KNOX KERANEN

What might have been a tame adoption of the yearly budget, turned into a heated debate about county spending and workplace culture during a board of commissioners meeting Wednesday.

The fallout began after county

Roadmaster Richard Christensen laid out his concerns about borrowing $2.2 million from the road fund to balance the county’s budget deficit. Christensen said the road fund reserve money will dry up soon if the county continues to take from it each year without identifying new revenue sources.

“Commissioners, today it’s your choice; to decide if you will be the ones to start the end of the road fund or preserve it for what it was legally intended to be used for,” said Christensen.

State law does allow counties to borrow from road funds to fund budget shortfalls in the general fund and portions of the sheriff’s departments. Currently, Curry County has about $28 million stashed in the historically wealthy road fund.

Nevertheless, Commissioners John Herzog and Court Boice echoed Christensen’s concern over balancing the county’s budget deficit by drawing from the road fund.

Boice recommended the board take another look at the budget, potentially to make more cuts and reconvene later in the month to officially approve it.

Commissioner Chris Paasch said concerns about the budget should have been discussed during several previous budget committee meetings.

Brookings debates homeless at St. Timothy’s

Every Friday morning, Rob Barker opens up the community kitchen at St. Timothy’s Episcopal Church and starts to make sour-dough crusts for their homemade pizzas.

Last Friday, the special was a bacon and blue cheese pizza, served with a pasta salad dense with vegetables. Barker said his only goal is to fill hungry stomachs, including homeless individuals, people on fixed incomes, the working poor and anyone else who stops by. He said he often loses sleep over feeding people.

“The idea is to get ’em some food man, that’s the baseline thing,” said Barker.

However, a recent neighborhood petition to “remove homeless from St. Timothy church,” may put the community kitchen, and other services offered at St. Tim’s, in jeopardy.

The petition garnered 29 signatures from concerned neighbors of St. Tim’s, and led to a workshop meeting with the Brookings City Council last week. During the meeting, St. Tim’s supporters debated with concerned residents about the church’s role in the community.

Neighbor Brandon Usry created the petition. At the meeting, he showed a clip of a presumed guest of St. Tim’s having a jarring mental breakdown. The man was shouting in the street around 10:30 p.m. on a weeknight, waking up many households on the street, Usry said.

Usry said some threatening individuals who receive services from the church are alarming him and others in the area.

“I feel like people are trying to find a solution to homelessness, that’s not why I’m here today,” said Usry. “I’m here today because I don’t feel safe in my house.”

In conjunction with the petition, a Brookings city staff report claimed St. Tim’s has been operating as a “mission,” rather than a church, by offering their guests showers, clothing and hygiene kits three days a week, as well as haircuts during their free meal services.

Rob Barker looks on as Jean Obrion, Susie and Janet Hursh prepare a take-out pasta salad dish for a person at the door. Mike Nash, Michael Rezendes, Bert LeMuix and Carlo Pelaccio were also helping out in the kitchen Friday. Below, Machell Carroll, community health worker at Brookings CORE response, said they identified 120 homeless individuals in the community during the most recent survey — about 70 of which use services at St. Timothy’s.

Zac is back.

It’s been more than 200 days since Zachary Abblitt dove into shallow water at Sporthaven Beach and shattered two vertebrae in his neck, partially paralyzing him.

Since then, Zac and his mother Kristi have traveled to several hospitals in different states — most recently at Craig Hospital in Englewood, Colorado — undergoing surgeries and doing extensive rehabilitation work. On Monday, though, Zac finally returned to his home in Brookings.

Before sitting down with the Pilot for an interview, Zac revisited the beach where his life changed forever.

“It was so amazing...I was able to kind of cruise across the sand. First time in seven months that I was there...Out of everything to see, that was the one spot I wanted to go

Oregon moves closer to lifting COVID restrictions

BY DAVID RUPKALVIS

Oregon is closing in on re-opening the economy.

Last Friday, Gov. Kate Brown announced that more than 67% of Oregon residents have taken at least one dose of the COVID vaccine, leaving fewer than 100,000 more vaccines needed to reach the 70% threshold Brown set to fully reopen the economy.

“Thanks to the vaccine, our case rate and hospitalizations continue to decline,” Brown said. “As of today, at least 2.3 million Oregonians have received at least one dose of the vaccine. We are so close to reopening our economy.”

State Epidemiologist Dr. Dea Sidelinger said that cases in the state are directly in line with the increase in vaccinations.

“Daily cases, COVID-19 related hospitalizations and the percentage of people testing positive continue to decline,” Sidelinger said.

Over the last week, 1,725 new COVID cases were announced in the state, the lowest number since September. Hospitalizations were down 24 percent and only 20 new deaths linked to the virus were reported.

“The landscape of the virus has shifted dramatically,” Sidelinger said. “The virus is overwhelmingly impacting those who are not vaccinated when those who are vaccinated are safe. Virtually every person infected right now is not fully vaccinated.”

Sidelinger said the vaccines are all proven safe and effective, and the best way to beat COVID is to get the vaccine.

“In order to decisively defeat the virus and avoid a future outbreak, we must get more people vaccinated,” he said. “There’s no substitute for the vaccine.”

Sidelinger said modeling in Oregon continues to show decreasing cases, hospitalizations and deaths. On the current trend, cases will fall to around 100 a day with only five new hospitalizations.

Brown echoed that sentiment, saying those who have taken the vaccine deserve praise.

“We still have more work to do to ensure all Oregonians are safe from COVID-19,” Brown said. “Thank you to everyone who’s gotten the vaccine. Thank you to all Oregonians who are making it easier for their employees to get vaccinated. Thank you to everyone who’s taken the time to drive a family member or friend to an appointment or had

God’s grace enables progress and joy, say Christian Scientists at annual meeting

By KEVIN NESS

In a year often defined by uncertainty, Christian Scientists gathered at their online annual meeting, including from Brookings and 24 congregations throughout Oregon, to acknowledge the ways in which God's love and mercy have opened paths of progress and joy in individual lives and collective church experience.

The meeting was live-streamed to members around the globe June 7 from The First Church of Christ, Scientist, the church's headquarters in Boston, Massachusetts.

The theme of the meeting, "Grace to go forward," is from a well-loved hymn, and was sung to one of H. Walford Davies' "Hymns of the Kingdom."

Acknowledging the challenges of the past year, Keith Wommack, a member of the Christian Science Board of Directors said, "Trials cause us to be transformed. As the New Testament teaches, it is Christ that does the transforming, and we gain each step forward through Christly self-surrender."

In video reports from Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America, members shared that for them the heart of church is about learning to respond more fully to God's love — a living faith that reaches beyond the walls of any brick and mortar building.

A congregation in Washington D.C. shared how they found new ways to carry out their activities and care for one another in the midst of lockdown restrictions. "I've appreciated that we've moved forward without outlining where the destination is," said an interviewed member. "We know we're moving forward with God and we can rest secure that He will take us where we need to go.... That sense of grace really filled each step with purpose."

A teen Sunday School class in Switzerland spoke about the value they found in continuing class online as they navigated changes to work and school life, and considered the role of faith as a practical help. A member from São Paulo, Brazil shared how his prayers for his church and the world brought him full healing in the face of severe COVID-19 symptoms. Christian Scientists typically endeavor to turn to God in prayer for healing, though the decision is always made by the individual, not the church.

Meeting participants also previewed a new exhibit titled "How do you see the world?" that is set to open at the church's headquarters in Boston in late summer. The exhibit will explore progress in the world and connect visitors with the vision and ideals of the church's founder, Mary Baker Eddy. Project Director Sarah Ingraham from Luci Creative said, "We were so moved by how [Mary Baker Eddy] cares for people. You see that in her letters — how she deeply cares for humanity. You see that she is looking at a deeper sense of love, a deeper understanding of love... [the exhibit invites] visitors to take that journey as far as they want."

The new president of the church, Mimi Oka from New York City, New York, was introduced, and new members were welcomed from 24 countries, including Canada, Columbia, Italy, Japan, Democratic Republic of the Congo, and the United States.

Andréa Linette Gillson

May 15, 1956 – June 10, 2021

Andréa Linette Gillson, 65, of Brookings, Oregon, passed away peacefully in her sleep June 10, 2021, due to complications from a long term illness. A private scattering of ashes will be held at a later date.

Andréa was born May 15, 1956, in Eureka, California, to Albert and Kismet Winslow, but spent most of her life in Oregon. After working as a legal secretary, she earned her nursing degree from Umpqua Community College in 1988. She raised her two sons, Anthony and Michael Belisle, of whom she was immensely proud, in Coos Bay.

She later moved to the Brookings-area, where she continued to work in the nursing field until her retirement, enjoying numerous adventures with her husband, Jim Gillson.

Andréa loved traveling, trying new things and reminiscing with those around her about her experiences. She also enjoyed spoiling her pets and tending the flowers in her backyard. She considered obtaining her degree to be one of her greatest accomplishments. Nursing was her life's passion.

She is survived by her husband; Anthony, his wife, Kimberly, and their daughter, Morgan; Michael, and his daughter, Emily; her sisters, Monique Eska and Kiby Mayo; as well as, many friends and co-workers whose lives were touched by her generosity and fun loving spirit. She was preceded in death by her parents and brother.

In-home care workers demand recognition

KNOX KERANEN
The Pilot

While the pandemic forced many industries to a screeching halt, in-home care providers like Joy Vegar and Renee Booker never stopped.

“When they were telling everybody to stay home, we didn’t have that option,” said Vegar. “I had shopping to do for three different clients, so I was in stores several days a week.”

Vegar said in-home care workers put their lives on the line to continue serving their disabled and elderly clients — administering medication, providing meals, facilitating transportation, even providing homemade face masks when there was a shortage of personal protective equipment.

Now, Vegar, Booker and their union — Service Employees International Union

Local 503 — are fighting to bring more attention, and benefits, to in-home care workers who often go unnoticed.

“We want to lift them up and acknowledge them,” said Booker.

Vegar and Booker hosted two visibility events on Saturday in Gold Beach and Coos Bay to highlight SEIU’s current negotiations with the state to raise wages, protect hours and change state rules to make it easier for personal care workers to serve their customers.

They said in-home care workers are especially important in rural areas, including much of the South Coast, where there is less access to hospitals, doctors and nursing homes, as they are able to fill potential gaps in care.

Although in-home care isn’t always a direct replacement for nursing homes, Vegar and Booker said there are obvious benefits for some individuals who may not need around the clock care, especially for disabled and elderly couples.

“Several times in my career I have had husband and wife clients, and they got to stay in their homes together because if they go into a nursing home, a lot of times they are split up,” said Vegar.

Despite the inherent risks associated with being in someone else’s home during the pandemic, Booker said the state has mostly ignored SEIU’s calls for hazard pay.

“They’re dragging their feet,” said Booker.

However, there is movement in negotiations on other fronts, Booker said. Additionally, SEIU will host a town hall with Senator Ron Wyden on June 28 to further negotiations.

Commissioners John Herzog, Court Boice and Chris Paasch approved the county budget at a June 9 meeting after rescinding a previous vote. The budget will take money out of the road fund to offset other losses.

Budget

a month ago, and this could have and should have been dealt with in prior meetings,” said Paasch. “If you were in disagreement with the budget committee, why weren’t all these things brought up in front of the budget committee.”

Paasch also disapproved of raises for two elected officials — the assessor and the clerk — which were approved during the budget process. Additionally, he said the road fund will likely receive additional revenue this year, and could remain near its current value, despite the funds being taken out.

Brad Rueckert, director of operations, aligned with Paasch.

“All six members of the budget committee approved the budget to go before the commissioners today...that time has kind of come and gone for any kind of changes,”

Rueckert also said the budget committee had already cut $600,000, and he did not think any other significant cuts could be made without reducing county services. Additionally, he was concerned about the county being able to meet the June 30 deadline to approve the budget, should they postpone the process.

Before a vote could be made, Summer Matteson — economic development coordinator — said the fight over the budget has pitted county departments against each other, and claimed some employees are having health issues as a result of stress.

“These departments fear,” said Matteson. “We can’t get people to work here because every year, they’re afraid they’re going to lose their jobs.”

Then an initial 2-1 vote blocked the adoption of the county budget, with the lone approval vote from Paasch, and “no” votes from Boice and Herzog.

However, when trying to schedule another public budget meeting, the board determined they would unlikely be able to meet the state required deadline to approve the budget, due to a law which requires governments to publish public meetings in local newspapers 15 days before a meeting.

Following this discovery, Christensen returned to the microphone and recommended the commissioners back-track and pass the budget. However, he said the commissioners should continue to hunt for additional revenues to pay back the road fund.

With the deadline looming and an OK from Christensen, the board voted on the budget again — after rescinding their previous vote. The secondary vote resulted in a 2-1 vote to approve the budget after all, with “yes” votes from Herzog and Paasch, and a “no” vote from Boice.

“Today, I am embarrassed to be a Curry County commissioner,” said Paasch during closing statements, and in an interview with the Pilot after the meeting, “If this continues, I’m going to resign.”

Brookings man arrested for stabbing neighbor

A Brookings man is behind bars and his neighbor is in intensive care after a stabbing Sunday.

According to a press release from Curry County Sheriff John Ward, Justin Graziano allegedly stabbed his neighbor, Christopher Phillips, 42. Graziano was arrested Sunday and is being held on charges of assault in the first degree, assault in the second degree, menacing and unlawful use of a weapon.

Ward said the sheriff’s department received a 9-1-1 call at 7:15 p.m. Sunday reporting a stabbing. The woman who called said her boyfriend, Phillips, had been stabbed in the neck by a neighbor.

Deputies responded within minutes along with Cal Ore Light Flight ambulance. Phillips was rushed to the Brookings emergency room. With the little information released by the caller, deputies determined Graziano was the suspect in the stabbing. Deputies learned prior to becoming unresponsive, Phillips told his girlfriend Graziano stabbed him with a large knife. Deputies found a lot of blood inside Phillips’ home, but determined the actual stabbing occurred elsewhere.

Brookings police responded to the emergency room to watch over Phillips while deputies continued the investigation at the scene. While in the emergency room, Phillips slipped into critical condition. Doctors and staff were able to stabilize Phillips, and they made plans to fly him to a hospital in Medford.

A request was made to the Oregon State Police for a crime scene analyst, and a state trooper responded and assisted by mapping out the crime scene. A sheriff’s detective arrived and took over the investigation and the Curry County District Attorney was notified and responded to the scene.

At 8 p.m., deputies located Justin Graziano at his residence and detained him. Sheriff’s detectives gathered evidence at the residence of Phillips and applied for a search warrant for Graziano’s residence. During this time, deputies learned that while Cal Ore Life Flight Ambulance was transporting Phillips to the Crescent City Airport to fly him to Medford, they had to detour to Sutter Coast Hospital due to the deteriorating medical condition of Phillips. While at Sutter Coast, Phillips underwent emergency surgery and as of Monday, he was in ICU and in stable condition.

A detective interviewed Graziano while waiting for approval of a search warrant of his residence. The search warrant was granted by a Curry County Circuit Court judge, the residence was searched, and the weapon allegedly used was located and seized.

Graziano was transported to the Curry County Jail where he is being held.

What do we owe wildland firefighters?

By JONATHON GOLDEN

“It’s like having gasoline out there,” said Brian Stein-hardt, forest fire zone manager for Prescott and Coconino national forests in Arizona, in a recent AP story about the increasingly fire-prone West. Now something else is happening — and at the worst possible time.

Federal firefighters are leaving the workforce and taking their training and experience with them. The inability of federal agencies to offer competitive pay and benefits is creating hundreds of wildland fire-fighting vacancies.

Vacancies, of course, limit how much federal fire-fighters can do. If Western communities want to be protected, they need to ensure that their firefighters receive better pay and benefits.

In my 11 years of work as a wildland firefighter, I’ve managed aircraft, trained people and run fires myself, but I also did outreach and recruitment for the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management. I know how hard it is for hiring managers to make 2,000 hours of grueling work, crammed into six exhausting months, sound appealing when the pay is $13.45/ hour. The pay doesn’t come close to matching the true demands or everyday dangers of the job.

Federal wildland firefighters, by necessity, are transient workers. During the fire season — now nearly year-round — they must be available to travel anywhere in the United States at any time. And to advance in their career, they have to move to other federal duty stations to gain more qualifications.

Finding affordable housing has always been a problem for career firefighters on a federal salary. To make matters worse, federal agencies revoked the “Transfer of Station” stipend for career employees, which helped offset the cost of moving. Just recently, a national forest supervisor also revoked a “boot stipend.” It might sound minor, but it isn’t: When you’re in the firefighting business, boots tough enough to save your life can easily cost you $500.

Some states aren’t relying on the government to act quickly. “We aren’t just waiting for the next crisis to hit,” said California Gov. Gavin Newsom, in establishing an $80.74 million Emergency Fund that delivers an additional 1,256 seasonal firefighters to boost CALFIRE’s ranks. This Emergency Fund is in addition to the governor’s $1 billion budget request for California’s Wildfire and Forest Resilience Action Plan.

In Washington, state legislators unanimously passed a $125 million package that will enable the state’s Natural Resources Department to hire 100 more firefighters. The legislation furthers the state’s efforts to restore forest health and creates a $25 million fund to ensure community preparedness around the state.

Utah’s House Bill 65, recently signed into law, appropriates money to help Utah’s communities offset the cost of wildfire suppression. Most importantly, it commissions a study to evaluate the current pay plan for firefighters within Utah’s Natural Resources Department.

The bill’s sponsor, Rep. Casey Snider, was amazed to learn that frontline wildland firefighters make more money at McDonald’s: “These positions are critical,” he said. “They are the first ones on fires.” This year, Utah has already had five times the number of wildfires it normally experiences in a year.

And firefighters are organizing and speaking up. The Grassroots Wildland Firefighters is working to halt the exodus of firefighters from federal agencies by advocating for pay parity with state and local fire protection agencies. The group also supports initiatives to assist the physical and mental health of firefighters and their families. The statistics they highlight are shocking: Wildland firefighters have a suicide rate 30 times higher than the average. They also experience high incidences of cardiovascular disease and lung cancer.

There is talk on the federal level of creating a permanent, year-round firefighting workforce. I think this is a necessary step, but it won’t fix the workforce capacity issue unless increased pay and benefits are used to encourage the recruitment and retention of federal firefighters.

We all know that today’s wildfires are longer, more damaging and more frequent than ever before. We also know that men and women are putting their lives on the line for less than they’d earn at a McDonald’s.

Our firefighters do all this to protect our lives, our forests and our communities. We owe them at least a living wage and a chance for a healthy life. I hope more states and legislators will start paying attention. This is a debt that needs to be paid.

Jonathon Golden lives in Moab, Utah, and is a contributor to Writers on the Range, writersontherange.org, a nonprofit dedicated to spurring lively conversation about the West. He left firefighting in 2019 to found a consulting company that focuses on conservation and national security.

SB 582 would unjustly disadvantage Oregon’s vital newspaper industry

By BRIGITTE SCHMIDT GWYN

Newspapers and magazines go to every corner of this state. Notwithstanding increased digital access, paper publications are delivered to tens of thousands of homes that lack broadband internet and homes where readers simply are more comfortable with the familiar format of paper or want to save magazines on travel, food, world events or hobbies.

Oregon’s newspapers and magazines care deeply about environmental responsibility. Newsprint and magazine stock paper come from certified forests, are fully compostable and biodegrade in a manner of months. Newsprint is so safe that it can be used as vegetable garden mulch. Inks are linseed-oil-based and non-toxic, and adhesives are water-soluble.

A well-intentioned but misguided piece of legislation in the Oregon State Senate, SB-582, would create an extensive Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) system for municipal solid waste. The bill recognizes that magazines and newspapers are different from other materials by allowing fees to be paid through advertising, but the fees simply should not apply to non-toxic, biodegradable materials — again, newspapers and magazines biodegrade within months.

News is vital to American civic life, and legislation causing financial hardship to newspapers and magazines will erode citizen access to factual and trusted news and information. Newspapers are the sole source of local news for many communities throughout the state. Coverage of town meetings, food pantry locations, classified ads and business news are the lifeblood of community newspapers. Yet this legislation discriminates against news and information published on paper, as opposed to information that is circulated in digital formats.

EPR systems in other jurisdictions have failed to increase recycling rates for paper, which are already much higher than other products. In British Columbia, recycling rates are trending downwards while producer fees have increased markedly. This is not tenable in Oregon, when economic conditions related to the pandemic have caused significant reduction in advertising revenues for magazines and newspapers. To offset marked increases in cost, the legislation could force publications to eliminate home delivery to rural areas, exacerbating the digital divide, and cut journalism jobs.

A recent study by Broadbandnow ranks Oregon 34th among states based on broadband deployment, speeds and access to low-priced plans. Those without broadband depend on paper.

We strongly urge the Oregon State Legislature to consider the impact of this legislation on magazines and newspapers. There are more appropriate ways to reclaim post-consumer waste without disadvantaging the state’s vital news and information sources.

Dads make a difference

Father’s Day is Sunday, June 20th

Children from fatherless homes account for 90% of all homeless and runaway kids. 71% of high school dropouts, and 63% of youth suicides. (See more at <https://bit.ly/3woadKz>)

Over 750K divorces and 1.919K out of wedlock births are major contributors to create fatherless households each year. And while joint physical custody started going into effect in the 1980s, it wasn’t until 2017 when Nevada finally adopted a presumption of joint physical custody. Between 1960 and 2016, the percent of children with just mothers nearly tripled, from 8 to 23%. Add to this the fact that 27% of fathers choose to have absolutely no contact with their children.

What makes fathers so crucial? For decades, leading child psychologist Michael E. Lamb reminded us that fathers are the forgotten contributor to child development. Research has found that children with involved fathers have strong cognitive and motor skills, elevated physical and mental health, become better problem solvers and are more competent, curious and empathetic. The data says that fathers are vital and yet laws and society under value their importance making it harder to be in their children’s lives. (See <https://bit.ly/3wldKt6>)

So, what can you do? If you’re a father, make the effort to do everything you can to be in your children’s daily lives. If you’re a mother, encourage and facilitate the relationship between your children and their father.

If you’re the child, spend time with your dad. Seek his advice and guidance. If you’re an employer, grant them the ability to be at their children’s events and take sick days to care for their kids. If you work in the legal field, help improve the laws. The fate (and future) of nearly half of America’s children depends on it.

Accrued interest and additional advances, if any, will increase this figure prior to sale. It is possible that at the time of sale the opening bid may be less than the total indebtedness due. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916- 939-0772 or visit this internet website, www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case T.S.# 9462-5031. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 916-939-0772, or visit this internet website www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case T.S.# 9462-5031 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Chetco Pelican Players offer DVD of ‘Thar She Blows’

The Chetco Pelican Players are releasing their 2016 production of ‘Thar She Blows’ on DVD. All of proceeds from this fundraiser will help sustain the operations of the Chetco Pelican Players, a nonprofit community theater, as they resume operations in the wake of the COVID-19 shutdowns of 2020 and 2021.

Written and directed by founding member and longtime resident Mike Moran, ‘Thar She Blows’ is a melodramatic, comedic riff on the history of Brookings, Oregon. With campy humor and plot twists galore, this limited-edition legacy DVD is more satisfying than a blubber burger and as exciting as a tangle with a giant squid.

This DVD is a recording of the updated 2016 production, starring local residents Ellen Stadelman, Sean Paul Farris, Ariel Farris, Randy Scruggs, Bj Farris, Mary Anne Trailor, Steven Scruggs, Scott Oka and Tommy Jones.

Turning trash into treasure to teach a lesson

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The Pilot

A Bandon art gallery with a mission far greater than just art reopened its door this week after being closed for 15 months due to COVID-19.

Washed Ashore opened its gallery at 325 2nd Street SE in downtown Bandon after using the time off to make some improvements to the gallery.

“We’re super stoked, super excited for it,” gallery Manager Cameron McGrew said last week. “We’re getting a few new additions. We’re getting the walls painted, and the carpets have already been cleaned. It’s exciting to have a fresh start.”

Washed Ashore opened in 2010 when Angela Haseltine Pozzi came up with an idea to make art out of trash that washes up on beaches in the area. Pozzi, who also serves as artistic director, joined with artist Steve Wright to create masterpieces that are made almost fully out of trash.

Washed Ashore collects trash that has been removed from beaches through volunteer cleanup efforts as well as trash collected by park rangers. The items are then cleaned and used to make massive sculptures.

“We will definitely pick up whatever they find and turn it into some awesome sea creatures,” McGrew said.

And by doing so, Washed Ashore hopes to spread a bigger message about keeping trash out of the ocean.

“We’re an education-based nonprofit,” McGrew said. “Our goal is to educate the public. We’ve actually done viewings in Canada. We’ve been all over the United States. Right now, we’re in Norfolk, Virginia, Green Bay, Wisconsin and Turtle Bay in Redding, California.”

Washed Ashore also has pieces in the Smithsonian, Florida Aquarium and different aquariums and zoos across Oregon.

But the home base is and has always been in Bandon. It is there where Pozzi and Wright come up with their ideas and it is there where volunteers help put together the sculptures piece by piece.

The end result is larger than life sculptures, all showcasing sea creatures and all made from trash.

“We’re cleaning the beaches, we’re educating the public and trying to engage the community,” McGrew said.

While most of the sculptures are made of plastic, some include Styrofoam, nets from fishing boats and more. The biggest problem, though, remains plastic. The issue is plastic never fully degrades, so it can remain in the ocean for years and years. And during that time, it can cause havoc on animals that live and rely on the sea. Washed Ashore is trying to spread the message that most plastic use is not necessary. At the gallery, they offer water in biodegradable milk cartons.

“Plastic is necessary to an extent,” McGrew said. “But the single-use plastic is what we’re trying to avoid, things like single-use soda bottles, plastic wrapping around food that you’ll just take off and throw away.”

To make the point, McGrew likes showing a sculpture in the museum. Made largely of plastic water bottles, the majority of the bottles came from the Olympic games in Beijing, China. They washed ashore near Bandon several years later. “Everything you buy is a vote,” McGrew said. “So, if you choose to buy boxed water, for example, you’re voting with your wallet every time you make a purchase. If we were to all just stop buying plastic soda bottles, they would get the message.”

Instead, McGrew said, buy aluminum, glass and paper products that can be easily recycled.

When visitors come to Washed Ashore, McGrew or other docents will start conversations with visitors to showcase the importance of voting with their wallets.

And, once again, Washed Ashore is opening and spreading that message.

As a nonprofit, the gallery relies on donations, volunteers and grants. It is also now making decent money loaning its finished products to museums and other places around the country.

Inside the gallery is still the best place to get a look at the work. There are over 85 sculptures in the gallery, with the largest probably a parrot fish that is 9-1/2 feet tall, 14 feet long and six feet wide.

The Washed Ashore Gallery will be open from noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Niemie memorial to be at Lucky 7 Casino

The Lucky 7 Casino will be the site of a memorial for Dayle Niemie, longtime founder and promoter of the Lucky 7 MDA classic car show, who died February 25.

He put on the car show for 22 years at the Lucky 7, so it’s appropriate that his memorial will be there in the front parking lot where most of his car shows were located.

He put on the car show from a scooter and later a wheelchair as he was a victim of Muscular Dystrophy. His daughter Heather also is a victim and was beside him at most of the car shows. All of the proceeds from the shows went to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The car that he loved for over 25 years will also be there, a 1970 Plymouth Roadrunner.

The car show will go on without him this year as the Lucky 7 Casino still would like to continue honoring him by sponsoring and supporting the MDA.

There will be a show and shine for all of his classic cars friends, so everyone is invited to come and bring their cars. It will be held June 26 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Improvements planned for Curry Family Medical in Port Orford

The Curry Family Medical clinic in Port Orford will be closed the week of June 28 so the health network can make improvements to the facility. In an effort to make the clinic and grounds more aesthetically pleasing and create an environment that improves the patient experience, Curry Health Network is investing in significant interior and exterior upgrades.

“We are very happy to be able to invest in our communities and make changes necessary to more easily and conveniently accommodate the people we serve,” said Ginny Williams, Curry Health Network CEO. “It is a worthwhile change and something we are excited about doing. Investing in our communities to provide people with a comfortable patient experience is so important to everyone at Curry Health Network.”

When the clinic is closed, a number of cosmetic changes will be made, including a new look inside.

A new paint and color scheme will accompany brand new flooring throughout the facility.

Through the summer of 2021 and into the early fall, important, practical renovations will be made including the addition of new, American with Disabilities Act compliant automatic glass doors so entering and exiting the clinic is easier and safer, particularly for older patients or those with physical challenges. Also, an ADA compliant sidewalk will replace the current walk to accommodate the needs of all people visiting the clinic.

“The changes are needed,” Williams said. “Each patient is our most important patient, and we want to do everything we can to help make sure their experience is as safe, simple and as comfortable as possible.”

The upgrade will include an exterior facelift including new siding and paint, and updated and improved landscaping. The improvements are a result of planned efforts to better support the patients served by Curry Family Medical.

“A visit to the clinic can involve a lot of things, some difficult,” Williams said. “The changes are being made to help, in bigger and smaller ways, to make the environment a more calming, soothing and welcoming place for patients when they come for care.”

CHN understands the importance of having an open, available clinic and has carefully coordinated all interior work to be conducted during the single week

The staff at the Curry Family Medical Clinic in Port Orford will be out of the office for the week of June 28 as upgrades are made to the inside and outside of the building. Dr. Pitchford will be able to provide remote support and those who need appointments can call the Gold Beach clinic.

of June 28th, while exterior projects will not impact the operations of the clinic throughout the summer and early fall months.

When Curry Family Medical re-opens on July 5, the facility will have a new look and offer a more comfortable experience for everyone who needs care.

Maintaining access to care is also a priority for Curry Health Network.

During this week, Dr. Pitchford will continue to provide administrative support remotely, helping with prescription refill requests, and ensuring completion of outstanding orders for laboratory and other tests.

Any patient that needs to be seen by a provider during this week can be scheduled for an appointment in Gold Beach by calling 541-412-2000.
