‘Great loss of human lives, structures expected’

JEREMY C. RUARK

jruark@countrymedia.net

Wildfires burning across Oregon are expected to leave a significant trail of lost lives and lost property.

“We expect to see a great deal of loss both in structures and in human lives. This could be the greatest loss of human lives and property due to wildfires in our state’s history,” Oregon Gov. Kate Brown said in her opening remarks during a media briefing Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 9. “My heart goes out to the families affected.”

Brown said Oregon is facing a statewide fire emergency.

Evacuations are occurring across the state and numerous

“Our number one priority right now is saving lives. Our statewide strategy is focused on live safety, evacuation and protecting structures.”

Kate Brown. Oregon Governor

Oregonians have been rescued from harm’s way, Brown said, but many more Oregonians will need to evacuate in the coming hours to ensure their safety.

Brown said there are currently five incident management teams fighting 35 wildfires with multiple smaller fires continuing to erupt across the state. The latest fires are in the Santiam Pass area of Marion County, the Lionshead fire near Warm Springs in Central Oregon, the Holiday Farm Fire in rural Lane County and two wildfires in Jackson County.

“Right now, more than 300,000 acres are burning across the state,” Brown said. “This is the equivalent of over 500 square miles.”

Brown said parts of Oregon where fires are not burning face the worst fire conditions in three decades.

“This means everyone must be on high alert,” Brown said.

State and local officials encourage you to have a Go Kit ready in case you need to evacuate in a moment’s notice. The kit should contain essential items, such as those in this photo.

Officials urge to be ready

JEREMY C. RUARK

During this intense wildfire season in Oregon, officials said it is critical that everyone be ready to evacuate at a moment’s notice.

Oregon Office of Emergency Management Public Information Officer Paula Fasano Negele said the most important element is to be prepared.

“If you do not have a “go kit” put one together NOW,” she said. “Have a conversation with family members about what you will do, what you will bring and where you will go if you are evacuated. Know your evacuation levels!”

Fasano Negele said when a Level 3 – GO now – is ordered, GO!

“Be prepared to leave behind items,” she said. “It’s more important to get out safely. This nugget comes from a survivor of the Mosier Creek fire who escaped her home with 9 other family members and 7 dogs without a moment to spare.”

Fasano Negele said there critical steps of action you need to take during an evacuation.

“Know your evacuation levels,” she said. “This seems trite but with the fast-moving fires that have occurred in the past few days, this information is the difference between being a survivor and a victim.”

Level 1 – BE READY – Monitor emergency services websites and local media outlets for information. This is the time for preparation and precautionary movement of persons with special needs and, in some cases, pets and livestock.

Level 2 – BE SET – Be ready to leave at a moment’s notice. There is significant danger to your area. Be prepared to voluntarily relocate to a Temporary Evacuation Point (TEPO as set up by the Red Cross, or move to family/friends outside of the affected area.

Chef brings BBQ experience full circle

DAVID HAYES

The Pilot

Douglas Momchilovich figures he was an unintended beneficiary when the state of Oregon closed down businesses back in March to prevent the spread of the COVID-19 coronavirus.

His Cuzzin’ Dougie’s Bar-B-Que Emporium has been smoking up meats and serving side dishes made from scratch from his corner setup at the Brookings Harbor Farmers Market for the past 2-1/2 years. But Momchilovich said the pandemic forced local diners to find out about his brand of barbecue.

“People were getting tired of cooking at home during the lockdown. Taco Tuesdays and spaghetti Fridays wasn’t working anymore,” Momchilovich said. “Because of the farmers market, we were open because we were ‘essential.’ And all we do is to-go. We fit the bill all the way around.”

With a vast background in the culinary arts, Momchilovich almost went with Greek food when he first moved into the market. Instead, he went with Italian.

“It was pouring down rain and people were lined up out the tent. But I got ‘slayed,’” Momchilovich recalled. “I didn’t have a kitchen setup yet. I only had toaster ovens — real primitive.”

A bigger seller than his meals, however, were his cheesecakes. His side business — Sasquatch Creamery — could barely keep up with orders.

“The first time I made about 25 of them, they didn’t even last an hour. Next time I made 50, sold out in couple hours,” Momchilovich said. “The funny thing about this is, I hate cheesecake. I hate making cheesecake.”

Luckily, he convinced longtime pal David Schaller to take over that side of the business. Schaller’s cheesecake options now include two keto, seven gluten-free and 31 other flavors.

“This is where we wanted to live,” said Schaller, who had family in the Brookings area. “And to live here, you’ve pretty much got to own your own business.”

The two had worked together off and on over the last 18 years as glass-glazing contractors. Momchilovich himself bounced back and forth between the culinary world and his family’s glass-glazing business in Kansas City.

“My dad, who owned the third largest glass company in Kansas City for 37 years, said one thing to me that stuck in my head I’ll never forget my whole life,” Momchilovich said. ““Son, a job is like auctioning off minutes of your life to the highest bidder.””

Momchilovich said that was pretty profound lesson for an 11-year-old with his whole life to live ahead of him. He figured the highest bidder was minimum wage. So, he and his brother hustled neighborhood jobs from mowing yards to shoveling snow, to avoid minimum wage.

But when he was about to turn 15, and his dad refused to buy him a car, so Momchilovich got his first real job at a barbecue

Danger increases along Oregon waterways

JEREMY C. RUARK

jruark@countrymedia.net

Officials said they are seeing a disturbing trend along Oregon’s popular rivers, lakes and ocean bays this summer and into fall: A high number of increasing fatalities and accidents.

The Oregon Marine Board’s Randy Henry calls the rise in waterway fatalities and accidents concerning.

“I am very concerned with the number and types of incidents and fatalities we’ve seen this summer on Oregon’s waterways,” Henry said. “Part of that is explained by COVID-19 closures and that outdoor recreation is at record levels all over. Nationwide I’m told there is about a 30% increase in boating fatalities and we’re seeing that same level of increase in Oregon. More boating, more accidents.”

Henry said his biggest concern is the number of very preventable fatalities.

“We’re seeing people not surviving capsizings and falls-overboard,” he said “In nearly all these cases, a life jacket would have prevented the tragedy.”

Henry said Oregon had recorded 22 boating fatalities as of Tuesday, Sept. 1.

“In only three of those cases a worn or correctly-fitted and sized life jacket would probably not have made a difference,” Henry said. “In other words, maybe 19 of those could have been saved by a life jacket.”

The number one cause of boating fatalities is people ending up in the water unprepared, according to Henry.

According to Henry, if someone tips their kayak over and they have a life jacket on, they swim it back to shore, get in and try it again.

“We never hear about it,” he said. “If someone doesn’t have a life jacket, they struggle, they panic, they suffer cold water shock, rescue is more difficult, and it’s a fatality.”

Henry said the danger is especially present for small non-motorized boats.

“You should assume you’re going for a swim and dress accordingly,” he said.

For motorboaters, it’s all about being prepared for the unexpected and knowing your waterway, Henry said.

“Don’t travel at a high speed until you know what’s under the water — we had a lot of groundings and broken boats this year when people hit rocks, logs

Debra Kay Turner August 9, 1952 - September 2, 2020

Debra Kay Turner of Gold Beach passed away on September 2nd, 2020 of cancer. She was surrounded by her husband, children, and grandchildren. Debra was born August 9th, 1952 in Roseburg, OR to Ted and Muriel Kern. Debbie lived in Sutherlin, Port Orford, and Ophir in her years growing up. While attending Gold Beach High School, she met her high school sweetheart, Jim. They graduated in 1970, and married a year later on June 11th, 1971. In 1973, she gave birth to her daughter, Beth, and two years later to her son Jimmer. She worked at the Chowderhead Restaurant as a cook and waitress, before opening up D & J Franko Gas Station. She ran that while Jim ran the Chevron Station. In 1988, they tore down the Chevron and closed the Franko Station, and went into business together operating the Texaco Station, which is now Shell. Debbie had her own clothing business called Little Peoples Place in 1978. The last 17 years or so she was a Weight Watcher leader for Gold Beach and Brookings. She helped many people accomplish their weight goals. Debbie loved spending time with her children and grandchildren. She loved supporting them in all of their sports and school activities. Delbert Edward Peixoto January 29, 1937 - August 20, 2020

It is with great sadness that we say goodbye to Del Peixoto who passed away on August 20, 2020, in the loving presence of his wife Shirley and daughter Julie.

Born in Niles, California, Del was proud to be a 5th generation Californian and a 60 year member of the Native Sons of California. He was also very proud of his Portuguese Heritage and a longtime member of the Portuguese Fraternal Society of America, his ancestors immigrating from Pico in the Azores. Del started very young learning hard work and the family trade from his father in the Irvington Meat Market in Fremont, California, eventually taking the business over from his father, interrupted only by his service in the US Army. After his honorable discharge, he continued operating the market for many years. Later Del and Shirley moved to Willow Creek, California for a more simple life. Del worked and operated the Willow Creek Meat Market and also worked part time at Bob's Market.

In 1989, Del and Shirley fell in love with Brookings and the Oregon Coast, living for fifteen years at Rainbow Rock Condos and then at their Brooke Lane home. Until his retirement, Del worked in several local markets-Harbor Meats. Ray's, and in his last years before retirement, at the then newly opened Fred Meyer's.

After retiring, Del spent some time fishing, traveling, and working in his yard. He also spent time with his "Baby" a beautiful 1930 Model A coupe he had purchased from a close friend when Del was just a senior in high school. For many years, he was an active member of the Curry County Cruisers, taking loving care with his restoration work and cherishing her through the many years of ownership and numerous car shows.

Del was also a volunteer at Star of the Sea Catholic Church. He adored his church community, especially Deacon Leo, Jaime and Maria Silva. Del Hodges #2, and Mary and Frank Dias.

Del Peixoto was preceded in death by his parents, Alfred and Evelyn Peixoto; his twin brother, Merle; older brother, Marvin; and grandson, Jayce Marmon. He is survived by his devoted wife of 45 years, Shirley; daughters Julie, JoAnn (John), Yvonne, and Teresa (Dave); son Michael; sister-in-laws Jean Peixoto, Myrna Reynolds, Roberta Tidwell; 3 nephews; 10 grandchildren; and 15 great-grandchildren.

This was a kind, generous, and thoughtful man who cared very deeply for his God, his church community, his friends, his neighbors, and his beloved family. He will be missed by all who knew him for his many acts of kindness. He will be missed for his sense of humor and for his jokes, told over and over. Del will be greatly missed. He was deeply loved.

The family will hold a private service at a later date.

Norma Jean Doherty July 31 1928 - August 29 2020

It is with a heavy heart I announce the passing of Norma at the age of 92. Norma was generous, loving, creative, and she could "name that tune" in 3 notes! She loved living in Brookings, OR, but moved to Springfield, OR in 2014. She was great at interior design, watercolor painting & ceramics.

She loved the ocean, the beach, & traveling around the west, flying the Cessna 150. She went to Italy where she was able to see the old frescoes at the Sistine Chapel, ride the gondolas in Venice and toured ancient sights in Rome. She worked as a display manager for a large clothing retailer for many years and became a manager for the Ross store in Medford before retiring. She was an active member of the St. Timothy's Episcopal Church and loved singing in the choir. She was preceded in death by husband of 65 years Fred Doherty, daughter Diane Jones, daughter-in-law Christie Doherty, parents and 2 brothers. She is survived by Son, Shawn Doherty of Eugene, grandson's John Tucker, Mike and Matt Doherty, as well as 7 great grandchildren and 8 great, great, grandchildren as well as many friends in Brookings.

Deceased's funeral arrangements Norma will be cremated and taken out to sea to be with her husband Fred. Due to Covid-19 we will wait until it is possible for a memorial. In lieu of flowers please contribute to the Brookings Saint Timothy's Episcopal Church Garden Fund in Norma's name, "it would be greatly appreciated".

Officials report boating in Oregon has become more and more popular with rivers and lakes often becoming congested, heightening the waterway danger.

Safety

and gravel bars,” Henry said. “But even with motorboats, the number one thing to do to prevent a fatality is wear a life jacket. It’s like a seat belt – you don’t think, ‘Gosh, I’m about to hit a tree in my car, I better put on a seatbelt.’ It’s too late then. Just wear it.”

The Marine Board’s public information officer, Ashley Massey said the water temperature at most popular rivers, streams and lakes can be deceiving. Massey said this year, especially early on, the common denominators involved boaters operating paddlecraft who fell overboard or capsized and were not wearing life jackets.

“This is particularly risky because our waterways are very cold nearly year-round,” she said. “Oregon is considered a cold water state where most waterways are 65 degrees or below year-round. This increases the risk of cold water shock from sudden immersion initiating a gasp reflex and if a person’s head isn’t above the water, the chances of taking in water to the lungs increases the chance of drowning.”

Henry’s advice to anyone about safety on the waterway for rest of the summer-fall recreation season is simple.

“Number one is to wear your life jacket, no matter what type of boat you’re in,” he said. “Life jackets don’t prevent accidents, but like a seat belt, they’ll turn a painful or fatal accident into a minor annoyance.”

Henry said his second set of advice is to make sure your skills are up to the task.

“If you’ve never crossed a coastal bar before, learn about tides, wind, bar restrictions, ocean swells and wind waves,” he said. “If you’re new to kayaking, don’t go down the big rapids without some training or experience. If you’re new to stand-up paddleboarding, don’t get far from shore. In all those cases, wear your life jacket.”

Henry said if people would wear a life jacket, always boat sober, and had basic knowledge for the type of boating they’re doing, there could be maybe three fatalities this year instead of 22.

“My number one concern for this weekend is people being too casual about boating, and people partying and boating,” Henry said. “Take it seriously and put on the personal protective gear.”

Governor

This week, Brown evoked a fire conflagration act for the entire state, allowing state resources to be placed in areas of need. Brown also has requested a federal emergency declaration to free up federal resources in the response effort. That would include search and rescue, mortuary assistance and mass care shelter and feeding support.

“Our number one priority right now is saving lives,” Brown said. “Our statewide strategy is focused on live safety, evacuation and protecting structures.”

Oregon Department of Forestry’s Chief of Fire Protection Doug Grafe said the combination of a cold front on top of an east winds event and the state’s critically dry conditions over the past three years have fueled the wildfires.

Grafe said the winds pushed the fires down steep slopes into cities such as Detroit in the Santiam Canyon and Lincoln City west of the central Oregon Coast Range. Grafe said there is hope that weather conditions will change by Thursday.

“The winds have subsided,” he said. “Although we are still seeing gusts of 25 mph in the high mountain passes. Tomorrow begins a hopeful change in weather conditions to give us a chance to shift resources.”

Grafe said cooler moist air is expected to flow into the state from the Pacific.

Oregon Office of Emergency Management Director Andrew Phelps emphasized the need for all Oregonians to be ready for evacuations.

“Stay home if you are in a safe place,” Phelps said. “If you are in an evacuation zone, know when you need to go and what you need to take with you. Follow the evacuation orders. Make sure you are prepared as soon as possible.”

Oregon Deputy State Fire Marshal Mariana Ruiz-Temple also urged Oregonians to be prepared.

“All residents need to be prepared to understand evacuation levels 1-2-3,” she said. “All residents should be ready to go at a moments notice. Be ready to go. Stay tuned to all emergency messages.”

Know your evacuation levels

Level 1 – BE READY – Monitor emergency services websites and local media outlets for information. This is the time for preparation and precautionary movement of persons with special needs and, in some cases, pets and livestock.

Level 2 – BE SET – Be ready to leave at a moment’s notice. There is significant danger to your area. Be prepared to voluntarily relocate to a Temporary Evacuation Point (TEPO as set up by the Red Cross, or move to family/friends outside of the affected area.

Level 3 – GO – Leave immediately! Danger to your area is current or imminent. Do not delay leaving to gather any belongings or make efforts to protect your home.

Follow new developments online at currypilot.com with in-depth reports in the Friday print editions of The Pilot.

‘Honey in the Horn’ novel is focus of Curry County Library

THE PILOT

Curry Public Library in Gold Beach invites the public to read the 1934 Pulitzer Prize winning novel “Honey in the Horn” by H.L. Davis.

The library will host two related online events: a kickoff lecture on Sept. 17, and a book discussion on Nov.5, both at 5:30 p.m. The library has nine copies of the book to loan to patrons participating in the book discussion; they may be checked out in person (subject to availability).

“Honey in the Horn” is set in Oregon in the early 20th century and chronicles the struggles faced by homesteaders as they attempted to settle the land. This classic coming-of-age novel has been called the “Huckleberry Finn of the West,” and is the only Oregon book that has ever won a Pulitzer Prize for fiction.

Library director Jeremy Skinner will give an online lecture to kick off the book group reading of “Honey in the Horn” on Sept. 17 at 5:30 p.m. Skinner will discuss author H.L. Davis, provide historical context for the setting and writing of the book and talk about the importance of this work in Oregon literature.

This lecture is open to the public, whether individuals plan to read the book and participate in the discussion in November, or not.

Skinner has a master’s degree in history, was an editorial fellow for the Oregon Historical Quarterly, and is a strong believer in the power of fiction in understanding history.

At 5:30 p.m. on Nov. 5, participants who have read “Honey in the Horn” are invited to join Skinner for a facilitated online discussion of the book.

Both events will be available to the public via Zoom. To receive the link or phone number to join the programs via a computer, phone or other device, visit the event pages on www.currypubliclibrary.org.

BBQ

joint located inside a 125-year-old brick smokehouse in Merriam Kansas .

He had to clean out the old coal and start new fires for the day’s cooking in the firebox.

“I smelled like barbecue all the time,” Momchilovich said. “My girlfriend hated it.”

He could have stayed home and worked in his father’s glass company, making really good money. His uncle still owns the largest glass-glazing business in Kansas.

Instead, he set out on his own. In the 44 years since, Momchilovich has done everything from line cook at a Bob’s Big Boy to running the kitchen at The Hyatt in Hawaii. He’s run catering businesses that would feed hundreds at a time. He’s served up meals for exclusive clientele in a private restaurant in Longmont, Colorado, that doesn’t take reservations. Once, while working at the Wai’alae Country Club in Hawaii, he got fired for making fun of Don Ho. He’s taught the culinary arts. And he’s been the private chef for the owner of the Kansas City Chiefs.

You think tri-tip tastes like that? ‘No.’ I just start laughing at them.”

He eventually took his recipes on the road in barbecue competitions. Momchilovich, as a child, had already met Mr. Henry Perry, “the king of barbecue,” but was now competing against pit-masters from around the world. As good as he got at smoking barbecue, he also refined his talents serving it with sauce.

“Where I come from, sauce goes on the table. Cause if you’re puttin’ sauce on it, you’re covering something up,” he said. “If your barbecue is good, your sauce better be as good or better because you’ll get ridiculed.”

No worries for Momchilovich there — his sauce has won two blue ribbons from American Royal.

To this day, Momchilovich uses white oak, which has a neutral flavor, to heat up his smoke box. He then throws in chunks of hickory, which fires up the smoke as it starts to smolder.

“That’s where the flavor comes in,” he added.

Momchilovich said it takes him three days to prep for 10 hours of service at the Wednesday and Saturday farmers markets.

With the coronavirus, he figures he’d have done better if the other markets were open.

“All my food is scratch made. I’ve never changed the quality. It’s the best food I can get my hands on,” he said.

After three other successful catering businesses, he doesn’t see himself moving into a brick and mortar restaurant if he outgrows the Brookings Harbor Farmers Market. He may invest in a food truck and move operations across the parking lot closer to Highway 101. Or he and Schaller may explore farming the myriad natural resources the region is renowned for. Either way, Momchilovich has survived a pandemic and figures his culinary skills will get him through the next apocalypse.

Cuzzin’ Douggie’s Bar-B-Que Emporium is located at 15786 Highway 101 in Harbor.

District delays in-person classes for grades 4 and 5

THE PILOT

The Brookings-Harbor School District is delaying in-person classes for grades 4-5.

“Unfortunately, Curry County did not meet a required state virus metric for the number of active COVID Cases out of 100,000 people for the week of Aug. 30 (announced Tuesday, Sept. 8). Curry had an actual four cases in the ~23,000 population, equating to a metric of 13 active cases/100,000 (exceeding the 10 active cases/100,000 limit),” the District said in a release.

“This means that the planned addition of in-person instruction for grades 4-5 will be delayed from Friday, Sept. 18, until at least Friday, Oct. 2, and only if county and state met required virus metrics for weeks of Sept. 6, Sept. 13, and Sept. 20,” according to the release.

Distance learning and online-only programs in the district commence this Friday, Sept. 11.

Parents urged to get children vaccinated

Parents are understandably nervous about taking their children and teens to their doctors’ offices right now, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. As a result, children in Oregon are falling behind on their childhood vaccinations, according to the Oregon Health Authority (OHA).

August is National Immunization Awareness Month and the OHA wants to work with families to ensure this pandemic is not followed by an increase in cases of vaccine-preventable diseases or a preventable outbreak.

“How students attend school is changing because of COVID-19,” OHA school immunization coordinator Stacy de Assis Matthews said. “We want to make sure students are fully vaccinated, so they are protected in whatever form their school looks like: in a classroom, in a small group cohort, or online at home with their family.”

Families have the power to protect their children against serious, potentially life-threatening diseases. Parents should talk to their child’s doctor or nurse about whether they have missed any routine vaccines, according to the OHA.

Before rescheduling any upcoming childhood vaccination or well visit appointments, parents are urged to call the child’s health care provider to find out if the appointment can remain as scheduled and what precautions are in place to keep everyone safe from COVID-19.

Many health care providers’ offices are taking special precautions, such as ensuring children who are well are kept separate from sick children.

Many providers are limiting the number of people who can go with a child to their appointment and are taking temperatures of all family members before allowing them into the building. Some providers are providing drive-up vaccine programs.

With so many people out of work and without health insurance, it’s important to know you can still keep your child safe. The Vaccines for Children (VFC) program offers free vaccines to families who cannot afford to pay for their children’s vaccines.

Coos County's July jobless rate fell to 11.4 percent. June's rate was 12.7 percent.

Smaller increases were estimated in professional and business services (+60) and construction (+30). DEALING WITH
EX-GIRLFRIENDS CAUSES MAN CONSTERNATION

DEAR ABBY: What is acceptable after a breakup occurs? Several years ago, I reached out to an ex-girlfriend. We had dated for six months, but she broke up with me to take a job in another state. A year later, I heard through mutual friends that she had recently moved back. I didn't call or text, but I did send an email asking how she was doing and if she'd like to talk. She completely freaked out! She threatened to get a restraining order and told many of our mutual friends that I had been stalking her for a year. From that experience I learned never to contact an ex-girlfriend if they initiate the breakup. Fast-forward: I recently ran into another ex-girlfriend who initiated the breakup. She told me that for an entire year after that breakup she hoped I would call her and, when I didn't, it proved I had never loved her. Abby, I feel like I can't win. It's similar to how some women say they won't let a guy kiss them unless they ask first, and others say if a guy asks, he's a wimp and they would refuse. As a man, I feel like I'm in an impossible position. No matter what I do, half the women on the planet will either view it as too aggressive or too passive. Help! -- CONFOUNDED IN OREGON

DEAR CONFOUNDED: Welcome to reality. Accept that no matter what you do, you can't please everyone. If the only contact you had with that first ex-girlfriend was ONE email after her return to your city, then she was either grandstanding to get attention or it was a symptom of emotional instability. As to your second ex, men with self-esteem rarely call back after being rejected because once is enough. Please don't let those two "dolls" sour you on all women. As you know, the #MeToo movement has highlighted the importance of consent. Asking a woman before you make a move is always prudent.  DEAR ABBY: I have struggled with my weight for years. My husband doesn't eat sweets, but we have a friend who insists on dropping off trays of dozens of cupcakes, candies, cookies, etc. I appreciate the time, money and effort, but I'm finally on an eating program that's working for me. I told her (nicely) that while I appreciate her gesture, I can't be trusted alone with such goodies, so please share them with folks who have better self-control. Well! She swore at me and told me to lose her number. To say the least, I was shocked. Abby, I was as gentle and appreciative as could be. I explained that I have a problem and I'm the only one here who indulges in such foods. Was I wrong? What gives? I would donate them, but since I have a problem with sweets, I prefer not to have them in my house. -- SWEET LOVE/HATE IN NEW JERSEY DEAR SWEET: You did nothing wrong; you did yourself

CURRY COASTAL PILOT an important favor. That woman is not only not a friend, but she is also someone who cares nothing about your health and well-being. She is a "saboteur" with a vested interest in keeping you heavy. I admire your determination to take a stand on behalf of your eating program and your health. It took courage, and I applaud you for doing it. Sadly, too many people are afraid to do what you did. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Bertha L. Benjamin

Case Number: CVPB-2020-7010

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Bertha L. Benjamin

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Stephen B. Bruno, in the Superior Court of California, County of Del Norte.

The petition for probate requests that Stephen B. Bruno be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This Authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: 9/25/2020 Time: 9:00am Dept.: 2
Address of the Court: 450 H Street #209 Crescent City, CA 95531

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

DETAILED SUMMARY OF THE MATTER THAT PLAINTIFF SEEKS TO VALIDATE:

The California Department of Water Resources (Department) operates facilities which store, transport and deliver water to urban and agricultural water agencies throughout the State. Since 1960, the Department has approved, planned and constructed a system of water storage and transportation and power generation facilities (the Project). Currently, Project water is conveyed across the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta through the natural channels of the Delta formed by the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers, as those channels have been modified over the past 150 years.

In recent years, the Department has undertaken to develop a comprehensive plan for the effective delivery of Project water across the Delta. The Department is currently undertaking environmental review and related planning and design activities regarding potential new Delta conveyance facilities. The facilities under review would transport water from new intake points on the Sacramento River at the northern edge of the Delta through an underground tunnel running below the natural waterways of the Delta to export facilities at the southern edge of the Delta.

Separately, the Department has established a proposed revenue bond financing to finance the cost and expense of the environmental review, planning, engineering and design, and if and when appropriate, the acquisition and construction of Delta water conveyance facilities. On August 6, 2020, the Department adopted bond resolutions authorizing the issuance of revenue bonds for those purposes. Under the bond resolutions, bonds for construction cannot be issued unless specific conditions precedent are satisfied, which include regulatory and statutory requirements regarding the physical and environmental aspects of approving, constructing, and operating Delta conveyance facilities.

On August 6, 2020, the Department filed a validation action to confirm the legal validity of the Department's proposed bond financing. A validation action is a judicial proceeding in which a governmental agency, like the Department, can confirm the validity of a proposed financial transaction before it commits to or undertakes the transaction. The Department's validation complaint, the bond resolutions, and a copy of this Summons are available on the Department's internet website at: <https://water.ca.gov/Programs/State-Water-Project/Delta-Conveyance/Public-Information>.
