

Prison staff testing shows more virus cases

The Pilot

Results from staff testing conducted last week at Pelican Bay State Prison are beginning to arrive and positive test results have been received, the Del Norte County Public Health officer said Wednesday.

According Dr. Warren Rehwaldt, some of positive results are residents of Curry County and will be recorded in their jurisdiction's data.

Sherrié R. Ward, Public Health Administrator for Curry County Public Health told The Pilot Thursday morning that she planned to send out a press release soon. Specific numbers for prison employees living in Curry County who tested positive were not available at presstime for this edition.

"Staff at PBSP were tested over a three-day period early last week following a directive from the CDCR (California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation)," Rehwaldt said in a press release Wednesday afternoon. "Prison officials are working closely with Del Norte County Public Health to facilitate case investigation and contact tracing."

Individuals who have tested positive and their direct contacts are being advised to quarantine at home. No one has been hospitalized and most individuals are asymptomatic.

"Additional measures are being conducted in order to ensure that all positive cases are identified related to this prison cluster," Rehwaldt added. "While surveillance testing of inmates has been ongoing, mass testing of all inmates is currently underway."

Rehwaldt said testing of all prison staff will be conducted again early next week.

"It is important that Del Norte County citizens continue to be vigilant in doing what they can to prevent the spread of this virus. Proper hand hygiene, masking and social distancing are all important in ensuring that we slow the spread so that our limited local resources are not overwhelmed with the consequences of a large outbreak," he said.

Long lost windsocks restored to parade

The Pilot

It's a well-known story in Brookings.

In 1942, during World War II, a Japanese pilot dropped a bomb in the forest east of Brookings. It was the only bombing of the mainland by a foreign airplane, but fortunately the fire it caused was put out fairly quickly by local men.

Twenty years later, the Brookings-Harbor Jaycees invited the pilot, Nobuo Fujita, to Brookings. He accepted and brought a 400-year-old Samurai sword to the people of Brookings-Harbor as an apology. The sword is on display at the Chetco Community Library.

Unknown to many, was that Fujita also brought some large Japanese windsocks and they were flown during the Azalea Parade for many years. Somewhere along the way, they were lost.

But as Amber Nalls of the City of Brookings was planning for the 81st festival, she learned that the windsocks had been found. They were retrieved and Coos-Curry Electric agreed to fly them high over the streets of Brookings during the parade.

Thus a trimmed-down Azalea Festival was made a brighter event by the revival of an old tradition.

Districts work through rules to prepare for back to school in Curry County

Schools plan to reach out to families

The Pilot

Parents in the Brookings-Harbor school district should expect to get a phone call from their children's schools very soon. Schools want to connect with all parents to find out each family's preference for the coming school year — attending school in person, virtual instruction, or perhaps some combination of the two.

At this time, it isn't known for sure if the state — or local health officials — will allow students to attend in person — but the district wants to determine parental preference as part of its planning.

Final decisions are likely to depend a lot on the prevalence of COVID-19 in the community as the beginning of the school year gets closer.

For Brookings-Harbor schools, the calendar calls for students to return on Monday, Aug. 31, a week before Labor Day. However, Supt. David Marshall has recommended to the Board of Trustees that the district delay the return of students to Tuesday, Sept. 1 (following the holiday).

Teachers return on Aug. 24, and Marshall would like to use the additional time to allow teachers and other staff to be fully prepared to follow the procedures that will be necessary for students to return.

At their July 15 meeting, trustees gave Marshall the green light to proceed with such a plan, but first he must negotiate with the teacher's association — and then return to the board to approve an MOU. He said earlier this week that he hopes that might be accomplished next week so the academic calendar can be firmed up.

Exactly what return to school will be like for Brookings remains to be seen, but talks so far suggest that students will be broken into small groups — called cohorts — and two school sessions will be held each day. The goal, in keeping with advisories from public health officials, is to reduce the size of groups (cohorts) to minimize the impact in case there is an outbreak of the virus.

Schools also learned this week that students — along with everyone else on campus — will be expected to wear masks.

Marshall is new to the district, but said he's encouraged by cooperation at every level.

"There are really good people here," he said. "And we're very much in a problem-solving mode. We want kids back in the classroom." Still, there are plenty of challenges and details to be worked out.

Governor updates mask rules; now required for children 5 and up

The Pilot

Face coverings, or masks, will be required throughout Oregon for all adults and starting Friday, July 24, for all children 5 and up, in all indoor public spaces and outdoors when physical distancing isn't possible.

To help Oregonians understand the requirement, the Oregon Health Authority has created a website resource that aims to be a clearinghouse of the latest information about face coverings and masks, from requirements to FAQs to tips about how to effectively wear them.

According to OHA, emerging evidence shows that wearing a mask help can help protect you and the people you love from spreading and catching COVID-19.

COVID-19 is spread by respiratory droplets when people cough, sneeze, talk, laugh or sing. Face coverings help contain those droplets. The virus can be spread by people who do not have symptoms and likely don't know they are infected.

Properly worn, a face covering should cover a person's nose and mouth and fit snugly against the sides of the face. Many types of face coverings can be used, including handmade cloth face coverings, scarves, bandanas, and more. They should be washed frequently after using.

OHA advises Oregonians to work together to flatten the curve and lower the risk of transmission of the virus by:

- Covering faces when six feet of physical distancing is not possible;
- Avoiding large crowds and limiting social gatherings;
- Washing hands;
- Staying home when sick.

To learn more about face coverings and face masks visit healthoregon.org/masks.

Officials: 'Unclaimed funds' likely scam

The Pilot

Oregon officials are warning consumers against responding to text messages offering access to lost or unclaimed funds held by the state of Oregon.

The Department of State Lands (DSL), which oversees the state's Unclaimed Property Program, has seen a recent increase in reports of text messages urging people to follow links and claim sums of money. Individuals who receive these messages are advised to not click on website links contained in the messages, as they could be scams.

"We've seen messages that direct people to websites that are misleading and may be used to collect individuals' personal or financial information," said Claudia Ciobanu, Trust Property Manager with DSL. "The best way to check for unclaimed property is directly through the Oregon Unclaimed Property website."

"I'd also be wary of any site that asks people to pay to claim funds," Ciobanu added. "It is free to claim your money back from the state, and you can file a claim at any time on our website."

The State of Oregon receives about $70 million every year in unclaimed assets, like forgotten checks, bank accounts, and security deposits from financial institutions and businesses. It currently holds $740 million in unclaimed property for owners or their heirs.

Those interested in checking whether they have unclaimed funds should visit the state's Unclaimed Property website at unclaimed.oregon.gov and search for their name in the registry. The DSL recommends that anyone contacted by an organization offering access to Oregon unclaimed funds call the Unclaimed Property program at (503) 986-5200.

Oregon Health Authority offers online COVID-19 test site locator

Oregon Health Authority offers online COVID-19 test site locator

The Oregon Health Authority has published a COVID-19 test site locator online to help Oregonians across the state find testing sites in their community. The interactive map is available on pages in both English and Spanish and can be toggled into multiple other languages:

healthoregon.org/covid-19testing or healthoregon.org/pruebasdecovid19 (Spanish)

People who experience COVID-19 symptoms, including fever, cough or shortness of breath, should contact a health care provider to discuss whether to be tested. Health care providers determine whether testing is appropriate based on symptoms and test availability in their area.

"Removing barriers to testing is important to help Oregonians stay healthy and to slow the spread of COVID-19," said Dean Sidelinger, MD, state epidemiologist and state health officer. "This new resource can help people find ongoing testing locations in their community, which is especially important for people who don't have a primary care provider." The COVID-19 testing site locator was developed by Castlight, a health navigation platform that connects the information of hundreds of health vendors, benefits resources and plan designs into an online tool. Oregonians can locate nearby testing sites by entering their address or selecting state, county and zip. Oregonians should call the COVID-19 testing site before they go to learn about testing criteria, availability and hours.

Oregon's testing guidance encourages testing for anyone with symptoms in consultation with a health care provider. If testing resources are limited, the following groups should be prioritized:

- Healthcare workers and first responders (EMS, public safety workers)
- Residents, staff, children, and others in non-hospital congregate settings (e.g., residential care facilities, group homes, schools, agricultural workplaces, food processing plants, jails or prisons, shelters)
- Workers who provide direct care or services in multiple group facilities or who provide in-home services (e.g., hospice care workers, physical or occupational therapists, in-home personal care workers)
- Essential front-line service workers who have regular contact with large numbers of people (e.g., those working in grocery, pharmacy, transit, delivery, and other critical infrastructure services)

- People 65 years of age or older

People with underlying medical conditions, including, but not limited to, hypertension, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, lung disease, obesity, and immunocompromising conditions

- People who identify as Black, African American, Latinx, American Indian/Alaska Native, Asian, Asian American or Pacific Islander

- People who identify as having a disability

- People whose first language is not English
- Pregnant women

- People whose condition requires hospitalization

- People who, within 14 days of their symptom onset, had close contact with a confirmed or presumptive COVID-19 case

The data on the testing locator was submitted to Castlight by both the OHA and local public health authorities. OHA cannot guarantee that people will be able to get tested at one of the sites. It is always best to contact a health care provider about getting a COVID-19 test.

engendered by the marvelous possibilities offered by Dr. Google who has brought the world to our fingertips) to what she likes to call "The Age of Meaning."

When I went down to her studio and then spent several days carefully reading her wonderful little book, I felt like it was the most meaningful art exhibit I had encountered in our neck of the woods in a long time, and wanted to share it with all of you. And not all the news is grim. Pretti's "Aging in Place" is a very dear testimony to matrimony, and her "Joy" celebrates her passionate commitment to education, and her delight in having been able to assist the Curry Campus of Southwestern Oregon Community College.

On the page about "Joy" Pretti writes:

"One day, on the way to work, I drove by a family parked at an overlook, just as a child leaped into the air, shouting and pointing. I knew without a doubt that she had seen a whale spouting for the first time. The day before a campus project had had a major setback. It was the split second image of her pure joy, discovery and wonder that inspired me to forge ahead through all the construction issues and the unexpected conflicts and chaos that its transformative change brought after opening. For the next five years I felt a rush of joy every time I rounded the corner into the parking lot and saw the campus ahead. As I prepared for retirement, I wanted a reminder of that improbable journey."

In this difficult and troubled year, here is a show to lift your spirits. It will be there through December. I hope many of you get down to see it!

Schools

From A1

As in Brookings, other school districts in the county are making plans for the coming school year with an equal amount of uncertainty because no one knows how potential outbreaks of the virus might impact planning — and guidance from the state is subject to change.

Central Curry

At Central Curry School District in Gold Beach, Superintendent Tim Wilson said that after a survey of parents, teachers and others in the community — along with much discussion — the board of trustees has made a plan for students in the district to return to school for the 2020-21 academic year.

In notes from the board's July 15 meeting, Superintendent of Schools Tim Wilson said "on-site every day for every student is still the priority goal." However, a hybrid model of attending school on-site for two days and online for two days, is being prepared — as well as a fully online option.

The district task force represented by administration, teachers, parents and community partners meets regularly to work out the fine details, Wilson said. He anticipates that a decision will be announced around Aug. 12.

Port Orford-Langlois

Driftwood elementary in Port Orford and Pacific High School at the north end of Curry County are governed by the Port Orford-Langlois school district.

In a Facebook post, administrators told parents they are working on plans for the coming year.

"Please know that we are working on options for families for returning to school. Our number one goal is to get the students and staff back in school as safe and as much as possible," the message said. "Thank you all for your input in the surveys. We appreciate all your feedback and know that we have read each and every survey."

They said schooling for next year will be more structured than it was in the spring (when campuses were closed because of the virus), whether it be in school, online, or hybrid.

We will be releasing our plan in the next two weeks. Thank you for your patience as we continue to work through the guidance that we have received and the more updated information that we keep receiving from the governor's office."

Athletics

Although the governing body for California's interscholastic athletics this week delayed fall sports such as football until December or later — Oregon schools may have a shorter delay.

The Oregon State Athletic Association said Wednesday that its board remains committed to providing school sports and activities opportunities for students this fall, provided it's safe to do so and within parameters of various rules. The OSAA executive board will meet again the week of Aug. 3 and may update directives to schools at that time.

Luke Martinez, who served the community for about five years as a trustee for Central Curry School District 1, has resigned, leaving a vacancy on the board.

According to Superintendent Tim Wilson, board chair Andy Wright accepted Martinez' resignation during the school board's meeting on July 15.

Wilson said applications are now being accepted by the board for an appointment to fill the position. Applications are available on the district web site at www.ccsd.k12.or.us or by calling 541-247-2003, ext. 224, during business hours.

Applications are to be returned via email to Wilson at twilson@ccsd.k12.or.us or by mail to 29516 Ellensburg Avenue, Gold Beach, OR 97444.

Applications are due on Wednesday, Aug. 20.

This appointed position will be for the time period from the time the position is filled to June 30, 2021. This position will be up for election in May 2021 and run through June 30, 2023.

Marching band: pandemic-style

Social-distancing was an added challenge for members of the Brookings-Harbor High School Band. Despite not being allowed to go to school since mid-March, band members brought cheer to the community.

High-flying flags...

And candy and floats, too!

Among the traditions of the Azalea festival are flags flying proudly, colorful floats, and LOTS of candy for the kiddies – and the young at heart!

WIFE THINKS HUSBAND IS TOO NICE

DEAR ABBY: This may seem strange, but my husband is too nice. His late mother, a domineering woman who always got her way, trained him not to have an opinion. Almost everything he says is crafted to be neutral so that nobody can possibly take issue with him.

If I ask, "What do you want for dinner?" his reply is, "Whatever you want." If I ask, "What make of car should we buy?" his reply is, "What kind would you like?" When I give him several choices, he tries to guess what I would prefer. He is a wonderful, kind, sweet man who will do anything for me.

We both have professional degrees and are in our early 30s. He lived with his parents through college. I have been on my own longer than he. I've told him I'm not like his mother was, and it's safe for him to express his opinions. After two years of marriage, although I continue to solicit his opinion, not much has changed.

Abby, I am tired of being in charge of everything. I'm afraid I'll become like his mother and just do what I want because consulting him is a waste of time, and hearing another "whatever" answer irritates me. I feel like I'm raising a very obedient child. I wanted an equal partner in marriage. How should I handle this?

— WIFE, NOT MOTHER

DEAR WIFE: I am guessing

you have had more than one conversation with your husband about this. There is a saying, "Give me a child 'til the age of 7, and he's mine for life," which references indoctrination. Your late mother-in-law had her son under her roof for about 25 years, so his personality traits are pretty well cemented in. You might have better luck if you start phrasing your questions differently. ("Do you want chicken or fish tonight?" "Do you want to decide or should I punch you in the nose?") But if that doesn't work, you may have to accept the man you married just the way his mother made him.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Maria Luisa Fontenot

CVPB-2020-7027
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Maria Luisa Fontenot

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Hilda Yepes Contreras, in the Superior Court of California, County of Del Norte.

The petition for probate requests that Hilda Yepes Contreras be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
August 7, 2020 Time: 10:00am Dept.: 2
Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
