SERVING CURRY COUNTY SINCE 1946

Brookings, Oregon

High fire danger declared

Pilot Staff

High temperatures and worsening fuel conditions across southern Oregon have prompted the Coos Forest Protective Association to increase the fire danger level to "high" Aug. 28.

"Live fuels are at the point where they are available for fire to burn, which makes fires more resistant to control efforts," association spokesman Jef Chase said in a press release issued Aug. 27.

The high fire danger includes several restrictions:

- Smoking is prohibited

while traveling in forestlands, except in vehicles or improved roads, in boats, on the water, and in other designated area.

• Open fires, including campfires, charcoal fires, cooking fires and warming fires, are allowed only at designated and managed campgrounds.

• Powersaw use is allowed only from 8 p.m.-10 a.m. Each saw must be accompanied by one shovel and fire extinguisher of at least 8-ounce capacity. A fire watch of one hour is required

A BAD TURN ... INTO JAVA HUT
Arrested for DUII

A 58-year-old woman was arrested at the scene of a one-car accident Monday night when her car careened off U.S. Highway 101 and crashed into the Java Hut at the Fred Haight Drive intersection in Smith River.

According to the Del Norte County Sheriff's Office Online Information System, Karen Ilene McGuire was booked into the county's jail on suspicion of driving under the influence of intoxicants.

California Highway Patrol Officer Brandy Gonzalez said the crash occurred about 11:20 p.m. and that no one was injured or was inside the building at the time.

Gonzalez added that the crash was not the result of a law-enforcement pursuit, as initially reported on The Del Norte and Curry County Scanner Feed Facebook Page.

No tsunami sirens for Curry County

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

The Curry County commissioners have voted unanimously to discontinue supporting operation of the county's 17 tsunami sirens. So, what now?

In a presentation to the commissioners July 24 in Port Orford, County Emergency Services Manager Jeremy Dumire described the condition of the existing sirens, the costs to maintain them, and why they're no longer the best technology to deploy as a tsunami-warning system.

The commissioners subsequently voted Aug. 7 to discontinue using the sirens for emergency warnings.

Dumire will repeat that presentation for Brookings residents this evening at 6:00 in the Brookings City Hall Council Chambers, 898 Elk Dr., during a regular meeting of the Curry County commissioners.

Dumire will discuss his previous recommendations to discontinue using the World War II air-raid sirens, and elaborate on newer and more-reliable options.

To the south, Del Norte County's officials said they'll continue using local tsunami sirens for now.

Keeping tsunami sirens has been a topic of debate in coastal communities for quite some time, said Kymmie Scott, emergency services manager for Del Norte County.

Although Scott said she's heard the arguments both for keeping and for discontinuing the tsunami sirens, she said it's best to have multiple methods to reach people in an emergency.

Of the 17 sirens in Curry County, only four are "reliably operational," Dumire said July 24. He placed the cost to fix just the head of each unit at $22,000 - assuming all of the other components in the system are still operational.

To completely replace the sirens, with all new systems, would cost between $50,000 and $100,000, said Dumire. His department's annual budget is $120,000.

According to Dumire, the two possible tsunamis are labeled local and distant. A local tsunami would occur following a major earthquake in the Cascadia Subduction Zone near the Oregon coast. A quake measuring 9.0 on the Richter Scale would be 900 times greater than the 7.1-magnitude quake experienced in southern California on July 5.

Superintendents share their vision for new school year

Jeremy C. Ruark and Linda Pinkham
Staff Writers

Teachers and community members listened intently as leaders of the Brookings-Harbor and Central Curry school districts outlined this year's goals and challenges for their staffs and students.

The setting was two separate back-to-school breakfasts Tuesday morning.

Brookings-Harbor School District

"I want to share with you my hopes and my fears," Brookings-Harbor Interim School Superintendent Chris Eberhardt told an audience that filled the high school's cafeteria.

"Education is about taking risks," he said. "We want our students to feel comfortable, even when they make mistakes."

He told the audience that reaching the school district's goals - such as lowering the student absenteeism rate and boosting math scores - is not something that can be done alone. "We have to do this together," he said.

"We have to be thoughtful about the importance of education. Every teacher in this room, and the community members, should be inspired that we do shape our young people's attitudes towards education."

Eberhardt said the local community's adults have the power to help young people perceive education. "That's what I want them to take with them when they walk out of here," he said. "This is a team effort. We can do great things if we roll up our sleeves and do the awesome work of public education."

Eberhardt said one of the primary challenges faced by Brookings-Harbor schools is helping students improve their math scores. "Everybody here is extremely supportive of preparing students for the future, so we have that already on a good note," he told The Pilot before his address.

"With that energy and excitement, and my passion for education, we can make a difference while honoring what works and evaluating what needs to be looked at."

During the breakfast, principals from Kalmiopsis Elementary School, Azalea Middle School and Brookings-Harbor High School introduced their new staff members.

Meantime, organizers of the annual KURY Radio "Stuff the Bus" school supply donation drive announced the effort brought in $1,828 plus several boxes of school supplies, such as notebook paper, pencils and binders.

"The Salvation Army was lead in donating backpacks for students," KURY's Sharon Toney said. "We collected 360 backpacks for students."

Added Toney, "This community is so generous, they come out in droves every year. This makes a big difference for our students."

Central Curry School District

In Gold Beach, more than 60 school district employees filled the Riley Creek Elementary School cafeteria on Tuesday for the district's annual breakfast.

"We're really excited about the work we have coming up this year," said Central Curry School District 1 Superintendent Tim Wilson, as he welcomed back teachers and staff.

"As with any school year, we always do something new," he said, introducing Central Curry School Board Chair Andy Wright. Wright followed with an update on the board's goals for the year.

"As many of you know, we have a focus on technology and infrastructure upgrades, and making it possible to integrate it into your classrooms," Wright said. "We're going to continue that as one of our core improvement goals this year. We're going to spend some money on it."

Wright said the board also plans to "come up with a long-term facilities plan (as to) what these two schools will look like in 20 years."

Added Wright, "Public education is a complex, interesting world to operate in. It's tough."

"I think what you already know is, the end game is the meaningful work, and the impact you have on the thousands of kids who pass through this place over the course of your career. Thank you for your services."

Gold Beach High School

Principal Josh Metzger and Riley Creek Elementary School Principal Tom Denning introduced new staff members.

The high school has two new full-time teachers for math and science, and a music teacher they'll share with the elementary school.

Riley Creek has six new teachers.

"I'm not a very emotional guy," said Denning, "but inside, I'm ecstatic right now."

He then introduced the new elementary school teachers. "I'm ecstatic about the quality of the staff we've hired this year."

Riley Creek Elementary has a new kindergarten teacher, a first-grade teacher, two second-grade teachers, a fifth-grade teacher, and a special-education resource teacher.

The new school year begins Sept. 3.

Kindergarten Academy draws 50-plus

Jeremy C. Ruark
Pilot Editor

Organizers of the Brookings-Harbor School District's Kindergarten Academy said they were pleased with the first year's turnout and expect to draw even more participants next summer.

The school district held the academy during the week of Aug. 19 at Kalmiopsis Elementary School in Brookings. Fifty-seven children attended the session, designed to acquaint last year's kindergartners with first-grade activities and daily schedules.

"It was an amazing turnout and it went very smoothly," said Kalmiopsis vice principal Carol Leonard.

The first few days of the academy saw a number of children understandably ill at ease and their parents in attendance, Leonard said. But by Wednesday morning, she said, the youngsters were more comfortable and following directions - and their parents were spending less time with them.

"It was nice to see the transition," she said. "The kids were like, 'We can do this and we are ready to go.'"

"We worked on social skills such as how to interact with each other, fine-motor skills, math, coloring, science and art," Leonard said. "Each student would rotate to the six classrooms and spend time with the six teachers, giving the kids a chance to meet the entire staff. And we got to see them as well."

Leonard said the academy provided each child with a look at what to expect in the first grade. "For many of them, it's the first time they have been away from their parents for an extended time. So we wanted to help them get into the routine of school, by just talking with them and walking with them."

The academy sessions began at 8:30 a.m. each day and ended at 12:30 p.m., following a walk to nearby Brookings-Harbor High School for lunch.

The school year for elementary students in the Brookings-Harbor School District begins Sept. 4.

Leonard said the district likely will publicize the next academy during the spring to give parents greater opportunity to register their children, and may offer two summer sessions rather than the one.

The academy is underwritten by Title 1A funds.

County supports fire training center

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

The Curry County commissioners on Aug. 14 unanimously approved a resolution to support a Rogue-Siskiyou Regional Fire and Training Facility project.

Curry County Emergency Manager Jeremy Dumire and Gold Beach Fire Chief Tyson Krieger had submitted a plan to build a fire training and emergency operations center in Curry County. The project would provide higher levels of protection to the community, but also could bring economic benefits as the facility developed into a regional training center for the Pacific Northwest.

Dumire identified the old Champion Mill site, on the south bank of the Rogue River up Jerry’s Flat Road, about 5 miles from U.S. Highway 101 in Gold Beach, as a prime property for the facility.

The property encompasses about 150 acres and its owner has already agreed to a sale price, the commissioners were told.

The site has a large water supply available because it is adjacent to the City of Gold Beach water plant.

In the past two years, Curry County, along with Josephine County, has seen the Chetco Bar, Klondike and Taylor Creek fires, which combined included some 400,000 acres, said Dumire.

“In terms of overall fire hazard, we tend to get the large fires,” he said. “One of the issues we have is the lack of training available.”

Currently, all of the training available to personnel for fighting structural or wildland fires is outside of the area. Firefighters are unable to get their needed training locally, said Krieger.

“We have the resources to be able to put on the classes here with Coos Forest Patrol, but also the Forest Service,” he said.

The location is particularly suitable because in addition to serving as a firefighting training compound, it can “include water rescue training with the two ponds, the Rogue River nearby for jet boat training, and the ability to house firefighters and incident management teams away from the fairgrounds, which have been taken over for the past two years,” said Dumire.

Plus, the site is centrally located to where fire incidents occur, and the size of the property would allow for a heli-spot and helicopters staged on the south side of the property. There, they could store retardant, gel and AV-Gas for air resources inland and away from the coastal fog belt.

Plans for Phase 1 include a burn tower where firefighters can practice with live fire without having to wait for a “burn-to-learn” opportunity to arise.

In addition to firefighter training, proponents said the facility would benefit other emergency operations:

- Law-enforcement capabilities would be enhanced to provide tactical and firearms training, with a secure indoor shooting range and active-shooter training facility.
- In the event of a major incident, the planned facility could serve as a center for emergency operations for centralizing finance, logistics, operations, planning and communications.
- Search and rescue would benefit not only from water rescue training, but also by having a rappelling tower for cliff rescues.
- The facility could also offer training to regional agencies from as far away as Washington and Idaho, given the presence of a dormitory, commercial kitchen, classrooms and conference rooms.

The proposal has been in the making for more than three years through meetings with an informal advisory group that has been honing the proposal to the point where they are now “funneling their ideas into all working on the same concept,” said Krieger in a phone interview.

“The informal group will give way to a more formal advisory group that will involve all of the emergency personnel stakeholders in the community, plus the (Bureau of Land Management) and Forest Service.”

Because the project would foremost provide training and support for emergency personnel throughout Curry County, county officials will advance the concept to the state fire marshal, the Oregon Department of Public Safety Standards and Training, and the fire chiefs and law-enforcement agencies in Curry County to ask for their support.

“We’re not asking you guys for funding, but for basically your signature and a nod of support for this concept here,” Krieger told the county commissioners. “The more people who get behind the project, the more funding opportunities we can have to build this project.”

Krieger said there already are grants in place to cover the initial portion of Phase 1. “Once we purchase the property, we will be able to apply for tons of infrastructure grants from the federal government, as well as some matching-grant opportunities,” Krieger said in a phone interview.

“Construction for Phase 1 of the project will cost between $2.5 million and $3.5 million.

“There is no other facility like this that is all-in-one,” he said.

Tsunami

“Immediately prior to a local tsunami, the earth will shake and it may likely be the only warning residents will receive,” according to the commissioners’ resolution. “People should immediately evacuate to higher ground.”

That’s because with a local tsunami, “Radio towers and electronic warning systems will likely fail,” Dumire said. Emergency personnel would not have enough time to evacuate residents, because the tsunami would inundate the area within 10 to 15 minutes.

Local tsunamis “pose a greater threat to public health than distant tsunamis,” he said, because of the limited time in which to act, and the likelihood that the warning systems would not survive or be activated by dispatchers.

The commissioners’ resolution concludes that the existence of any kind of local warning system would not help in the event of a local tsunami.

On the other hand, a distant tsunami is triggered by a large subduction earthquake from a far-off location, such as the Japanese earthquake March 11, 2011. Dumire said emergency officials likely would have at least four hours’ lead time to make notifications and evacuate areas at risk - primarily beaches, harbors and rivers.

The alternatives for a warning-siren system - door-to-door contact, and modern technology such as telephones and electronic alerts - are much less expensive and likely more reliable than the sirens, according to the Curry commissioners’ resolution.

Dumire described the reverse 911 system through Everbridge that the county currently is using, which costs $6,500 a year. Residents can sign up to receive phone calls, texts and emails in the event of an emergency by registering at <https://member.everbridge.net/index/892807736723773#/login>.

The question Commissioner Sue Gold asked during the Port Orford presentation was, “What about the tourists?” She noted that amounts to roughly 50% of the area’s population during the high season.

The response: tourists can sign up for FEMA alerts and the National Wireless Emergency Alert System, through which many people have received presidential alert tests. Those who have not received a presidential alert can contact their carrier to learn how to activate it by telephone.

As for a distant tsunami, Gold was told, emergency personnel would be able to evacuate tourists from shore areas that would be impacted.

To sign up for emergency alerts, visit Curry County Emergency Services at http://www.co.curry.or.us/government/county_sheriff/emergency_services.php. To see whether your address will be affected by either a distant or local tsunami, enter your address at nvs.nanoos.org/TsunamiEvac.

We all suffer when others are displaced

Dear Editor:

I have enjoyed certain freedoms during my life and the one I have enjoyed most is "location freedom."

We have been fortunate to have lived in some beautiful places, having spent many years living in a small travel trailer. In fact, we figure we pulled it about a quarter-million miles.

What this has done is given me a personal perspective – a visual reference beyond the news.

I can feel the sadness and suffering of those displaced by the ever-increasing climate-related "inconveniences." Imagine having an hour's notice to pack up your belongings and escape a wildfire. We have driven through more than one such event.

A visual that haunts me still is seeing families pull out of their driveways in Yukon, Canada with the back of their truck loaded with possessions, knowing that what remains will be ash by morning.

This happens hundreds of times right here in our nation, as people scramble to figure out where their next meal will come from to feed their families.

Watching the news of Gatlinburg, Tennessee on fire hit my heart, as we worked with many of the small-business owners who lost their shops; and some, even their cabins. This was not just a news story, it was as real-life to me as to those directly affected.

When storms hit the Florida coast and floodwaters rise inside living rooms, I can visualize times spent with family on that very couch that is now ankle deep in yuck.

I have watched houses fall into melting glacier-fed rivers in Alaska because of extremely high temperatures melting the glacier a few miles upstream.

Those same families are now battling unsafe air filled with wildfire smoke. Friends have had to leave their homes and fly to the lower states to find clean air for their children who suffer from asthma.

I have heard personal stories of stranded polar bears in villages where I once walked. Those same villages now are unable to get their subsistence salmon because the salmon are not returning.

As California and the west is burning, I can visualize natural places that will never be as they were. Just two years ago, we were evacuated from two wildfires here. It caused us great hardship that we are still trying to dig out from.

And now, we hear stories of "dead zones" off the coast where nothing lives, including the fish that feed so many fishermen's families.

Infrastructure is also greatly affected. Driving along U.S. Highway 101 from Brookings to Coos Bay is quite frightening and gives a feeling of being unsafe, as you see where the road has fallen off the cliff towards the ocean.

We have many such stories – too many to ignore. Yet, there are still deniers. Maybe due to fear.

Maybe because it is inconvenient. It certainly is inconvenient to the thousands already displaced in this country and millions around the world.

Please learn all you can before you decide how it will affect your family.

City addresses water issues

Jeremy C. Ruark
Pilot Editor

It's not uncommon for municipal water system pipes to break, especially in challenged topographical areas such as the hills overlooking Brookings.

Water lines must travel in different directions and often need to curve with the landscape. Wear and tear on the joints can lead to breaks.

On Aug. 21, the City of Brookings issued an order for consumers to boil their water for the Marina Heights area east of downtown, following a line disruption. The order had residents boil water for drinking, making ice, brushing teeth, washing dishes and food preparation.

City officials said in a press release that the order was issued following a service-line break that led the Brookings Tidewater Tank to lose pressure and drain.

"When the Tidewater Tank goes to zero, it reacts with a suction backwards," Brookings Public Works Director Tony Baron said. "We are sucking water out of other people's homes. It can be contaminated. "It's called 'backflow' and is a standard procedure. We don't like that it happens, but it is not uncommon."

Baron said valves were turned off to isolate the leak.

"Unfortunately, a few residents were without water," he said.

Crews were able to refill the water tank, and the usual clarification tests were taken to ensure there was no risk to users.

"We had to wait for the test results," Brookings City Manager Janell Howard said. "That's why we put the order out. We wanted to be on the safe side."

Howard said the results came back negative, that there was no contamination. The boil-water order was lifted Aug. 23.

Annual Pistol River parade a fun success

The annual Pistol River parade and potluck on Aug. 17 drew a variety of participants and area residents. Residents voted for their favorite parade float, with the winner receiving a bag of Nectar of Life Coffee (the roaster is based in Pistol River). Neil and Donna Walker took home first prize and Dan's Ace Hardware took second, according to event organizer Hannah Jennings. In addition, a pie contest was held and cash prizes awarded. The judges were brought in from the Curry County Fair.

Earning top prize was Eileen Carpenter, with Roseanne Ismert taking second place and Ron Crook third. The parade and potluck's $1,000 scholarship went to Samuel Jennings. Giant bubbles were contributed by Rosa and Richard Cole, and the Hook family brought Frisbee golf. As for next year's event, the Friendship Hall already is searching for a host, as well as staff to help.

Brookings police officers promoted

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

The Brookings Police Department has announced a variety of new promotions.

“Each of these officers are very dedicated, and everything they do is in the best interest of both this community and this department,” said Brookings Police Chief Kelby McCrae.

“All of them initially came to the Brookings Police Department with seasoned maturity built through either previous law-enforcement experience, military service or both. They have all been with this department for at least five years.”

Patrol Officer Gavin McVay will now serve in the position of sergeant. His new responsibilities include planning the deployment of personnel, reviewing the casework of patrol officers and distributing crime reports, among other duties.

McVay, who has lived in Brookings his entire life, has been with the police department since 2012. Previously, he was a corrections deputy for the Curry County Sheriff’s Office. Most recently he has been field training officers and training new patrol officers.

Patrol Officer Ray Marrington is being promoted to the position of detective. His new responsibilities include, among other things, conducting and managing complex investigations, assuming control of cases from the patrol division to facilitate suspect identification and prosecution, participating in Major Crime Team investigations, and conducting narcotics investigation operations Marrington has been with the department since 2014. Previously, he was a police patrolman in New Braunfels, Texas for two years. Before that, he served six years with the Air Force and two years with the Army. Brookings is Marrington’s hometown.

Patrol Officer Jason Barrigar is being assigned to the position of detection K-9 handler. His responsibilities include keeping informed on current search and seizure laws, assisting patrol and investigative personnel in the location of illegal drugs, and other duties as assigned.

Barrigar retired from the military in 2007 after 20 years of service and moved to Brookings, where he first served as a reserve officer with the Brookings Police Department. When an opening came up for a patrol officer, he was hired full time and has been with the department for 10 years. This will be his first assignment as a K9 handler.

“We will be getting a dog who will be specially trained and certified in the detection of illegal drugs, with Officer Barrigar as the handler,” said Chief McCrae. “We are in the very early stages of this process, so do not yet have a dog chosen, but hope to within the next couple of months.”

Officer Rob Johnson will be the new school resource officer (SRO) beginning this school year. “Brookings has not had an SRO for 15 years, so we are very excited to bring this back to our community,” said McCrae. “There are many goals we have for this position.”

The department is recruiting for one more patrol officer to replace Officer Johnson.

Labor Day traffic patrols heightened

Pilot Staff

First-responders are bracing for heavy traffic congestion over the Labor Day holiday weekend.

Motor-vehicle crashes are the leading nationwide cause of death for children ages one through 12-years-old, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Law-enforcement agencies in Curry and Del Norte counties typically step up patrols and use federal and state grants to add additional officers for holiday traffic enforcement.

Local authorities say officers will be looking for aggressive driving, speeding, improper lane changes, and intoxicated or impaired drivers.

Fines for such violations can be costly, ranging into the thousands of dollars, depending on the violation and subsequent court action.

Meantime, Port Orford Police Chief Hank Hobart said his officers are partnering with other law-enforcement agencies in conducting a two-week safety-belt enforcement campaign that will continue through the Labor Day weekend.

“The enforcement efforts will continue throughout the year at various times, especially during holiday weekends and during large civic events,” Hobart said.

DEAR ABBY

After moving away, woman can't move on from lost love

DEAR ABBY: I have known this man, "Finn," for years. We grew up together. He was the annoying boy on the playground who turned into my first love when we were in college. We live in different states now, so we have grown distant, although we still talk on holidays and birthdays.

It's been quite a while since we were together, but I still can't get over him. I haven't tried to find another guy because I know he will be second to Finn, and that's not fair to him.

Is it weird that I still go to text Finn when something big happens but realize I can't, or that I dream about us still? How do I get over a guy I love and only broke up with because he didn't want to move? I will never go back to our hometown. It was an awful place. So what do I do? -- TRYING NOT TO LOVE HIM

DEAR TRYING: Here's what you do. Accept the fact that Finn is a "married man" -- someone wedded to his hometown, which you have long outgrown. Then stop idealizing a person who didn't value your relationship enough to consider relocating with you. And finally, accept the reality that this wasn't meant to be. Allow yourself the opportunity to meet eligible men and quit comparing them to someone you have placed on such a high pedestal that they cannot compete.

DEAR ABBY: My 24-year-old son is a good young man and mostly responsible and mature, except in one area. He fails to see the importance of keeping up regular oil changes on his two vehicles that were passed down to him.

I keep track of when he's had the last oil change, and I start reminding him at the time they are due. I tell him to make an appointment, he says "I will," but when asked later, he says he hasn't. I have tried to tell him how important it is. I've even made the appointment and taken the vehicles in myself. What can I do to get him to take care of this responsibility by himself? -- NAGGING MOTHER IN WISCONSIN

DEAR MOTHER: The way for your son to learn that lesson is for you to stop nagging and let him suffer the consequences for his irresponsibility. You may have helped the cars by taking them in, but you did not help your son.

Abby shares more than 100 of her favorite recipes in two booklets: "Abby's Favorite Recipes" and "More Favorite Recipes by Dear Abby." STRANGE BUT TRUE

STRANGE BUT TRUE by Samantha Weaver

It was Canadian journalist, editor and poet Mark Abley who made the following sage observation: "Modern English is the Walmart of languages: convenient, huge, hard to avoid, superficially friendly and devouring all rivals in its eagerness to expand."

On any given day, Google conducts approximately 63,000 searches per second.

The next time you get a chance, you might want to check the pressure of your car's tires; if they're not inflated to the correct pressure, you're contributing to the $9 million in fuel that is wasted due to improper tire pressure, according to the Department of Energy.

Those who study such things report that the average lifespan of a tree in the metropolis of New York City is only seven years.

In all likelihood, you've never run across a moirologist -- in fact, they probably don't even exist in the United States today. However, professional mourners -- which is what moirologists are -- have a long history, dating back to ancient Greece. Even as recently as the early 1900s, there was a report of a moirologists' strike in Paris.

The small Central American country of Costa Rica has more species of mammals and birds than are found in all of the contiguous United States and Canada combined.

An 18-year-old Austrian named Helmut Mezer got his driver's license and a new BMW with the license plate DEAD1. One week later, with Mezer behind the wheel, the car skidded around a curve at 100 mph, hit an embankment and was thrown 200 feet, landing on its roof in a field and killing Mezer.

Thought for the Day: "I'm sick of following my dreams. I'm just going to ask them where they're going and hook up with them later." -- Mitch Hedberg

TRUSTEE'S NOTICE OF SALE

Reference is made to that certain trust deed made by Leonard Christensen and Julie Foster, as Grantors, to Curry County Title, Inc. as original Trustee, in favor of Ute Conly, as Beneficiary, dated June 17, 2011, recorded June 20, 2011, in the Records of Curry County, Oregon, as instrument no. 2011-02123, covering the following described real property situated in the above-mentioned county and state, to wit:

Beginning at a point described as being 568.52 feet North and 342.48 feet West of the East Quarter corner of Section Thirty-two (32) in Township Forty (40) South, Range Thirteen (13) West, Willamette Meridian; thence South 66° 36' 15" West, a distance of 95.0 feet;
thence along a curve to the left, the long chord of which bears North 18° 30' West 142.6 feet;
thence North 42° 53' West 56.2 feet;
thence North 47° 27' East 195.7 feet;
thence East 68.0 feet;

TOGETHER WITH that certain easement for access purposes including the terms and provisions therein, as set forth in Instrument recorded in Volume 33 pages; 711-712, Curry County Book of Records.

ALSO TOGETHER WITH an easement for water system construction and maintenance, appurtenant to the herein described property, appears to have been created or transferred by instrument recorded July 18, 2000, as Instrument no. 2000-3166, Official Records of Curry County, Oregon.

ALSO TOGETHER WITH an easement for ingress, egress and utilities, over and across an existing roadway as set forth in Instrument recorded July 24, 2000 as instrument #2000-3250, Official Records of Curry County, Oregon.

Both the beneficiary and the trustee have elected to sell the real property to satisfy the obligations secured by the trust deed and a notice of default has been recorded pursuant to Oregon Revised Statutes 86.752 (3); the default for which the foreclosure is made is grantor's failure to pay when due the following sums:

By reason of the default just described, the beneficiary has declared all sums owing on the obligation secured by the trust deed immediately due and payable, those sums being the following, to-wit:

Outstanding balance as of May 31, 2019	$96,744.22
Delinquent property taxes paid by the beneficiary	2,934.12

TOTAL $99,678.34

WHEREFORE, notice is hereby given that the undersigned trustee will on October 16, 2019, at the hour of ten o'clock, a.m., in accord with the standard of time established by ORS 187.110, at the Curry County Courthouse, 29821 Ellensburg Avenue, in the City of Gold Beach, County of Curry, State of Oregon, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the interest in the real property described above which the grantor had or had power to convey at the time of the execution by grantor of the trust deed together with any interest which the grantor or grantor's successors in interest acquired after the execution of the trust deed, to satisfy the foregoing obligations thereby secured and the costs and expenses of the sale, including a reasonable charge by the trustee. Notice is further given that any person named in ORS 86.778 has the right, at any time prior to five days before that date last set for the sale, to have this foreclosure proceeding dismissed and the trust deed reinstated by payment to the beneficiary of the entire amount then due (other than such portion of the principal as would not then be due had no default occurred) and by curing any other default complained of herein that is capable of being cured by tendering the performance required under the obligation or trust deed, and in addition to paying those sums or tendering the performance necessary to cure the default, by paying all cost and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligation and trust deed, together with trustee and attorney fees not exceeding the amounts provided by ORS 86.778.

Without limiting the trustee's disclaimer of representation or warranties, Oregon law requires the trustee to state in this notice that some residential property sold at a trustee's sale may have been used in manufacturing methamphetamines, the chemical components of which are known to be toxic. Prospective purchasers of residential property should be aware of this potential danger before deciding to place a bid for this property at the trustee's sale.

In construing this notice, the singular includes the plural, the word "grantor" includes any successor in interest to the grantor as well as any other person owing an obligation, the performance of which is secured by the trust deed, and the words "trustee" and "beneficiary" include their respective successors in interest, if any.
