After county loses lawsuit, mental health services to move to OHA

KNOX KERANEN
The Pilot

After voting to disband Curry County Public Health last week, the board of commissioners are trying to tie up loose ends as the state assumes public health responsibilities in the county.

At an April 28 meeting, the board addressed some of those loose ends, which include the future of integral public health services, such as mental health care, women, infant and children (WIC) services and environmental services.

The county’s mental health and addiction services are being offered through the nonprofit Curry Community Health, which has a contract with the county set to expire Dec. 30. However, in an April 13 press release, CCH announced they had “been approved for legal dissolution.” The release also stated the group is in the process of returning all state-funded behavioral health programs to the county. Those programs include: substance use disorder counseling, crisis response, gambling treatment and others.

After the announcement of the dissolution of their mental health provider, the county pursued litigation against CCH, demanding they provide services for the remainder of the year, as contracted.

On April 30, a district court ruled in favor of CCH, meaning their contract with the county will expire on June 30, according to Commissioner Court Boice.

Musicians ready to perform again ‘I chose to save lives’: Governor defends lockdown

After losing a year due to COVID, local musicians are excited to return to the stage

KNOX KERANEN
The Pilot

After a difficult year of lockdowns and bans on gatherings, local musicians are beginning to hear the music at the end of the tunnel.

Tom Boylan is the one-man band known as Holus Bolus, which he describes as a “psychedelic acoustilooop.”

Psychedelic because his music smacks of Pink Floyd and other psych-rock influences, and “acoustilooop” because Boylan uses a looper pedal to individually record instruments, including drums, guitars and shakers. Altogether, it’s as if Boylan has a full band behind him.

Pre-pandemic, Boylan was performing up to 80 times each year and touring across the West often.

In fact, he had a slew of shows booked across the Pacific Northwest when the virus struck last March.

“All my shows got cancelled, like immediately,” said Boylan. “From the beginning of February to October, I didn’t play any gigs at all. That was the first time in my whole life that I didn’t have any gigs either with a band or my own solo stuff.”

Boylan’s first gig in the post-lockdown era was on Halloween, which is also his birthday, at Zola’s On The Water in Brookings.

With live music beginning to make a comeback, Boylan said he can tell listeners now have a deeper appreciation for something they haven’t been able to experience in a while.

“You just see this totally different look in their eye, people are just super stoked,” said Boylan.

Another local musician, Zack Freiwald, did what many other musicians across the world did during the pandemic, he performed in his living room and live streamed it.

“In the initial hype of covidness, that was the way to go and everyone was doing it, so I jumped all over it,” said Freiwald.

If Boylan is psychedelic acoustilooop, Freiwald is more cozy campfire. During his COVID live streams, he did covers, as well as his own original stuff, usually in front of his fireplace and bookcase.

Freiwald, a prescribed fire and fuel technician at Redwood National and State Parks, said his songwriting has come a long way since he started 25 years ago.

“You may not always just be writing about the one event, or one person, but you might combine multiple things that happened to you over the course of time, but they are semi-related and end up making a tolerable song,” said Freiwald.

Freiwald said he has used the last

Curry remains in moderate risk amid state virus spike

ZACK DEMARS

Curry County will stay in the moderate-risk category of COVID-19 restrictions for another week, Oregon officials announced Tuesday.

Virus cases remained steady last week, with 39 cases reported in the previous two weeks and a 3.8% test positivity rate, almost identical to the week before.

The figures are a stark comparison to the rest of the state, where cases have been continuing to rise over the last several weeks.

On Tuesday, Oregon Gov. Kate Brown announced 15 counties would move out of the extreme-risk category of virus restrictions as the statewide hospitalization steadied slightly to below the state’s threshold for imposing the strictest category of restrictions.

“Based on today’s numbers, I am keeping my commitment to Oregonians. Beginning Friday, all counties in Extreme Risk will return to High Risk. With Oregonians continuing to get vaccinated each week, my expectation is that we will not return to Extreme Risk again for the duration of this pandemic,” Brown wrote in a press release Tuesday.

“I know this will bring relief to many across the state. However, the lifting of Extreme Risk health and safety measures comes with great personal responsibility for us all,” the governor wrote.

As of Monday, 351 in the state were hospitalized with the virus.

County abandons OpenGov software

KNOX KERANEN

Curry County government is abandoning its accounting software, OpenGov, after spending $140,000 on the rollout of the program.

“The bottom line is we are out money,” said Commissioner Court Boice.

Local governments use accounting software to record and report how funds are used and managed. In a June 2019 report by former finance director Sharlyn Harvey, she recommended switching the county’s accounting software from Caselle to OpenGov for a number of reasons.

The report stated the county’s last five audits had demonstrated a “history of material insufficiencies, material weaknesses and a lack of internal controls...Current operational practices create heavy workloads at an above average cost to taxpayers.”

Later in the report Harvey wrote, “OpenGov is a cosy-effective solution that promotes accuracy, efficiency, unity and transparency.”

In December 2019, the board of commissioners voted 2-1 to approve switching to OpenGov at the former finance director’s request.

Commissioners Court Boice and Chris Paasch voted yes, while former Commissioner Sue Gold

Oregon Gov. Kate Brown defended her decision to impose more COVID-19 restrictions on some parts of the state the same day 15 Oregon counties were forced to close indoor dining and recreation.

“Cases are widespread, driven by new, more contagious variants. Oregon leads the nation for our rate of increase in cases over the last two weeks,” Brown said Friday. “I was presented with data showing two paths Oregon could take.”

Brown explained last week’s decision to cancel a warning period and force the counties into the extreme-risk category of virus restrictions as the choice between those two paths: One path without restrictions and with additional virus deaths, and another path with more restrictions and fewer deaths.

“As your governor, I chose to save lives,” Brown said.

Since she announced her plan to re-impose the restrictions on indoor dining and recreation, the governor has faced significant opposition from impacted businesses and local government leaders concerned about the damaging economic effects of the plan.

Earlier this week, dozens of county officials from across the state signed onto a letter from the Association of Oregon Counties and the Oregon Restaurant & Lodging Association, calling on the governor to pull back on her plan.

“The variants are indeed troublesome, and we share your concern for their spread. But shutting down our restaurants and further depriving Oregonians of their right to make calculated community engagement risks when the virus continues to spread elsewhere will not result in success,” the 78 county commissioners wrote in the letter.

The county leaders pointed to the toll the pandemic’s restrictions have taken on their communities and economies, saying the restrictions are dividing communities “rather than bringing Oregonians together” and asking for greater local control over pandemic restrictions.

In response, Brown pointed to the state of the virus.

“What I would respond to in

Nona Faye Libhart Johnson October 20, 1944 – April 26, 2021

Nona (76) passed away peacefully on April 26, 2021 in Brookings, Oregon. She was born on October 20, 1944 in San Diego, California. She graduated from Venice High School and served her country in the US Navy. In her youth she enjoyed cheerleading, surfing, and go cart racing. Professionally she ran and owned several beauty salons and restaurants. She had fun camping and riding ATV's. She loved to create and spent much of her time crafting, crocheting, decorating and knew how to make any house into a home. She made all of her homes into places her grandchildren loved to be.

She will be remembered for her ability to create an atmosphere of fun, laughter, love and acceptance. No holiday was a dull holiday if you were blessed enough to spend it with Nona. In short, to know her was to love her.

One of her greatest accomplishments in life was creating memories with her husband, children, and grandchildren, who will sorely miss her.

She is survived by her loving husband David Johnson, children Jeffrey, Dan (and his wife Amber), Corey, David, Brett, Brian (and his wife Paulette), and Annie (and her husband Jeff), as well as several grandchildren and great grandchildren.

A celebration of life will be held at a later date.

Karyn Sue Butcher December 19, 1949 – April 25, 2021

Karyn Sue Butcher of Brookings, Oregon, born December 19, 1949, passed away on April 25, 2021, and is now at rest in her Heavenly Father's arms.

Karyn passed peacefully from a long courageous battle with a rare cancer. Her best friend and adoring husband David of 49 years and loving daughter Meghan were by her side. She was an amazing wife, mother, grandmother, and friend.

She loved Jesus, her family, friends near and far, and animals.Karyn was a ray of light to everyone who knew her and always tried to be her best self. She had a great sense of humor and gave excellent advice. Her presence in our daily life will be greatly missed.

Upon her request, there will be no service. If you wish to honor her, she loved the song "It Is Well With My Soul" and would love for you to listen to it and send up a prayer.

Jane Brittain

Jane Brittain was born on September 28, 1935 in Covington County, Mississippi to Earl and Eunice Garrick.

She is survived by children, George (Marilyn) Brit-

Warren L. Jewell April 17, 2021

Warren L. Jewell, longtime resident of Port Orford, died at Gold Beach General Hospital in the evening of April 17, 2021. He was 90 years old. Born in Oregon City in 1930 to George O. Jewell and Minnie E. Lettenmaier. Jewell graduated from Oregon City High School in 1948.

In 1951, he entered the United States Navy and served aboard a small aircraft carrier that was being used to transport airplanes to Korea. He was proud of his military service but said he had an easy job during the Korean War. After mustering out of the Navy in 1954, Jewell began a 32-year career with the United States Postal Service which climaxed with his service as Postmaster in Port Orford from 1971 to 1987.

Warren Jewell married Louise McCoy in August 1958. She died in 2000. They had two children, Michael Jewell and Karen Jewell. In addition, he is survived by three grandchildren, Timothy Iida, Jennifer Iida, and Emily Anderson and three great grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his mother, father, wife, and a sister, Joanne Phillips.

Jewell was an active Mason for more than 46 years, first in the Port Orford Lodge and, after 2019, in the Bandon Lodge.

He was a Master Mason with perfect attendance at lodge gatherings. He was awarded a number of awards and held a variety of positions during his years of service.

Warren Jewell was known and liked by virtually everyone in Port Orford, in part because of his years of service as postmaster but mostly because he was simply the kind of man everyone liked and was quick to call him their friend. In addition, Jewell was a dedicated member of Zion Lutheran Church in Port Orford where he rarely missed a worship service or other event and served on the Church Council for many years. In 2018, Jewell was honored as the Grand Marshall of the Jubilee Parade for the second time.

When he was a younger man, Jewell enjoyed woodworking projects and, then, he and Louise discovered the joys of travel. Domestically, they took their RV motor home on many trips including taking the grandchildren to Yellowstone and Yosemite National Parks. He and Louise travelled to England and Ireland where he kissed the Blarney Stone. He took a raft trip down the Colorado River through the Grand Canyon with his daughter Karen when he was 80 and a few years later, he visited Germany and Washington, D.C. with her where he proudly visited the Korean War Memorial.

Because of the pandemic, the Memorial Service at Zion Lutheran Church for Warren Jewell will be open only to family and members of Zion Lutheran Church. There will be a viewing reserved for service attendees at 2:00 pm, Saturday, May 1, 2021 followed by the memorial service immediately after the viewing. Music will be provided by Ruby Wagner and Pat Taylor, a flag ceremony will be led by the VFW, and Pastor Ronn Kerr will preside. Following the memorial service, at 3:15 pm, May 1, there will be a dignified "drive-by" as the hearse and other attendees of the services will travel slowly going South on Highway 101. Members of the community wishing to celebrate Warren Jewell's life are encouraged to gather in front of the grade school continuing up the street to the Circle K.

Allen R. Hart February 7, 1949 – December 21, 2020

Long time Brookings resident, Allen R. Hart, was born in Wenatchee, WA on February 7th, 1949. He was the second of 6 children. Allen passed away on December 21, 2020 surrounded by loved ones.

Raised in Moyie Springs, Idaho, he served in the U.S. Navy before settling in Brookings.

He was skilled in auto mechanics, wood working, auto restoration, and was employed in the lumber industry for decades. He retired from South Coast Lumber in 2019.

He is survived by his two daughters, four stepchildren and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Services will be held when COVID restrictions are removed or more conducive to travel and gathering.

Curry Community Health could not be reached for comment on this story, however, their earlier press release includes these excerpts, "CCH will equip patients with resources and information regarding when the crisis services will be available, and the number they can call to access care...Our goal is to ensure continuity of care with little to no disruption...By returning the Oregon Health Authority behavioral health programs to the county...services are expanding, not reducing. We anticipate that the number of service providers in the community will increase."

Sheriff John Ward commented on the importance of having readily available mental health services for subjects who are arrested during a mental health crisis.

"The sheriff's office, the local police department and the state department use mental health services every day," said Ward. "When we deal with suicidal people and people with mental illness every day, we contact mental health locally...We take them to the hospital and mental health is supposed to come deal with that. If they don't, we have to take them and put them right back to the situation we pulled them out of."

As for other services, WIC duties were carried out through Josephine County Public Health, however, those services were transferred over to the Oregon Health Authority on May 2.

Josephine County had also been coordinating environmental services for Curry County, which includes handling of restaurant inspections and environmental complaints, but those also transferred to OHA on May 2.

During the meeting, Paasch rebuked the other commissioners for voting to disband public health.

"Basically, our public health will be run from Portland and basically everything will be long distance," he said.

Boice defended his vote.

"We would have liked to maintain this, it's one of the toughest decisions I've ever made, but I'm going to stake my reputation on being able to work with OHA," said Boice. "We do not have the resources... we obviously don't have the staff, we are

Some regions could avoid virus surge with precautions

ZACK DEMARS
The Pilot

Vaccinations and gathering safely could be the keys for some communities to avoid the surge in case rates and virus hospitalizations seen across the state, according to a panel of Oregon State University experts.

“The larger share of the population that is fully vaccinated the better, the better the shield,” said Daniel López-Cevallos, an OSU professor of ethnic studies with a focus on health equity, during a panel April 27.

While much of Oregon is seeing large increases in case counts in what experts have called the “fourth wave” of the virus, some counties, including Coos, Curry, Tillamook, Lincoln, and Clatsop still have virus numbers low enough to keep them out of the state’s extreme-risk category.

For those counties, López-Cevallos said vaccination could have the potential to help prevent infections and a move to that level of pandemic restrictions.

“The more, I think in rural communities particularly, (effective you are) in reaching your community, and getting the vaccines to them, (the more) you’ll be in a better position to weather that next wave that we’re seeing in other parts of the state,” López-Cevallos said.

Still, vaccinations take time, with doses still hard to access in some areas and with time required between shots.

In the meantime, Chun-huei Chi, the director of the university’s Center for Global Health, said community members can take steps to avoid spreading the virus until they’re vaccinated.

“Based on the Oregon Health Authority’s statistics, one of the biggest contributions to the peak, to the spike in Oregon recently, has been group gatherings. All kind of group gatherings,” Chi said. “So one way to prevent that before you have enough of the population vaccinated is to restrict the group gatherings, particularly indoor.”

And Marion Ceraso, an OSU professor affiliated with the university’s extension service, said local communities will need to continue finding new ways to administer vaccines as more become available.

“I think local communities really are beginning to see that now that they have full availability to vaccinate everyone, and that they have the supply, that they’re needing to reach out ... through other mechanisms,” Ceraso said. “Not just physicians’ offices, but also some communities, some counties are reaching out, sending messages to community-based groups to say, ‘can we bring a vaccine clinic to you? Can we bring it to your local organization?’”

Beyond the preventative impact, federal officials this week provided another reason for community members to get vaccinated, which some experts say could keep demand for the COVID vaccine high.

Last month, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention eased its public health guidance for wearing masks, saying fully vaccinated individuals no longer need to wear facemasks while doing outdoor activities alone, or in small gatherings.

Since the guidance only applies to those who’ve been fully vaccinated, OSU medical ethics professor Courtney Campbell said it provides a good reason to get the shot.

“It’s also trying to provide, if you will, a kind of incentive, a kind of carrot, for the numbers of unvaccinated people in Oregon and throughout the country to encourage vaccination,” Campbell said. “Then some of these other precautions that people have felt have been so hampering and inhibiting of their return to normality can at least start to be paled back a little bit.”

Emergency SNAP benefits available in May

Most Oregonians who receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits will receive emergency allotments in May. The federal government has approved emergency allotments every month since March 2020, to give SNAP recipients additional support during the COVID-19 pandemic.

There are two important federal changes to the SNAP Emergency Allotments in May.

Households that are already receiving the maximum SNAP benefits for their household size will now receive an additional $95 in emergency allotments in May.

This increase will impact approximately 284,000 households (67% of Oregon SNAP households) and will have an impact of $28 million in additional benefits for households in Oregon.

Households who are eligible for $0 in regular SNAP benefits will not receive the May emergency allotments.

This change is because the federal government clarified households must receive regular SNAP to be eligible for emergency allotments. This change doesn’t impact other SNAP benefits and services these households may receive, such as employment and training services. This change will impact approximately 4,300 households. Those impacted by this change are encouraged to report any changes that may impact their regular SNAP amount, such as loss of income or increase in expenses.

“We are grateful to have the opportunity to increase emergency benefits available to some SNAP households in Oregon,” said Oregon Department of Human Services Director Fariborz Pakseresh. “We also know that for those 4,300 households who will no longer receive the emergency allotments, that this change can be significant and difficult. We encourage them, and all Oregonians who are struggling to meet their basic needs to contact our partners at 211 and the Oregon Food Bank.”

Opinion & Letters

Guest Opinion We blame the trees, but whose fault is it?

By PEPPER TRAIL

Just like you, I live with the fear of wildfire. My southern Oregon town of Ashland nestles against the foothills of the Siskiyou Mountains, whose forests become tinder in our hot, dry summers.

One lightning strike or tossed cigarette on the wrong windy day, and Ashland could be destroyed as completely as the town of Paradise, California, in 2018.

This reality was brought home with terrifying force last September, when a wind-driven wildfire roared through the nearby towns of Talent and Phoenix, destroying over 2,500 residences in a matter of hours. Ashland was largely spared, but only because the wind pushed the fire in another direction.

Over the past several years, the city has implemented the ambitious “Ashland Forest Resiliency” project to reduce flammable fuels on thousands of acres of public lands. Tools in the Ashland Watershed include thinning and controlled burns. The project is considered to be a model ecological approach, not mere window-dressing to justify commercial timber harvest as is true of many “forest health” projects.

As a homeowner, I’ve supported the project, and as a conservation biologist, I’ve been impressed with how it’s been carried out.

Yet even as the city and its partners are diligently reducing forest fuels, more and more homes are being built in every nook and cranny of private land abutting the watershed. Many are McMansions commanding expansive views of the valley below. All these homes are at extreme risk of wildfire. As if the sense of crisis surrounding fuels reduction wasn’t enough, this adds another crisis, one we’ve made ourselves.

Recently, I took a favorite trail leading from the edge of edge of town into the watershed. I always look forward to walking through an avenue of small manzanita trees. In spring, their pink urn-like blossoms are mobbed by bumble bees and hummingbirds. In fall and winter, their berries — the “little apples” that give these shrubs their Spanish name — feed robins, thrushes and bears. Winter storms turn these groves into an enchanted labyrinth of green leaves, red bark and white snow.

Not this year. Not again in my lifetime. I found that this once intact and healthy wildlife habitat had been reduced to “defensible space.” The manzanitas had been harshly hacked back; those that had been spared stood isolated in a barren expanse of blood-red stumps.

I counted the rings on one of the stumps, revealing that it had been at least 55 years old when we decided it was too dangerous to live.

The Forest Resiliency Project considered these manzanitas a threat because they were close to the city limits — and even closer to the big new homes being built outside the city limits.

They were sacrificed to increase our sense of security, and for no other reason. They were mostly healthy and important for wildlife. They shaded the soil and hosted mycorrhizal fungi integral to the nutrient cycles of the forest.

Yes, someday a wildfire would have burned here. But without our presence, that fire would not have been a tragedy, merely an episode in the long life of the land, and an opportunity for renewal. Manzanitas are well-adapted to fire; some species actually require fire for seed germination.

Oregonians take pride in being environmentally aware. Yet we accept the ecological destruction of the “fuels reduction” paradigm, rather than putting limits on our relentless expansion into the rural landscape.

Perhaps my town is becoming safer than it was before. But it’s questionable that any amount of “thinning” could protect Ashland from a wind-driven firestorm coming out of the watershed.

The fire that destroyed much of Talent and Phoenix, Oregon, like many of last summer’s devastating California wildfires, did not start on heavily forested public land.

Instead, it ignited and roared through a typical valley mosaic of creekside woodlands, orchards and residential neighborhoods. The hard truth is that for Ashland and many other towns around the West, avoiding catastrophic wildfire is as much a matter of luck as preparedness.

Still, we have to try, right? That means some degree of fuels reduction. But we must acknowledge the losses to the ecological integrity, the habitat value and the beauty of this land that we love so much.

Guest Opinion The last thing we need is a gold mine

By MARCIE CARTER

As a citizen of the Nez Perce, or Nimiipuu, which means the People, I look at gold mining as a symbol of broken promises.

In 1855, when my ancestors entered into a treaty with the United States, we ceded millions of acres in what eventually became Idaho, Oregon and Washington. In exchange we reserved an exclusive homeland and rights to fish, hunt, gather and pasture throughout our vast aboriginal territory.

Then in 1860 gold was discovered, and thousands of prospectors flooded across our borders in violation of the treaty, damaging our sacred places and natural resources and causing unspeakable injury to our people.

The United States failed to uphold the terms of the 1855 Treaty and instead forced the Nez Perce to enter into a new treaty in 1863. Known by us as the “steal treaty,” it reduced the size of our homeland by 90% and allowed miners and other non-Indians to remain on lands they had illegally occupied.

When several Nez Perce bands led by Chief Joseph demanded that the United States uphold the promises it had made in the 1855 Treaty, and refused to move to the new reservation, the federal government resorted to military force, prompting the Nez Perce War of 1877.

A century and a half later, the promise of gold once again threatens our homeland and way of life.

The Stibnite Gold Project is proposed by Perpetua Resources, formerly Midas Gold, a Canadian company that recently moved to Idaho. The mine site is located within Nez Perce ceded territory in the headwaters of the South Fork Salmon River, a watershed that once was home to one of the largest Chinook salmon runs in the Columbia River Basin. We have treaty-reserved rights in this culturally significant area, and have worked over the years to restore fish habitat that benefits everyone, an effort that cost millions of dollars.

The Stibnite Gold Project would be one of the largest gold mines in the country. The company aims to extract between four and five million ounces of gold from three open pit mines during the estimated 21- to 28-year life of the project.

Despite Perpetua’s claim that it will “restore the site” that is already heavily polluted by a legacy of mining, the proposal to expand the area and mine it again will add hundreds of millions of tons of additional mining waste and tailings. The proposal will also require storage of the new toxic waste, plus active water treatment long after the company is done mining the site.

Perpetua’s mining would also restrict or prohibit treaty-reserved access for more than two decades or even longer. It would also destroy critical habitat for endangered Chinook salmon and bull trout and other resources cherished by the Nez Perce and all Idahoans.

The Nez Perce doubt that Perpetua Resources will stick around if the mine is permitted by the federal government. Perpetua is now majority-owned by a New York-based corporation that recently replaced most of the mining company’s governing board.

The company might opt to sell its shares for a huge profit and then exit the scene. A new corporation could then step in to extract gold, leaving behind a legacy of toxic contamination and resource destruction that will plague our communities for generations to come.

We know all too well the pattern of exploit-and-abandon. Corporations don’t keep their promises. We want this permit denied.

The United States, as a signatory to the 1855 Treaty and trustee to the Tribe, has a responsibility to protect and honor our treaty rights and resources. These treaty obligations, which predate the 1872 General Mining Law, are rooted in the Supremacy Clause of the Constitution and represent the solemn word of the United States.

I support Joel Hensley for Health District

I write to urge your support for Joel Hensley for Curry Health District Board Position #3. In my 5+ years working for the Curry County District Attorney’s Office as both a Deputy DA and now the elected DA, I have worked with Lieutenant Hensley in his role as jail commander for the Curry County Sheriff’s Office.

Joel has shown a high level of integrity and professionalism in all our interactions, whether during or after work. I support Joel not only because of his integrity and professionalism, but also because of his character.

I know Joel is committed to this community and the health and well-being of its citizens. He has served Curry County honorably in law enforcement for many years and I can think of no better candidate for the Curry Health District Board of Directors than Joel Hensley.

Pay attention to mental health

May 9 is National Children’s Mental Health Awareness Day and the month of May is Mental Health Awareness Month. Approximately fifty percent of chronic mental illnesses begin by the age of 14 and 75 percent by age 24. 15 million children have a mental, emotional or behavioral health condition. There are often lengthy delays between the time symptoms first appear and when an individual seeks treatment, and early diagnosis and treatment can make a difference in the successful management of mental illness and recovery.

Kids are naturally curious and have questions about mental illnesses. It can be challenging for adults as well as for children. Myths, confusion and misinformation about mental illnesses cause anxiety, create stereotypes and promote stigma.

Parents can help children understand that these are real illnesses that can be treated. In order to talk with a child about mental illnesses, you must be knowledgeable and reasonably comfortable with the subject. Some parents may have to do a little homework to be better informed.

Because children often can’t understand difficult situations on their own, you should pay particular attention if they experience:

1. Loss of a loved one
2. Divorce or separation of their parents
3. Any major transition – new home, new school.
4. Traumatic life experiences, like living through a natural disaster
5. Teasing or bullying
6. Difficulties in school or with classmates

If you think your child is in danger of harming themselves or others, seek immediate assistance and teach them the Crisis Text Line and text SOS to 741741 since they probably prefer to text about emotional issues than talk about them.

Brochures that inform what to look for and crisis wallet cards are available at 112 partners in Curry County. Find a list at ZeroAttempts.org/curry.html Stay safe.

NOTICE OF ESTATE TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF Gerald Prado
Case Number: CVPB-2021-7018

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: Gerald Prado

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: Keeohmee Langlois, in the Superior Court of California, County of: Del Norte. Endorsed Filed: April 20, 2021. The petition for probate requests that: Keeohmee Langlois be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Date: May 14, 2021 Time: 10:00 am Dept.: 2 Room: 209 Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

95531 all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as: MORE ACCURATELY DESCRIBED IN SAID DEED OF TRUST. The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 2231 HUNTER CREEK ROAD, KLAMATH, CA 95548~ The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein.~ Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition, or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust.~ The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is:~ $176,872.18~ If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse.~ The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located.~ NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS:~ If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.~ NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477- 7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 087456-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313- 3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 087456-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. a public hearing will be held before the Brookings Planning Commission on Tuesday, June 1, 2021 at 7:00 PM in the Council Chambers of Brookings City Hall, 898 Elk Drive, Brookings, OR 97415. The below applications are Quasi-judicial hearings and the Planning Commission will make a decision on each of these matters. In the matter of File No. CUP-4-21, a request for approval of a Conditional Use Permit to operate a Short Term Rental facility at 1408 View Court, located on Assessor's Map No. 4114-01AA Tax Lot 00103; zoned R-1-6. The owner is Joanne Massa, the applicant is Geoff Massa. Criteria used to decide this matter can be found in Brookings Municipal Code Chapter 17, Sections: 17.20.040(Q) Single Family Residential (R-1) Conditional Uses; 17.124.170 – Short-Term Rentals; and Chapter 17.136 - Conditional Uses. In the matter of File No. M3-2-21, a request for a partition to divide a .28 acre parcel into two (2) parcels; located in the 600 block of Meadow Lane; Assessor's Map 4013-31DD, Tax Lot 00702; zoned R-1-6; Jacqueline Pratt, owner. Criteria used to decide this case can be found in Brookings Municipal Code Chapter 17, Sections: 17.20 – Single Family Residential; 17.128.050 – Access; 17.172.50 - Lot Design Standards; 17.172.060 – Partitions; and 17.168 - Public Facilities Improvement Standards and Criteria for Utilities. The public is invited to attend and participate in the public hearing. All persons wishing to address this matter will have an opportunity to do so in person at the hearing or by submitting written evidence to the Brookings Planning Department at the address above. If you wish to speak at the hearing, you will be asked to sign in and afforded five (5) minutes to speak. Failure to raise an issue accompanied by statements or evidence sufficient to afford the Planning Commission and parties an opportunity to respond to the issues precludes appeal to the Oregon Land Use Board of Appeals (LUBA). A copy of the application, all documents and evidence submitted on behalf of the applicant is available for public inspection at no cost at the Brookings Planning Department, 898 Elk Drive, Brookings, OR. The staff report prepared in this case will be available seven days prior to the hearing. Copies of documents may be obtained at reasonable cost. All public meetings are held in accessible locations, auxiliary aids will be provided upon request with advance notification. Please contact 541-469-1103 to make appropriate arrangements or for additional information. TTY 800-735-1232.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
THOMAS C. TRUEBLOOD

CVPB-21-7017
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both,
of THOMAS C. TRUEBLOOD.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Alexander Trueblood, in the Superior Court of California, County of Del Norte.

Public Notices

The petition for probate requests that Alexander Trueblood be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
5/14/2021 Time: 10:00am
Dept.: 2
Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Smith, Esq., OSB #120112, have elected to sell the said real property to satisfy the obligations secured by said Trust Deed and notice has been recorded pursuant to Section 86.735(3) of Oregon Revised Statutes. The default for which the foreclosure is made is the Grantor's failure to pay: Failed to pay payments which became due Monthly Payment(s): 11 Monthly Payment(s) from 08/01/2019 to 06/01/2020 at $2,397.72 9 Monthly Payment(s) from 07/01-2020 to 03/31/2021 at $2,384.69 Monthly Late Charge(s): $513.60 By this reason of said default the Beneficiary has declared all obligations secured by said Trust Deed immediately due and payable, said sums being the following, to-wit: The sum of $435,000.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 4.25000% per annum from July 1, 2019 until paid; plus all accrued late charges thereon; and all Trustee's fees, foreclosure costs and any sums advanced by the Beneficiary pursuant to the terms of said Trust Deed. Wherefore, notice is hereby given that, the undersigned Trustee will on August 17, 2021 at the hour of 09:00 AM, Standard of Time, as established by Section 187.110, Oregon Revised Statutes, Main Entrance, Curry County Courthouse, 29821 Ellensburg, Gold Beach, OR 97444 County of Curry, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the interest in the said described real property which the Grantor had or had power to convey at the time of the execution by him of the said Trust Deed, together with any interest which the Grantor or his successors in interest acquired after the execution of said Trust Deed, to satisfy the foregoing obligations thereby secured and the costs and expenses of sale, including a reasonable charge by the Trustee. Notice is further given that any person named in Section 86.753 of Oregon Revised Statutes has the right to have the foreclosure proceeding dismissed and the Trust Deed reinstated by payment to the Beneficiary of the entire amount then due (other than such portion of said principal as would not then be due had no default occurred), together with the costs, Trustee's or attorney's fees and curing any other default complained of in the Notice of Default by tendering the performance required under the obligation or Trust Deed, at any time prior to five days before the date last set for sale. Without limiting the Trustee's disclaimer of representations or warranties, Oregon law requires the Trustee to state in this notice that some residential property sold at a Trustee's sale may have been used in manufacturing meth-amphetamines, the chemical components of which are known to be toxic. Prospective purchasers of residential property should be aware of this potential danger before deciding to place a bid for this property at the Trustee's sale. In construing this notice, the masculine gender includes the feminine and the neuter, the singular includes plural, the word "Grantor" includes any successor in interest to the Grantor as well as any other persons owing an obligation, the performance of which is secured by said Trust Deed, the words "Trustee" and "Beneficiary" includes their respective successors in interest, if any. NOTICE OF PETITION TO
ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
AGNES K. HARP CVPB-2021-7024

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of AGNES K. HARP. A Petition for Probate has been filed by Pamela G. Harp, in the Superior Court of California, County of Del Norte. The petition for probate requests that Pamela G Harp be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 6/4/2021 Time: 10:00am Dept.: 2 Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531 If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for petitioner or party without attorney: Pamela G. Harp 728B st. Crescent city, CA 95531 Telephone: (707) 464-5332

Pinkstons named volunteers of the year

SMART Reading has announced the Volunteer of the Year for the South Coast Area, serving Coos and Curry counties. We are proud to share that longtime volunteers Jaci and Hugh Pinkston have taken the honor for 2021.

The Pinkstons were selected from among 186 dedicated local volunteers who are committed fostering a love of reading and learning in local kids. They were ultimately selected due to their longstanding dedication as 15-year volunteers who have served as volunteer readers, site coordinators, leadership council members and ambassadors.

"We are so grateful to Jaci and Hugh for the time and talent they bring to SMART Reading," says Cheryl Brown, SMART Reading area manager. "Our work to ensure that all kids in Oregon can realize their full potential through reading simply wouldn't be possible without our community of volunteers who dedicate time to helping kids build the skills and confidence they need to read and succeed. Jaci and Hugh are outstanding volunteers whose passion for helping young readers is evident in everything they do."

In addition to their work with SMART Reading, the Pinkstons are also active in other community organizations including the Coquille Food Bank, Coquille Friends of the Library, 4H and Kiwanis International. Hugh also served on the Coquille City Council.

As part of SMART Reading's Volunteer of the Year award program, local volunteers, educators and partners in each of SMART Reading's 10 regional areas across Oregon were invited to submit nominations for outstanding volunteers. Each local winner was honored at Oregon Reads Aloud, SMART Reading's statewide virtual event in February. SMART Reading is a statewide children's literacy nonprofit that serves kids in Oregon's highest need schools with two ingredients critical for literacy and learning success: one-on-one reading time and access to books. We mobilize volunteers to read with PreK through third-grade children, building confidence, literacy skills and a love of reading. Since 1992, we have paired over 139,000 volunteers to read with 222,000 children, and have put 2.8 million books in the homes of the children we serve. # Second Saturday Art Walk returns this week

The first Second Saturday Art Walk of 2021 is planned from 3 to 5 p.m. May 8 at five venues in downtown Brookings.

Venues participating include Manley Art Center, Brian Scott and Signatures galleries, Semi Aquatic Gallery, Whimsical Griffin and Ambiance by the Sea. All venues are within two blocks of Chetco Avenue between Oak and Center streets. Masks and social distancing are required inside the buildings.

The art walk will be canceled in the event of a lockdown. All venues are open for business and welcome spectators during normal operating hours.

Leslie Wilkinson is the featured artist for the month at Pelican Bay Arts Association's (PBAA) Manley Art Center, 433 Oak St. Her show is titled "Layers: An Exploration of Alternative Process Photography and Paper Collage Embracing the Japanese Concept of Wabi-sabi."

This process is a way of seeing, understanding and appreciating the value of imperfect objects, according to Rachel Gates, PBAA publicity director.

"Leslie merges many different art papers such as Washi, Kozo, Lokta, Banana, Indian and silk with her images to take on a new directions and complex compositions," Gates said. "Please come to the gallery and enjoy this exciting and inventive photo exhibit."

For information about Pelican Bay Arts Association and activities that take place at Manley Art Center, visit pelicanbayartsassociation.org or call 541-469-1807.

The featured artist at Brian Scott Gallery, 515 Chetco Ave., is Brian Gibbons. His use of color and style in his acrylic paintings captures the senses, according to the gallery's website. Gibbons depicts sea life, seascapes, landscapes and more. Also on display, are his wood assemblages of old houses and castles, all with little lights and secret doors.

Brian Scott Gallery features three floors of art displays and includes Signatures, a gallery within the gallery, on the main floor. For information about the galleries, visit brianscottgallery.com or call 541-412-8687.

Semi Aquatic Gallery is at 654 Chetco Ave. and features the works of owner Spencer Reynolds. A featured artist is planned and will be announced at the art walk. In addition to Reynolds' surf-related art, the gallery features prints, cards and clothing, as well as a curated collection of hand-crafted and locally-made gifts and home goods.

For information about Semi Aquatic, visit artand-surf.com or call 503-451-3775.

A newcomer to the art walk is Whimsical Griffin, a small shop at 615 Chetco Ave., a few doors from Redwood Theater. The tiny venue features portraiture by its owner Vincent Chiantelli and a featured artist to be announced. The shop also features items relating to the fantasy world of wizards, including a collection of comic books.

For information about Whimsical Griffin, visit whimsicalgriffin.com.

Ambiance by the Sea features the paintings of Gold Beach artist Magda Druzdel. The shop, at 530 Hemlock St., features handcrafted gifts. For information, call 541-254-4097.

The Second Saturday Art Walk began in 2004. The event was organized by Brookings artist Horst Wolf and began with four venues within a block of Oak Street, all within walking distance. The monthly event grew to as many as 17 venues and included many special activities, some in the alley now officially named Art Walk Alley. The event has continued to survive even through COVID lockdowns.

voted no, but later changed her vote to yes, according to Paasch.

Boice said he later tried to rescind his vote after he discovered no other governments in Oregon used the software. Paasch said he wanted to give the software a chance.

When they began to implement OpenGov, county employees found it to be glitchy and difficult to use, some felt it wasn't a fully developed software, said Paasch. Nevertheless, Paasch wanted to see if it would work out.

After 16 months, the glitches persisted, and the county decided it would discontinue use of the software at a Wednesday meeting.

"They used us as a guinea pig to beta test their software," said Paasch.

The county may pursue litigation against OpenGov in order to restore some of the money lost, however, Boice said he was doubtful the county would be successful in court.

Going forward, the county may choose to restore the Caselle software or elect to implement a different one.

Governor

terms of the elected officials and businesses is that COVID is surging across Oregon right now," Brown said. "It takes community-wide measures to make sure that we can protect our most vulnerable Oregonians."

While showing no signs of letting up the extreme-risk closures, Brown offered one concession for businesses impacted by the current closures: A plan with state legislators to provide $20 million in relief funds.

Those funds will be passed to the 15 counties in the extreme-risk category for distribution to businesses, the governor said.

"Economic relief is something I can do as your governor to help Oregonians impacted by this fourth surge. What I can't do is bring back someone's life lost to this virus," Brown said. "That's why, as hard as this is, we must act immediately."

State health officials also placed a timeline on the closures, saying Friday the counties in the extreme-risk category will stay there for a maximum of three weeks if case rates follow predicted trends.

Those trends are the basis of the extreme-risk closure policy, said Peter Graven, the Oregon Health & Science University data scientist who helps the state predict how the virus will spread.

"The good news is, when we pair these data together, it shows us that we have just three to four more weeks until we are in good shape," Graven said. "That's when cases will fall and our vaccine levels will be high enough that — with basic preventive measures — the virus cannot effectively grow."

The state officials again pointed to the data to explain why the current spike pushed them to force more closures.

"I think what we're seeing now is similar to what we saw in the fall. We are seeing an increase in cases across the state, traced to multiple different sources," said Dr. Dean Sidelinger, the state epidemiologist. "We're also seeing an increase in hospitalizations like we saw in the fall: A curve that became very steep and pushed us close to not having the specialized care in intensive care units that every Oregonian deserves, whether they have COVID, or a heart attack or motor vehicle crash."

Graven said that last point, the increase in hospitalizations, is the state's main concern, since hospital capacity is limited.

He said his mathematical models show the state could have lost 178 additional lives by the end of summer without the added restrictions, with most coming in the next several weeks.

The governor is still optimistic about lifting restrictions, saying the economy could see a reopening to pre-pandemic life by the end of June.

But that'll only happen if vaccination rates finally outpace virus spread and hospitalizations, the OHA officials said Friday.

"The balance we've had in fighting this disease has really been it's not policy that drives the change, its policy with people following that policy," Sidelinger said.

"The vast majority of Oregonians are doing what they can to protect themselves and their loved ones, but over these next few weeks, we need more Oregonians to join us."

Election 2021: A look at Curry County district elections

The Curry Coastal Pilot invited all the candidates in contested elections on the May 18 ballot to introduce themselves to voters. The candidates who responded are below.

Brookings-Harbor Port district

Commissioner #3
This position became vacant when former chairman Roy Davis died Feb. 3, after serving more than a decade on the port commission.

Gary Klein— Klein has lived in Brookings for more than 37 years. He was a commercial fishing guide for many years, and now commercial fishes with his son. He formerly owned the Hungry Clam restaurant in the port. He said he is running for people and businesses. He also said he is self-employed, and knows how to run a business.

Larry Jonas— Jonas worked for a municipal government organization for 30 years. He said his work in municipal government taught him about how to work with multiple agencies. In his work, he managed multi million dollar budgets.

Commissioner #4 Richard Heap— As the incumbent, Heap currently serves as the chairman for the port commission. Heap is originally from Nevada, where he worked for the Department of Wildlife for 33 years. His wife and him have owned property near Brookings for over thirty years, and he has been fishing out of the Port for the last 27 years. He said his desire to serve on the port commission is grounded in his belief public ports are essential to all ocean fisheries and policy work he does.

Mike Murphy— Murphy is a retired postmaster. He spent 30 years as a government appointed employee where he worked alongside human resources and unions.

In his role as postmaster, he collaborated with city and county officials.

Curry Health District

Director 1 John Connor— Connor has a PhD in biomedical engineering. He conducted neuroscience research at both Bell Laboratories and Hoffman Laboratories for a combined 40 years.

Derral Hawthorne— Hawthorne moved to Gold Beach from Arizona with his family in January 2019. He said they are putting down roots. Currently, Hawthorne works as a physician assistant at North Bend Medical Center. His wife works at Gold Beach Physical Therapy, and his eldest graduated from Gold Beach High School last year. He also has a 9th and 6th grader. He said they love Curry County and will be here a long time. Hawthorne said he is running for Curry Health Network board because he wants to serve the residents of the district by bringing additional services including medically assisted detox and rehab services along with needed specialists. It is his pleasure to be an advocate for our community, he said.

Richard Burton— A former employee of Curry Health, Burton is an emergency medical technician. Burton worked for Curry Health for over four years. He said his experience as a front-line health care worker has given him a unique perspective on the inner-workings of the healthcare system. As a member of the board, Burton said he would improve patient care, and patient-physician trust.

Director 2 Sara Dickerson— A former employee of Curry Health, Dickerson is now a family nurse practitioner at the South Coast Health Center in Gold Beach. She graduated with a degree in nursing from Frontier University. She has worked as a home health nurse, cardiac nurse, emergency and trauma nursing the past 10 years. Dickerson said she has a unique perspective of what works and what doesn't at Curry Health both as an employee and a community healthcare provider.

Joel Hensley— Hensley is the jail commander of the Curry County Jail. He has lived in Curry County for 26 years, and has over 22 years of experience as a law enforcement professional at the Curry County Sheriff's Office. Hensley said he decided to run for the position because as a member of the board, he can apply the skills he's learned from being part of the community, raising a family and experiences being a deputy and a manager to provide direction and problem solve to overcome issues that interfere with quality comprehensive health care.

Yvonne Paoletti— Paoletti is retired, but formerly worked as the vice president of BMG/Sony music video distribution and marketing for 25 years. She also did six years in home health and hospice work, and owned a licensed preschool for 10 years. Paoletti said she is running because she has a deep understanding and passion for the community she lives in, and wants nothing more than to help make it even better. She is hoping to establish Curry Health Network as a premier provider. She said she has 25 years of Marketing experience, which is what the hospital needs to be a premier provider for our district.

Director 3 Maarten VanOtterloo— VanOtterloo was appointed to the Curry Health District board last July to carry out the remaining one year term. He has an MBA from Harvard Business School, and

Ballots have been mailed

Oregon voters have begun receiving their ballots for the Tuesday, May 18, special district elections. Oregon voters will find on their ballot races for local school board, utility districts and other special districts that provide leadership and direction on essential public services.
“There's an intense focus on elections when we're working to elect a president, but these local races also have a substantial impact on our everyday lives,” said Oregon Secretary of State Shemia Fagan. “The May 18 election will determine who will sit on school boards, funding through bond measures and representation on water, fire and other special districts that provide critical services across the state.”

Eligible voters are all citizens over the age of 18.
Oregonians have several options for returning ballots for the Tuesday, May 18, election. Voters can mail back their ballot using the pre-paid postage envelope that accompanies each ballot or they can return their ballots to any official drop box location throughout the state.
“Most Oregon voters will receive their ballots in the mail over the next week. Be on the lookout for your ballot and information from your county elections office,” Secretary Fagan added. “All elections matter. This is your opportunity to have a say.”

more than 25 years of banking and advisor experience.
An active member of the community, VanOtterloo serves as a volunteer emergency medical responder on the Pistol River Fire Department, and is Vice President of the South Coast Beekeepers Association.
Van Otterloo said he joined the Curry Health District Board to make a meaningful contribution to Curry County.

Kevin Swift— Swift is a social studies teacher at Gold Beach High School, as well as the athletic director and head football coach. He graduated from the University of Redlands in 1983, and received his teaching certificate from National University. He also has a special education certificate from California State University at Long Beach. Swift said he is running to make a difference in the “terrific” health network and hospital. His goal is to continue on this path of growth toward excellence, both medically and financially, he said.

Bill Divens— Divens is a retired Silicon Valley businessman, and now a local charter fishing guide in Gold Beach. During his 25 years in Silicon Valley, he founded 2 venture funded startups and held management positions in large corporations. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of Wild Rivers Land Trust. Divens said he has a particular passion for the business process, which is at the root of effective, happy organizations delivering great service to their clients.

Port Orford Port District Commissioner #2 Brett Webb— As the incumbent, Webb currently serves as treasurer for the port district. Webb spent 30 years as a commercial fisherman out of the port. He has served three terms as a port commissioner and one term on city council.

Jacquelyn Aiello— Aiello's parents were fishermen, and she previously worked for Curry County Soil and Water District as general laborer planting thousands of trees along creeks and rivers to help with erosion and habitat for the salmon populations. Aiello said she will bring her association with agriculture and fishing industries, as well as her management skills, to the job as commissioner. Aiello also said she wants to work toward rebuilding facilities at the port, as well as continue a positive working relationship with Oregon State University to further science and education at the port.

Lori Crosby— Crosby is a native Oregonian born and raised in Cottage Grove. She co-owns the Portside Market & Deli and the Portside Cafe, and is a volunteer EMT for North Douglas County fire and EMS. She has served on a Port Orford fire department and the Port Orford planning commission, as well as, a director for the coach of the board of realtors. Crosby said she is running for port commissioner because she wants to work together with local fishermen and the community to revitalize and grow the unique port into a thriving and sustainable entity in our community for both now and the future.

Treatment will begin at new site where sudden oak death found

The Oregon Department of Forestry and USDA Forest Service have begun work that will allow treatment in May in Curry County of a newly detected infestation of sudden oak death. Five tanoak trees at the site were infected with the EU1 strain of Phytophthora ramorum, the pathogen that causes SOD. The pathogen can infect many plants but kills tanoak.

The new site is just beyond the current 515-square-mile SOD quarantine area on the north shore of the Rogue River. Located within the Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest, the site is near the Myrtle Tree Trail and about six miles north of the nearest known sudden oak death infestation.

The USDA Forest Service identified the infected trees from high-resolution aerial imagery as a part of the annual USDA Forest Service/Oregon Department of Forestry Aerial Detection Survey. The trees identified were sampled by ODF crews who sent samples to the Oregon State University's Forest Pathology Lab. After the initial test at OSU showed P. ramorum, DNA samples were sent on April 14 to the ODA Plant Health Lab in Salem. The ODA Plant Health Lab is certified by the USDA to perform official confirmatory testing for P. ramorum.

The lab confirmed the samples as presumptive positives on April 16.

As per federal protocol, the samples have been shipped to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Lab in Maryland for final confirmation. New infestation sites must be confirmed by APHIS' Plant Protection Quarantine unit before regulatory action may take place.

In the meantime, the Oregon Department of Forestry and USDA Forest Service SOD crews have marked off an area 1,000 feet from the sampled trees and are looking for more trees with signs of the disease.

Until treatment begins, SOD crews will continue to heavily monitor the area for the presence of infested trees and plants. The area will also be monitored on an ongoing basis by aerial disease survey experts.

Oregon regulations require a property officially confirmed as infested with SOD to undergo eradication treatments. In Oregon, federal land managers cooperate with the Oregon Departments of Forestry and Agriculture to carry out eradication treatments on infested sites on federal lands.

Federal funds are available to cover the cost of treating the area, which is now the highest priority site for the SOD program. Treatment consists of cutting, piling and burning all tanoaks.

ODA maintains the Phytophthora ramorum Quarantine, which allows any area in the state to be placed under quarantine where a SOD infestation is confirmed (OAR 603-052-1230(2)(d)). Thus, an emergency quarantine order does not need to be issued. Oregon's SOD Program will consult with stakeholders regarding any potential expansion of quarantine boundaries. USDA Forest Service staff are evaluating whether access restrictions to recreation use in the treatment area might be needed.

Background

The invasive non-native pathogen that causes the sudden oak death in tanoak was first detected in Oregon in 2001. A plant quarantine of the area was promptly set up, which has gradually expanded to cover almost a third of Curry County. When attempts to eradicate the disease – which can survive on several native and non-native plant species – proved impossible, Oregon's SOD program switched to slowing the spread of the disease.

In 2010, a Generally Infested Area within the quarantine area was created. Within that zone, where the disease is well established, eradication treatments are no longer required. The GIA was enlarged in late 2020 and now covers 123 square miles within the quarantine area; it is about 19 miles north to south and nine miles east to west.

In Europe, the EU1 strain of P. ramorum has been found to damage and kill several conifer species, including Douglas-fir, western hemlock, grand fir and larch. That strain was first found in Oregon in 2015 within the existing quarantine area. Infestations of the EU1 strain are aggressively treated with the goal of local eradication.

Ziply Fiber announces plans to expand to Brookings, Gold Beach

Ziply Fiber announced plans last Friday to bring gig-speed fiber Internet service to an additional 22 markets across Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana this calendar year. This expansion will focus mostly on smaller and rural towns and is part of the company's multi-year $500 million investment in its network and improved service in both urban and rural settings throughout the region.

The year-old company expects to turn-up service by Labor Day in Reedsport, Lakeside, Brookings, Gold Beach, Port Orford and Myrtle Creek, among other Oregon cities.

"The speed and reliability that fiber delivers to residents and businesses is critical in today's online world where web conferences, online learning and streaming entertainment are often all happening at the same time, something outdated technologies were never meant to support," said Harold Zeitz, CEO of Ziply Fiber. "We've spent the past year investing in and constructing an all-new, state-of-the-art fiber-optic network, purpose built to deliver symmetrical upload/download speeds to residents and businesses, and we're thrilled to be able to announce the next 22 markets that will leverage these improvements later this year."

These developments have been hailed by state leaders across the Northwest.

Daniel Holbrook, broadband manager for the Oregon Broadband Office, said "Congratulations to Ziply Fiber on their first birthday. The Oregon Broadband Office appreciates their efforts to help close the digital divide by expanding fiber to these additional rural Oregon communities."

The plans include other communities in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

"These markets represent just the beginning," added Zeitz. "We're currently drawing up plans for additional builds this coming fall and winter in all four states. As I've always said, we believe you don't have to live in a big city to get great Internet. We're investing in smaller and rural markets every day, and we continue to drive improvements to ensure that our customers have a refreshingly great experience when they engage with us."

As part of its work in its four-state service area, construction crews will be busy building fiber service in stages through several areas of each city and town. While the work will take several weeks and months to fully complete, the company expects to connect its first sets of customers in each town this summer and add more and more addresses each week as the build continues.

While it will take time to upgrade 250,000 square miles of land throughout Ziply Fiber's four-state service area with new fiber-optic cables, local hubs, new offices and new hardware to run the network, the company is capitalized for and committed to hundreds more projects.

"All of this work is to support our promise to customers to be consistently on, reliably fast and confidently ready for whatever comes their way," added Zeitz. "We're an honestly local company and are proud to be bringing this great service to communities throughout the Northwest."

As the company continues its rollout of fiber-based services across the region over the next several months and years, its Ziply Internet (DSL) customers also will begin seeing service improvements. Part of Ziply Fiber's investment is going to work that's well underway to improve its core and aggregation network, across which all Ziply internet traffic travels. While there's still more work to be done, by improving the quality, capacity and reliability of those critical network components, customers of all types of services will benefit.

Ziply Fiber's primary service offerings are Fiber Internet and phone for residential customers; Business Fiber Internet and Ziply Voice services for small businesses; and a variety of Internet, networking and voice solutions for enterprise customers. The company will continue to support Ziply Internet (DSL) customers, and its TV customers in Washington and Oregon.
