

Port to install Sporthaven seawall soon

BY CLAUDIA ELLIOTT
Pilot Editor

When winter storms send waves crashing onto Sporthaven Beach, saltwater, sand and debris are sometimes carried across the roadway above the beach and into the adjacent RV park.

The result is not only a mess to be cleaned up, but trouble for the sewer system operated by Harbor Sanitary District. Drains at the now-closed shower and toilet facility and sewer connections at the RV sites are vulnerable when high-tide events occur, putting extra strain on the sewage treatment system and creating potential environmental risk.

Sporthaven is managed by the Port of Brookings-Harbor which has long-term plans to expand the RV park and install new restroom facilities in addition to a wooden seawall. But in the meantime, port commissioners agreed at a meeting on June 16 to install a temporary two-foot concrete block seawall this summer.

In a memo to commissioners, Port Manager Gary Dehlinger said the port engineer has provided calculations and comments on a plan to create a seawall using unsecured concrete blocks to withstand a 1-foot breaking wave.

“This wall would certainly impede sand-carrying water, and thus would be effective in protecting sanitary features,” Dehlinger said. He said the plan is consistent with a discussion the board and management had at a special meeting June 11 as a solution to the sanitary district’s concerns about protecting the sewer system.

Harbormaster Travis Webster said the procurement process for the blocks is underway and installation will be scheduled as soon as possible this summer. When the blocks are available, it will be necessary to close the roadway along Sporthaven Beach for at least a day.

Kari Schultz checks fireworks in the FFA's booth in the Les Schwab Tire parking lot on Chetco Avenue on June 23, the first day consumer legal fireworks can be sold in Oregon. The group will also sell street tacos on the weekends during the fireworks sale period which ends July 6.

Fire marshal calls for fireworks safety

THE PILOT

The sale of Oregon consumer legal fireworks began Tuesday and ends on July 6 at licensed stands and retailers statewide. The Office of the State Fire Marshal encourages residents to keep it legal and keep it safe by practicing the “4 Bs” of safe fireworks use:

- Be prepared before lighting fireworks: keep water available by using a garden hose or bucket.
- Be safe when lighting fireworks: keep children and pets away from fireworks.
- Be responsible after lighting fireworks: never relight a dud. Wait 15 to 20 minutes then soak it in a bucket of water before disposal.
- Be aware: use only legal fireworks and use them only in legal places.

Th OFSM notes that fireworks used in Oregon are responsible for fires that cause significant property loss, serious personal injury, and in some cases, even the loss of life.

Fire season starts: Restrictions now in place

The Coos Forest Protective Association has announced the official beginning of this year’s fire season at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday, June 24. The start of fire season activates restrictions on both public and industrial forest use on all public, private, county, state and Bureau of Land Management lands within CFPA’s district boundaries.

This means the end of unregulated, outside burning for rural Curry, Coos and western Douglas County. The outside burning of debris piles and the use of burn barrels will be prohibited until fire season is terminated.

Residents living within an incorporated city need to contact their local fire department for burning restrictions and permit details.

Under Oregon law, the use of tracer ammunition and exploding targets is prohibited during fire season and the use of sky lanterns is prohibited year round.

Regulated use restrictions will also be implemented, putting restrictions on public activities based on daily fire danger levels for specific activities.

Alfred A. Loeb State Park near Brookings is among units of the Oregon state park system expected to remain closed at least until Labor Day. Both the campground and day use area are closed.

Parks still closed

THE PILOT

A $22 million budget gap is responsible for keeping some state parks in the area closed, according to a release from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Dept. Although Harris Beach State Park and areas of the popular Samuel H. Bordman Scenic Corridor opened following closure related to the COVID-19 pandemic and restrictions, many other state parks in Curry County remain closed.

Of these, the state agency said that Alfred A. Loeb State Park, campground and day-use, and Cape Blanco State Park, campground and day-use, would remain closed at least through Labor Day.

The rest area at Harris Beach State Park and the visitor center at Crissy Field just north of the Oregon-California border remain closed. Their future was not addressed in the recent release.

Because there are still emerging cases of the virus in many areas, Oregon Parks and Recreation Department (OPRD) is asking visitors to do their part to help protect themselves and the health of their fellow Oregonians.

The state park system has been slowly reopening since early May, but nearly every park is experiencing reduced levels of service due to the funding gap and parks are relying on visitors to help get through this unprecedented time.

Reduced services

Parks that are open will have far fewer staff than usual do for the busy summer season. Park rangers will be focused on essential duties to keep the public safe, so other typical services may fall by the wayside. Events and programs will be canceled, ice or firewood sales may be suspended, and grounds maintenance and trash pickup will be less frequent. Service availability may change quickly.

Many facilities will be closed or have sharply reduced hours. Shower/restroom facilities, ranger booths, welcome centers, and other places will be affected. Go to the webpage for the park you plan to visit before you leave to learn what's open and what's closed. When you arrive at the park, scope out the open facilities.

Learn more about safe recreation in parks during the pandemic, including more specifics for day-use and camping, on the state parks website: stateparks.oregon.gov.

The police blotter is a public record of incidents as reported by law enforcement agencies. All individuals arrested or charged with a crime are innocent until proven guilty. The information printed is preliminary and subject to change. The Brookings Police Department provides emergency dispatch services for the City of Brookings as well as Southern Curry County 9-1-1 calls, dispatching for state, county, and local law enforcement, five fire departments, and Cal-Ore ambulance. # City ramps up for Azalea Festival July 17-19

Pat Piper is Grand Marshal and Kaylee Cover is queen for the celebration that has been moved to July this year

THE PILOT

This year’s Azalea Festival had to be rescheduled and many events had to be modified or eliminated to observe requirements of Phase 2 of Oregon’s reopening during the COVID-19 pandemic, but important traditions are being observed, including the selection of a Grand Marshal for the parade and crowning of a queen.

Long-time resident and volunteer extraordinaire Pat Piper was named Grand Marshal in an announcement earlier this week, and Kaylee Cover was named the 2020 Azalea Festival Queen at the pageant held on June 20 at the Brookings Elks Lodge. Alonna Nails is first runner-up. Other members of the Azalea Court are Brooke Firestone, Cartyr Fitzhugh and Kasilyn Ulery.

Piper surprised

“I received the news that I had been selected for this honor while I was at the blood drive, surrounded by local volunteers, and dozens of Brookings-Harbor donors who came in to give blood and save lives,” Piper said. “I am excited to be the Grand Marshal, but know that I am just one of the many volunteers who make our beautiful community such a special place.”

She has been a Principal Broker at Century 21 Agate Realty in Brookings for the past 28 years. She worked as an agent in California for four years before moving here. During this tenure she has served as the Curry County Board of Realtors president twice, as Realtor of the Year twice, and is the recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Last year, Piper ranked #7 in sales for Century 21 in the entire state of Oregon.

Currently she is the Chair of the Board of Directors for the Chetco Community Public Library. She is also the chair for the American Red Cross Blood Drive where she has been active for the past 24 years. She was awarded the Clara Barton Award, the highest honor bestowed by the American Red Cross.

Piper is also an active board member for Sutter Coast Hospital. She volunteers at Coastline Neighbors, helping community people in need. And she has been appointed to the Curry County Suicide Awareness and Prevention Council. She served for many years on the Brookings-Harbor Chamber of Commerce Board and is Past President.

Still, she enjoys interesting vacations and in addition to having fun, uses hers as a volunteer to help those in need both in the U.S. and in China, Haiti and Cambodia.

Azalea Queen and Court

New Queen Kaylee is the daughter of Sherry Guthrie and Toby Cover. She will attend the University of Oregon as a political science major. Her talent was speed painting.

First runner-up Nails is the daughter of Amber and Lonnie Nails. She plans to attend Lane Community College to study nursing and to run track. Her talent was dance.

Those participating in the pageant competed in multiple categories including an interview, talent, and modeling casual wear and evening gown. Judging also included reviewing essays written by the young women to determine their commitment to their community.

The court will earn scholarships determined on their placement and the sponsor availability. Each princess will be awarded at least a $500 scholarship.

Fitzhugh was unable to participate in the pageant because of the change in dates related to COVID-19 restrictions. However, she is still very much a part of the Azalea Festival Court. She plans to attend Linn Benton Community College and Oregon State University with a goal of becoming a veterinarian.

Firestone is the daughter of Piper Griffin, Jimmy Griffin and Marvin Firestone. She will attend Southwest Oregon Community College on an art scholarship and plans to transfer to the University of Oregon. Her talent was vocal.

Ulery’s parents/grandparents are Amy Maynes, Joye Kerr and Tom Kerr. Her talent was dance and cheer.

No honest debate in Salem

BY DALLAS HEARD

Millions have watched around the world as our country grapples with the raw emotions and collective acknowledgement that change must occur.

As a State Senator in the Oregon Legislature, I take my role and obligations to my district, state, and country seriously. It is an honor and privilege to serve. This is why I find myself angered with the approach and tone of the special session in Salem.

No member can bring forward a bill. Only a select few in the Democrat super majority can do so. If we are to combat the ills of racism, bigotry, and ignorance, we must do so together.

We are here to bring about some of the largest reforms in a generation, and yet there is no honest debate, collaboration, or partnership.

Our friends, neighbors, and loved ones in our communities deserve a robust, honest, and earnest conversation. The current rules instituted by the Democrats, however, have prevented that.

Letters to the editor

Our future?

Trump was able to delay the 2020 election because of the George Floyd demonstrations and COVID-19 recurrence. However, by June of 2021 he was finally thrown out of office and into jail. But it was too late. Although a new president had been elected, the campaign had almost no coverage of climate change.

The delays in dealing with climate change while Trump was in office proved to be fatally overwhelming. The massive tasks that were necessary also came at a time when people were worn out from dealing with COVID-19. So, the earth got hotter. The tundra fires in Siberia finally broke thru the permafrost releasing several gigatons of methane. Oceans rose and became more acidic killing most sea life. Massive storms caused trillions of dollars worth of damage. The U.S. Could not cover the damage because of the expenses during COVID-19.

Arctic ice and glaciers

continued to melt. Forest fires became more common and more deadly. Droughts then heavy rains ruined crops and destroyed farmland.

Brazil continued to cut down their rain forest to raise more beef.

As the damage continued to grow more people could not support themselves or had to live with armed militias. Refugee numbers approached one billion. Countries became more nationalistic and tried to block their borders. Small skirmishes started over borders with no countries trying to help others. Battles became large till whole countries were involved.

At the beginning of 2030 the first atom bomb was dropped.

Yes, it can happen.

About balloons

I completely agree with Joyce Hannum's letter to the editor (May 29) regarding the environmental impact of balloon releases.

Balloons don't decompose quickly, and their strings usually aren't made of biodegradable material. Animals often mistake balloon fragments for food and choke or suffocate when they try to eat them. Many dolphins, whales, and sea turtles beach and die every year after ingesting deflated balloons, which can resemble jellyfish—one of their regular food sources. Even land animals who graze on vegetation can accidentally ingest balloon parts.

Never release balloons, and if you know of someone who's planning a balloon release, share this information and urge them to choose an environmentally friendly alternative, such as planting trees or flowers. If you spot a balloon or another piece of trash while you're out enjoying the Wild Rivers Coast, take a second to pick it up. You'll help keep your beach town beautiful, and you might save a life, too.

The local verve

The other day my bride was granted a 10-day reprieve from work. What to do, where to go? Where else but Brookings and some fresh air, sun and sand, plus, wandering about aimlessly. One of the best activities when renewing ones energy level is to get a sense of the local verve.

Where to look first?

The Letters to the Editor column of course. Here is where the local laundry is aired out and always offers humor, anger, and sound advice. I really enjoyed reading about Sheriff John Ward's pro-active stance on 'rioting' protesters. America needs more like him.

Funny how time flies when you're not watching the clock 10 hours a day. You're asking what time, and what day is it, as if memory was left at your front door. This means it's time for us to leave Brookings for the Ocean Side Diner breakfast in Harbor, and our front door.

Guidelines

Guidelines for letters and guest commentary

We encourage readers to submit letters to the editor and guest commentary. Letters should be limited to one topic, contain no more than 300 words. Guest commentary submissions may be 300-450 words; occasionally we will consider a longer piece, depending upon space constraints. We ask submissions to include the writer's real name and city and phone number for verification (although phone numbers will not be published). All submissions are subject to editing. We edit for length, grammar, taste and legal reasons. We generally will not publish poetry, form letters, letters submitted elsewhere, or material copied from emails or from websites/social media. We ask writers to avoid personal attacks, gratuitous insults and personal gripes. Topics of specific local interest will be given priority over issues not specifically local. Letters and other commentary are the opinion of the writer, not the newspaper.

Letters may be submitted via a form on our website. Letters or guest commentary may be delivered to our office or sent by email to: piloteditor@countrymedia.net.

It's time to learn about floating wind

BY SHANNON SOUZA

Recently the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management (BOEM) held a webinar regarding Oregon Offshore Wind (OSW). The focus was to discuss approaches for public and stakeholder engagement for potential future development off of our coast. The previous meeting, last September, resulted in gatherings of interested citizens, myself included, to learn more about OSW and how it might impact our coastal communities. It is a complex issue that, like so many others, is further complicated by mis-information.

Oregon Coast Energy Alliance Network (OCEAN) was formed by coastal interests to evaluate the impacts and maximize the benefits to coastal communities of any proposed OSW project. Our members represent coastal tribal, county, labor, environmental, business development, shipping, climate action, energy access advocacy and resilience interests. As a renewable energy pracitioner and advocate for community energy security I've welcomed the opportunity to organize OCEAN's efforts. Here's a bit of what we've learned so far:

- Commercial fishers should be directly engaged in initial planning processes for Oregon ocean energy projects

- Floating wind resides in deeper water than fixed foundations, installed on the East coast, so can be located to minimize fishing and viewshed impacts

- OSW is on track to be affordable for Oregonians in time for West coast development. Today, fixed foundation OSW energy on the East coast is landing on the grid at $0.05 - $0.12/kWh. (A recently published opinion by a local official stated $0.50 - $1.00/kWh and speculated $1,500/month electricity bills, I suspect he got his decimal point in the wrong place.) National Renewable Energy Laboratories (NREL) anticipate that Oregon floating wind can hit Oregon's grid at $0.05/kWh or under by 2032. This would result in Oregonian's paying about the same price for clean wind energy as we currently pay for our existing mix of imported energy.

- Long term Oregon, currently an electricity importer, could become an energy exporter reaping additional economic benefits of supplying California's lucrative power market while contributing to a resilient and robust West coast grid

- South coast ports and people are poised to supply and service a multi-billion dollar clean energy opportunity

Thanks to our national labs and universities, our understanding of the potential impacts of OSW increases daily. OCEAN is sharing what we learn and advocating for coastal interests. We support an informed and engaged coastal citizenry making decisions about our own energy, economic and cultural futures. You can become part of the conversation at www.oceanwind.org.

Boat inspection aims to keep invasive species out

BY EMMERSEN COHN
For Country Media

Whether you’re out on your boat, kayaking or catching a wave on your surfboard, you can expect a cooldown from summer’s approaching heat.

What you might not expect, and in fact not even be able to see, are the little stowaways that might be tagging along with you.

Two of the most notable examples are the quagga and zebra mussels.

Although barely an inch in diameter, these little mussels can not only do a number on boat engines and drainage pipes, but also on the waters they’ve come to inhabit.

Glenn Dolphin, the invasive species specialist for the Oregon Marine Board, is responsible for the agency’s programs throughout Oregon that aim to keep invasive species out of the state’s waters, including zebra and quagga mussels. Here’s what he has to say about both of these species:

Both hail from the Black and Caspian seas, which are actually freshwater bodies. They’re most commonly brought over in the ballast water of boats that’s then expelled into North American waters.

Although the adults grow to about the size of a thumbnail, there are often several hundred thousand growing in one square meter, which can cause major structural damage if left untouched.

These mussels are great at reproducing themselves. They group in large colonies and filter a liter of water a day to feed on, starving other aquatic organisms at that level.

Without the disease and predation present in their native environment, the population of these mussels goes unchecked.

The quagga mussel was first spotted in the western United States at Lake Mead in 2006. Since then, eight western states have implemented boat inspections.

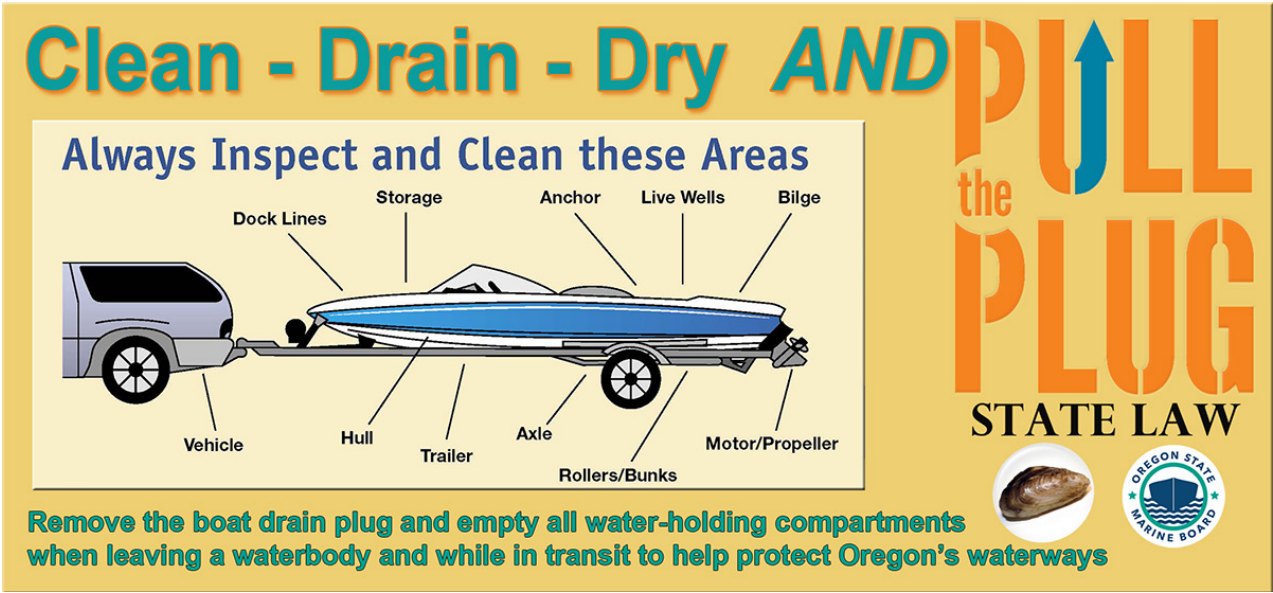

Oregon now practices the “Clean Launch Law,” which states that you must have a pristine boat to launch.

The program, which began in 2010, involves the inspection of the hulls of boats to detect invasive species such as quagga

A display at the Oregon state boat inspection station at Brookings lets boat owners see quagga and zebra mussel specimens. The purpose of the inspection station is to help keep these invasive species out of Oregon waters. So far, none have been detected on boats inspected at Brookings.

The Pilot

and zebra mussels, which attach themselves to any surfaces.

As of Jan. 1, a new state law requires the removal of any standing water in a boat when you take it out of a body of water. The motto that applies is “Clean, Drain, Dry.”

And this is exactly what boat owners are expected to do when you leave a body of water — drain all of the standing water within the vessel.

This law also applies to kayaks and canoes, in both salt and freshwater bodies.

For a fishing boat, this means draining water through a plug or valve. For kayaks and canoes, it means turning the vessel upside down in order to dump out any water (some kayaks have drain plugs).

The kayak or canoe also should get a thorough wipe down with a sponge or cloths, especially the areas where one’s feet rest, because some invasive species (like the New Zealand mud snails or fragments of invasive plants) — and even what might be considered native plants and animals — can be carried to a new location on the bottoms of boots or sandals.

Although drying out will usually kill most invasives, if the weather is damp and cool some zebra mussels have been shown to survive two to three weeks on or in a boat out of water.

Even shells and other organic materials are a problem.

Oregon lakes are monitored by taking water samples to look for “environmental DNA” from potential non-native organisms. It’s a very sensitive test that detects very small traces of DNA from an invasive species.

If a false positive occurs because a boater carries even shells, not live animals, into the lake from elsewhere, that will show up in the environment DNA. Additional monitoring may have to be done, involving testing many samples from throughout the lake — at a cost of thousands of dollars.

Boat owners who fail to abide by launch laws and clean their boats may receive tickets of up to $250 and will be required to clean their boats.

Rick Boatner of the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife supervises the inspectors at the six Oregon inspection stations. These stations are funded by a $5 permit fee paid by owners who license their boats every two years (including canoes and kayaks that are at least 10-feet long).

Four of the six stations — Brookings, Klamath Falls, Lakeview and Umatilla — are only open seasonally (usually April to September). The Ashland (I-5) and Ontario (I-84 at the eastern border of Oregon) stations are year-round.

Currently, there have been no sightings of the mussels in Oregon, with the exception of a false positive in upper Klamath Lake back in 2012.

Last year, the Brookings inspection station ran from April 16 to after Labor Day, with 2,907 inspections conducted.

The Brookings station has the highest rate of non-compliance of all of the Oregon inspection stations. About 45% of boats being transported by the station are not inspected because their owners (or haulers) do not stop, even though required to do so by law.

Vehicles hauling kayaks and canoes are among the worst offenders, according to Boatner. Apparently, many of those boaters believe the inspection requirement doesn’t apply to them.

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife hires and trains inspectors to staff these stations and perform the inspections.

Generally, these inspectors either have a college bachelor’s degree or an associate degree in a field related to ecology or fish and wildlife management, or they may be college students in the same fields.

According to Boatner, the training consists of a week of study about the laws and procedures, then a week of hands-on training at the inspection station.

The program relies heavily on “enforcement through education” to teach boaters about their important role in prevent the spread of invasive species. The fish and wildlife department and the Oregon Marine Board said the use social media, newspaper articles and word of mouth helps alert boaters to the laws.

Writing tickets is usually a last resort, they said.

NEXT WEEK: Meet the inspectors at the Brookings inspection station.

May 15, 1941 - June 9,2020

Arvie Freeman died peacefully in his home after a brief battle of cancer. He was 79.

Beverly Ann Grimes

November 27, 1952 - June 7th, 2020

Beverly Ann Grimes, 67, passed away at her home on June 7th, 2020. Bev was born in Gold Beach, Oregon to Florence and Gordon B. Bowman. Later moving to Klamath Falls, Oregon; Wasila, Alaska; Then back to Brookings, Oregon.

Beverly lived a vibrant life and enjoyed the company of her friends and family. She was a strong woman and proved it in her work ethic as well as her choices in life. Stubborn but caring, blunt but truthful, and at times, difficult but loving. The last few years of her life, she preferred the quietness of home instead of the hustle and bustle of town. In her last year, she battled cancer on her terms and passed with family around her.

Beverly is preceded in death by her Husband, Doug Grimes. Her parents, Florence and Gordon Bowman. She is survived by her siblings, Jim Bowman of Brookings and Lisa Skeen of Vancouver, WA. She leaves behind her children, Greg Rice (Vonna Westman) of Klamath Falls and Kelly Grimes (Cheryl Grimes) of Brookings. Also left behind are five grandchildren, Greylin, Mckensie, Madison, Ryan and Josephine.

No services will be held. A private spreading of her ashes was held on June 13th. The family thanks all those who helped Beverly in her battle.

John Patrick Tiernan

September 27 1949 - June 17 2020

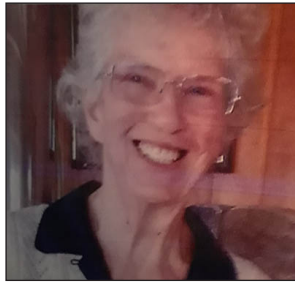

John Patrick Tiernan passed away on June 17, 2020 at his home in Gold Beach, Oregon, of chronic heart failure at 70 years old.

A singular individual, “Hippie John,” as he was known about town, was funny and formal, cranky and kind. Celebrated for his mechanical know-how, he fixed anything that had a motor until the computer age left him more or less stranded with outdated skills. He continued to work by helping out at the Christian Help Thrift repairing small appliances and souping up his wheelchair for buzzing about when he could no longer drive. Few in Gold Beach can forget the year he brought his hand-crafted fiberglass flying saucer to the annual parade! He moved into the area in his 20s and never left, finding just the right mix of laid-back people and natural beauty. He even reconnected with a girl he knew from Costa Mesa, Barbara Barnhart, at the Tavern down on Hunter Creek! She survives him as does his younger brother, Peter, his sister-in-law Phyllis, her children, Dannette and Gary Winn, and his sister, Deborah Stucker. He touched many lives in the years he spent overlooking the Rogue River and the Pacific Ocean. He was generous with his knowledge and helped everyone he could to the best of his ability. No one like him will come our way again.

The Tiernan family wish to thank everyone at Coastal Home Health and Hospice for caring for him lovingly throughout his terminal illness. Please honor John by giving them your support. There will be a gathering at his home on Moore Street in Gold Beach on Sunday, July 19, at 3 p.m. for all who wish to join his family in celebrating John’s life and legacy.

A celebration of life for Jean A. Bennett will be available through www.redwoodmemorial.net and a guest book will be available to sign online. Due to COVID-19 restrictions, there will not be a funeral service.

Jean Audrey Bennett was born July 17, 1936, to Nan and Thomas Mccann in Liverpool, England. Jean was the second to the youngest child of Nan and Thomas Mccann, and the last surviving child that passed away. She moved from Liverpool, England, and married. She and her husband traveled throughout Europe for the next five years after their honeymoon.

They then decided to immigrate to New York City and she became a U.S. citizen. She spent the rest of her adult life with her husband in Brookings, Oregon, until her death. She was preceded in death by her husband, William Bennett, who passed away on April 27, 2020.

She is survived by her daughter Linda Lobb, son-in-law Mark Lobb and five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She was loved by many friends, and a dear grandmother and great-grandmother and aunt to many.

DEAR ABBY

MAN’S UNSURE MENTAL HEALTH CLOUDS VISION OF THE FUTURE

DEAR ABBY: I recently started dating again after ending a very difficult marriage. To say I am guarding my heart for fear of getting hurt would be an understatement. I have met someone that I can see having a future with, but some things concern me. He has been hospitalized for mental health reasons in the past. He’s constantly saying, “I’m sorry I’m so screwed up” or remarking about being “crazy.” He mentions his depression almost daily, and he hates being, as he puts it, “messed up in the head.” He just can’t seem to move past his issues. I feel like he doesn’t want to move forward and start living his life again. I have lived with depression for most of my life, but it doesn’t define who I am. If I don’t respond to his calls or messages right away, he gets hurt and assumes I’m mad at him. My question is, am I being overly cautious based on not wanting to get hurt again, or should I take a step back? I would like to see a future with him, but I’m not sure he is ready to see any kind of a future with anyone. -- GUARDED HEART

DEAR GUARDED HEART: You are not being overly cautious. You are asking yourself intelligent, insightful questions about someone who appears not as far along on the path to mental wellness as you are. Is this man still being treated for his issues? If not, he should be encouraged to talk with a licensed mental health professional not only about his depression, but also his glaring lack of self-esteem. From your description, I would have to say he needs a friend now more than a romance, so take plenty of time if you proceed in this relationship. If he makes progress, see where things lead. If not, then in light of your own history, it might be better for you to find someone who is stronger. DEAR ABBY: I have been in a six-year relationship. About two years into it, I found out that “Wayne” was separated, but not divorced, from his wife of 20 years. The fact that they are separated is not the issue. They live together and do things as a married couple. The wife and I have met each other several times, and I have gone to his children’s graduation parties and family weddings. He has told me every year that this is the year he will file for divorce, but it still hasn’t happened. I don’t know why he is holding on because I do not believe they are intimate. Their children are adults, so there is nothing keeping them together. He tells me he can’t live without me, but his actions have proven otherwise. Do you think they are in an open marriage? Is there any hope for our future together? -- WASTING TIME IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR WASTING TIME: Not at the rate you are going. I suspect the reason Wayne hasn’t followed through and filed for divorce may be financial. He and his wife may also like things just the way they are because they can maintain their social life, he’s comfortable at home and he has you to sleep with, which may be a relief to her. You have my sympathy, but I think you have invested enough time. What’s going on is unfair to you. This romance was based on dishonesty on his part, and you deserve more than you have been getting. COVID-19 testing available at Curry County locations

As governments relax activity restrictions, some area residents are looking for options to be tested for the COVID-19 coronavirus. Testing options for include:

- In Curry County, Curry Health Network offers Covid-19 testing at three locations: Curry Medical Center in Brookings, Curry General Hospital in Gold Beach, and Curry Family Medical in Port Orford. Physicians orders are required in order to receive a test, and patients are invited to call 541-412-2000 to schedule a telephone consultation or tele-health visit to receive an order. Once a patient has an order, an appointment is made for any one of the three locations, and the patient has their specimen collected by laboratory or nursing staff, conveniently, in their vehicle and without the need to enter a facility. COVID-19 testing is free to the patient (insurance companies will be billed with no payment due from the patient, uninsured will not receive a bill).

At this time no pharmacies in Brookings or Gold Beach have set up a COVID-19 testing site.

Library open with limited services in Brookings

BY JULIE RETHERFORD
Library Director

I am thrilled to announce reopened on Monday, June 15! Our hours will be Monday through Friday 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., and to start we will only be admitting 25 people at a time. Social distancing is required, so please stay six feet away from staff and other patrons. Wearing masks is strongly encouraged.

We will have a staff person stationed in the lobby. When you come in, stop at the table in the lobby and one of our friendly staff will hand you one of our bright pink laminated capacity cards (sanitized between uses), which are numbered 1 to 25. When you leave, return the card to the staff person. They will sanitize the card and then hand it to the next person waiting. We don't expect long lines, but if you do arrive and need to wait for a card, please remember to maintain six feet of distance while waiting. Once we see how things go with 25 people at a time, we will look at increasing our capacity if we can safely do so.

Additionally, our current method of appointment-based hold pickups is ending. Just come to the lobby of the library during our open hours to pick up your holds. We'll check your holds out to you there. If you'd like to browse the collection inside before or after checking out your holds, you will need to request a capacity card.

Meeting rooms are still unavailable, and computer use is still by appointment only. Computer appointments are limited to 50 minutes with no extensions. If you'd like to schedule a time to use a computer, call us at 541-469-7738 between 1-6 p.m. on any weekday.

And one final note. Please understand that choosing to visit a public building during this time comes with a certain amount of assumed risk. We are not able to keep every item or every surface sanitized throughout the day. We will only be cleaning and sanitizing the restrooms once per day. We will try our best to keep high-touch surfaces sanitized, and to sanitize anything that we check out to you or hand you. But because no system is perfect, we strongly recommend that you wear masks, wash your hands frequently, only touch items/surfaces that you need to touch, and refrain from touching your face.

The Chetco Community Library is believed to have been the first library on the Oregon coast to reopen following mid-March closure due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Restrictions are in place to comply with social distancing requirements.

Please do not come to the library if you are ill. Before going into any public place, the Centers for Disease Control recommends that you ask yourself the following questions:

- In the last 14 days have you come into close contact (within 6 feet) with someone who has received a confirmed COVID-19 diagnosis?

- Do you have a cough, shortness of breath, or difficulty breathing?

- Do you have at least two of these symptoms: Fever, chills, repeated shaking with chills, muscle pain, headache, sore throat, new loss of taste or smell?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, please do not come to the library. If staff notice you coughing or appearing to be ill, we may provide you a mask or, in extreme circumstances, ask you to leave until you are feeling better.

Library in Gold Beach reopens, offers summer programs

THE PILOT
Curry Public Library of Gold Beach has reopened for library services and summer programs. Like many public facilities, the library has been closed since mid-March due to the COVID-19 pandemic and related concerns. Curry Public Library, along with the Chetco Community Library in Brookings, were the first libraries on the Oregon coast to provide in-person access to library facilities. In Gold Beach, visitors now have the ability to browse shelves for library materials and use the public computers and wi-fi. The library is continuing to provide access to a shelf for contactless pickup of library materials in its lobby.

The library is located at 94341 Third St., Gold Beach. The phone number is 541-247-7246. On Monday June 22, the library began registering youth of all ages for its summer reading program. Registration can be completed online or in-person at the library, and participants will receive a t-shirt and tote bag while supplies last. Summer reading participants will be able to earn prizes for reading, have access to weekly virtual story times and other special programs, and will be able to pick up weekly

Grab and Go activity kits. Middle school age children are eligible to participate in our ASCEND after school program, which will be providing both virtual and in person programs for a limited number of youth. More information about the ASCEND programs and schedule can be found on the library's Facebook page at: www.facebook.com/ASCENDGB. For more information about all of the library's programs, go to the library website at currypubliclibrary.org or call 541-247-7246.

Large gatherings of people are still not allowed until the state reaches Stage 4 on its road to reopening due to the pandemic.

However, organizers of the Gasquet Raft Race didn't want to give up after their biggest draw ever last year on its 50th anniversary.

"We wanted it to go on and on and on forever. We had to do something," said coordinator Gina Bowen.

Last year the event — a flotilla that meanders 2-1/2 miles down Smith River — drew 339 costumed, amateur sailors in decorated inflatable rafts. The second half of the festivities is usually a community barbeque at the Gasquet American.

To keep the spirit of the event alive this July 11, Bowen has scaled plans back. Rather than a barbecue, participants can purchase a T-shirt for $25, or $30 for larger sizes, and receive a free hot-dog supplied by Taylor's Sausage. Then they're free to float down the river on their own. "They'll be safe in the water, as long as they keep their distance," Bowen said. "It should be no problem. I encourage everyone to take any safety measures they're comfortable with."

Bowen said she's ordered 200 T-shirts, 75 masks and 25 hats with this year's slogan, "2020: Year of the Mask." The T-shirts will be on sale from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the American Legion hall, located at 1555 Gasquet Flat Road. Bowen said to ensure you get one, pre-order by calling 707-954-1836. "We're totally excited. I've heard people are already making rafts and their masks. All of Gasquet will be there for support," she said. Bowen added if T-shirts run out, she can special order more and have them to participants within a week. Jamie Brassard, Gasquet American Legion adjutant, is bittersweet about the scaled-back plans. "I think it will be good. It's going to be a pick-up-and-go situation. Gina will get to sell her T-shirts and give 'em a hot dog and off they go," Brassard said. "Unfortunately, it will hurt us a little. We'll take in stride like everything else." She said the American Legion sold over 400 dinners last year at the Gasquet Raft Race, their only fundraiser of the year, which usually nets between $12,000 to $15,000. The money goes to pay the post's bills and insurance, fund scholarships, to send veterans to get treatment at the San Francisco Veterans Administration and to host an annual free dinner for legionnaires, Brassard said. "We should be all right for this year," she said. "We passed out a lot of money this year, but a lot was not spent, too. We decided with what's going on, for purchases like a new stove, to hold off another year."

As tough as a smaller turnout might be for the Gasquet American Legion, Brassard couldn't help but wish success for Bowen, now in her 10th year organizing the event. "I hope she gets a lot of people to buy those shirts. Gina works so hard every year on this. We can't thank her enough," Brassard said.

To learn more about the race, go to www.GasquetRaftRace.com or Gasquet Raft Race on Facebook.

Organizers don't anticipate the scaled back 2020 Gasquet Raft Race drawing anywhere near as much as last year's record attendance.

Seawall

The two-foot high blocks will be placed about 10 feet back from the existing riprap to create a pathway using the existing concrete and asphalt pavement. Sections of the blocks would be removed to create access points for pedestrians, including at the seasonal beach ramps. The blocks would be reinstalled during King Tide winter storms. On the roadway side of the wall, parking stops would be placed two feet back from the blocks to keep vehicles from hitting the wall.

The roadway will be reduced to a single lane with one-way traffic. Following the installation of the wall, the parking area will be re-stripped and signage installed. Webster said there will be a reduction in parking spaces. The port also plans to install self-closing sewer caps for all of the full hook-up RV sites.

Season

Industrial fire regulations will also go into effect. Industrial Fire Precaution Level 1 prohibits smoking while working on or traveling through an industrial operation. Specified fire tools and suppression equipment must be maintained on all operations. A fire watch is also required on all industrial operation sites. As fire season progresses, additional closures and restrictions may be imposed as weather conditions and fire danger becomes more severe. For further information contact the CFPA Closure Information Line at 541-267-1789, visit the website at www.coosfpa.net, or follow CFPA on Facebook and Twitter.
