CANYON — The Tech volleyball team faltered and finally fell last weekend at the State Tournament in Canyon, losing in the consolation finals to Texas A&M, 15-5, 15-7.

Tech started impressively, defeating Sam Houston State 8-15, 15-10, 15-7, downing Stephen F. Austin 15-6, 15-7, and beating Texas University 15-10, 15-9. Those victories placed Tech first in its pool, and Saturday morning the Raiders had to face the Longhorns again, this time in bracket play.

Texas was ready for the match, and the Longhorns' determination to avenge their loss of the previous night carried them to a hard-fought 15-11, 9-15, 15-13 win, eliminating Tech from any chance at the State Championship.

"I think when you play a team one night and beat them and then have to turn around and play them again the very next morning, you're probably going to be flat and not play as well," said Tech Coach Janice Hudson of her team's performance. "It's more than mental. We never really were in control of the momentum. We created circumstances and then became a victim of those circumstances."

Tech's loss moved them into the consolation bracket, where they defeated Lamar 15-11, 16-14, to advance to the finals.

Tech faced A&M in the finals and played uninspired ball, losing two straight to the Aggies.

"I think we lost to A&M because we lost to Texas," said Hudson. "We couldn't get ourselves up for two straight games after the loss to Texas, and that was one of our major problems."

Despite Tech's disappointing performance in Canyon, the team is going to Regionals at Nacadoches as an at-large team. Ten teams from Texas and six from Oklahoma and Louisiana will compete for the chance to go to Nationals, and Hudson said

Tech wrestlers fall to Richland, bounce back over TCU, Texas

The Texas Tech Wrestling Club opened the 1976-77 season Friday, winning two out of three dual matches.

The Raiders lost to Richland College in Richardson Friday afternoon 16-34. They then traveled to Fort Worth, where they were victors over TCU, 46-6, and Texas, 46-3.

The Raider traveling team consisted of Dyke Gaston-118 pound division; Les Davis-126 pound division; David Walker-134 pound division; David Hadden-142 pound division; Mike Fester-150 pound division; Rock Robinson-158 pound division; Dan Sarine-167 pound division; Scott Rice-177 pound division; Joe Chapple-190 pound division; George Magnuson-heavyweight; and alternate Brian Hendon-150 pound division.

Against Richland, David Hadden won 8-0, contributing four team points. Joe Chapple and George Magnuson each contributed six team points by pinning their opponents in the second and first periods, respectively. Dan Sarine was defeated 12-13 in a seesaw battle, losing in the closing seconds on a controversial penalty call.

The Raider grapplers won easily over TCU, losing only one match against the Frogs. Winners over TCU were Dyke Gaston, 5-2; Les Davis, 10-0; David Walker by forfeit; David Hadden by forfeit; Brian Hendon, 4-1; Rock Robinson, 6-2; Dan Sarine by a second period pin; Scott Rice by an overwhelming 14-2 score; and Joe Chapple by forfeit.

Texas proved to be no contest, as the Raiders again lost only one match. Winners over the Steers were Dyke Gaston, 5-0; Les Davis by forfeit; David Hadden, 9-2; Mike Fester by forfeit; Rock Robinson, 7-2; Dan Sarine by a first period pin; Scott Rice by forfeit; Joe Chapple, 2-0; and George Magnuson by forfeit.

The Raiders travel to Denton this Saturday for a quadrangular match with North Texas State, Southwest Texas State, and East Central State of Oklahoma.

By my calculations, Tech could move up to number three or four (for sure four) if they beat Houston. And, according to the Dool system, a convincing, bone-crushing, televised romp over the Cougars, combined with some positive thinking projections, could push the Raiders to the top spot in the nation.

ALL RIGHT, LET'S say Tech beats Houston but the other games don't go the way I've predicted. The Raiders would probably move up one notch (over the UCLA-USC loser) and just sit there with a 9-4-0 record. Take a look two weeks from Saturday and Baylor, is 11-0-0. Michigan has already lost a game anyway and would not be in the position to win the national championship. The same goes with UCLA and USC. Maryland, Pittsburgh and Tech could be undefeated, and the bowls would decide the nation's top team.

Tech would host the Cotton Bowl and probably Pittsburgh would go to Dallas. They have said they want the national championship and will go to which ever bowl could provide them with a shot at the undisputed title. My money says they'll lose any bowl they're in. They've knocked over Duke, Temple and Louisville. They haven't seen Michigan, UCLA or Texas Tech. It could be embarrassing.

Then there's Maryland. They'll win all their games, edge Wake Forest in the Raisin Bowl, then scream they're the national champions. No-one will listen.

THEN CONSIDER TECH. Whoever they might play in the Cotton Bowl will give them a good game, but the other top major powers in the country are already snapped up by the other bowls. Tech could face someone like Missouri, Notre Dame or the runner up in the Pac-8. A win there would put the icing on a Cinderella season, put this town on everybody's map and make Steve Sloan coach of the year.

Or Houston could beat Tech Saturday and we'd all go back to feedin' the cows. And talkin' about the Peach Bowl.

Raiders put Mustangs in 34-7 deep freeze

By FRED BERNST
LD Sportswriter

Weathering a steady second half mauling, the Raiders continued their winning ways by blunting the SMU Mustangs 34-7.

The victory, highlighted by new ball lights in the stadium section, sets up a little next week between undefeated Tech (8-4) and Houston that could decide the eventual Southwest Conference champion. The game will be played regularly, with the game time moving to 3:30 p.m. this Saturday.

The Raiders own sole possession of first place in the SWC with a 5-0 record, while second-place Houston off this week holds a 3-1 mark.

The Tech-Houston game takes on added importance, since the Razorbacks who two weeks ago were undefeated in conference play—were defeated by Texas A&M Saturday, 31-18. The Razorbacks record in the SWC drops to 2-1.

With GAME TIME delayed for more than a hour and half to leave enough time for snow plows to shovel off six inches of snow off the field, the Raiders realized they needed to score quickly.

"I thought one of the keys was for us to go out and play hard early and try and get ahead," Coach Steve Sloan said. "The forecast was calling for snow and we felt that we needed to play well early and establish ourselves before it started again."

The players responded quickly to the advice, scoring four times in their first three possessions. Tech rolled to what became an unimpressive 24-0 half time lead as the snow made it difficult to return during the Homecoming ceremonies, blanketing the field in white.

The tempo of the game was set quickly for the 34-70 number, as Tech quarterback Rodney Allison milled right on the option, cut inside of Godfrey Turner's block, and rushed for 25 yards.

FULLBACK JIMMY Williams followed a little later with a nifty 15-yard run that set the ball up on the SMU 11 yard line. The SMU defense stiffened, and Brian Hall concluded the drive with a 25-yard field goal.

Two possessions later the Raiders scored their first touchdown on a 75-yard drive that took just four plays. The drive was quarterbacked by a 36-yard run by Billy Taylor, as Taylor used the excellent downfield blocking of Sylvester Brown to get down to the SMU 25. Allison kept on the option and ran 14 yards to the SMU 11 yard line. Allison two plays later scored from eight yards out with 46 seconds left in the first quarter.

Throughout the game, Allison gained big chunks of yardage on the option keeper. "On the option, they were leaving me open," Allison explained. All in all, he gained 95 yards.

ON TECH's next possession, the Raiders rolled 40 yards in eight plays, with runningback Larry Isaac clinching the drive by playing over left tackle from three yards out to push the score up to 17-0.

Raiders put Mustangs in 34-7 deep

By FRED HERBST
UD Sportswriter

Weathering a steady second half snowfall, the Raiders continued their winning ways by blitzing the SMU Mustangs 34-7.

The victory, highlighted by snow ball fights in the student section, sets up a battle next week between undefeated Tech (8-0) and Houston that could decide the eventual Southwest Conference champion. The game will be telecast regionally, with the game time moving to 3:05 p.m. this Saturday.

The Raiders own sole possession of first place in the conference with a 5-0 record, while Houston (off this week) holds a 5-1 mark.

Tech-Houston game added importance, Razorbacks who two weeks ago were undefeated in the play-off were defeated by Texas A&M 31-10. The record in the conference is 1-1.

TIME delayed the game an hour and half for snow (six inches on field), the game needed

Raiders put Mustangs in 34-7 deep freeze

By FRED HERBST

Weathering a steady second half maelstrom, the Raiders continued their winning ways by blitzing the SMU Mustangs 34-7.

The victory, highlighted by snow ball fights in the student section, sets up a battle next week between undefeated Tech (8-0) and Houston that could decide the eventual Southwest Conference champion. The game will be telecast regionally, with the game time moving to 3:06 p.m. this Saturday.

The Raiders own sole possession of first place in the SMC with a 5-0 record. In the second-place Houston of this week) holds a 3-1 mark.

The Tech-Houston game takes on added importance, since the Razorbacks who two weeks ago were undefeated in conference play--were defeated by Texas A&M Saturday, 31-10. The Razorbacks' record in the SMC drops to 3-1-1.

WITH GAME TIME delayed for more than an hour and half (to leave enough time for snow plows to shovel off six inches of snow off the field), the Raiders realized they needed to score quickly.

"I thought one of the keys was for us to go out and play hard early and try and get ahead," Coach Steve Sloan said. "The forecast was calling for snow and we felt like we needed to play well early and establish ourselves before it started again."

The players responded quickly to the advice, scoring four times in their first five possessions. Tech rolled to what became an insurmountable 34-0 half time lead as the snow made its predicted return during the Homecoming ceremonies, blanketing the field in white.

The tempo of the game was set quickly for the 34-0 halftime, as Tech quarterback Rodney Allison rolled right on the option, cut inside of Gregory Turner's block, and finished for 23 yards.

TECH'S JIMMY Williams followed a little later with a nifty 14-yard run that set the ball up on the SMU 11 yard line. The SMU defense stiffened, and Brian Hall concluded the drive with a 38-yard field goal.

Two possessions later the Raiders scored their first touchdown on a 75-yard drive that took just four plays. The drive was spearheaded by a 56 yard run by Billy Taylor, as Taylor used the excellent downfield blocking of Sylvester Brown to get down option and ran 14 yards to the Allison two plays later. The Tech defense continued with 56 seconds left in the first quarter.

Throughout the game, Allison gained big chunks of yardage on the option keeper. "On the option, they were leaving me open," Allison explained. All in all, he gained 92 yards.

TECH'S next possession, the Raiders rolled 40 yards in eight plays, with runningback Larry Isaac clinching the drive by plowing over left tackle from three yards out to push the score up to 17-0.

The big play of the drive, Taylor used the excellent downfield blocking of Sylvester Brown to get down SMU 35. Allison kept on the

"Because of the conditions and their new quarterback we ran a lot of blitzes," defensive coordinator Coach Bill Percelle said. "We wanted to pressure him and I feel like we did."

"We felt real confident,"

Flygare said the state legislature will never pass a bill which calls for a percentage. "A figure such as $2 and one half million should be asked for to insure receiving the money."

The cost of the proposed perinatal center in the Tech Med School was discussed at the meeting as a possible increase in the deficit.

FLYGARE SUGGESTED the elimination of the perinatal center from the Med School. He cited two instances in which perinatal center is in a local hospital and in a large south Texas country center with low collection rates from their patients.

"Tech's perinatal center would probably receive about 50 per cent of our community's business in this field," Flygare said. "It has been determined that the Med School will possibly lose at least $1 million a year from such low collection rates."

Harold Coston, executive director of the LCHD, said the perinatal center would be a good teaching element for the school and would help the hospital become top-notch.

PENNINGTON SAID at the meeting the board has "valid apprehensions" about opening the hospital on the current target date. The current projected opening date for the hospital is July 1, 1977.

If state funds are needed to open the hospital, timing would be critical, according to Pennington. The state legislature convenes in January of next year and ends in May. By late May, he said, the board should know if the funds are to be received.

"The primary goal of the board is to decide when we can open the hospital and stay open, with no worries about the financial aspects," Pennington said.

The board agreed Monday to consider resetting the target opening date at the next regular board meeting of the LCHD, which is scheduled for Dec. 20.

Iranian students protest

Approximately 25 Iranian students demonstrated Monday in front of the University Center to protest the treatment of Iranian demonstrators by Houston police.

The students, members of the Iranian Students Association, were demonstrating their opposition to alleged mistreatment of some Iranian demonstrators by Houston police, according to an ISA spokesman who asked not to be identified.

The Houston demonstrations were opposing accusations that the ISA is the terrorist group responsible for the killing of an Iranian diplomat in France, according to the spokesman.

"The ISA is a worldwide organization and not a terrorist group," the spokesman said. "The secret police agency in Iran, SAVAK, is trying to discredit the ISA."
