

Curry reports sixth virus death, moves to high-risk

By ZACK DEMARS

State health officials announced the sixth COVID-19-related death in Curry County this week.

According to the Oregon Health Authority, an 82-year-old man died at Curry General Hospital Feb. 26 after testing positive for the virus

Feb. 23. He had underlying conditions.

What’s more, Curry County will see additional COVID-19 restrictions starting Friday, after the county’s case rate bumped it back into the high-risk category.

The news came from the governor’s office Tuesday, which published new restriction level assignments based on each county’s virus data for the previous two weeks.

Under the high-risk rules, which will last until at least March 26, county businesses and other activities will have to modify some of their operations. The new restrictions mean:

- Indoor dining will be limited to 25% capacity, or 50 people, which ever is smaller. Outdoor dining will be limited to 75 people, and all parties will be limited to six people from two households.

- Funeral homes, mortuaries and cemeteries will be limited to 25% capacity indoors, or 150 total, whichever is smaller, and outdoor capacity will be limited to 200 people maximum. Faith institutions are advised to follow the same requirements.

- Indoor and outdoor shopping centers and malls will be restricted to 50% capacity, with curbside pick-up encouraged.
- Indoor entertainment, recreation and fitness establishments will

Family farm attracts big following

Fresh milk, fruit, eggs offered at Wild Woods Gypsy

By DAVID RUPKALVIS

Tammy Caluya never imagined she would run her own family farm, but it feels like it was meant to be.

“My grandma had a ranch, and she had dairy cows,” Caluya said. “My husband’s family was like that, too. They had a farm back in Oklahoma.”

Eighteen years ago, Caluya and her husband moved to Curry County, finding five acres between Bandon and Port Orford. With the land and time on her hands, Caluya began taking advantage of that space.

“When my daughter went to college, I was here all the time, and I really liked cheese,” she remembered. “We started with goats and went to cows.”

In those early days, Caluya milked the goats by hand and experimented by making different kinds of cheese. She then started planting fruit trees on the property. With fresh fruit coming in, Caluya became kind of an expert in making jams.

Her experience with milk, cheese and jams was soon shared with others as she began selling at farmer’s markets and collected quite a following. In 2019, she had a bigger idea, opening a Wild Woods Gypsy store at her farm.

Located about a mile off Highway 101 at 92584 Silver Butte Road, the small store has become a staple for many in the area.

“Peaches and cherries are the biggest draw,” she said. “It’s building up more and more.”

Caluya has also joined with family members, neighbors and friends to bring in more business. While she sells fresh milk, fruit and jams, her sister bakes and other neighbors and friends offer homemade clothes, lotions, dishes and artwork. The end result is something for everybody.

“Now we’ve got it year round,” she said. “It doesn’t matter if it’s windy or rainy, we’re still busy.”

Caluya is there to greet customers inside the store every Saturday. She places signs on Highway 101 to draw in visitors, which has been very productive. For the rest of the week, she uses an honor’s system, where people can purchase milk, eggs, meat and produce in season and leave the money behind.

“I get people all year round,” she said. “People drive up and down the highway because of the signs. Then the locals come for milk, produce

Wyden pushes proposal to help rural counties

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The Pilot

While the COVID-19 relief bill approved by Congress focuses primarily on health measures, Oregon Sen. Ron Wyden is especially pleased with a different element.

As part of the bill, Wyden was a proposal he worked on that will provide federal funding to counties that have federal land. Wyden said 62 percent of counties in the nation have federal lands that cannot be taxed, but those counties are still required to provide services on the land. In Oregon, where more than half the state is federal land, the problem is even bigger.

With reductions in funding in the Secure Rural Schools Act, which provided funding based on logging on federal lands, and PILT funds, the infusion of cash is much-needed, Wyden said.

He explained with the Secure Rural Schools Act, which he helped push years ago, many Oregon counties received federal cash based on how much logging was occurring. With new environment regulations, logging slowed as did the federal scope, this board still has full control over hiring and firing of different people in the county. I will not support any thought of removing Mr. Rueckert as director of operations.” When he was given a chance to speak, Commissioner John Herzog said his views have not changed since the board first discussed the idea. “As for change, for me it is too early in time to be making any changes in anyone’s job,” Herzog said. “Personally, I think I will benefit from going through a budget process, so I can really get an idea what things are, what’s the cost and what the value is to the county. I said that, it’s in writing and I stick to that.” County Treasurer David Barnes also spoke up, saying, in his opinion, Rueckert is a great employee and “above reproach.” Barnes said if the county is looking to save money, they should consider hiring a part-time county attorney rather than a full-time counsel. Rueckert also spoke out. “You have said in several public meetings I am the highest-paid director of finance the county has ever had,” Rueckert said. “I am not the finance director. I am the director of operations, and my salary is in line with the last director of operations.” Herzog re-emphasized he was not prepared to make changes at this time. “I talked to Brad yesterday and told him I was going to stick to my comments from January,” he said. “I told him, ‘Brad, you’re wearing three hats, can you do it?’ He said yes. “As a commissioner, I want to help him succeed, and he knows that. I’m going to stand with Brad. He’s actually saving us money by doing all three.” Paasch agreed, saying it is time to quit bringing the issue back to the board. “It is not healthy for our director of operations coming in every day wondering if he’s going to have his job,” Paasch said. “Let’s leave him alone and let him do his job. Readdress it in a year or six months. Until that time, leave him alone.” After the discussion, the board agreed to make no changes and to leave the issue alone for at least six months.

Brookings broker named first in state

By ZACK DEMARS
The Pilot

A Brookings real estate broker is celebrating a state-wide win — and already looking ahead to what’s next. In spite of a world turned upside down by the COVID-19 pandemic, RE/MAX Coast & Country’s Jude Hodge was named the number one agent in the state for 2020, surpassing other brokers and Realtors in the state’s larger markets. “I knew that it would be a dream to ever be number one in the state of Oregon,” Hodge said.

According to Bret Curtis, Coast & Country’s owner and principal broker, the recognition means Hodge outperformed more than 800 other RE/MAX agents across the state, even in one of the state’s lowest population counties.

“Jude’s tireless dedication to serving her clients, consumers and community has allowed her to achieve this prestigious and elite recognition,” Curtis said. “Receiving top honors throughout the entire state is a significant accomplishment and we’re extremely proud that Jude continues to raise the bar in real estate.”

But for Hodge, the award is a competition with only one agent in the state: herself. “I’m always going to try to do better,” Hodge said. “I don’t think anybody’s my competition, only me.” When Hodge got into the real estate business seven years ago, a mentor told her she should make it her goal to be the state’s top agent. Living in Brookings, with a lower population and smaller brokerages than many other areas of the state, and new to the industry, Hodge was skeptical. But her mentor’s response? “No excuses.”

Hodge credits her high sales numbers — she sold 158 properties in 2020, or just under $64 million in real estate — with one key thing, alongside the support of her colleagues and family. “I believe its marketing,” Hodge said. Chances are, anyone looking to buy or sell a home in Curry County has seen or heard about Hodge before, with advertisements online, in newspapers and across local media. Hodge said the $25,000 she spends a month in marketing to get her name, professionally posed headshot and contact details in front of potential buyers and sellers is what sets her apart from brokers who don’t spend as much time marketing their services. “It takes money to make money,” Hodge said. But not only is marketing Hodge’s key to moving real estate — it’s also how she got started in the first place. After running a daycare for some time, Hodge started doing online marketing, running social media pages for chambers of commerce before adding real estate firms to her list of clients. She posted their homes listed for sale to social media feeds and Facebook groups. One of those resulted in a call inquiring about one of the advertised condominiums. “And I asked that agent the next day, how much did you earn on that condo sale?” Hodge said.

When the agent told Hodge about a five-figure commission, she got to thinking. “Why am I the face for all these companies’ social media, when I could be the face for myself?” Hodge wondered. “It gave me the idea that I could be unstoppable if I really wanted to.”

So she got into the business she used to advertise for, learning about the industry from YouTube videos, mentors and audiobooks. From there, she didn’t stop: She works at any hour of the day, every day of the week, she says. “You have to work like they’ll all fall out,” Hodge said. “It’s kind of a gamble in many ways, but not if you answer your phone, not if you follow up, not if you sell.”

According to Hodge, her goals haven’t changed during the COVID-19 pandemic, but the industry has. Hodge said the housing market is now tighter than she’s ever seen it before, with sellers waiting to list their homes while they try and find new places to live. “It’s almost like a game of chess right now,” Hodge said. “I’m concerned what’s going to happen if we end up having nothing to sell.”

Houses move fast: A house that might have been sold in three months before the pandemic now sells in a week, Hodge said, and home prices are way up. Still, the self-described “workaholic” has kept working. She meets only by appointment and adheres to social distancing protocols during home showings, but she said she didn’t let the pandemic stop her work.

“COVID doesn’t affect me personally because I decided I wouldn’t let it,” Hodge said. Her goal for the next year? The prestigious RE/MAX Pinnacle award, which recognizes agents who make over $2 million in commissions. That’s going to take a lot more busy days. “I really just love what I do so much I do it all the time,” Hodge said.

Hodge received the RE/MAX Diamond award in 2020, too, which recognizes high-achieving real estate professionals, according to Curtis. The same year, Marie Curtis, Coast & Country’s principal broker and owner was recognized with the company’s Lifetime Achievement Award for her 16 years in the industry.

While Caluya has turned her passion into a business, one product remains her favorite.

“Out of everything, probably the milk,” she said. “I’m a milk fanatic. I could drink a gallon a day.”

Caluya has two milk cows on her ranch, both with babies. They create between four and nine gallons of milk each day, half of which is offered for sale.

A new element this year is Caluya is keeping the calves, with the goal of making them meat cattle. With the meat, fruit, milk and eggs on site, she feels her family can take care of themselves.

Lucky for the rest of us, she also enjoys sharing. In her store, the favorite items are cowboy candy jelly and strawberry vanilla bean jam. But the fresh fruit is likely the biggest draw.

Strawberries and cherries are usually available somewhere around the beginning of June, while peaches begin ripening about the same time.

In addition, Caluya grows different varieties of apples and peaches among her 33 fruit trees.

Caluya said her little farm was recently added to the Wild River Coast Farm Trail, which will likely lead to new customers. But she is ready for the challenge and happy to meet new people.

The farm store is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each Saturday and the self-serve farm is open 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

As of Tuesday’s data from the Oregon Health Authority, Curry County reported 49 cases of the virus between Feb. 21 and March 6, and a test positivity rate of 9.1%, the state’s second highest for the time period.

Both rates put Curry County squarely in the high-risk category.

The change comes in spite of a modification in policy this week by the governor, who announced last week that counties entering the extreme-risk category could be granted a two-week reprieve from the restrictions. Since Curry County wasn’t set to enter the extreme-risk category, the exception didn’t apply this week.

In future weeks, the state will expand those exceptions, which two counties qualified for this week.

“Beginning this week and continuing until further notice, counties that reduced their COVID-19 spread enough to move down in risk level in the previous two-week period, but see their numbers go back up in the next two-week period, will be given a two-week caution period to bring COVID-19 case rates back down again,” the governor’s office announced in a press release Tuesday.

State officials will announce “warning week” data March 16 and a new slate of risk levels on March 23 to take affect the following Friday.

To move out of the high-risk category, Curry County will need to see fewer than 45 cases for the two weeks prior to the announcement, as well as a test positivity rate below 8%.

A case rate over 60 in the same two-week period, or a test positivity rate over 10% will push Curry County into the extreme-risk category, forcing the closure of indoor dining and some other indoor businesses.

According to a press release from Public Health Administrator Sherrié Ward, Curry County reported 29 new cases of the virus between March 2 and 8. That includes 19 from south county residents, eight from central county residents and two from north county residents, according to Ward.

“The majority of these cases are related to previously reported cases, large families, schools and from work places,” Ward wrote.

On the vaccination front, around 3,800 people in the county have received at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccine.

Curry Health Network has begun waitlists for another set of eligibility groups announced earlier this month, including for those with certain health conditions or occupations, eligible March 29 or May 1, and those in the general population, eligible in June and July.

Those timelines are set by the state, but are largely dependent on the number of vaccine doses Curry Health Network receives, meaning individuals in those groups could receive their doses several weeks after they become eligible.

More information about signing up on the CHN waitlist is available online at www.curryhealthnetwork.com/education.

“The rural counties are just devastated, relying on money from the federal government based on logging on federal lands,” Wyden said. “All of a sudden, those counties don’t have the money, and they cut library services and roads. I got in the Senate, and I said, ‘I’m going to do something about that.’”

It took a while, but Wyden worked with senators from both parties to come up with the plan that will soon be law. He said when Joe Biden was elected, he saw an opportunity to help out rural communities, especially those in Oregon.

“Even with the money, rural Oregon has just been clobbered,” Wyden said. “What I said was with Biden coming in, I wanted to do something new. My objective was, I have to get the rural communities off this roller coaster. For the next two years, there will be funds on top of PILT and Secure Rural Schools.”

Last week, Curry County commissioners said they expected to lose $1 million in PILT funds in the upcoming fiscal year.

Wyden said exactly when the money will become available is not yet decided, but he is confident it will help Oregon counties.

“The money is to be targeted at communities in need, so Coos Bay and the South Coast certainly qualify,” he said. “This approach is substantially right and a good approach politically, because rather than be targeted for logging communities, it targets communities in need.”

The proposal has the support of the Oregon Association of Counties as well as the National Association of Counties. Coos County Commissioner Melissa Cribbins, who serves as the president of the Association of Oregon Counties, said the money will be a big benefit.

“We are grateful to Senator

“I do think it was the right thing to do. Rural communities were hurting even before COVID. The fact is COVID hit them even harder.”

Sen. Ron Wyden

Wyden for adding stable and predictable revenue for counties with public lands,” she said. “Rural counties depend on natural resource sectors and recreational economies that benefit both the federal government and our local communities.”

Douglas County Commissioner Tim Freeman, the president of the Association of O&C Counties, agreed.

“The sharp reduction in timber harvests from federal lands has significantly decreased the amount of receipt sharing payments at a time when county services are needed more than ever,” said Freeman. “This two-year package will allow O&C county commissioners to focus on public health, public safety and other vital county services. The Association of O&C Counties thanks Senator Wyden for his work on this funding package.”

While some may question adding the county funding to the COVID relief bill, Wyden said it was the exact right move.

“I do think it was the right thing to do,” he said. “Rural communities were hurting even before COVID. The fact is COVID hit them even harder.”

Wyden said rural communities, especially those in Oregon, deserve the funding because they care for the federal lands.

“Rural communities also help support federal lands,” he said. “That’s the purpose of this legislation. This has the potential to be a very applicable idea for the future. This is a real opportunity to get rural Oregon off the roller coaster.”

Reliance on heavy fines leads to unjust justice system

Over the last few years, there has been a lot of talk about how the U.S. justice system is unfair to poor people, often people of color.

There are many rightfully complaining that those with little money cannot afford decent legal representation, which often leads to them facing stiff sentences for relatively minor crimes.

In Oregon, California, Washington and many other states, voters took some of that away by legalizing marijuana, and in Oregon, decriminalizing almost all drugs.

I have always said there are way too many people serving lengthy prison sentences for drug crimes that hurt no one but themselves.

Over the last few years, much of the conversation has been led by left-leaning experts who argue that too many young men and women are growing up in prison for relatively minor crimes. I have heard a lot of discussion, but not a lot of answers as to how to fix the problem.

Although I consider myself fairly conservative, I have agreed with many of the ideas regarding our justice system. Too many people suffer life-impacting sentences for crimes that, while illegal, hurt no one but themselves. I have long felt government should not be in the businesses of forcing individuals to make wise decisions. While I choose not to drink or do drugs, that is my choice. Penalizing others who live differently is not something I want to do.

I only brought up the political leanings of many involved in the discussion because I now cover two left-leaning states – Oregon and California. And one thing I have noticed over the last few months is how these two states punish law-breakers in a way I’m not used to. They hit the pocketbook and often hit it hard.

Last week, while typing in the criminal convictions report for Crescent City, Calif., I noticed the financial penalties often are greater than anything else. For a DUI, a person often gets a couple days in jail, a year probation and fines close to or more than $2,000. In some cases, they added another traffic penalty with the DUI and pushed the fines over $4,000.

I get it in some ways. States like California and Oregon need those fines to help pay their massive government bills. But in my opinion, fining minor lawbreakers is not the way to do it.

As someone who has paid close attention to the judicial system for years, large fines start a slippery slope that often leads to chaos.

Many of the people facing the huge fines sign plea agreements eagerly because it leads to little or no immediate jail time. But, too often, when big fines are attached, it just delays the inevitable.

In today’s world, when rent and other expenses are sky high, few people have thousands of dollars to pay court fees. So, they agree to payment plans to remain free. That sounds great until your car breaks down and you miss a payment or your child gets sick and you can’t work and you miss another.

You do that, and all of a sudden that probation you agreed to means there’s a warrant out for your arrest. And to stay out of jail, you are likely to agree to an extended probation and a larger fine.

The process repeats over and over and over. And the people who suffer the most – the poor, minorities, people of color. People with money don’t find themselves in this situation. That’s simply a fact.

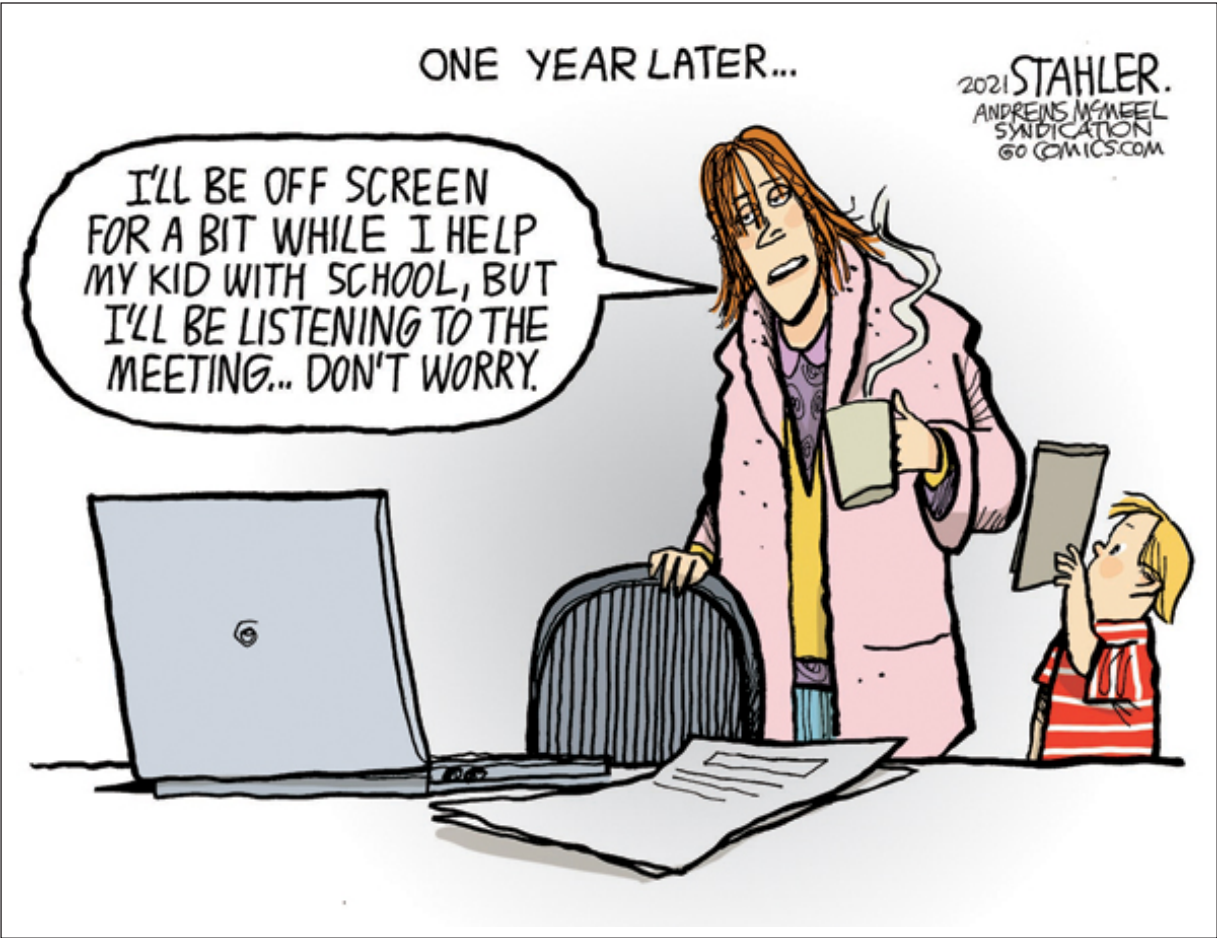

In Texas, known for its conservative leadership, fines are known to be small. I’ve seen people plead out on Class A misdemeanors, just a step below a felony, and get a $60 fine and a year probation. That might not be enough of a deterrent.

But getting slapped with a $4,000 fine with a year to pay it off is more than many can do. Think about it, when you were 22 could you have paid $300-plus a month for court fees? Many can’t, and they get stuck in a cycle of punishment that never seems to end.

This element in the judicial system is one that unfairly targets the poor and minorities. In states that talk constantly about equity and fairness, maybe it’s time to look at the judicial system and these massive fines that lock down people for years.

Court Boice: I will not support further lockdowns in my county

Editor’s Note: Curry County Commission Court Boice sent the following letter to Leah Horner, who works with Gov. Kate Brown’s office.

Dear Ms. Horner;
Wow – it has been a full year since you stepped into action to help deal with the most stressful and intense health matter in Oregon’s history. I hope there is no county commissioner that appreciates your effort, diligence and effectiveness more than me. Thank You.

It is with great resolve that I have to inform you, however, that I will no longer support any further COVID-19 lockdowns, shutdowns or related restrictions on our citizens, many as you know that have tragically slid into obscurity. I do intend to stand shoulder to shoulder with each and every one and support them to the full extent of my abilities. Our truly dedicated people, some would say heroes, have almost without exception done more than everything we’ve asked. Those remaining will unquestionably be the key to our Oregon Pandemic Recovery. All said is not to imply for even one moment that we will sacrifice in the present or future those duties and focus of our vigorous commitment to all of the important “stop the spread” consistent duties.

During this past 12 months, we have witnessed a cure that is exceedingly worse than the disease. The facts, data and empirical science available are indisputable. Study after study has shown there is no benefit to the tough hedges government has placed around our citizens. The latest research completed by Stanford University is clear; lockdowns do not result in the desired objectives. We must demand common sense. We trust our citizens to open our schools including youth athletics.

I ask you to express to Governor Brown to follow the successes of Florida and Ohio, for example, who did not go the route of unilateral and unprecedented restrictive closures. The unintended consequences to the states that did the opposite have proved to be brutally and powerfully damaging. We only have to take a fair observation to our California neighbor. I ask Oregon leaders be courageous.

Please communicate to the Governor, while I of course have had some routine disagreements; during this year, I have fully supported her and staffs through this entire duration. However, please understand the continued lengths I will personally go to defend the livelihoods and quality of life of the people I represent.

All my best and thank you again for all your terrific effort, dedication and always being available for the times I’ve needed for important consultation.

I read this story in our paper on Feb12, 2020.

For those who believe that COVID is a “Hoax” or who believed Trump when he said no one gets this, it’s fake news, you don’t need to wear a mask etc. needs to read this, this is just an excerpt “Ask Doc H: COVID-19 becomes personal,

“My father is dying of COVID. He is one of the fortunate ones if you can call it that. He had a mild form of the disease. Still he, for two months now, has suffered the long-term effect of this virus which has sapped him of any energy or a desire to eat or drink. To recover from COVID and its devastating effects on the human body, one must be able to eat and drink at levels far above what is normally needed. ~ The results are devastating. The person you once knew becomes a mere shadow of themselves. It’s tragic to witness.”

Once again this county is back to the high restrictions starting next week.

This is because there are still some ignorant, selfish people who think it’s their right to spread COVID by refusing to wear a mask that covers their mouth and their nose who are spreading that disease to the rest of us.

These selfish people are causing more shops to close, more of our neighbors to lose their jobs and for our businesses to close forever.

Enjoy your “freedom” while the rest of us live in fear of you.

Does 2+2=4

Maybe 2+2 does not equal 4, according to the Oregon Department of Education. What? There are some foolish and ignorant people out there who tell you that mathematics is a racist concept.

Who would have ever guessed that the KKK and the new-Nazis are better at math than everyone else? These guys have always been white inferiorists in my opinion. The last time I looked, it was the Asians who are way ahead in the field of math.

Is it time for everyone to pull their kids out of the public schools and put them in private schools? Apparently, the head of the teachers union in Berkeley, California feels that way.

Teacher unions are a complete waste of time. Get rid of them. Teacher unions are about as useful as Andrew Cuomo and the Oregon Department of Education.

Case Number:
CVPB-2021-7004

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Mansel Basil Johnson

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: Michael Lawrence Johnson aka Larry Johnson, in the Superior Court of California, County of: Del Norte. The petition for probate requests that: Michael Lawrence Johnson aka Larry Johnson be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: March 19, 2021 Time: 10:00am Dept.: 2
Address of the Court: 450 H Street Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Pumping iron became my armor

By CRISTA WORTHY

When I was young, I was so pretty. Leggy, with long blonde hair. I hated guys whistling at me. There must have been something about that 115-pound girl that looked like an easy mark, so passive.

The summer I turned 20, I witnessed at a small, family-owned pizza place by the beach in San Diego, near my university. One morning at work the owner's son, a big strong guy, was the only other person there. He grabbed me, and threw me up on the stainless-steel counter where they assembled the pizzas.

I didn't scream, or hit him. I yelled "No!" and tried pushing him away, but it didn't do any good. Afterwards, I slid off the table, went in the bathroom, proceeded with work, and avoided him the rest of the day. I quit a couple of days later and never told anyone why. I felt embarrassed. I moved on.

The following summer, I turned 21 and took a cocktail waitress job at an upscale restaurant near the university, working 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. I made $100–$120 a night in tips — good money for 1980. One evening my boss asked me to help him carry wine glasses out of the storeroom.

Up in that little dark room, he suddenly turned and exposed himself. I backed away and he offered me cocaine, as if that would change my mind. I kept backing up, right out of the room. I was sure he would fire me, but he didn't. I never said anything about it.

The San Diego Chargers' training camp was just up the street and the players came in every afternoon. They were kind, fun and always respectful.

But at night, some other customers were not. As I took their order, some men tried to put their hands up my skirt. I'd immediately step back, but sometimes when I turned around to get their drinks, they'd slap me on the butt.

When I returned with their orders, I'd stand across the table so they couldn't reach me. Sometimes they'd "accidentally" drop my tip on the floor, so I'd have to bend over and pick it up, and they'd laugh. Who was I supposed to tell — my boss? This is how things were four decades ago.

Crista Worthy

A creepy older guy always hung around my station, where I picked up the drinks. He was relentless. One night he must have slipped something in my drink because I remember waking up at his place as he stood over me and said, "You weren't that good anyway." I was so embarrassed. I don't remember how I got home. I left the job.

I took a job at another restaurant and soon another man was hanging around me every night. One night at 2 a.m., I caught him following me home.

At age 25 I was teaching aerobics at night and noticed that one girl looked better than everyone else.

She told me she lifted weights and I asked her to show me. From day one, I was strong — 25-pound dumbbell presses! I was hooked. I read up on it and started lifting two hours a day.

Within two months, I was getting muscles. I have never been harassed since. A year later I weighed 140 (still do) and used 60-pound dumbbells (still do). Women in the gym wanted to know how they could do it, too, and I helped them. I won a world championship. Athletes respected me. I married one of them.

I finally told a friend what happened to me when I was in my early 20s. I finally acknowledged what had happened after she said: "You were raped."

Of course, it explains why I grew muscles like armor, and why I loved having control and a strong body. Even today at 61, if I want to, I know I can back a man off just by body language.

I don't feel vulnerable anymore. I'm just glad that nowadays, it's getting easier for women to speak up about harassment and rape, particularly when it involves powerful men.

Women have learned so much since I was young, and many are tough and brave in ways I wish I'd been. And some men, certainly not all, are being held accountable. At last.

Governor orders schools to bring students back

ZACK DEMARS
The Pilot

Almost a year after schools sent students home for the COVID-19 pandemic, Oregon Governor Kate Brown issued an executive order March 5 aimed at bringing them back.

Brown’s order directs the Oregon Department of Education and Oregon Health Authority to establish guidance and regulations which bring kindergarten through fifth graders back to campuses across the state by March 29, and sixth through 12th graders back by April 19.

“The science is very, very clear: with proper safety measures in place, there is a low risk of COVID-19 transmission in school,” Brown wrote in a press release announcing the move. “Oregon parents can be confident about sending their children back to a classroom learning environment.”

School reopenings will still be guided by a slew of state requirements around health and safety measures, as well as the advisory metrics tied to the level of virus spread in each community.

Comprehensive distance learning will only be an option for school districts when individual students require the accommodation, or when “community transmission rates warrant transition to CDL,” according to the governor’s office.

The move is the most recent in a string of changes in how the state reopens its schools to in-person learning. Since Brown directed state agencies in December to prioritize school reopenings, and granted school districts more control over the process, around 55,000 have returned to classrooms, according to the governor.

ODE reports that just under 700 schools across the state are operating in on-site

Kate Brown

or hybrid learning models. All but six counties (including Curry, Coos, Douglas, Klamath and Jefferson) already meet those OHA advisory metrics for returning to in-person, hybrid instruction for all grade levels, and all but Curry County meet the advisory metrics for returning to in-person, hybrid instruction of elementary grade levels, according to ODE.

Brown said the two-part timeline will give districts time to prepare for more students on campus.

“I am using this phased approach because, as we have seen from school districts that have returned to in-person instruction successfully, schools will return our youngest learners to school first, and apply the lessons learned from that implementation process to reopening middle and high school buildings,” Brown said.

Friday’s announcement provides more certainty about classroom returns for students who’ve been struggling to learn online for nearly a year.

“Whether or not public schools should return kids to the classroom this spring is no longer up for discussion: the science and data is clear, schools can return to in-person instruction with a very low risk of COVID-19 transmission, particularly with a vaccinated workforce,”

Brown said.

The news came as Brown has been facing criticism for not requiring schools to return to in-person instruction. The night before her announcement, Republicans in the state legislature sent Brown a letter asking she take “decisive action and reopen Oregon schools for full in-person instruction immediately.”

“We have a collective responsibility to ensure vulnerable children receive high-quality instruction and a well-rounded educational experience,” the legislators wrote in their letter to the governor. “However, many students have not stepped into a classroom for nearly a year and they are feeling the academic, social, and emotional consequences.”

Brown’s executive order directs ODE and OHA to issue updated guidance for reopening by March 19.

MOM LONGS TO REUNITE FAMILY DESPITE ADVICE FROM FRIENDS

DEAR ABBY: I recently got into a huge fight with my boyfriend, which caused us to break up and me to move two hours away to stay with my mom. We have a beautiful 6-month-old daughter, and I still love him very much. He has begged me to move back and has shown me he still has feelings for me.

Because of past abuse from family and previous partners, I find it very hard to trust. I would love to go back, but I keep being told that it would be a mistake. I want to be a family again, but I don't want the people who tell me it's a mistake to be mad at me. Must I give in and stay away or follow my heart and go back? — MIXED UP IN MISSOURI

DEAR MIXED UP: I wish you had disclosed more about the fight that caused you to move away and take the baby. It must have been a doozy. Was he cheating? Physically or emotionally abusive? If it was any of those, I don't think it is advisable to reconcile.

Why are "people" advising you not to go back with him? Are their reasons valid? If they aren't, perhaps you should worry less about pleasing them and more about accepting responsibility for your own choices.

Should you follow your heart? Yes, if it leads you and this man to a licensed couples counselor for help in resolving your problems before they get out of hand again, and deciding what would be in the best interest of your child.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just got married. We have only one problem: his ex-girlfriend. She used to be my best friend, but we fell out years ago.

She hadn't contacted him in a long time, but since she found out we got married, she has been texting him begging to meet up. She messaged me once asking for all of us to get together, but she messages him to meet her alone and "talk." He ignores her and shows me the messages.

Should I step in and tell her to back off or ignore her as he is doing? I trust and love my husband, but she's becoming a pest and starting to annoy me and him. — TROUBLED IN TENNESSEE

DEAR TROUBLED: Because silence hasn't successfully conveyed the message that you and your husband aren't interested in renewing the relationship, HE should be the one to tell her — in plain English. If he doesn't do that, then you should.

DEAR ABBY: Last year was a tough one for me and my family. In addition to the COVID mess, I lost my best friend of 30 years, and one of my sisters-in-law lost her best friend of 50 years.

We were talking about each of our losses recently, and she mentioned that she has no pictures of her and her friend together. I said the same about my friend. Right then I decided that no matter how bad my hair, makeup, etc. looked, I wouldn't shy away from having my photo taken. Sometimes we don't realize how much a candid snapshot can mean until it is too late. Do you agree? — MOMENT IN TIME IN TEXAS

DEAR MOMENT: Yes, as a matter of fact, I do. I have been guilty of photo-dodging, and I am sure many others have been, too. After reading your letter, I am resolving to do better in the future. Thank you!

Pelican Bay Athletic Organization donates to St. Jude Children's Hospital

Earlier this week, PBAO revealed a new motto for their fundraising nonprofit organization: Local Strong.

Today, PBAO announces the latest Pelican Bay Food Sales fund raiser resulted in a record $27,000.

The board selected two different nonprofits to receive funds: $15,000 in high school scholarships, split between Brookings Harbor High School and Del Norte High School, and $12,000 to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital through the Bicoastal Media RadioThon.

According to Vice President Mitch Jones, the board selected St. Jude because it is the 'Hospital without Walls,' which benefits our local youth. Many local cancer patients have been treated by protocol provided (for free) by St. Jude. Also, because of Covid-19, the annual Country Against Cancer event for St. Jude was cancelled, which has been the biggest local fundraiser for St Jude Kids. Add to that, all major country concerts were cancelled last year - so, there were no celebrity autographed guitars to auction off.

From Jones, "It's our great pleasure to support St Jude Children's Research Hospital. The $12,000 will play a small but important role in St Jude's mission. Finding Cures. Saving Children."

PBAO is interested in adding new members. Pelican Bay staff and community members not associated with the prison are welcome. Reach out via the PBAO Facebook Page or contact President Jim Holt.

Hazardous waste disposal event set

Coos and Curry county residents can dispose of various household chemicals at a free "Household Hazardous Waste Collection Event" scheduled for March 27 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Beaver Hill Transfer Site (1/4 mile south of Milepost 253) on Highway 101 between Coos Bay and Bandon.

The collection event allows Coos and Curry county residents to safely dispose of a wide range of materials such as poisons, pesticides, solvents, fluorescent lights, pool chemicals, aerosol cans, caustic cleaners, mercury thermometers and flammable liquids. This event is for household hazardous waste only.

No industrial or commercial wastes will be accepted. If you are a business, a phone number and contact name can be provided to make an appointment for collection of these wastes.

Not accepted at this event: Ammunition, asbestos, explosives, fireworks, radioactive materials, medical wastes and sharps. No large Please bring your household hazardous materials in the original containers with labels intact – do not mix products. Label materials not in their original containers. If unaware of specific product name, provide product category, such as pesticide or cleaning product, if possible. No containers larger than five gallons.

Leaking containers should be placed inside a larger, plastic container with a tight-fitting lid. A non-flammable absorbent, such as kitty litter, should be placed around the bottom of the product to absorb any leaks. Label the container with the contents and date. All materials should be packed in a plastic-lined, sturdy cardboard box, secured to prevent spills and breakage. As an additional safety precaution, the materials should be placed in car trunks or in the back of trucks en route to the event.

Please call 541-396-7624 to make an appointment to drop off your household hazardous waste at this event, as soon as possible.

Appointments should be made prior to the day of the event. Best time to call is Tuesday – Friday from 9 a.m. – 1 p.m.

Materials collected at this event will be sorted for reuse or recycling (for example, reusable products may be donated to community organizations), or shipped to a regulated hazardous waste treatment, storage or proper disposal facility.

Program products accepted by PaintCare of Oregon will also be accepted at this event; however these products can be recycled any time through the Oregon PaintCare program at Beaver Hill or other drop off locations. Chetco Library to get interior facelift this summer

This summer, the Chetco Community Public Library will go through a major interior renovation to better serve the needs of the community. After nearly 30 years of operation, the beautiful building deserves new carpet, fresh paint and a layout that better meets the needs of patrons today.

During the strategic planning process in 2019, the library connected with community members and multiple stakeholders to gather ideas and input. They also conducted a space audit to learn how to best use spaces, and a facilities study to help with long range facilities planning. The efforts led to this renovation.

Vibrant new spaces will engage adults and children alike. The new design will have several key elements including a new meeting room, a new quiet reading room, dedicated private work spaces, a makerspace and craft area, a new teen space and an enclosed children's library with a museum-quality interactive installation. Lighting is being upgraded to increase efficiency and decrease electric costs, and lots of new comfortable work and study spaces will be added, all with easy access to power.

"Input during the strategic planning process showed us that we needed to update our spaces in several ways in order to meet users' needs," said Julie Retherford, the library's director. "This renovation will cater to the whole community. We heard that we needed more meeting spaces and flexible furniture to allow the library to be used in a variety of ways, so we listened. We are excited about the changes, and we think the community is going to love them, too."

Approved by the library's board of directors, the project will be funded with no new taxes or debt.

The full cost of the renovation, approximately $1 million, will come from the Library Improvement Fund, which was established many years ago to repair, maintain and expand the library as needs arose.

The library expects work to begin in May and continue into early fall. During that time, the Main Library will be closed and the library will operate out of the Library Annex across the street at 402 Alder Street.

The bidding process for the renovation project is underway and is being advertised in the Curry Pilot and other Oregon newspapers. The library will unseal and read bids on April 6 at 2:15pm in an online Zoom meeting.

For information about the Library's renovation plans, visit www.chetcolibrary.org.

Brookings-Harbor, Gold Beach fall short in openers

By JOHN GUNTHER
The Pilot

Brookings-Harbor and Gold Beach opened the long-awaited football season with losses last week.

The Bruins fell to Cascade Christian 40-8 in Medford.

The Panthers, playing their initial game in the eight-man format, fell to Myrtle Point 32-16.

In Medford, Cascade Christian quarterback Sam Martin had five touchdown passes, including two to Kristian Fralich.

The Bruins fell behind 34-0 before they got their lone score, on a 34-yard pass from Logan Holler to Jo'moria Beasley.

The Bruins are on the road again Friday night with a game at Sutherlin before hosting St. Mary's next Friday in their home opener.

Gold Beach battled the Bobcats for most of the game, coming up with numerous stops on defense but not getting enough offense to come out with the victory.

The Panthers did get a couple of big offensive plays, including one dynamic run early in the second quarter by Josh Rodriguez.

After Gold Beach stopped a Myrtle Point drive deep in their own territory, Rodriguez rambled nearly 90 yards to set up his own short touchdown run a play later.

Landyn Miller added the conversion run to tie the score at eight.

The momentum was short-lived, though, as Myrtle Point's Troy Warner returned the following kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown.

Gold Beach's other touchdown came in dramatic fashion.

Quarterback Trenton Storns heaved a ball to Miller, who pulled in a ball between two defenders and then scurried to the end zone for a 30-yard score.

Storns converted the extra point.

In addition to being the first game as an eight-man team, it was the first game under new coach Chris Higgins.

The Panthers get another shot at a victory Friday when they visit Yoncalla. Next Friday, the Panthers play their home opener against Glen-dale.

Volunteers sought for community mural

A Curry County community group that is seeking volunteers of all talents, skill sets and artistic abilities. The group is planning and painting a mural approximately 50 feet by 12 feet, and it will be on an inside wall in the Live-stock Pavilion at the Curry County Fairgrounds/Event Center on the beach.

They are seeking input and help from anyone in the county that has a vision or desire to help out on the painting.

It will be a COVID appropriate project and everyone will be following all COVID guidelines. PPE will be available if needed.

For information, visit the Circle of Gold facebook page or contact co-organizers Becky Schafer at 541-698-7374 or Janee Lansing at 541-373-9017 or email becky_schfr@yahoo.com

The Circle of Gold will host its next meeting at 4:30 p.m., Wednesday March 17 in the south end of the Live-stock Pavilion at the Curry County fairgrounds in Gold Beach.

Langlois Water District has three spots up for election this year

The Langlois Water District will have three positions up for re-election this year. Position number 3 - Janet Hubel, 4 - Warren Fitzgerald and 5 - Judy Fitzgerald. The Langlois Water District desperately needs community support and volunteers to work in these elected positions while serving your community. Thank you to those who have stepped up already and have served their community.

Positions may require little more than monthly

Bruins top Douglas in five sets

Brookings-Harbor's volleyball team outlasted Douglas in five sets Tuesday for its first win of the Far West League season.

The Bruins edged the Trojans 25-12, 25-16, 21-25, 20-25, 15-11.

Sierra Fitzhugh had 14 kills and Shelby Jirsa had eight kills, six aces, 16 digs and 20 assists.

A day earlier, the Bruins beat Gold Beach for their first win of the season, 25-10, 25-12, 25-9.

Tuesday's match was the third in four days to start the season for the Bruins.

On Saturday, they lost to South Umpqua in another hard-fought five-set match, 25-16, 10-25, 20-25, 25-20, 15-12.

A veteran Cascade Christian team swept the Bruins in the season opener, 25-14, 25-23, 25-14.

Brookings-Harbor soccer teams off to unbeaten starts

JOHN GUNTHER
The Pilot

Both Brookings-Harbor soccer teams are off to unbeaten starts to the new season.

The boys followed their opening 8-0 win over the Coquille-Myrtle Point squad with a 6-1 win at North Bend on Saturday.

In that match, the Bruins got a goal and three assists by Fabian Villa.

Uriel Cortes had the first two goals, one on an assist by Villa and the other on an assist by Dylan Hodge.

Villa assisted the third and fourth goals as well, scored by Josh Serna and Jake Beaman.

Villa's goal came on a set piece. The Bruins' other goal was an own goal when North Bend deflected a corner kick by Villa into the net.

The Bruins played Sutherlin on Thursday (results weren't available by press time) and next week are at South Umpqua on Tuesday and home for Umpqua Valley Christian on Thursday and North Bend on Saturday.

Brookings-Harbor's girls have beaten South Umpqua 7-0, edged Sutherlin 4-3 and topped the combined Coquille-Myrtle Point squad 8-0, the latter on Wednesday.

Battling rainy conditions Tuesday, the Bruins built a 4-1 lead on the visiting Bulldogs and held on over the final 10 minutes.

Zoe Carlson and Hannah James each scored two goals for the Bruins.
