

Gold Beach looks for approval of 'granny units'

By JULIE AKINS
For The Pilot

In its latest effort to make progress on the lack of affordable housing, the Gold Beach City Council on Monday asked Curry County to pre-approve additional dwelling unit plans for home owners who want to offer a year around rental on their property.

While the ordinance allowing for so called "granny units" has been in place, people haven't always known how to get the process started. This plan would allow them to access one stop shopping at the county's planning office without having to wait.

"People want to do it, they just don't know how. This gives them a plan and a pre-approval which can save them time and money," said Mayor Tami Kaufman of the council's decision.

Since the county is the agency which processes permits and inspections for the city, the request goes to them from the council.

"I expect them to approve it," said Kaufman.

The fast track additional unit plan is just one of many processes Gold Beach has implemented. It's also restricted the number of vacation rentals in residential zones to 21 and as properties turn over, they expect to bring that number down, according to the mayor.

Additionally, Kaufman is working with NeighborWorks Umpqua to identify four acres to build 50 units of affordable housing.

"The median is said to $850 in rent per month, but that's not reflective of new people coming into the market. For a person

Studying a changing coastal ocean

As climate change impacts the environment, the coastal region of Oregon and California is likely to see more changes. Below, a marine heat wave followed by the loss of sea stars led to purple urchins reproducing in record numbers, putting further strain on the kelp forests from California to Washington.

Scientists looking for answers to climate impact along coast

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The World

As the ocean changes due to climate change, the pressure is on scientists and others to find a way to determine how the ocean will adapt and if people can help protect it.

During a discussion with the Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition last week, Mark Carr, a professor of marine ecology in the Department of Ecology and Evolutionary Biology at the University of California Santa Cruz, said the challenge is immense.

"In my humble opinion, climate change is the greatest challenge in our current time," Carr said. "It manifests itself in many ways."

Carr said as the ocean warms up, especially near the coast, there are clear changes in currents, sea levels, acidity as well as temperature and precipitation.

Curry County escapes worst of the pandemic

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The Pilot

While devastation from the COVID-19 pandemic continues to hit neighboring counties, Curry County may be missing out on the worst of the pandemic.

In the last week, Coos County has reported 17 new COVID deaths while Del Norte County reported 21 over the last several weeks.

In Curry County, the worst of the Delta variant may have passed, but the impact is still being felt. In the last three reports from the Oregon Health Authority, Curry County reported 47 new cases with no new deaths.

Coos County reported eight additional deaths in the last few days, bringing the number of people who have died after contracted COVID to 69.

The county has seen a slight decrease in total cases over the last two weeks, but those suffering remains at the highest level since the pandemic began.

Gold Beach names interim police chief

By JULIE AKINS
For The Pilot

With an end to his job as Gold Beach's top cop, Chief Tracy Wood's interim successor was named by the Gold Beach City Council at Monday's meeting. Sergeant Donald Miller will fill in as police chief until a permanent person can be named.

Wood retired at the end of August after roughly 12 years on the force, the last three as chief. Throughout his tenure he stressed community involvement and creating strong relationships both in the community through partnerships and with outside policing agencies. When asked about his goals at the start of his tenure as chief, Wood said he wanted to rebuild and maintain good relations with the other agencies in the area."

Police Chief Wood made sure the department joined the inter-agency task force on narcotics among others in the region.

An Oregon Coast native, Wood said he loves to "hunt, fish and go camping," something he'll presumably have more time for now that he's out of the hot seat.

Wood's departure is part of a rapid amount of turn over at the top for the small department with only seven full time employees.

Interim Chief Miller also plans to retire and move with his family back to Texas as soon as his successor can be identified and hired.

"He's promised to stay with us until we can find a replacement," said Mayor Tamie Kaufman who appointed Interim Chief Miller.

"We're close on a potential hire. We just have to wait for some tests to come back," according to Kaufman.

The Gold Beach Police Department doesn't operate 24 hours per day and receives coordinated assistance from the Curry County Sheriff's Department.

Both Wood and Miller transferred from the Curry County Sheriff's Department and worked their way up through the ranks.

Georgia "Geo" L. Martin

Georgia "Geo" L. Martin, 76, of Gold Beach Friday, passed away peacefully at the home of her daughter on Friday, August 27, 2021.

Georgia was born to Carl Herman Dean and Helen Mae Daugherty on February 22, 1945. She married Everett Paul Martin in Coupeville, Washington, on February 19, 1962. The young couple moved to Missouri shortly after the birth of their first child, Kallee (Martin) Chenoweth. They had 3 sons, Gene Vibrant and fun loving her entire life, Georgia was quick-witted and brought laughter to everyone she met. She wore a pair of earrings and a hair accessory for every occasion. Many in Gold Beach will remember her as the bubbly waitress and bartender at Spada's Restaurant where she worked for nearly 30 years. She also held positions at local motels and at Curry General Hospital.

She liked thrift shopping, dancing, going to the casino, animals, hunting and fishing. She loved spending time with her family and friends and would help anyone in need.

Georgia is survived by her daughter, Karlee (Martin) Chenoweth, her sons, Gene Martin and wife Michele, Paul Martin and wife Angie, all of Gold Beach; her grandchildren, Crystal Chenoweth of Moses Lake, Washington, Codi (Chenoweth) Benham and husband Devin, and Joshua Martin all of Gold Beach, as well as her sisters, Donna Sims of Eureka, Montana and Carol Miller of Kennewick, Washington, a brother, David Carter of Camano Island, Washington, and brother, Robbie Glen of Arkansas, nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends, and her dog, Wilbur.

She was preceded in death by her son, Kevin Ray Martin and husband, Everett Paul Martin.

There will be a private family service September 24, 2021 in Gold Beach.

Theresa Buckskin

She was born August 12, 1953, to Emil and Evelyn Buckskin in Tollhouse, California. She was later adopted by the Kibby family of Smith River, California in 1957. One of her most cherished experiences in life was learning to box. She had started boxing at the age of 10 (with her older brothers and sisters) and continued on throughout her early adult life.

Theresa had the honor of receiving the name “Princess Red Star“, by Sioux Chief White Buffalo Man. She was known as

Robert "Bobby" Donaca

Bobby was born in Gold Beach, Or to Robert & Mildred Donaca. He attended elementary school in Ophir, Or and transferred to Gold Beach High for his high school years. He loved playing football during a “true pioneer to getting the sport off the ground” and she was also ranked #2 World Welterweight with the Women’s Boxing Federation in 1977. One of her boxing matches was recorded as the first nationally-televised boxing match between women. Along with the sport of boxing, she also enjoyed playing basketball, softball, and volleyball.

Later in life, she made a career working with the Tolowa Dee Ni nation. Being employed by the Tolowa Dee Ni Nation for 20 + years was a start to new friendships within the office and the Tolowa community. She had started out as a receptionist and was promoted to being the Enrollment Specialist up until her passing. What she loved most about her job was the interaction she had with the members, she enjoyed talking to the elders and reminiscing about the good old days.

Over the years Theresa looked forward to family gatherings whether it be weekend barbecues, birthdays, small road trips, and especially the holidays. Her eyes lit up when she would go and support her Grandkids during their games of soccer, basketball, and track. She was the loudest one cheering them on. They were the highlight of her life. They could always count on her full support in any aspect of their life because she was their number one cheerleader.

She was known as being a warm, strong-hearted, generous, friendly, easy to talk to, stubborn, feisty, diehard, loving Mother/Grandmother with a distinguished sense of humor and laugh that will live on in our memories. Her love has shaped us in lasting ways and she will be forever missed as she goes on her journey.

She is survived by sisters and brother Darlene Buckskin, Arlene Bunton and Ross Bunton, and several nieces and nephews, who knew her as “Aunt Wheezy “. She is preceded in death by her parents, brothers Mike Perez and Roger Buckskin and sister Emily Buckskin-Leach.

Clarification- Curry Housing

In a story about the Curry Housing Committee published last week, our reporter claimed Mary Rowe said her rights were violated in the course of a committee meeting. Rowe says the incidents were not in a meeting but were instead related to a disability she has and the committee's unwillingness to give her information such as agendas in a proper format.

The story also said the committee was formed to help determine how to spend American Rescue Plan funds received by Curry County. The committee was actually formed in December 2020, before the American Rescue Plan was passed by Congress. The committee was formed to develop housing opportunities in Curry County.

Curry County seeks applicants for the Board of Property Tax Appeals

Due to term expira-tions, the Curry County Board of Commissioners is seeking applicants for the Board of Property Tax Appeals to fill the vacan-cies with terms expiring June 30, 2022.

Interested applicants are encouraged to apply. BOPTA hears and re-views petitions for reduc-tions of assessed property values. BOPTA is com-prised of three members - one county commission-er or non-office holding designee, plus two non-of-fice holding residents who are not employed by the county or the taxing district. Training during the year of appointment and then every other year is required. Residents who would like to serve on the BOP-TA board should apply on the county's website at: <http://www.co.curry.or.us> or call 541-247-3296 to obtain an application. Ap-plications will be accepted until 5 p.m. September 30. Further information can be obtained from the deputy county clerk at 541-247-3295.

The style of policing has been consistent according to Mayor Kaufman who is seeking to continue the policies and plans laid out by prior administrations. "I have a lot of hope to continue to be a peace offi-cer force, to try to prevent crime by having a nice pres-ence in our community." Hiring in small depart-ments is a challenge. A recent survey of nearly 200 departments by the Police Executive Research Forum, a nonprofit research firm, shows a 45% increase in the retirement rate of police officers and a nearly 20% increase in resigna-tions in 2020-21 compared to the previous year. The change is affecting departments of all sizes. The research group's survey shows that in the largest de-partments with 500 or more officers, the retirement rate increased by nearly 30%. Overall, according to the survey, new police hiring has dropped 5%. PERF reports the con-versation nationally about policing and accountabil-ity is driving some of the shortages. In Portland a new division to look at race related crimes had four applicants for a 14 person unit. Other openings in Portland have remained as they scramble to find qualified officers. Neither Wood nor Miller have made any claims about their departures out-side of the personal in Gold Beach, but police shortages overall impact the city's ability to fill open positions going forward, a fact May-or Kaufman notes. "We think we'll have someone soon but we don't want to jinx it."

What the pandemic taught us about crisis preparedness

By MARTIN GOLDEN
SBA's Portland District Director

The pandemic has shown Oregonians the critical importance that small business plays in both our local and national economies. It was critical for entrepreneurs to immediately change their business models and pivot to a new way of selling their products and services overnight. The U.S. Small Business Administration is highlighting the resilience of America's entrepreneurs and the renewal of the small business economy as they build back better from the economic crisis brought on by the pandemic.

Though beating the pandemic is still front and center in moving our economy forward, our nation is still vulnerable to a variety of natural disasters including wildfires, hurricanes, tornadoes, blizzards and drought. History has shown that up to 25 percent of businesses that close because of disaster never reopen. All Oregon businesses should develop a workable crisis preparedness plan that takes into consideration what we learned over the last 18 months from the pandemic. The following are six simple business strategies a business can use for future crises.

1. Evaluate your exposure. Know your community and the types of disasters most likely to impact your business. Consider your facility's proximity to flood plains, wildfire areas, rivers and streams, and other hazards. Of course, the COVID-19 pandemic should be the first exposure issue on the list.
2. Review your insurance coverage. Consult your insurance agent to determine whether your coverage is sufficient and what it covers. You may need separate flood insurance and determine what is or is not covered during a pandemic. Check into business interruption insurance, which helps you cover operating expenses if you're forced to temporarily close.
3. Review and prepare your supply chain. Establish business relationships with alternate vendors in case your primary supplier isn't available. Place occasional orders with them so they'll regard you as an active customer. Create a contact list for important business contractors and vendors you plan to use in an emergency. Keep this list at an offsite location. At the start of the pandemic many food suppliers temporarily ceased operations and were not able fulfill their customer's orders.

4. Create a crisis communications plan. At the beginning of the pandemic many business owners did not have current contact information for their employees and vendors. Establish an email/Twitter/Facebook alert system, keeping primary and secondary email addresses for your employees, vendors, and customers. Provide real-time updates to your customers/clients and the community so they know you're still in business and in the process of rebuilding following a crisis.

5. Establish a written chain of command. Let your employees know the emergency chain of command should your business close. Maintain a clear leave and sick-day policy during disasters. Have a backup payroll service should your office be destroyed.

6. Create/implement a Business Continuity Plan. This plan should state when it will be activated; identify essential business functions, and staff to carry out these functions; determine which employees will be considered non-essential vs. essential; and identify records and documents that must be secured and readily accessible to perform key functions. All of this may need to be done remotely from home.

Developing an effective and workable crisis recovery plan is critical for all small business owners. For more information on crisis planning, and SBA's ongoing COVID-19 relief programs, please visit www.sba.gov/disaster.

Letters to the editor

The value of community radio

I grew up in radio and got to work at a number of radio stations in the west. When I started in radio, you could bring your own records into the station and play them on the air. In San Luis Obispo, California, I met the live news feed from CBS on the hour with Eric Sevareid and Walter Cronkite. I did the night shift at a country music station in Bakersfield when Buck Owens walked in unannounced, introduced himself and handed me a 45 RPM to put on while he went out to his car to listen to it on the radio. Buck owned the station and his new television show Hee Haw was a big hit. He and his band, the Buckaroos had just made the record and he wanted to hear it broadcast before telling the studio to release it. I was on the radio when we first touched down on the moon July 16th, 1969. I got to read the teletype over the airways as we landed. I went home and watched it on my little 12" black and white TV. But most poignant of all, in my travels I have gotten to hear and participate in some of the finest radio ever aired, community radio, the voice of the people, not beholden to commercial interests.

The last honest place where the airwaves are still free. Right now, your local community radio station is threatened and Curry Coast Community Radio could go off the air unless they find a new tower to broadcast from. KCIW provides a community platform for the free exchange of artistic expression, information, and differing points of view. A one-year memorandum of understanding between KCIW and the city of Brookings allowed the station to rent space on the city tower at $100 per month, previously for free, but the Brookings City Council decided to not renew the agreement, it's thought because the council feared they would appear biased by supporting a left leaning station. Don't let politics take your community radio station. Without the city tower, they need to raise $30,000-35,000 to erect a new tower and attach their broadcast antenna to it. They are short of their goal. Let the council know that this matters to you.

Guest Opinion

Welcome to Yosemite, the new Pyrocene Park

By Steve Pyne

The Pleistocene epoch that began 2.6 million years ago sent ice in waves through Yosemite.

Glaciers gouged out great valleys along the Merced and Tuolumne rivers, ice sheets rounded granite domes, cirques sculpted the High Sierra. John Muir traced virtually every landscape feature of Yosemite to its legacy of ice.

Now the residual ice is melting, the streams and waterfalls are drying and the living landscape is burning. In 1990, the A-Rock fire closed the park for the only time in its history, so far. The 2013 Rim fire burned around the Hetch Hetchy reservoir; the 2018 Ferguson fire burned along the park's Wawona Road. Where the fires didn't spread, their smoke did.

Add in the industrial combustion of fossil fuels, with its climatic impacts, and virtually every management issue of Yosemite today traces back to fire.

Humans have always used fire: It's our ecological signature.

The end of the last glaciation allowed us, a fire-wielding species, to interact with an increasingly fire-receptive planet. Our pact with fire was mutual. Fire allowed us to flourish; in return, we have taken fire everywhere, even to Antarctica.

The pact had to operate within boundaries set by living landscapes. After all, fire was a creation of life, which furnished its oxygen and fuel and established ecological barriers. Then we discovered an immense reservoir of combustibles buried in geologic time. It was as though we had found a new world – a fossilized, "lithic" landscape -we could work the way we did living landscapes. The only constraints were those people chose to impose on themselves.

Add up all the burning that people now do in living, and it would seem we are refashioning the Earth with the fire-informed equivalent of an Ice Age, complete with a change in climate, rising sea levels, a mass extinction, major shifts in biogeography and smoke palls. Little on Earth is unaffected.

Fire is driving off the last vestiges of the Pleistocene, from its ice to its mammoths. We have been creating a Pyrocene for millennia, but binge-burning fossil fuels put the process on afterburners.

Fifty years ago Yosemite recognized that its fire scene was out of whack. The problem then was not too much of the wrong kind of fire but too little of the right kind. The park sought to restore pre-settlement fire regimes. Among targeted sites was Illilouette Creek, an elevated basin southeast of Glacier Point.

The park recognized that suppressing fire had stockpiled fuels from the foothills to the crestline, caused Yosemite Valley and the Mariposa Grove to overflow with invasive conifers that blocked views, and prevented the fabled sequoias from regenerating. The park introduced prescribed fire and learned to loose-herd wildfires. The Illilouette basin shuffled toward something like its former fire regime.

No place has the fire program it wants, but Yosemite seems better positioned than the national forests and private lands around it to cope. The issue is no longer to restore natural fire but to find the right mix of fires suppressed and prescribed, and of wildfires managed, to ward off the megafires that are plaguing everywhere else.

Yosemite deals with fires that can threaten small and not-so-small villages. Its specialty is working with wildland fire.

By Aug. 20 of this year the park had coped with 54 fires, 43 from lightning and 11 from people. Some were put out. Some were confined within natural barriers. And a few burning in Illilouette Basin were tweaked as nature's invisible hand massaged them into five decades of layered burning. The legacy of past fires had altered the conditions for the fires that followed, softening the shock of tougher, meaner burns.

Yosemite has long been celebrated for distilling into near-crystalline state the magnificence of the Western landscape. As it moves from ice to fire, it is showing that it may also serve as a proxy for some of what the Earth needs to do to survive our deepening fire age. There is no way we can't not manage fire.

Steve Pyne is a contributor to Writers on the Range, writersontherange.org, a nonprofit dedicated to spurring lively debate about the West. He is the author of the new book, The Pyrocene. How We Created an Age of Fire, and What Happens Next.

Public Notices

CASE No. CVPB-2021-7042

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Mary Lou Knight, Mary Lou Brown, Mary L. Pullen, Bary L. Barnes
A Petition for Probate has been filed by: Marilyn Shepard in the superior Court of California, County of: DEL NORTE
The Petition for Probate requests that: Marilyn Shepard be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.
The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: September 24, 2021
Time: 10:00 A.M. Dept.: Superior Court
Address of court: SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF DEL NORTE
450 H Street
Crescent City, CA, 95531
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later or either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916- 939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet website http:// www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-20- 889174-AB. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 916-939- 0772, or visit this internet website http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-20-889174-AB to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only. PROPERTY TAX DEFAULT (DELINQUENT) LIST

I, Barbara M. Lopez, Del Norte County Tax Collector, State of California, certify that: The real properties listed below were declared to be in tax-default at 12:01 a.m. on July 1, 2018, by operation of law pursuant to Revenue and Taxation Code section 3436. The declaration of default was due to nonpayment of the total amount due for the taxes, assessments, and other charges levied in the fiscal year 2017-2018 that were a lien on the listed real property. Tax-defaulted real property may be redeemed by payment of all unpaid taxes and assessments, together with the additional penalties and fees, as prescribed by law, or it may be redeemed under an installment plan of redemption. The amount to redeem, including all penalties and fees, as of September 2021, is shown opposite the parcel (assessment) number and next to the name of the assessee. All information concerning redemption of tax-defaulted property will be furnished, upon request, by Barbara M. Lopez, Del Norte County Tax Collector, 981 H Street, Suite 150, Crescent City, CA 95531 or by calling (707) 464-7283. Parcel (Assessment) Numbering System Explanation: The Assessor's Parcel (assessment) number (APN), when used to describe property in this list, refers to the assessor's map book, the map page, the block on the map (if applicable), and the individual parcel on the map page or in the block. The assessor's maps and further explanation of the parcel numbering system are available in the county assessor's office.

Property tax-defaulted on July 1, 2018, for the taxes, assessments and other charges for the fiscal year 2017-2018:

NOTICE OF AGREEMENT TO PURCHASE TAX-DEFAULTED PROPERTY

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, in accordance with the provisions of Division 1, Part 6, Chapter 8, of the California Revenue and Taxation Code (and written authorization of the State Controller), that an agreement, a copy of which is on file in the office of the Board of Supervisors of Del Norte County, has been made between said Board of Supervisors and the County of Del Norte and approved by the State Controller, whereby said County will sell to said County of Del Norte under terms set forth in said agreement all of the real property hereinafter described that is subject to the power of sell by the Tax Collector.

THE EFFECTIVE DATE AND TIME OF THE AGREEMENT SHALL BE, SEPTEMBER 30, 2021 AT 8:00AM, PT

If the real property is not redeemed according to law before the effective date and time of the agreement, the right of redemption will cease and the undersigned Tax Collector, pursuant to said agreement, will sell said property to the County of Del Norte.

If the property is sold, parties of interest, as defined in section 4675 of the California Revenue and Taxation Code, have the right to claim with the County for any proceeds from the sale that are in excess of the liens and costs required to be paid from the proceeds. If excess proceeds results from the sale, notice will be given to the parties of interest pursuant to law.

If any properties sold at a county tax sale have one or more specified conditions, as defined in section 3731 of the California Revenue and Taxation Code, the Tax Collector may rescind the sale of said properties without consent from the purchaser.

For more information as to the amount necessary to redeem or other related issues pertaining to the properties described in this notice, contact Barbara M. Lopez, Del Norte County Tax Collector at 981 H Street, Suite 150; Crescent City, CA 95531 or call (707) 464-7283.

Ocean

To prepare for a changing coastal ocean, scientists like Carr must be prepared. "How can we best prepare coastal marine life and human communities for the impact," he said. When looking at a species in the coastal ocean, Carr said there are three questions that must be answered. First, the likelihood of exposure. Second, sensitivity to change and finally, adaptive capacity. "Those three factors ultimately determine the vulnerability of a particular species," Carr said. To prepare for the changes, Carr and a team created a climate vulnerability assessment. The assessment is not easy, but is could be effective. "Climate change impacts are really complicated,"

Carr said. "They have lots of feedback to the system that most of the vulnerability assessments don't capture." The goals of the assessment plan created by Carr and his team are to identify vulnerabilities and adaptive capacities, empower communities for mitigation and adaption to climate impact and avoid unintended consequences. After creating a framework for the assessment, Carr and his team at Cal Santa Cruz tested it by looking back a few years. They looked back at the devastation of the red sea urchin fishery. That event was brought on by two events, a marine heat wave from 2014 to 2016 from California to Washington at the same time that sea star wasting disease began eliminating most of the sea stars from the ocean. The heat wave played a role by killing large portions of the kelp forest, which is the primary food source for urchins. Sea stars, the main predator of urchins, were eliminated at the same time. The result is red urchins were forced to move to deeper water and purple urchins, which reproduce faster, began to take over. When looking at the assessment, Carr said they look at four areas - the resource of interest, in this case the red sea urchins, the ecological community, human users and the overall human community. "It's important to recognize each one of these domains impacts the other domains, either directly or indirectly," Carr said. "Each of these feedbacks interact with the resource domain. Climate impacts are likely to impact all the domains." With the red sea urchins, the loss of kelp and a predator to control the purple urchins impacted the red sea urchins. As a result, the purple urchins reproduced rapidly, leading to greater loss of the kelp forest as the urchins ate. The human users, or the people who fished for and processed the urchins lost work, and the greater community suffered when there were no urchins to eat. The impact was felt greatest from Port Orford into Northern California, where the water temperature climbed 2 degrees. "That marine heat wave is thought to be one of the largest marine heat waves in the world," Carr said. "In the absence of food and the absence of predators, the purple sea urchin just went crazy. They came out and fed on all the algae." Interestingly, the warmer water itself did little to hurt the red sea urchin, but the impacts down the line did. "The sensitivity of the red urchin to the heat was minimal," Carr said. "Rather, indirect ecological interaction in the kelp field impacted the urchin." Carr said the impact is being felt five year later because the kelp forests have not fully recovered. "As soon as the kelp recovers from the heat wave, the red urchin will be back," Carr said. "The marine heat wave only impacted the Northern California fishery. The Southern California fishery was not impacted." Carr said the people who fish for urchins had minimal impact as well because they were able to find other work. However, the processors did struggle. Carr said going back and looking at a past event will help scientists prepare for a future one. "If we have another heat wave, you could ask what's going that going to do to the Port Orford fishery," Carr said. "You could adjust this to get some answers. It requires local experience. It requires the knowledge of people in that system." Another question that can be answered is how long the impact will last.

And it could be longer than expected. "To this day, we're only now starting to see more of the kelp recover," Carr said. "The prognosis of Northern California is pretty bleak. You need to change the urchin population in order for the kelp to recover." There is good news and bad news when looking at the 2014-16 heat wave. "How often are we going to see the event," Carr asked. "That will be a big key as to recovery. If we start seeing more heat waves that could shift the system." Phillip Johnson, the executive director of Oregon Shores, said Carr's presentation is one of a series of events Oregon Shores is doing in 2021 as part of a celebration of its 50th anniversary. "We potentially address any conservation issue along the Oregon coast," Johnson said. "Anything that does threaten the Oregon coast, we do care about deeply."

trying to find a rental right now, it's closer to $1,600 to $1,800 per month. It's not affordable for the average working person," reported Mayor Kaufman. "We're losing teachers and hospital workers who can't find any place to live. It's tough, really tough." She says if anyone knows of a four acre plot for sale, please let her know. "It's like finding a needle in a hay stack." Despite the difficulty in identifying buildable parcels, several new housing projects are underway. Eight units are being built in the port area which will rent for roughly $1,100 per month. Additionally, 27 homes between 500 and 800 square feet on Kerber Drive in Gold Beach are being built. They're selling for roughly $300,000 per unit. While every new home built eases the market conditions to some degree, it's still incredibly tight. The vacancy rate in Gold Beach hovers in the 0-1% range. That scarcity controls demand and pricing. According to the Curry County Housing Assessment, 60 new units need to be built in the next three years. "Gold Beach is doing that all by itself. I think we'll be OK, but we still have to do what we can to keep prices affordable."

care skyrocketing costs,” Guarino said. “For example, we could provide a public health insurance option that provides consumers a low cost health insurance choice. We can also lower prescription drug costs so that care or treatment is not cost-prohibitive.”

Caitlin Costello, a student at Portland State University, got health insurance seven years ago and broke her elbow shortly after.

“I had gone without insurance for almost eight years,” Costello said of growing up. “It really formed the way my family worked for a long time. We avoided anything that increased risk for medical bills.”

Costello said her medical bills accumulated to $20,000 with $4,000 she had to pay out of pocket.

“At the time, I was living paycheck to paycheck and desperately trying to get out of my situation,” Costello said.

Costello is in school full time now and has health insurance. She said she appreciates the school has options but even those are not readily available.

Guarino said the next step for OSPIRG is sharing the report with every lawmaker they can. View the report at <https://bit.ly/3C3UfaO>

Gladys Gonzales, left, CHN's Service Excellence Superstar of the Month, is congratulated by CEO Ginny Williams.

Gonzales garners Service Excellence Superstar of the Month Award

Curry Health Network is pleased to announce that Gladys Gonzales, a patient access specialist with the organization since April 2019, was selected by a committee of her peers as the July 2021 Service Excellence Superstar of the Month.

Gladys was nominated by co-worker Melissa Jones for what CEO Ginny Williams summarized as a “shining, positive, and infectious attitude.”

Gonzales was helping train new-to-her-position Jones who expressed appreciation of her integrity, compassion, accountability, stewardship, teamwork and excellence. She likely perfected those attributes during her years of banking experience at Chetco Federal Credit Union and Rogue Credit Union prior to joining the Curry Health Network team.

“Gladys is awesome! She is always smiling and always there to help. She never makes it seem as though you’re bothering her (even though I bother her a lot). Gladys helps patients with anything even if it is not within her scope; she goes out of her way to make sure they are taken care of,” Jones said. “Gladys is always on top of it and never makes me feel bad about my mistakes.”

Williams agreed with Jones’ assertion that Gladys is a rock star.

“Her positive attitude is infectious and makes everyone want to be around her,” Williams added.

It is first time Oregon's unemployment rate dropped below 5% since March 2020, when the rate was 3.6%. Oregon's unemployment rate was below 5% in only two other periods since 1976 when comparable records began. During 14 consecutive months in the mid-1990s when the rate dropped to as low as 4.5%; and during the 51 consecutive months during 2016 through March 2020 when the rate

The U.S. unemployment rate dropped to 5.2% in August from 5.4% in July.

In Oregon, nonfarm payroll employment grew by 7,900 in August, following monthly gains averaging 10,300 in the prior seven months. Gains in August were largest in government (+3,500 jobs); wholesale trade (+1,400); leisure and hospitality

(+1,200); and professional and business services (+1,000). Only one major industry cut jobs: retail trade (-1,900 jobs).

Since the low point of April 2020, at the economic depths of the COVID-induced recession, Oregon has recovered 204,700 jobs, or 72% of the jobs lost during the recession.

Leisure and hospitality added 1,200 jobs in August, following a gain of 6,100, as revised, in July. Despite these gains, it still accounts for the bulk of Oregon's jobs not recovered since early 2020, with 44,300 jobs left to recover to reach the prior peak month of February 2020. The industry has regained 60% of jobs lost early in the pandemic.

Employment in health care and social assistance has been relatively flat all year. This major industry recovered substantial jobs in mid- through late-2020, but is still down 10,400 jobs, or 4%, since its pre-recession peak of February 2020. Over the past year, nursing and residential care facilities has been especially weak, having lost 1,300 jobs since August 2020. Meanwhile, two component industries have expanded in the past 12 months: ambulatory health care services (+3,100 jobs) and social assistance (+1,100 jobs).

Playing Russian roulette with COVID-19

By DR. CHARLES HURBIS
For the Pilot

Regardless of your profession, carpenter, plumber, nurse, lawyer, etc., You have at your disposal a unique toolbox which allows you to apply your skills to solve specific problems. Over time, everyone’s toolbox becomes more complex and therefore useful through technical advancements. Additionally, one’s ability to use their tools improves with experience.

Take the roofer; How much more efficient have they become since the invention of the nail gun? Yet the nail gun without a pneumatic source is pretty useless. The same philosophy can be applied to car safety. Back in the 60s, a lap belt was all the protection we had. Over time, we developed the shoulder harness, side impact protection, extensive crumple zones and airbags front and side. They’ve also added electronic enhancements for improved braking, car stability and now sensors for crash-avoidance. With all of these advancements, crashes are still not totally avoidable, yet they are far less likely and MUCH more survivable.

A patient goes in to see his/her doctor with the hope that their problem can be solved. The doctor approaches the issue calling on their own personal experience. They then apply the tools available to them to formulate a solution. The country’s foremost expert on diabetes may still be able to help you control your blood sugars, but can do much more with access to insulin. This is exactly where we are in this pandemic. We have a tremendous toolbox developed through almost two years of experience with the virus, yet people individually and collectively cannot agree on applying what we have available. Therefore, COVID is not only festering, but thriving and evolving.

Here is how we are mismanaging the pandemic. Imagine a house with an extremely leaky roof and the rainy season is fast approaching. The roofer has the tools and skills he needs to get a new roof on in just enough time to prevent severe damage to the home. He completes half his project, but then is so satisfied with his progress he decides to save on power and tosses the nail gun, leaving him with just a hammer to complete the second half. Well, you know how this ends.

We have the experience and the tools available to curtail the advancement of this pandemic. Yet, it seems the slightest bit of progress allows us to ignore the monsoon approaching, forget what we’re dealing with and turn a blind eye to where we’ve been. There are so many examples. Take Australia, once a shining example of the success of shutdowns, social distancing and masking. They put a kibosh on COVID early in the pandemic. This success though was met with complacency regarding the vaccine, with only 8% of the population bothering to get vaccinated. Then along comes Delta being far more contagious. They are now losing to COVID for the first time, and badly.

In many parts of the U.S., it’s a combination of factors leading to the resurgence: 1) We have many geographic areas where vaccinations hugely lag, being far under the 50% level, and 2) Early on, many areas decided to pull mask mandates and social separation guidelines. Even now, there are governors who still refuse to enforce masking, and some won’t even require masking in schools. This is just sheer lunacy.

Oregon, once a shining example of control, dropped social separation and masking mandates early. Now, we have become a COVID front-runner. It seems every time we make a little progress, we forget we’re still in the middle of a pandemic. Pandemics occur because of very bad pathogens. Funny how quickly they are forgotten.

One of the issues with controlling COVID is that most people have a mild form of this disease. This brings the mindset of, “well, if I get infected, I’ll probably be fine.” This is likely true, but not for the 10% who will suffer the severe repercussions of long COVID and the 2% who will ultimately die. It’s a game of Russian Roulette. In life, no one would voluntarily sit in a circle and play Russian Roulette, yet that’s exactly what they are doing. In this game, the revolver has 50 chambers, only one with a bullet. The odds don’t seem that bad. The problem with this new game is that they are also pointing the pistol at others, including children. Let’s say we allow COVID to continue to evolve badly, and eventually there are now 20 bullets in this revolver (with Ebola it would be 50). Now the healthcare industry has no possible way of caring for those needing assistance. People would be dying in the streets. I think then you’d see a lot of vaccinating and masks being worn then. Why must it reach that point?

Another reason we are losing is we have the wrong focus. Here’s a headline from last week, “Biden’s new vaccine push is a fight for the U.S. economy.” How about, “is a fight to save lives”? Since when has the dollar out-valued human life? Apparently, we’ll do anything we need to save the economy. This misdirected mentality put us right into the cross-hairs of Delta and whatever might be next. Is a dollar really more important than Mom or Aunt Sally? Yet, somehow, they are expendable as long as I can get a good paying job, buy the next iPhone 26 and have dinner at Chuck E. Cheese without masking.

Beware trendy or unproven treatments. Even though many of these may prove to have value, improper use can be life threatening. One example is the ever popular ivermectin. This is a drug used primarily treat parasitic infections in large animals. It has utility in humans in certain situations. But all it takes is one Facebook post touting the wonders of this drug and people are headed to the local Grange, buying products intended for an 800-pound bull and then ending up in the ER with encephalopathic seizures. Once new treatments are approved, go to your doctor for advice and a proper prescription. Don’t self-treat based on social media.

So, what does work? Well, clearly social separation is a no-brainer. If you don’t contact the virus, you can’t get it. What about masking?

One of the arguments often heard is that masks don’t work. I have trouble fathoming this thought. I guess I’ve worn a mask for 36 years as a doctor for nothing. In all fairness, there really haven’t been studies out there showing effectiveness against COVID, until now. A recent study of close to a half million spread across 600 villages in Bangladesh now provides conclusive, real world evidence that mask wearing has a significant impact on curtailing the spread of the COVID virus. Certainly, not all masks are created equally, and all need to be worn properly (the under your nose technique is useless). In reality, N-95’s are the gold standard but most are uncomfortable. Still, close to N-95 levels of protection can be had by doubling more comfortable options. To achieve this, the mask requires a nasal contouring insert mold across your nose and needs to fit snugly around the face. If we’d all been wearing these from the beginning, the pandemic would already be over.

Vaccines are a bit more complex due to the variety available, schedules recommended, everyone’s individual response to immunization and new viral mutations of which Delta is currently the most troublesome. That being said, any vaccination protocol will provide a level of protection making the virus less transmissible and less dangerous, including the Delta variant. Here are a few interesting facts: If unvaccinated you are 5x more likely to get COVID, have a 29x higher chance of severe disease or hospitalization, and finally you will have an 11x greater chance of dying. The simple math here indicates that without a vaccine your chance of dying of COVID is 55x (or 5500%) higher. Re-play that statistic in your head.

Because we’ve let COVID evolve, boosters are already being recommended for everyone at 6-8 months. Now there is a new MU variant, already present in 49 states which is potentially resistant to all vaccines. This variant currently makes up less than 1% of all cases, but then, Delta also started that way. How this one evolves is clearly our choice.

Back to the car safety analogy. There are multiple layers of safety built into modern vehicles. How many would consider ever driving a car without their seatbelt? That would seem to almost everyone foolhardy. How many have been “lucky” simply because anti-lock brakes were developed? Seat-belts decrease the risk of serious injury and death by 50%, the airbag by 32%. Those that go unvaccinated are turning off the airbag, those going maskless are undoing their seatbelt (interestingly though, back when seatbelt laws were first enacted, people were cutting them out of their new cars, so idiocy is nothing new). When you can walk away from so many car accidents are those safeguards really that inconvenient? I wouldn’t think so.

There are tragic stories now cropping up everywhere, where non-COVID illness cannot be treated due to a lack of hospital resources. One man recently died of a treatable cardiac event after being turned down by 43 (yes 43) hospital ERs, traveling 200 miles and traversing three states by ambulance before his ultimate death. I’m afraid we will be reading many more stories similar to this. I’m wondering what may actually be needed here for people to finally start acting responsibly. Unfortunately, I think I know the answer, but I hope I’m wrong.
