It's true! Grocery Outlet moving

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

The rumors swirling around social media and on the streets are now confirmed. Grocery Outlet, currently located in Harbor, will be taking over half of the old Ray's Food Place location at 906 Chetco Avenue in Brookings. "Yes, we are moving," Grocery Outlet co-owner Lori Panter said. "We are projected to open in early 2020." She cautioned that construction delays are not uncommon in our area, but the plan is to open at the new location in January 2020. Grocery Outlet is currently located in a Harbor shopping center located at 16261 Highway 101 South. The Ray's building, which was the location of the original store in that grocery chain, has been vacant since November 2016. More information will follow when the corporate office issues an official press release making the announcement, Panter said.

Paying a lot more at the pump

Staff Report

Drivers along the Oregon and California coasts are finding gasoline prices on the rise. Which is unusual for the fall and winter seasons, when gas prices usually drop a bit from summertime. But according to the Oregon/Idaho American Automobile Association, the West Coast continues to have the highest pump prices in the nation. Gasoline prices in the state of California have leaped in the past few days, reaching an average of $4.05 per gallon - only 7 cents below the highest price paid in five years. That's according to Gas Buddy, which tracks such things. And it's even worse in Crescent City, where prices recently have been ranging from $4.09 to $4.35. That's among the highest prices, on average, in the country. The national average is $2.65 per gallon ... a whopping $1.70 or so difference. Why? For one thing, Californians pay a higher-than-usual sales tax, which recently increased to 47.3 cents per gallon. Lucky for Crescent City residents, they can make the drive to the Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation's Lucky 7 Casino in Smith River, where gasoline ranges from $3.17 to $3.29 per gallon. "It's likely because the (Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation) is not subject to the same federal and state taxes that California residents pay," said AAA spokesman Devin Gladden. "While drivers in other states are getting some relief at the pumps, West Coast drivers are paying more," said Oregon/Idaho AAA public affairs director Marie Dodds. "Disruptions at about five refineries in California are causing pump prices to spike - and it's not clear when operations will return to normal."

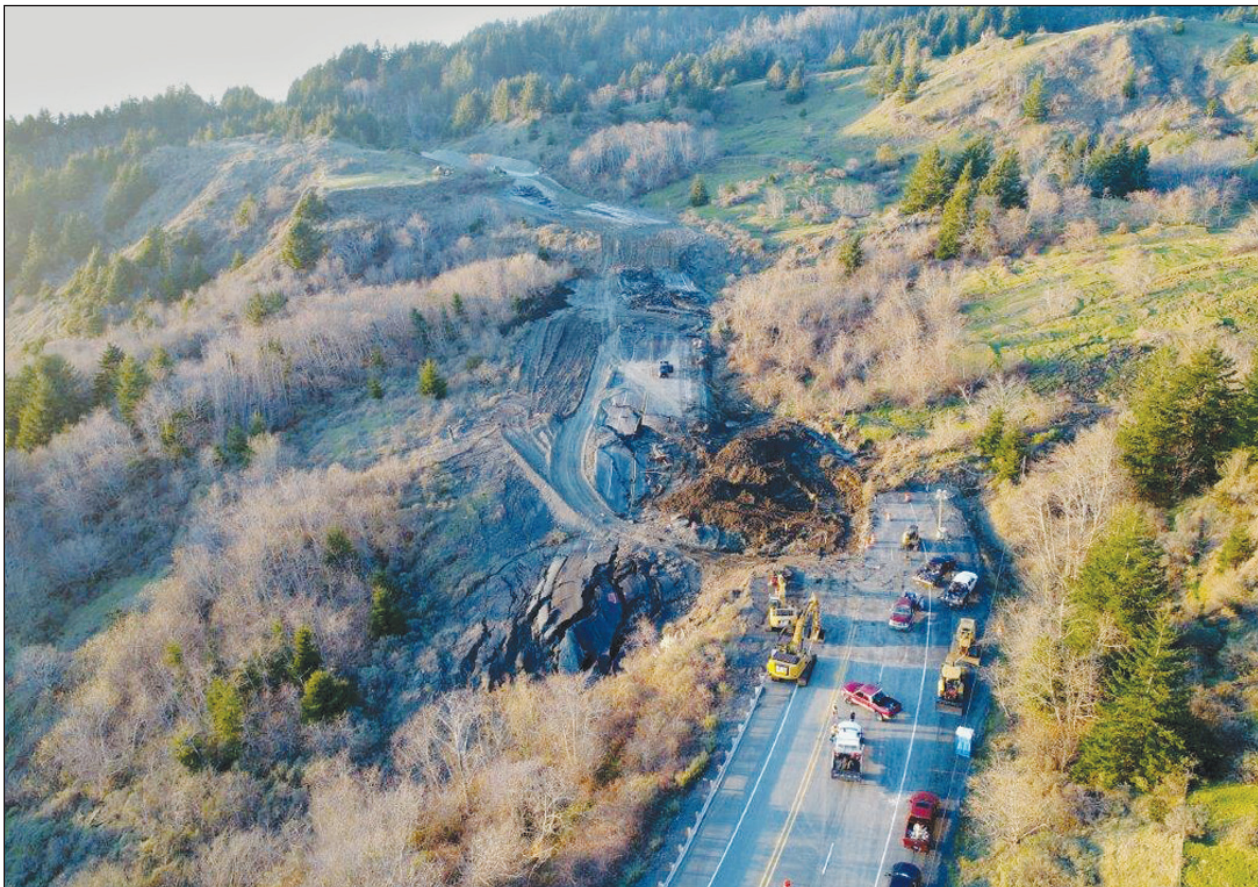

The AAA's latest pump price report finds California the hardest-hit state, with a week-over-week jump of 32 cents, and an average of $4.07 a gallon. This is the first week that California has climbed above the $4-a-gallon mark since July 27, 2014. And Oregon is one of only seven states in the na-

Hooskanaden slide still inching along

Staff Report

The Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) is monitoring new landslide activity along U.S. Highway 101 at Hooskanaden Creek between Brookings and Gold Beach. ODOT public information officer Dan Latham confirmed reports that the Hooskanaden slide has moved about an inch in the last month, although he added that's fairly typical for this and similar coastal areas. "The only thing that's different this year is, we're getting rain a little earlier in the season," said Latham. "We usually don't see this amount of rain or ground movement until later in the fall." He said several locations along the southern Oregon coast typically see ground movement during the fall and winter. "When cracks occur in the road (as a result), we try to patch them as quickly as possible." The Hooskanaden area of U.S. 101 began sliding the week of Feb. 25, closing both lanes of the highway and diverting traffic to Carpenterville Road - the only alternative for motorists. A single lane was built by Tidewater Construction in March and two lanes were opened in May, which sit atop a temporary roadway. ODOT spent about $1 million for the temporary repair, which closely bypasses the original slide area. "It's important to keep in mind that these large slides usually occur every 15 to 20 years," Latham said. "We haven't seen major slides in back-to-back years. That's not to say it can't happen, but it's un-

Latham said ODOT is continuing to monitor the ground movement. "We have staff working on the south coast who drive through this area daily and they're keeping an eye on the movement. We also send our geologists to these areas at least monthly through the fall and winter to measure the movement."

Latham said ODOT hasn't done anything new to stabilize the hillside during the last month, but the agency did drive long steel dowels into the ground over the summer to stabilize the road. In addition, ODOT is planning to install reflective chevron signs by early November to guide motorists in navigating the curve at the south end of the slide area. A plan to restore the highway to three lanes, plus shoulders - as it was before the slide - is under way, but likely won't occur until next year.

Boat, passengers rescued on Rogue

An 18-foot boat carrying a tractor and three passengers was adrift Sept. 29 and out of control on the Rogue River near Agness. The Gold Beach Fire Department responded.

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

A report of a runaway boat, heading into the rapids near Illahe Riffle near Agness at about 11:20 a.m. Sept. 29, brought a call to local emergency responders. The 18-foot yellow boat was reported to have a woman and dog onboard - "out of control, hitting rocks - while drifting down the river." The Curry County Sheriff's Office had no one available for a water rescue, so the Gold Beach Fire Department responded. One of its volunteers, also a member of the Search and Rescue team, launched his boat at Quosatana Campground and the rescuers headed upriver.

It later was learned the boat was carrying a tractor upriver when the boat's motor died and could not be restarted. A passenger jumped overboard with the bow rope, hoping to tow the craft to shore. The rope turned out to be too short. Meantime, a woman and dog aboard the boat drifted downriver for some distance, said Gold Beach Fire Chief Tyson Krieger. She jumped from the boat before it became hung up at "Old Dig-gins," atop Wildcat Rapids, he said. The Gold Beach Fire Department crew reached the loose boat, tied it to shore, retrieved the man, woman and dog, and gave them a ride upriver to their cabin.

GOLD BEACH

There's a definite 'Art Flurry in Curry'

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

Artist Zach Johnsen of Portland began painting an outside wall at Interior Coverups in Gold Beach last week, and now it's a bright, new Oregon Is Magic mural, completed Sept. 29.

The artwork is right on the city's main street at 29325 El-lensburg Ave. (U.S. Highway 101).

Johnsen originally is from New Hampshire, but he's been in Oregon for the past 10 years. "Gold Beach reminds me of my hometown, with all the trucks going by and people honking and cheering me on," he said.

Johnsen recently completed another mural project, in New Hampshire.

The paints used in the mural are high-quality exterior house paints and spray paints.

"This mural project is a collaboration between Oregon Coast Visitors Association, Travel Oregon and Gold Beach Mainstreet, and is part of the overall 'Art Flurry in Curry' project," said Dave Lacey of the Oregon Coast Visitors Association. Lacey is the visitor association's south coast destination coordinator.

three of Gold Beach Main Street's board officers — president Laurie Van Zante, vice president Deb Treinen, and treasurer Cherie McNair — to talk about what they've been doing.

Gold Beach Main Street evolved from the Gold Beach Beautification Committee formed for Make a Difference Day 2015. The Latter-angle of land in Wedderburn to create some elevation. The triangle is at the north end of the Patterson Bridge, over the Rogue River as it heads into Gold Beach.

Freeman Rock donated the river-run rock and the boulders.

McNair: "It's hard to name just one person, because so many people came in."

Treinen: "It was amazing."

Van Zante: "Everyone pitched in."

The group organized as a 501(c) 3 nonprofit in 2016, modeled after the national Main Street, and is part of the Oregon Main Street movement.

A series of community meetings and surveys determined that the next beautification and improvement project would be a series of benches throughout town, which would invite people to linger and enjoy the community's ambience.

Their first 13 benches came through an urban-renewal grant provided by the City of Gold Beach. The benches have been a major labor of love, involving numerous community volunteers doing everything from removing asphalt, to pouring cement pads on which the benches were placed, to landscaping the sites with trees and shrubs.

"The bench projects are actually mini-parks spread throughout the town," said Van Zante. The sturdy cast-iron benches have a wave pattern theme incorporated into the design.

The group had just finished a conference call with the Oregon Community Foundation about their grant application to put in six more benches. They will find out if they have been given the money sometime in November.

VanZante: "The bench project is sort of a metaphor for community spirit, for momentum, for community buy-in, for hope of restoring our town."

McNair: "I think that was the biggest success, moving the spirit, lifting the spirit of the town up."

Treinan: "Everyone gets energized when they see something new and fabulous come to main street, which creates even more energy."

That energy will be moving forward further now that the first phase of a three-part grant, dubbed "Art Flurry in Curry," has been completed. The mural was funded by the Oregon Coast Visitors Association and Travel Oregon.

The second part of the project will be creating signs and banners for businesses along main street that coordinate with the wave theme of the benches.

The signs will be funded by the Wild Rivers Coast Alliance, the City of Gold Beach and Travel Oregon.

The group envisions signs bearing the coastal themes of windsurfers, kite boarders, surfers, hikers, fishing — all activities that are available in Gold Beach.

The third phase of the project will be a public-art sculptural installation created from sea debris. The plan is to place it at the Visitor Center.

Wild Rivers is paying for the art; the City of Gold Beach will provide land and labor for the installation.

And that's not all the group has been working on. Members applied and received from Oregon Main Street a Main Street Revitalization Grant of $166,695.

That's for fixing two historic buildings with new stucco and roofing. The Ace Hardware building in the heart of the downtown district received a new roof and fascia boards. It had been the first hospital in Gold Beach.

The other grant recipient, at the north end of the town's main thoroughfare, used to be the Sunset (gas) Station and is owned by Sue Golay. The Golay building has been remodeled to provide live/work space, with living quarters added above the shop space below.

Providing flexible housing options, funding business finance options, and fostering a bright and vibrant culture are several of the ways the group hopes to bring new residents and new businesses to town.

"I really think what we do for main street is not just for the tourists, it's also for all of us who live here and our kids, and family and friends. We want to be proud of where we live," said McNair.

Added Van Zante, "We will continue to work on ways to attract new residents and new industry."

Zach Johnsen pauses atop a 10-foot ladder to talk about the mural project in Gold Beach. Photo by Linda Pinkham.

Travel Oregon, in partnership with the Oregon Cultural Trust, is bringing murals to each of Oregon's regions with Forest for the Trees, a nonprofit organization dedicated to creation of contemporary public art and bringing artists together in collaborative settings.

Gold Beach is only the eighth city in Oregon to have one of the whimsical murals that are part of the "Slightly Exaggerated, Oregon Is Magic" marketing campaign through Travel Oregon.

Other murals are located in Yachats, Forest Grove, Roseburg, Ontario, Prineville, Oakridge and The Dalles.

Getting on the Oregon Mural Trail is just one aspect of Gold Beach Main Street's grassroots economic development and revitalization plan. The goal of the mural trail is to encourage visitors to visit the landmarks and businesses that make small towns magical, according to TravelOregon.com.

Day Saints brought about 300 volunteers to help clean and beautify the town.

That effort brought together a hometown commitment to preparing sites for the volunteers' work and to help finish the projects. The tight-knit group remains excited about the impetus for their project, finishing each other's thoughts and sentences as they describe the event ...

Van Zante: "We just all got so ecstatic."

Treinen: "Oh, yeah, we were motivated."

McNair: "How can we could design and plant and use their services to make a difference?"

Treinen: "We only had three to four weeks to come up with a plan, go buy all the plants, get ready for all these 300 people coming."

McNair: "And have all the spots ready for them just to plant."

tion where prices are higher now than a week ago, said Dodds. Nevada's prices are up by 15 cents a gallon, the second-largest jump in the country, and third is Oregon, with an increase of 5 cents per gallon.

Catherine Reheis-Boyd, president of Western States Petroleum, told The Pilot there are a variety of factors influencing movement in the price of gasoline and diesel. "The primary driver is the dynamics of supply and demand of crude oil," she said. "Moreover, unforeseen events — such as storms, outages, etc. — can have significant impacts."

Officials issue trail safety alerts

Jeremy C. Ruark
Pilot Editor

State and local officials are issuing safety alerts about the dangers of venturing off marked trails and waysides along U.S. Highway 101.

Those alerts follow two separate cliff rescues northwest of Brookings in the past two weeks. Both involved hikers who ventured onto steep coastal trails from waysides along the highway. (Read those stories online at currypilot.com.)

Officials said they have seen an increase, over the past few years, of people slipping or falling off the trails.

Oregon State Parks Department spokesman Chris Havel said there two reasons people are getting into trouble as they venture from the highway waysides, into the forest and along the often-steep trails.

“Visits are up and that alone means there will be more incidents,” he said. As the visitor numbers rise, Havel said, people tend to seek new areas. If they’re unfamiliar with a location, they might be less aware of the hazards.

“Some people fall under the spell of all this beauty by photos and videos they see online, and they plunge into an experience without being as careful as they normally would be,” he said. “That’s where accidents can happen.”

Havel said that over the past three years, the parks department has recorded at least nine instances involving people injured off-trail or while climbing cliffs along the coast.

He said the dangers from going off-trail involve stepping on unstable soil that could give way, falling down steep ravines or off of cliff edges, or becoming lost within the wooded area.

“This area is prone to landslides and erosion, which is why it is very important that visitors stay on trails,” he said. “The vast majority of the trail accidents are preventable.”

Curry County Sheriff John Ward said his search and rescue team has responded to as many as a dozen calls for trail or cliff rescues in the past three years. Ward said those calls stem from the increase in nature-seeking enthusiasts.

“People who are traveling through want to go for a quick walk on ocean trails,” said Ward. “(But often, these) people are not prepared for the conditions, trails not being well maintained or with proper signage, and people are taking chances going off-trail to get better looks.”

Havel said the state park’s trails are marked and have directional arrows, and there are several courtesy signs within the Samuel H. Boardman corridor specifically stating, “For your safety and to protect vegetation, stay on designed trails.”

Within the Boardman corridor, the signs are posted at Lone Ranch, Cape Ferrello, House Rock, Whaleshead Viewpoint and Beach, Indian Sands and Arch Rock.

The beach access signs contain a group of universal symbols and messages customized to that specific access point. “They don’t detail every hazard,” Havel said. “They highlight a few of the most-common-encountered ones.”

The Oregon State Parks Department has an active project to update coastal trail signs so they are clearer and more visible, said Havel. The department also is redoing the Samuel H. Boardman brochure to alert hikers about steep terrain, trail closures and sections where hikers will need to walk on the highway.

“When we have guided interpretive hikes, we provide a safety message at the beginning and explain the reasons why we ask our visitors to stay on-trail,” he said.

CLOSED FOR GORSE REMOVAL

The day-use portion of Harris Beach Wayside, northwest of Brookings, is closed during the weekdays through Oct. 11 as crews remove gorse at Harris Butte. Gorse is described as a highly flammable plant that displaces natural habitat, reduces property value and holds little ecological value. ## GUEST OPINION

Special-district libraries benefit our communities

By Julie Retherford

When you, the voters, rallied to create a special taxing district for your library, you permanently set us up to operate independently, free from oversight of other government agencies.

This is a gift the Chetco Community Public Library board and staff are thankful for, and an arrangement which greatly benefits our community.

While most people are very familiar with public libraries, I think we sometimes forget the immense value they bring to their communities. Not only do we espouse and encourage the ideals of equality, free access to ideas, and privacy, we also play a direct role in enriching the lives of our community members.

We are partners in educating our youth, we provide lifelong learning and entertainment for free, we provide a warm (or cool) and comfortable place for people of all backgrounds and ages, we provide community gathering spaces, and more.

Neither should we forget that public libraries are the great equalizers of our society. As colleges raise tuition, as schools have their funding cut, as internet access and technology become more essential to life ... the public library provides. We step in where there are gaps, and we are always toiling in the background to keep our communities strong and vibrant.

Some libraries in Oregon operate under county or city management, and those libraries envy the flexibility that special-district libraries have. Our library's independence as a special district allows us to respond quickly to community needs without having to navigate bureaucracy or seek permission from those who may have different priorities. We don't have to fight for funding for new projects or services, because our community has already decided that libraries are a valuable and worthy investment, and that we work best when we can focus our full energy on the library users in our community.

Creating a countywide library district would most certainly limit that ability. The Chetco district is different from the Gold Beach, Langlois, Agness and Port Orford districts. What is good for Agness or Gold Beach may not be good for Chetco, and vice versa ... and if we were forced to operate under one district, our services would become more homogenized and less specialized.

In fact, your Curry County libraries already choose to work together in the areas that benefit you most. We banded together to create the Curry Library Foundation, which allows us to financially work together for specific projects. Just last month, we purchased access to the Chilton Auto Repair and Mango Languages databases for all library users in Curry County. By combining our purchasing power, we were able to save money that can now be used for other services.

Additionally, since 2017 the Curry County library districts have all been a part of the Coastline Libraries Network. This consortium consists of all libraries in Curry and Coos counties, and allows us to share materials and administrative costs.

Your library is organized, fiscally responsible and always looking for the most effective way to spend your tax dollars.

Let's look at how far your tax dollars go. In 1992, our district population was 12,072, and we received $318,116 in total revenue. With inflation, that equals about $581,000 in today's money.

In 2018, the district population had risen to 14,074, and we received $709,898. That seems like a big increase. But if we break that down to the amount we receive a year per capita, in 1992 it was $48 per person, and in 2018 it was $52 per person.

So, in 27 years our tax income has only increased by the equivalent of $4 per person. With that extra $4, your library has done incredible things. In 1992, Chetco Library patrons had access to 28,000 books. Now, Chetco Library patrons have access to 1.1 million books, DVDs, audiobooks and e-books.

In 1992, we had 4.3 FTE employees. Now we have over 9, and each has a specific role in serving the entire district. We have added computers and free internet, meeting room spaces, online resources, a bookstore and so much more.

Let me be clear: the library is not holding your tax dollars back to create a large reserve. We spend your tax dollars on you.

After the Chetco Library was built, we were able to pay off our 15-year debt in 12 years. So, the board wisely decided to take the money allocated in our budget for debt repayment and set it aside for repairs, expansion and upkeep.

That money went into a fund separate from our general operating expenses, called our Library Improvement Fund. But the amount in that fund is not all tax dollars. Rather, over the years various generous donations and bequeaths have been added to it. This fund has been invested for the 15 years the account has existed, and it has been growing steadily over that time.

Because of the generous donations and our library board's prudent planning and responsible investments, we now have a Library Improvement Fund of $2,047,000 (not $2.7 million as has previously been reported). With this fund, we have the financial means necessary to ensure well-maintained and functional facilities that can adapt to evolving community needs.

Our building is now 26 years old and our community is growing. In the coming years, we have major projects that must be done, such as replacing the carpet and the roof, repairing the parking lot, and maintaining or completely replacing a 26-year-old HVAC system that is limping along.

Additionally, our meeting room and event spaces are not sufficient to meet community demand. Our library's large meeting room has a capacity of 81 people, but we frequently have events that require space for many more. Our small conference room is always booked, so we are frequently unable to grant community requests for meeting room space.

If we had a venue that could hold more people, we would be able to offer more programs and more spaces for our community to use. Subsequently, I am exploring expansion options for the board's consideration.

Simply put, it is unreasonable to conclude that because a special district is financially secure, their savings must mean they don't need the money they receive. A well-funded library and a fiscally responsible board of directors is something this community can be proud of, and something it should fight to keep.

I thank you all for your ongoing enthusiastic support. I know the directors of the other Curry County library districts thank you as well. We are grateful because our voters saw how much libraries contribute to the health and vitality of any community, and they used their votes to ensure that we would always be here.

A thriving library reflects a thriving community, and a struggling library reflects a struggling community. Let's continue to let our libraries thrive.

They're pirates, not county commissioners

Dear Editor:

First, the county commissioners have been looting money from the county's Road Fund for use on non-road purposes, with no plan to ever repay it. Now, they're attempting to raid the other Curry County taxing districts.

Are they commissioners, or pirates?

Have they checked the balance sheets for Brookings, Gold Beach and Port Orford? Perhaps they could hit up Bend or Washington County? I hear they're doing pretty well.

Or are they dying to get their hands on the cemetery districts' funds?

Seriously, it appears that at least Commissioner Paasch and Director Smeltzer, first, don't understand the concept of fiduciary responsibility and how taxing districts work.

And, second, they believe they can better manage other taxing districts than the taxpayers and elected officials of those districts.

The county commissioners' time and efforts would be better spent on directing the plans and policies of the county, rather than trying to manage other independent entities. Stick to your knitting!

A little more info on taxes would help

Dear Editor:

I was impressed with Christopher Paasch's guest column in the Sept. 25 edition of The Pilot. The idea of redistributing special-district funds makes a lot of sense.

Perhaps if people were better informed about the use of their property taxes, they would be willing to vote for some alterations without the need for tax increases. At the least, any future increases would come only after we knew the current taxes were being distributed efficiently.

I would love to see more information made available to the public and something on the ballot in the next election.

First-ever walk in Brookings to combat slavery

Dear Editor:

A21 (Abolish Slavery in the 21st Century) is a non-profit organization fueled by the heartfelt hope that human beings everywhere will be rescued from bondage and completely restored.

If you join us for the A21 Brookings Walk for Freedom on Oct. 19, you are joining us as the new abolitionists for the 21st Century.

Slavery is often talked about in numbers: millions of slaves, a $150-billion industry, only 1% of victims are ever rescued. But although those numbers are daunting, they lose the human element.

The heart of A21 is for the ONE: the one woman, the one man, the one child trapped and exploited, unable to see a different end to their story.

A21 works hard so that survivors can be given freedom, independence and the chance of a better story, and to prevent any more of this kind of evil to continue. It opens restoration centers for victims, establishes hotlines, educates, and works with law enforcement to fight this crime.

And every year, A21 walks to raise funds for these projects.

Soroptimist International members of Gold Beach, Brookings and Crescent City are hosting the first-ever A21 Brookings Walk for Freedom. On Oct. 19 from 10 a.m.-noon, people are coming together to help end human trafficking.

The walks will happen all over the world on the same day. Go to vimeo.com/296683078 to see a one-minute review of 2018's A21 Walk for Freedom. Read more about the redemptive and preventative work of A21 on the website A21.org.

One of our Brookings members, Genevieve Wilson, was a strong advocate of freedom and always wanted the Soroptimist women to raise funds with a walk or a run. This year, we will do so in her honor.

It is free to register, but please do so before the day of the walk. All are encouraged to set a goal to raise at least $100. Please go to A21.org/walk to register. Click JOIN or REGISTER and type in BROOKINGS, OR, then follow the prompts.

We will walk single-file, without talking, and wear black. The shirts are not required, but available for $15 if purchased early in the registration process. Children are welcome and do not have to register if accompanied by an adult. No pets, please.

We will meet at 10 a.m. in the parking lot of the former Ray's Market at 906 Chetco Ave. and walk to the Botanical Gardens and back again.

Questions? Write us at brookingswalkforfreedom@gmail.com.

Wait just a minute on funding for new emergency center

Dear Editor:

A "short-term $1.2-million line of credit," according to a story in The Pilot's Oct. 2 issue, is another creative attempt to open the long-awaited South County Emergency Center, with its reported "projected annual operating cost of $4,929,000."

The sole taxpayers/backers of the Curry Health Network live in the more-sparsely populated areas of the north and central county, and yet are constantly being expected to assume all of the risk associated with the proposed South County Emergency Center.

Brookings-Harbor 97415 will, of course, benefit greatly from this much-needed facility, and yet all of the burden and risks continually fall elsewhere.

South county has historically rejected every proposal that would promote the notion of one strong and unified health network, one that would benefit everyone in this small county, which is their prerogative to do so.

It's should also be the prerogative of the backers, the taxpayers on the hook for this endeavor, to say, "Wait a minute."

Until south county is willing to put some "skin in the game," to assume some of the risks that accompany all the benefits to be gained, we should rethink this proposal.

Fair play and common sense have definitely not been applied here. It's time to step back, rethink the entire process, and handle this funding in a much better way than we've seen so far.

More buy-in on housing declaration

Dear Editor:

At last week's regularly scheduled City Council meeting, Port Orford voted to approve Resolution 2020-05 supporting Curry County's declaration of a countywide housing emergency.

It is expected that the City of Gold Beach will follow suit in support of Curry County's housing emergency declaration.

Vacant port building set for demolition

Staff Report

What has come to be called “the green building,” which has been sitting empty on Port of Brookings Harbor property for years, is set to be demolished.

The 22,000-square-foot, two-story building on 2.5 acres at 16320 Lower Harbor Rd. was constructed in May 2003. “The original plan for the green building was for commercial retail on the bottom floor, and offices and a restaurant on the second floor,” said port manager Gary Dehlinger.

But those commercial ventures never materialized. The building has been sitting idle for several years, now the target of vandals.

Following the demise of the planned commercial development, discussions by the port and others centered on developing an events center at the building. “The event center idea came in after the building sat for a number of years,” Dehlinger said.

“The port had committees put together over the years trying to come up with a plan to finish the building. Nothing ever materialized, for one reason or another.”

The port commissioners recently voted to demolish the structure, although the port is still financing it. Dehlinger said the port had received a Special Public Works Fund grant from the State of Oregon for $672,500 to erect the building. “The port continues to pay this loan,” he said, “approximately $2,000 per month.”

“This loan, and many other loans the port had, were restructured under Business Oregon in 2009 and payments will be ending around 2030-31.”

Commissioners are taking requests for proposals to demolish the green building, which include three options: demolishing and disposing of all of the building material and slab; demolishing the building to the ground so it would be ready to be loaded into Dumpsters; or demolishing and disposing of the 10,613 square feet of concrete slab.

Following the demolition, said Dehlinger, the Port Commission does have plans for the site. “The board’s direction at this point will be (for) secured outdoor storage for boats and trailers.

“Future plans for the site are still to be determined.”

Ruby Roberts said she’s eternally grateful to an anonymous donor who helped pay for lifesaving care needed by her dog, Skeeter.

Roberts was introduced to the dog on Oct. 22, 2015 at the Humane Society in Bookings. “When I met him, I didn’t think it would be a good match,” she said. “I didn’t think I would be comfortable carrying him. He was 8 years old and had no teeth.”

But the Humane Society staff encouraged Roberts to take the small dog into a room and spend a few moments with him. “I still didn’t feel there was a match,” she said, so Roberts left the Humane Society to go shopping. But something drew her back later that day.

Roberts and Skeeter have been together since.

About six months ago, Roberts noticed Skeeter had developed a golf-size growth under his left ear. “He was still happy, frisky, ate well and went to the bathroom well,” she said. Still, Roberts was concerned.

So, she went to an animal clinic in Brookings for medical advice. In early September, she learned Skeeter had a tumor.

Roberts, a retired barber living on a fixed income, said she couldn’t afford the $670 surgery to have the tumor removed. So she decided to seek public help.

Roberts and Skeeter launched their effort on Sept. 23. “I went down to the entrance of Fred Meyer, where I’ve seen homeless people holding signs asking for help,” she said.

Roberts found a spot on the sidewalk and, with water and food for Skeeter, held a handmade sign asking for money to help Skeeter. She said a few people stopped to meet her dog and donated for his surgery. A close friend gave $100.

Than, a stranger ap-

we have had some rain, much of the vegetation is still dry from the summer, and we are still experiencing the “summer” drying north winds.

The Pilot: What should residents and business operators be doing now to best prepare for next summer’s fire season?

Bird: Simple things that everyone can do - like cleaning gutters, sweeping roofs - can make a huge difference for home survival. The presentations will include discussions about developing evacuation routes, and how to start refining wildfire infrastructure, building materials, zoning and building codes. On the large scale, underburning around communities and maintaining fire lines we have already built in the past makes it easier to fend off approaching fire.

The Pilot: What is it that you hope attendees take away from these upcoming community meetings?

Bird: Less fear of fire and more confidence in how to prepare for it. Overall, Rich’s goal is to help communities become less physically threatened by fire.

Expo to help with disaster readiness

Linda Pinkham
Staff Writer

If a disaster happens, are you ready? Perhaps not - if you don't have everything you need to get by on your own for at least two weeks, said Curry County Emergency Operations Director Jeremy Dumire.

"We've experienced every kind of disaster that can happen in Curry County," Dumire said. "Fires, floods, flashfloods, hurricanes, landslides and earth flows, sinkholes, tornadoes, earthquakes, tsunamis, even terrorism have all happened here."

An Emergency Preparedness Expo is scheduled for 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Oct. 12 at the Curry County Fairgrounds, 29392 Ellensburg Ave. in Gold Beach.

Curry County Emergency Management will be handing out empty "go bags" to the first 75 families who enter the event. A variety of vendors and agencies have indicated they'll have preparedness items to add to the bags, such as emergency blankets, basic first-aid kits, pens, whistles and possibly flashlights.

Admission is free.

This year, more than two dozen organizations and vendors will be at the Curry County Fairgrounds to discuss which systems will be in place and when resources will be available should there be a disaster ... and all of the ways people can and should prepare.

"This will be the big, one-stop event of the year," Dumire said. Six speakers are scheduled to discuss disaster preparedness in 30- to 45-minute presentations beginning at 11 a.m. through 3:30 p.m.

Sheree Ward of Curry Community Public Health will talk about "points of distribution (PODS)." PODS are dedicated, preplanned locations where residents could find food and medicine if their area is isolated by a major disaster.

Avery Horton is with Southwest Oregon Preppers and will offer a network for people to learn from one another and how to prepare for survival.

Ruth Dixon will present information about the county's Disaster Animal Response Team (DART). She'll describe the group's animal rescue work during the Chetco Bar Fire, and how pet and livestock owners can prepare for their animals' survival.

Dixon also will have an exhibit at the event for My Youth Preparedness Initiatives (MYPI). Dumire said he's enthusiastic about MYPI, through which young people receive 20 hours of coursework and training covering topics ranging from first aid to preparedness to rescue techniques.

In doing so, said Dumire, younger people become more inclined to join the Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) as adults.

CERT educates volunteers about disaster preparedness and trains them in basic disaster response skills, such as fire safety, light search and rescue, team organization and disaster medical operations, according to the ready.gov website.

When volunteers are trained to handle such tasks, professional responders then can focus on more complex assignments during a disaster. CERT will have an exhibit at the Expo.

"When I started work here two years ago, I asked for people to raise their hands if they were CERT volunteers, and it was just six people," Dumire said. "We have 174 people who are trained now."

The National Weather Service of Medford will be on hand for a presentation regarding this winter's weather. Dumire said he believes this winter may be much like last year, which saw major flooding on the Chetco and Rogue rivers, and Hunter Creek. That, in addition to the slide that took out a section of U.S. Highway 101 between Gold Beach and Brookings.

Frank Burris of the Oregon State University Extension Service will discuss earthquakes and related disasters, from landslides to tsunamis, and their impact on infrastructure.

Josh Stout will introduce Reach Out WorldWide (ROWW), which sends first-responders and other professionals in medical and construction-related fields to assist local experts when natural disasters strike as a way to accelerate relief efforts.

Attendees can learn about using ham radios in a disaster from Port Orford Comms and Pelican Bay Comms. And the Oregon Office of Emergency Management will demonstrate the Real-Time Assessment and Planning Tool (RAPTOR), a web-mapping application that allows users to display data from various resources onto a single map as events are occurring.

Sol Coast Renewables will offer ways to keep the power on when the grid has gone dark. And there will be representatives from United Way, AllCare Health, David B Allen II - State Farm Agent, the Curry County Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue, CERT, American Red Cross, Oregon Office Emergency Management GIS and the City of Gold Beach.

Also, the Curry County Road Department, Coos Curry Electric Cooperative, Cal-Ore Life Flight, Curry County Volunteer Fire Departments, the U.S. Forest Service and Coos Forest Patrol.

The event will have plenty of equipment on hand for kids of all ages to touch and explore. Doggie Style Hotdogs and Nectar of Life will offer food and beverage concessions.

Door prizes and other giveaways, including 50 basic go-bag kits, will round out the event.

For more information, call 541-254-0731.

the money that was being collected."

As she was loading her van to return home, she called the clinic to check on her donation account there. She was told a recent large donation had been made to pay the entire cost of Skeeter's surgery.

"The clinic told me I had a credit to my account for $670," she said. "I was extremely grateful."

Roberts said she believes the donation came from the man she had met outside the store earlier that day.

Roberts give The Pilot the following statement, asking that it be included in the story about Skeeter. In part, her statement reads:

"When I was a lil' girl I would sit on the floor 2-3' from my TV and one of the programs I loved was 'The Lone Ranger.' Always when you thought there's no hope all of a sudden, The Lone Ranger came just in the nick of time... My question is, 'who was that masked man?' He will forever be my Lone Ranger."

Town and County Animal Clinic Dr. Jessie Holley said Skeeter's operation was performed Sept. 30. "The tumor was removed and it was a good outcome, but there is a chance that it could return," Holley said. "In many cases, cancer in dogs is not curable."

"Skeeter is such a good dog. We just want to keep him comfortable and we always hope for the best."

:3 “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ:
:9 “Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself:
:10 “That in the dispensation of the fullness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him:
:11 “In whom also we have obtained an inheritance.” (Ephesians - KJV)

PUBLIC NOTICE OF MITIGATED NEGATIVE DECLARATION

As required by the California Environmental Quality Act, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife's Fisheries Restoration Grant Program providing Public Notice of the completion of a Mitigated Negative Declaration for proposed Fisheries Habitat Restoration Project to enhance the capability of streams to produce anadromous salmonids by maintaining, restoring and improving stream habitat essential to salmonid production.

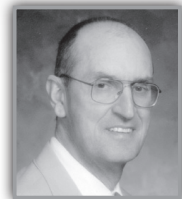

Project Location: Various streams in Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Monterey, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, and Sonoma counties.

Description of Project: This project will use grant funds approved by the California Legislature to initiate activities that are designed to restore salmon and steelhead habitat in coastal streams and watersheds that historically produced large populations of salmon and steelhead. Activities like bank stabilization and road decommissioning will improve spawning success for adult salmon and steelhead as well as increase survival for eggs, embryos, rearing juveniles, and downstream migrants. The replacement of barrier culverts with bridges or natural stream bottom culverts will allow adult and juvenile salmonids access to additional spawning and rearing habitat. The installation of instream structures will recruit and sort spawning gravel for adult salmon and steelhead and create summer rearing pools and over-wintering habitat for juveniles.

The mitigated negative declaration can be accessed online at <https://www.wildlife.ca.gov/Grants/FRGP/MND>. It is also available for review at the Department of Fish and Wildlife, Watershed Restoration Grants Branch, Fisheries Restoration Grant Program: 1700 9th Street, 2nd Floor, Sacramento, CA 95811; the Northern Regional office: 1455 Sandy Prairie Ct, Suite J, Fortuna, CA 95540; the Bay Delta Regional office: 3633 Westwind Blvd., Santa Rosa, CA 95403; the Central Regional office: 20 Lower Ragsdale Dr., Suite 100, Monterey, CA 93940; and the South Coast Regional office: 4556 Lampson Ave., Los Alamitos, CA 90720.

The review period for the mitigated negative declaration starts October 3, 2019 and ends on November 16, 2019. Please mail comments to: Department of Fish and Wildlife, Watershed Restoration Grants Branch, Fisheries Restoration Grant Program, P.O.
