to prepare construction documents for the project. Howard said the documents currently are in plan review.

Southern Oregon's Ausland Group has been selected as the building contractor.

The seismic retrofit does not include increasing the pitch needed to address roof drainage at city hall or new roofing over the administration wing. Ausland Group estimates that additional work would cost $122,000.

WRK Engineering estimates the additional design work at $35,000.

Howard said in an April memo to the Brookings City Council that the seismic retrofit project would provide an opportunity to address the pitch and roofing issues.

The seismic project is estimated to be completed in three months.

Reasons, without data, might be wrong

Teresa Lawson
Pilot Guest Columnist

In November, I lost my bid for mayor of Brookings, but I did not lose my interest or passion for Brookings.

The primary reason I ran for mayor was because I wanted more detailed financial analyses from our City Council.

Elections are the cornerstone of democracy; I respect the vote of the people and our current city government. I have a sincere respect for our mayor, Jake Pieper. He and I have spoken in detail about several issues since the election.

I also respect the right of every citizen of Brookings to be able to ask questions of their government. Asking questions of our city officials is important, whether it is an $800,000 salary increase, or why there are no hanging flower baskets on Chetco this summer.

I watch or attend every city council meeting. I also attend every city workshop and budget meeting, because they are not televised. I am often the only citizen there.

My interest in Brookings' finances, operations, parks, festivals and residents didn't end with the election.

I addressed several salary decisions at last Monday night's council meeting, with questions that any salary compensation professional would ask. Are salaries competitive to retain and attract quality employees? Why are increases above cost of living warranted for some employees and not others? Should all union salary increases apply to non-union employees?

My questions were acknowledged by the council and somewhat addressed, but not answered directly. All proposed increases were approved.

I also purposed that an independent salary study be conducted to evaluate whether salaries are in line with like positions in comparable cities. Such studies are based on verifiable data and are affordable. The council recently considered a $20,000 study for a stop sign, and approves many engineering and other professional studies.

The city council and staff spent a lot of time working on the contracts that were approved Monday. They made their decision based on facts and/or reason. Reasonable conclusions, without solid data, may not be reasonable.

Example: There is one component of the recent salary negotiations, intended to save the city money, that actually will cost the city approximately $6,000 every year. Health insurance cost are increasing faster than inflation. City employees were paying 10% of their premium cost; the city proposed an increase to 12.5%.

During labor negotiations, the city agreed to give all employees a 1% compensation increase to help offset the additional cost to the employee. It appears that no one did the actual calculations prior to agreeing to this.

Employees paying 12.5 % will save the city

$22,000. However, the cost for the 1% salary increase is $28,000; net cost to the city, $6,000 a year.

More importantly, several years from now the perception will be that employees pay 12.5%. In reality, they are paying slightly less than 10%. Employees and unions will be less likely to agree to any additional health insurance cost, thinking that they recently increased their share of the cost.

This decision appeared reasonable. However, it is $6,000 the city could have saved. More importantly, it will impact future salary negotiations, which could have additional costs for the city.

City of Brookings salaries have had a trend of increases higher than the cost of living, and other decisions, based more on reason than fact. Over time, these decisions based on reason can cause salaries to be lower or higher than comparable jobs in comparable cities. The result can be difficulty retaining and attracting qualified employees, or unnecessary costs to the city.

Salaries are one of the largest costs for any organization, and one of the most important decisions. An independent salary study would provide the city with data it needs to make the best decisions going forward, and guide salary decisions to retain and attract qualified employees ... while assuring that taxpayer dollars are wisely spent.

Teresa Lawson is a resident of Brookings.

Local people willingly assist

Dear Editor:

Last week at 11:30 a.m., my daughter had a tire blow out on U.S. Highway 101 in Harbor. My caregiver was driving at the time, when they heard a loud "pop" and realized they had a problem.

Oregon State Trooper Kyle Kennedy stopped his vehicle to assist them, and proceeded to change her tire.

I wish to extend my utmost gratitude to Trooper Kennedy, who graciously took it upon himself to stop and change her tire, enabling her to get back on the road.

The blowout occurred near Curry Equipment, and they assisted by inflating her spare tire, as well as the other three.

Needless to say, this further exemplifies the nature of our local people and how willingly they respond to those in need.

No surprise: Wildfire season could be bad

Jeremy C. Ruark
Pilot Editor

Firefighters across Curry County and throughout Oregon are bracing for an intense and explosive wildfire season, with the human element a key concern.

Coos Forest Protection Association district specialist Jeff Chase said this summer already has been a busy one for firefighters.

"We've had about 25 fire calls this month alone," he said. "Half of those calls turned out to be false alarms, which is a good thing."

Chase said many calls involve human-caused fires. "We are having issues with transient camps and fires," he said. "The transients are a hard group to (get to) listen to fire-prevention messages."

Added Chase, "We send a great deal of time trying to change human behavior. Many folks do not realize the amount of heat left in their campfire when they are done. You also get people that aren't paying attention, and those that don't believe anything bad can happen to them."

Under Oregon law, said Chase, those found responsible for wildfires can face fines in the millions of dollars.

As Chase and other firefighters deal with the human element, they also are keeping a keen watch on natural conditions that could lead to wildfires, such as summer's increasing heat waves, drying conditions, winds and lightning.

"We do get the winds off the coast, which always causes problems when it comes to putting fires out," he said.

One of the key elements Chase watches is energy-release components. "That tells us the fire resistance to control," he said. "The higher those numbers climb, the more resources are needed to put a fire out."

That information, along with moisture levels, wind speed and direction, are monitored and released to fire agencies through the National Weather Service.

"Those numbers have been in the moderate level, but with the increasing drying and hot weather, those numbers will climb higher," Chase said.

The Coos Forest Protection Association covers Coos, Curry and western Douglas counties, working in partnership with the Oregon Forestry Department, the Bureau of Land Management, and private and smaller landowners.

"It is a huge chunk of land," he said. "A checkerboard of intermixed land, so we have multiple agreements to protect those lands."

Mother Nature and topography also are challenges for the firefighters in southern Oregon and Curry County. "We do get lightning and those storms can spark wildfires," Chase said. "We attempt to get those fires out as fast as we can."

He said the region's steep hills and bluffs, cliffs and thick timbered areas can be significant challenges.

"It can make this very interesting," he said, "but there are ways to get in and around the bluffs safely, and get to the fires and put them out."

Chase said preparations began earlier this year with specialized wildfire training. "We completed our fire training in June with 35 new firefighters, so that gives us about 100 employees ready for the fire season."

The Coos Forest Protection Association utilizes a variety of on-the-ground equipment and a contracted helicopter for initial attacks when wildfires break out. Larger planes with retardant can be called in from the state.

"Each day, we get a list from the state coordination center in Salem of what planes, helicopters and crews are available," Chase said.

Meantime, said Chase, "Make sure you have a wide, defensible space surrounding your home. Keep yards mowed and water your yard when you can."

Plus, keep your lawn trimmed. "The tall, dry grass can be dangerous," he said.

Fire crews work to contain the 4th Creek Fire last May in Charleston. The blaze was started by an escaped-debris burn.

Slow week of fishing, but lots of bottomfish still being caught

Fishing has slowed some this week on the Wild Rivers Coast. Although the week closed with some rough weather that limited ocean anglers, the Pacific halibut bite seemed to slow down even before things got bumpy. There have been a few salmon caught on both sides of the border this week, however.

Anglers are still catching a few salmon and steelhead on the Klamath River, and the Rogue Bay is still producing some nice salmon as well.

On the ocean

Andy Martin of Wild River Fishing said Tuesday was a good day for salmon fishing out of Brookings Harbor, with lots of coho and chinook salmon in close. The bite has slowed down a little bit since, however, as winds started to pick up throughout the coast.

A few anglers out of Crescent City have also been able to haul in some chinook salmon, but the bite is still slow in Northern California. Jim Mitchell of Gotcha Hooked Fish Trips said although he didn't have any luck catching salmon this week, he has seen a lot more bait in the area throughout the week. He also said he was able to see several salmon swimming in the bait balls but he wasn't able to coax any of them into biting.

Meanwhile, the Pacific halibut bite has been slow on both sides of the California-Oregon border.

Bottom fishing has remained a good bet for anglers on the ocean, especially when winds keep boats from getting out too far. Mitchell said he was able to catch limits of black snappers, lots of coppers, and some good sized lingcod on Monday out of Crescent City.

South Beach has also been fairly productive this week as well with California halibut being caught in close to shore. There are also thresher shark starting to show up in the area. Surf perch fishing from the beach has also been productive this week.

Martin said he heard of several sportfishermen going out to search for tuna out of Brookings this week, but they haven't had any luck yet. Anglers have been catching tuna about 30 miles out from Charleston, Oregon, and there have been reports of tuna caught out of Eureka as well. That could mean tuna fishing in the area will pick up when the wind dies down.

"The next good weather break that we have there will probably be some tuna out of Brookings, because it usually starts in Coos Bay first," Martin said.

River

There hasn't been much change in the Rogue Bay this week. Anglers are still catching chinook salmon and Martin said they seem to be getting bigger, but it still hasn't been red hot.

Martin estimated that there have been 30 to 40 salmon caught per day in the Rogue Bay, spread out between 40 to 50 boats targeting the fish.

"There are a lot of fish, but the moss is still really bad so you have to fish suspended and keep your gear out of the moss, or fish the areas that don't have moss," Martin said. "There have been a couple really good bite periods every day now, usually at some point during the outgoing tide and at some point during the incoming tide, but it hasn't been really good all day."

Down on the Klamath River fishing seems to have slowed some on the Lower Klamath River after a decent run came through last week. Up river anglers are still catching steelhead, however, and pulling an occasional salmon in as well.

Virginia E. (Tomasso) Collis

June 3, 1926 - July 14, 2019

Virginia E. (Tomasso) Collis, of McLean and formerly of Brookings, passed away on Sat. July 14, 2019. She was 93 years old. Virginia: "Gigi", "Ginny" was born on June 3, 1926 in South Waverly, Pennsylvania, the youngest of five children of Joseph and Minnie (Cocco) Tomasso. She graduated from Waverly High School in Waverly, New York in 1944 and entered the Federal Cadet Nurse Program at Sisters of Charity Hospital in Pensacola, Florida. As Virginia liked to tell it, she and her life-long friend, Romaine, carefully selected this program based on the highlighted directive in the school pamphlet to bring FOUR party dresses. She completed training in 1946 and became an RN, remaining in Pensacola to work.

In 1949 she met her future husband, Jim, a Navy pilot on a blind date. Jim and Virginia were married in Pensacola in June of 1950. The following years were spent as a Navy wife traveling back and forth across the country to eight duty stations, raising four children, forming friendships, packing and unpacking, and making the hard decision each move whether to bring the dog or not.

After 22 years of service, Jim retired from the Navy, and they moved to Falls Church, Virginia. Virginia returned to her nursing career. Their children finished high school, and college and left home. In 1985, Jim and Virginia retired to Brookings to live on a cliff overlooking the ocean. They were active in community life there joining the Elks, volunteering with Habitat for Humanity, chairing the local Republican party, were members of Star of the Sea Catholic Church, and engaged in a variety of other civic activities - for them every commitment was a joint-effort.

Virginia was a loving and much-loved wife, mother and grandmother. She was a great cook, especially during her "gourmet" phase in the 70's. She enjoyed golf, she knitted, sewed, refinished furniture, re-upholstered furniture, and helped with the all too many DIY home improvement projects. She was unstinting in her attention and love for her grandchildren - sewing quilts, and stuffed dolls, and sending endless quirky gifts and cards.

She was preceded in death by her beloved husband, Jim, grandson John Gabriel Muller, and her sisters Lena Daugherty, Ann (Mike) DeSisti, Charlotte (Jerry) Wilcox, and sister-in-law Janet Lehr Tomasso, nieces Susan Daugherty, and Carol (David) Keefe. She is survived by her son Bill Collis of Dhaka, Bangladesh; daughters Sandra (John) Muller of Suffolk, Virginia, Lisa Collis (Mark Warner) of Alexandria, Virginia; son Jim, Jr. (Sue) Collis of Simi Valley, California, and seven grandchildren - Rebecca (Nathan) Soule, Faith Muller, Madison Warner, Gilliam Warner, Eliza Warner, Jack Collis and Graham Collis; and two great-grandchildren Luke and Ryer Soule, and also survived by her brother Louis (Rita) Tomasso; and many nieces and nephews.

Virginia will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery at a date to be determined. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Curry County Habitat for Humanity (zip code 97415) at their website: www.habitat.org.

Dale Eugene Coleman

Nov. 29, 1928 - July 17, 2019

Dale was born Nov. 29, 1928 in Chehalis, Washington to Daniel Boone Coleman and Lillian (Stanley) Coleman. He was raised in the Morton, Washington area and graduated from Morton High School. After high school he attended vocational school learning refrigeration. In 1950, he and Jo Ann Cagley were married and moved to Bandon, Oregon where he was employed as a timber faller for Carver and Houston and started their family. In 1959 they moved to Vernal, Utah with his brother to build and operate an electric sawmill and later a planing mill. He was an entrepreneur, worked hard and took risks in order to get ahead. In 1964 they returned to Oregon and he went to work for BZ & H Logging. He eventually started his own logging company with partners Rollo Sharp and John Curtis and operated under the name of C S & C Logging. He worked in the logging business for 30 years before semi-retiring at age 55.

While running C S & C logging, he started a chain saw sales and repair shop out of his garage with Jo Ann working as bookkeeper for both businesses while holding down a fulltime job with the US Forest Service. They were a team. The saw shop later moved to Hanscam's Center where Chan's Restaurant is currently located. He eventually expanded the business and opened a shop in Gold Beach. In time he sold the two shops to his son Brad who later sold the Gold Beach store to his brother Chris. Both shops are operating today as Curry Equipment and C

& M Equipment.

After selling the chain saw shop, he developed and sold Coleman Cove Trailer Park (currently Sunshine Cove). In semi-retirement he developed and built Sea Bird RV Park and he and Jo Ann operated the RV park until 2001. While operating the RV Park he developed and built Hall Way Mobile Home Park (currently operating as Tonapah Village) off Hall Way in Harbor. After selling the Hall Way Mobile Home Park and while still operating the RV Park, Dale began developing a hillside subdivision that is part of the Crown Terrace development. He continued to work on the subdivision until age 88 when he developed respiratory issues from the Chetco Bar Fire.

Dale was a lifelong member of the John Birch Society and had strong opinions that the government was straying from what the founding fathers envisioned. He could tell you how each of the US members of Congress voted. Many older Brookings people will remember his numerous letters to the editor to educate people on how the current politicians were leading our country down a path of more government control and more rights being taken from the citizenry under the guise of helping the American people. He was extremely concerned that his children and grandchildren not have things taken from them. Dale was deeply concerned about the future of America.

Dale served on the Curry County Planning Commission for twelve years and served as a director on the Harbor Water District for more than ten years.

Dale is survived by his wife of nearly 70 years, Jo Ann Coleman; five children - Sheila Sparlin (Donald), Terre Hodges (David), Shelly Slack (Steve), Brad Coleman (Laurie) and Chris Coleman (Marie); thirteen grandchildren - Ben McVay, Bud McVay, Brent Hodges, Brandon Hodges, Aaron Hodges, Courtney Slack Reisler, Kelley Slack Maxwell, Jay Slack, Tiffany Coleman Kirkish, Joshua Coleman, Ariel Coleman, Kyle Coleman, Kambri Coleman Weber and seventeen great-grandchildren.

The family would like to express their deep gratitude to Joyce, Shirley, Candace, and the many people with Coastal Home Health and Hospice who attended to his needs and expedited his care. They were so gracious, kind and attentive helping Dale transition. The family would also like to thank Dr. Reginald Williams for his consistent and attentive care and for his responsiveness.

In lieu of flowers, the family would appreciate donations to Coastal Home Health and Hospice.

No service will be held at Dale's request.

Kibby lived in Gold Beach, Oregon, for almost 50 years. For nearly 40 years, she was the proud Owner and Licensed Denturist at PTL Denture Service in Brookings, Oregon. As the first woman Denturist in the State of Oregon, and Scott in the 1st class of Denturists, they were considered pioneers in their industry.

She loved her patients and greeted them with a hug and smile. She would point to the lights and say, "Because of you, I can pay my bills and feed by family". She was humble and kind but tough as nails if you took advantage of others or made fun of the less fortunate. Oh, how she is missed! Kibby gave to others unconditionally, but always in private. She won many awards for helping the homeless, abandoned animals, and those in need. However, she refused to attend a single ceremony where she would receive public praise. She was blessed with a successful business she loved, but it wasn't always this way.

As a homeless child with 13 siblings and a father dying of cancer, abject poverty was Kibby's sure destiny. It had been the destiny of the past 2 generations of her family after the Great Depression left her wealthy family destitute. She dropped out of school in the 9th grade to help care for her siblings. She met and married "Scott" when she was only 15 but made him promise they could still care for her younger siblings. 4 years later they had a toddler and 2 babies. She was continuing down the path of generations before and it tore at her soul. It was at this time that she began to pray what has become our family manta, "Lord, please change MY generation!"

In the 1960's, Kibby was the 1st woman in Oregon to work in the plywood mill where she faced profound discrimination. She put her head down and worked even harder. She worked overtime and did the jobs no one wanted like cleaning the bathrooms and lunchroom. She worked until her hands bled. She wrapped her cracked and sore hands around used textbooks and began to study for her GED. Her young children watched her every move and learned about determination and character. As plywood mills began to shutter their doors, she prayed even harder, LORD PLEASE CHANGE MY GENERATION!

Destiny once again tapped her on the shoulder reminding her what she learned as a child...Education was her ticket out of poverty and the only way to "change her generation".

Kibby always put others first. In the late 1970's she sent her husband to college as she continued to work in plywood mills and scrub toilets. She then sent her college age children to school. In the 1980's, it was finally her turn to attend. Her professors told her she would never make it with only a GED and a 9th grade education. Many of us remember her tears; her embarrassment from being "an uneducated dropout that never went to high school". Did that stop her? Absolutely not. Once again, she put her head down and worked ever harder. She hired Math and English tutors. Her essays became vivid and alive. They were raw and real; they were KISMET! Apart from a few grammar and punctuation errors, and despite the closed-mindedness of a few professors, she graduated with honors. She was speechless when those same professors approached her with tears and pleaded for forgiveness. They said she was a gifted writer and begged her to pursue a journalistic career. Her focus was not to be a journalist, but to CHANGE HER GENERATION. KISMET INDEED CHANGED HER GENERATION. With her husband, they sent the rest of their children and many grandchildren to college.

She was injured in a car wreck on January 2, 2016 (not her fault). In May of that year, she fell and became an instant quadriplegic. Did complete paralysis stop her? No! She again put her head down to contemplate her future. The first thing she said was that it was time to "open her toolbox". When questioned on the meaning, she said "The most important thing in life is not money. It is God, love and family". She continued, "Money is only a tool and I have a lot of tools in my toolbox and it is time to use them all. I need to work much harder than before". Until the moment she died, her goal was to continue making dentures and other people smile at PTL Denture Service.

She is preceded in death by her husband Albert (Scott) Winslow, her son Albert (Bert) Winslow, and grandson Kevin Mayo. She is survived by her 3 daughters; Andrea (Lynn) Gillson & her husband Jim of Brookings, Monique (Chickie/Chicken) Eska & her husband Rick of Washougal, Washington, and Kismet (Kibby) Mayo & her husband Chris of Brookings. However, it was her grandchildren that she held closest to her heart: Tony Belisle, Mike Belisle, Ricky Eska, Brandon Eska, Monique Kelley, Dylan Jobe, Christopher Mayo and Sarah Mayo. She also loved her great-grandchildren too.

She adopted many people into her family, but none more than JoAnne Fritts, who was the reason she lived at home and not in a facility (she left her 3 cats to JoAnne to the relief of the rest of us). Her best friend Trina Forkner to whom she told everything; it didn't matter that she was almost 40 years younger than herself. She also loved Trina's partner for life Vinnie Colangelo...she loved his spaghetti and meatballs almost as much as she loved him! Renita Confer who was like a sister and daughter all wrapped into one who made her laugh when she needed it the most. Her "son" Randy Taylor who she couldn't love more & his wife Suzy Taylor who she cherished and adored. Her family of Caregivers that lovingly cared for her in her home 24/7 and were with her until she passed...even when they were told they would still be paid if they left...they ALL stayed until her last breath. Her caregivers called her Mama and she called them her girls. Thank you for making Mama's life worth living; Anne & Dwayne Washburn, Tami Kennedy, Sharlette (AKA Charlie) & Ted Aguirre, Alicia & Polo Pedraze, and Sandi Jordan. Of course, I must mention her furry kids: (Cats) Lilly, Sweetie, Iris and her constant companion Willy Winslow, her dog son.

Kibby's life wasn't always perfect, but it was filled with adventure, love, laughter and sheer determination. All families fight and hers was no different, but she never once quit loving and adoring ANY of them. She would often look around with pride (just like she is at this very moment) and see University & College educated Nurses, Denturists, Business Executives, and even an Attorney. She left this world knowing that SHE CHANGED HER GENERATION!

I guess you can call it KISMET (fate)! Perhaps it was her grit and never give up attitude that made the difference, but she would argue that it was PRAYER THAT CHANGED HER GENERATION! She would repeat what has become our family verse; Jeremiah 29:11, "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future".

We sure miss you Mama!!

PS She cherished her GED above the rest and displayed it on her office wall next to her Denturist License and certifications in Advance Oral Pathology, to name a few.

If you drive by the Brookings Municipal Pool first thing on a summer morning, Monday through Friday, you're likely to hear plenty of laughter and see a pool filled with seniors.

The seasonal pool offers morning water aerobics classes as a way to help older citizens keep fit, and to give them a chance to socialize.

Janet Hollowell, 77, of Brookings has been attending the water aerobics class for three years, primarily for the exercise. "It's wonderful," she said. "It wakes you up and keeps you going in the morning."

Hollowell said she also enjoys the socializing. "Everyone is so friendly."

For 90-year-old Reg Dewar of Brookings, being in the water is a way to maintain his flexibility. "It's not difficult to do this," he said. "I've been doing it for about 14 years."

Siena Worthey is in her first year as the Brookings Municipal Pool's aerobics instructor and pool manager, after working at various other positions at the facility over the past six years.

"I began as a lifeguard," said Worthey. "I also taught swimming lessons and aerobics."

"My father is a physical therapist in town, so I know that mobility is very important," she said. "In the water, you are weightless, so it is such a positive thing that you can get this type of beneficial workout."

Once the seniors are out of the pool, youngsters jump in. The pool currently has some 75 kids taking swimming lessons.

"I love watching the kids progress," Worthey said. "The swimming lessons for children are very important, given where we live. We are surrounded by water and much of what we do for fun

MARTHA WILLIAMS

I think he's #22.
I think.

If I list my kids, and under each one their kids ... and then their kids

At any rate, he's gorgeous. Not that any great-grand-mother wouldn't think the same of her granddaughter's new baby.

He arrived in Kansas City on Monday: 7 pounds, 11 ounces; 20 inches long. And the most beautiful red hair!

He's the first grandchild for my daughter, Sue, who last year had lamented, "I think all I'm ever going to have is granddogs," because she was always elected dog sitter when her girls went on vacation. (Some of you may remember her son, Stephen, who stayed with me and helped me through all those joint replacements, and worked at Dollar Tree.)

Now, five of my six kids are grandparents.

Our families grow. And this is one of those times I wish I didn't live so far away. My own fault, because I'm the one who left. One visit here and I was hooked on this beautiful chunk of God's country!

Maybe now that the cause of that horrible year of vertigo has been identified and corrected, I can plan a trip next summer.

I used to think nothing of hopping into my Ranger and taking off, but I don't think it's wise for an 80-year-old woman to take off across country alone like I used to.

Until then, I'll just stay glued to Facebook and watch him grow – along with several other of my great-grand-kids!

For the first year since '03,

I am not entering anything in the county fair! Time just slipped by me, until it was too late.

But I'll go on Senior Day, because I wouldn't miss seeing what other folks have entered. Maybe I'll be more on the ball next year.

Remember that old saying, "The best laid plans of mice and men" Well, it has struck again, and the next project day for the combined congregations of the Nazarene and New Life Community churches has had to be rescheduled again.

New things always seem to get kinks that need to be straightened out. The lesson learned is that it's a lot harder to schedule two churches for a program to the convenience of all than just one.

"Dimensions of the Imagination" will take place at New Life Community Church starting at 2 p.m. on Aug. 17. Attendees should bring an old, oversized shirt for protection, if they have one. This will be another art-based program, and reportedly should be as much or more fun than the last one.

There will be plenty of delicious munchables, too.

Today is the second day of the garage sale at Crescent City Methodist Church, 9 a.m.-2 p.m. They always have a variety of things available for sale; you never know what you will find.

People buy things, set them aside and, for whatever reason, never use them. That's like me a couple of months ago: found three necklaces still in the packages. Not expensive ones, but pretty. Should my church have a sale, the necklaces will be finding a new home.

Along with simmering lessons and water aerobics, the Brookings Municipal Pool also offers lap and open swimming. Worthey said average daily attendance at the 25-yard pool is about 150 adults and children.

Residents 18 and younger pay $2.50 for open swimming. Adults pay $3, seniors 2.50.

For nonresidents, the cost is $3.75 for youths, $4.50 for adults, and $3.75 for seniors.

For specific details and costs of the water aerobics classes and swim lessons, call the pool at 541-469-4711.

DEAR ABBY

DAUGHTER BETRAYED BY MOTHER STRUGGLES WITH RECONNECTION

DEAR ABBY: I have an extensive history of childhood trauma. I was sexually abused by my stepfather for 15 years. When I turned him in, my family turned their backs on me. I was told it could have been handled within the family, and they blamed me for acting “sexy.” My stepfather spent 10 years in prison and died a few years later.

I suffer from chronic mental health issues including PTSD, anxiety and suicide ideation, which have landed me in the hospital 10 times in the last two years. My mother wants to have a relationship with me, but she refuses to apologize or acknowledge the abuse even happened.

In some ways, the betrayal by my mother has hurt me more than the abuse. I feel guilty for not trying to work on a relationship with her, but on the other hand, I don’t feel my heart can handle any more rejection from her. We live states apart. What should I do? -- SURVIVOR IN WISCONSIN

DEAR SURVIVOR: If you haven’t talked about this with a licensed psychotherapist, please do it before making a decision about something this important. I’m not a therapist, but I think it would be healthier for you to keep your distance from someone who prefers living in denial rather than facing reality.

At the very least, YOU are owed an apology for the way you were treated by “the family.” You did nothing wrong. The person who should feel guilty is your mother. Blowing the whistle on the child molester she married was the right thing to do. (“Handle it within the family”?!). I can only wonder how many other young family members your stepfather may have abused in addition to you.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order “How to Have a Lovely Wedding.” Send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $8 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Shipping and handling are included in the price.)

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

* It was French playwright and actor Louis Verneuil who made the following sage observation: “The prime purpose of eloquence is to keep other people from talking.”

* With only two known to exist, the rarest U.S. postage stamp is an 1868 1-cent Benjamin Franklin Z-Grill, so called because of the shape that was impressed into the stamp. One of the Z-Grills is in the collection of the New York Public Library, and the other was sold in 1998 for $935,000. That’s not the end of the story, though; in 2005, the same stamp was traded for a block of stamps valued at $3 million.

* The year 1828 was a sad one for winemakers. For unknown reasons, 80 percent of the bottles of Champagne bottled that year exploded.

* There is a law on the books in Maine that prohibits having your shoes untied in public. I assume that one is not much enforced.

* In 2002, in an effort to be more environmentally friendly, Ireland decided to try to reduce the use of plastic grocery bags by levying a 15-cent tax on each one. It worked, too -- use of the bags dropped by 95 percent.

* Sir Christopher Wren, who designed the famous London landmark St. Paul’s Cathedral, was an astronomer, not an architect. His other achievements included developing a method for calculating eclipses and devising a way to measure the rings of Saturn.

* Back in 1935, the owner of the Chicago Cubs baseball team predicted that night games were “just a fad.” He wasn’t much of a prognosticator, it seems.

Thought for the Day: “It is easier to lead men to combat, stirring up their passion, than to restrain them and direct them toward the patient labors of peace.” -- Andre Gide

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

When Specialists Disagree

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a snowbird who uses two different cardiologists for my health, and I am devoted to both of them. However, they have conflicting advice. I have coronary artery disease and had three stents placed in New York. I am an active 86-year-old woman who walks at least a mile daily and does light weights. My lab results are all normal. I take a daily baby aspirin and Plavix. I've done well with them.

My Florida doctor wants me to discontinue the Plavix and take just the aspirin, but my New York doctor thinks I should keep the Plavix forever. I honestly don't know the right course of action. -- S.T.M.

ANSWER: Both aspirin and Plavix (clopidogrel) work by decreasing the activity of platelets, the specialized blood cells that start to form clots. They have been shown to reduce blockages of stents, which hold open blood vessels that have been unblocked via a catheter in the heart. There are several different types of stents, and some of them have medications embedded in them, which release slowly over many months. These “drug-eluting” stents require using both aspirin and clopidogrel for a longer period of time.

There is some debate about how long to continue these medications, but I have not read any recommendations to continue them for more than 30 months. A study (the DAPT trial) used exact information about the person and the type of stent to make predictions about balancing risks, and the results of the study showed that in your case, using both aspirin and clopidogrel would reduce heart attack risk slightly, but at an increased risk of bleeding. Nonetheless, some cardiologists will continue both medications in some patients if there are no problems.

It sounds like your New York cardiologist may have more knowledge about the stent, as it was performed in New York, so I would try to get the two of them to reach a consensus. There may be something about your particular case that warrants long-term treatment with these medications.

DEAR DR. ROACH: A few years ago, Johns Hopkins produced an article stating that possibly being hard of hearing and doing nothing about it could lead to Alzheimer's disease. Is that study still valid? -- S.S.

ANSWER: It's been almost 30 years since a link between hearing loss and dementia was first published, and recent research has confirmed this link. It now seems clear that hearing loss increases the rate of decline in brain function by 30% to 40%, independent of other risk factors. Put another way, people with mild hearing loss had double the risk of dementia in 10 years; those with moderate hearing loss, triple the risk; those with severe hearing loss had five times the risk of dementia compared with people of normal hearing and the same age. The brains of people with hearing loss are more likely to atrophy as well. Of course, not everybody with hearing loss develops dementia, and people with normal hearing can.

There is some, but not conclusive, evidence that hearing aids protect the brain from dementia in people with hearing loss. ANSWER: When your partner reverses to show extra shape and high cards, as here, I suggest that the best way forward is to bid two spades, your own suit, whenever you have five or more cards in that suit. It should be forcing for one round but not to game — even though you intend to force to game, of course, regardless of partner's next action.

Use Permit for an Overheight Accessory Building – The applicant has proposed to construct a detached garage on a 2-acre property, currently developed with a residence. The garage plans submitted indicate that it will be over 19 feet in height and approximately 1,152 square feet. The zoning is Residential, Agricultural (R1A) which requires a use permit for accessory structures in excess of 16 feet in height. The application notes that the height proposed would be required to store a camp trailer. The garage is to be located on the south side (entrance) of the property would not interfere with on-site utilities including the septic system and well. UP1917 – APN 105-211-35 located at 145 Red Robin Place, located off of Wier Lane, Fort Dick.

 Amendment to Use Permit for the Structural Alteration of Legal Non-Conforming Residence – The applicant was previously granted a use permit to expand a legal, nonconforming residence by way of constructing a 300 square-foot covered balcony on the front of the residence. The residence pre-dates current zoning standards requiring a 5-foot side yard setback, which is not met. The applicants subsequently applied to substantially reconstruct the residence which was not part of the public hearing or approval of the use permit for the balcony expansion. Use permit approval is required for any enlargement, expansion, reconstruction, or structural alteration of a nonconforming building. According to application materials, the reconstruction will maintain the same footprint and height of the existing residence. The roofline is not proposed to change, other than extending outward to cover the balcony. Interior load-bearing walls would be moved to incorporate a modified floorplan. UP1916 – APN 120-040- 014 located at 432 N. Pebble Beach Drive, Crescent City.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Department at (707) 464-7254. The public review period for proposed negative declarations is 30 days from the date of this notice. This proposed negative declaration is intended for adoption by the Del Norte County Planning Commission as "lead agency". The Commission will consider the project(s) listed at the following hearing:

DATE OF HEARING: September 4, 2019
TIME: 6:00 p.m.
PLACE: Del Norte County Board of Supervisors Chambers
981 H Street, Suite 100, Crescent City, CA

ITEM(S) TO BE CONSIDERED:

 Minor Subdivision of a Parcel into Two Parcels – The applicant has proposed splitting a 1.40-acre property at the near Elk Valley Road and Highway 199 into a 0.5-acre parcel and a 0.9-acre parcel. The property is zoned Light Commercial and is currently developed with a residence and dilapidated market. The property is served by public water service and on-site sewage disposal. The existing sewage disposal system on the proposed market property have been evaluated and determined to be in good working order. A reserve leaching area also been established on both proposed parcels through on-site analysis. The project would not increase the density of the area, as both proposed parcels are developed. No other actions are proposed. MS1903 – APN 110-201-033 located at 3200 Parkway Drive, Crescent City.

 Minor Subdivision of a 2.8-acre parcel into Two 1.4-acre Parcels – The applicant has proposed splitting a 2.8-acre property zoned Residential and Agriculture, 1 acre minimum lot size (R1A) on the corner of Lake Earl Drive and Audree Lane. The property is served by on-site services including septic system and well. An on-site soils analysis has been completed for the proposed undeveloped parcel and it has been determined that a conventional septic system is feasible. The project does not propose any development although potential future development could include residential use and light agriculture activities. MS1904 – APN 106-021-059 located at 3905 Lake Earl Drive, Crescent City.

 Minor Subdivision of 61½ acre parcel into two 20-acre Parcels and a Remainder – The applicant proposes to subdivide approximately 61 acres of timberland in the community of Big Flat. The land has a General Plan Land Use designation of Timberland and is zoned Public Ownership (PO). The minimum parcel size is 20 acres and this action is considered a resource subdivision. Much of the project area is steep hillside suitable only for timber management as designated in the General Plan. No development is proposed as part of this action. MS1905 – APN 126-290-007 located on Big Flat Road, Crescent City.
