What if Iron Bowl didn't really matter?

By Doug Segrest

For the TimesDaily

The game we can't wait for has become the contest we never anticipated.

Welcome to the 2024 Iron Bowl, which means ... something.

Since shortly after Nick Saban's arrival in Tuscaloosa, the annual blood-letting grudge match has been played with major stakes. We've seen tickets to Atlanta punched, national championships rise and fall, and Heisman Trophy winners crowned.

But this year? Meh.

Just a week ago, this was supposed to be Alabama's final tuneup before heading to Atlanta for a berth in the SEC championship game. A spot in the inaugural 12-team College Football Playoff tournament seemed assured. Then the Crimson Tide headed to Oklahoma for an old-fashioned humiliation.

Conversely, Auburn seemed to have little to play for, destined for another losing season. Then the Tigers wrecked Texas A&M's playoff aspirations on a chilly Saturday night and now need one victory to clinch a bowl bid.

Auburn has the momentum and motivation. Only two things favor Alabama: the game's played in Tuscaloosa and not out of state, where the Crimson Tide turns into a pumpkin. And Auburn isn't a 14-point underdog. That seems to be the magic number for a stunning, who'd-a-thunk-it upset of this Alabama team.

At home, Alabama has resembled the Tide of Saban teams past, bordering on invincible. Only a narrow victory over South Carolina has been less than a blowout.

Auburn has been the more consistent team, competitive in every game, in every situation.

And now, the Tigers are proving they can actually finish with a flourish.

The Texas A&M victory brought everything together — Payton Thorne's leadership, Cam Coleman's playmaking and Jarquez Hunter's crunch-time dominance. The turnovers have ceased, the defense has peaked and transfer KeAndre Lambert-Smith has emerged as Auburn's most valuable player.

Meanwhile, Alabama has become college football's version of the three faces of Eve. There's the dominant Tide

Alabama fans' national championship enthusiasm may have waned, but they're still eager for a state title. [VASHA HUNT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

(see Georgia, Missouri, LSU), the not-so-terrific Tide (South Carolina and Tennessee) and the I-wanna-be-like Mike (your choice DuBose or Shula) Tide that got left for roadkill in Norman.

At times, quarterback Jalen Milroe looks like the best player in college football. But when he's off, the Tide isn't even competitive. Playmakers appear like apparitions and disappear just as quickly. And a defense that finally seemed to have it all together two weeks ago went AWOL in Oklahoma.

If the game was scheduled for Auburn, we might not hesitate to go with the upset. That Jordan-Hare Stadium voodoo never works better than the Saturday after Thanksgiving. Bryce Young needed overtime to win in 2021 and Milroe needed Isaiah Bond and the gravedigger to pull out a victory last season.

But at Bryant-Denny Stadium, Alabama has dominated. And that's enough to ensure the Crimson Tide's advantage Saturday. Despite all appearances,

Auburn fans would be delighted if the Tigers nab a second straight highly ranked opponent this week, particularly if it's Alabama. [BUTCH DILL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Alabama is still the better team. And while the easy path to the CFP seemingly died on the Oklahoma prairie, there's still a glimmer of hope for the postseason.

So we'll go with this: Alabama 24, Auburn 14, with the knockout punch coming late.

Conference title matchups still unsettled

The Associated Press

The American Athletic Conference is the only Football Bowl Subdivision league whose championship game matchup is set: Army vs. Tulane.

The final week of the regular season will determine pairings for the other eight conferences.

Here's a look at the possible matchups in the Power Four and Group of Five. All championship games are Dec. 7 except in the AAC, Conference USA and Mountain West, which will be played Dec. 6.

• ACC at Charlotte, North Carolina: SMU vs. Miami or Clemson. Miami is in if it beats Syracuse. Clemson is in if Miami loses.

• Big Ten at Indianapolis: Oregon vs. Ohio State, Penn State or Indiana. Ohio State is in if it beats Michigan or if Penn State and Indiana lose this week. Penn State is in if it beats Maryland and Ohio State loses. Indiana is in if it beats Purdue and Ohio State and Penn State lose.

• Big 12 at Arlington, Texas: Arizona

Chauncey Bowens and the Georgia Bulldogs are assured of a spot in next week's SEC championship game against either Texas or Texas A&M. [JOHN BAZEMORE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

State vs. Iowa State if both win this week. Multiple scenarios including BYU, Colorado and other teams exist otherwise.

• SEC at Atlanta: Georgia vs. winner of Texas-Texas A&M game.

• American Athletic at TBD: Army vs. Tulane.

• Conference USA at Jacksonville: Jacksonville State vs. Liberty, Western Kentucky or Sam Houston. Liberty is in with a win over Sam Houston. WKU is in with a win over Jacksonville State and a Liberty loss. Sam Houston is in with a win over Liberty and a Jacksonville State win.

• Mid-American at Detroit: Miami, Bowling Green and Ohio are tied for first place and control their destinies. Miami-Bowling Green winner is in, as is Ohio if it beats Ball State. Other scenarios exist that include those teams and Buffalo.

• Mountain West at Boise, Idaho: Boise State vs. UNLV or Colorado State. If UNLV and CSU both win or lose their final regular-season games, the tie would be broken by either College Football Playoff rankings or results-based computer metrics.

• Sun Belt at TBD: Louisiana-Lafayette at Marshall if both win their games this week. Other scenarios exist if one or both lose.

AUBURN VERSION

Auburn at Alabama

When: 2:30 p.m. Saturday

TV/radio: ABC/FM-93.9, AM-920

Records: Auburn (5-6, 2-5 SEC), No. 13
Alabama (8-3, 4-3)

The series: Alabama leads 50-37-3.

Four-down territory

1. Prepping for the good version: It's been an up-and-down season for Alabama quarterback Jalen Milroe. He's looked stellar against Georgia and LSU and Missouri, but was lackluster against Vanderbilt, Tennessee and Oklahoma last week. So which QB will Auburn see Saturday? "You prepare for the good (version of Milroe)," Auburn coach Hugh Freeze said. "I hope we get the lesser-than version, but he has the right stuff and competes at a high level. I'm confident they will use him as a runner, and we have to plan for that."

2. Tiger hype: The game between Auburn and Texas A&M was one of the most thrilling of the season, and the Tigers needed the win in the worst way. Auburn has momentum and new life as it heads into the Iron Bowl, while Alabama is on a downward spiral after losing its playoff berth in the loss to Oklahoma. The atmosphere at Auburn is one of confidence. "You have zero chance to win if you don't have a belief that you can do it," Freeze said. "Somewhere along the line with these difficult losses, we've started believing more. It's going to take that belief to go into Tuscaloosa."

3. Big plays needed: Creating explosive plays is something Auburn has done well this season. That's a trademark of Freeze's offense. Those big plays will be in high demand this weekend. "It's film study, and you have to have good designs, and they have to be called at the right time with the right defense," Freeze said. "That's hard to do. We will certainly need some of those Saturday."

4. Still stings: The loss in last year's Iron Bowl was tough to handle. Allowing a touchdown on fourth-and-31 in the final minute will do that. It was Freeze's first Iron Bowl experience and he's hoping to make Alabama coach Kalen DeBoer's first Iron Bowl a similar miserable experience. "There's no bigger game on the schedule. To lose one last year the way we did still doesn't sit right," Freeze said. "We have to find a way to keep ourselves in it and give us a chance to win change that and hopefully make that a regular expectation."

Auburn freshman receiver Cam Coleman had his best game of the season last week against Texas A&M with 128 yards and two touchdowns. [BUTCH DILL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Player of game

Jerrin Thompson, LB

Thompson has had a big impact for the Tigers the last few games with 21 tackles, one interception and a tackle for loss. Auburn will need that same effort from the senior against Alabama. He's second on the team with 60 tackles and has two interceptions with four pass breakups.

Key matchup

Auburn WR Cam Coleman vs. Alabama WR Ryan Williams

Welcome to the Freshman Iron Bowl.

There aren't any high stakes involved with this game, but these two should make it one heck of a show. Coleman is coming off his best game, a 128-yard effort with two touchdowns. Williams has two games this season with more than 100 yards.

By the numbers

4: Auburn is 4-0 this season with an individual 100-yard rusher. Jarquez Hunter rushed for 93 yards against Alabama last season.

4: Cam Coleman, with 30 catches for 520 yards, ranks fourth among Auburn's all-time freshman receivers.

20: Auburn is allowing just 110.2 rushing yards per game, which ranks 20th nationally.

2010: The last time Auburn won in Tuscaloosa was 2010, a Cam Newton-led 28-27 victory.

Prediction

Alabama 24, Auburn 17

A confident Auburn team is dangerous. That's why last week's win against Texas A&M was so important. The odds of an Auburn win in Tuscaloosa just went up because of it. Auburn still has to show up. The Tigers can't afford any miscues, either. They will make some plays and have some momentum in spots, but can they maintain it for four quarters?

— Edwin Stanton

ALABAMA VERSION

Auburn at Alabama

When: 2:30 p.m. Saturday

TV/radio: ABC/FM-93.9, AM-920

Records: Auburn (5-6, 2-5 SEC), No. 13
Alabama (8-3, 4-3)

The series: Alabama leads 50-37-3.

Four-down territory

1. Deal with it: The loss to Oklahoma crushed Alabama's chance for a playoff spot and a berth in the SEC title game. With no hardware to play for the Crimson Tide has to settle for a meaningless bowl game. It's better than nothing. The question is, how will Alabama respond against Auburn after the crushing loss? It's the Iron Bowl, so that carries some weight. But when your postseason goals go up in smoke, how much will that carry over into the regular-season finale?

2. Missing captain: Defensive leader and team captain Deontae Lawson sustained a season-ending leg injury against Oklahoma. The linebacker is the second-leading tackler and the one who communicates the coverages to the rest of the team. His presence was missed against the Sooners and will be felt against Auburn. Justin Jefferson is the backup for Lawson. "Obviously, we greatly miss what he does on the football field, but love having that guy in the locker room leading our team," DeBoer said.

3. Bulletin board material: The Iron Bowl doesn't need any extra hype. The players from both schools know the importance of it. Auburn linebacker Demarcus Riddick opted to throw gasoline on the fire anyway when discussing Tide receiver Ryan Williams. "Yeah, he's electric," Riddick told reporters in Auburn. "Yeah, he's all this and that, but, in my eyes, he ain't really nobody to me. Ryan Williams is himself. He ain't no big-time player to me."

4. Tiger trap: Under Hugh Freeze, Auburn has had tremendous success running the ball against Alabama. Last year, the Tigers had 244 yards and 318 yards in 2022. The offense seems to turn it up a notch for the Crimson Tide, something that will surely happen again Saturday. "They do a great job of finding ways to establish a run and then using that run game to create explosive plays downfield in the play action game," Alabama defensive coordinator Kane Wommack said.

Freshman Ryan Williams may lead Alabama in receiving this year, but "he ain't no big-time player to me," says one Auburn player. [ALONZO ADAMS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Key matchup

Alabama WR Ryan Williams vs. Auburn WR Cam Coleman

Two of the most electric receivers take center stage in their first Iron Bowl. Both freshmen have been phenomenal this season. Williams leads Alabama with 804 yards, eight touchdowns and some amazing, acrobatic catches. Coleman has 520 yards with seven touchdowns and some highlight catches as well.

Player of the game

Jihaad Campbell, LB

It cannot be stressed enough the impact of losing Deontae Lawson has on the defense. It's going to be up to Campbell to fill in as the emotional and physical leader. It's not like he isn't one already with a team-leading five sacks and 97 tackles.

By the numbers

1: Alabama has lost just one home game since 2019.

3: Kalen DeBoer has 34 wins in November with three losses, including one last week.

4: Alabama has won four straight over Auburn for the first time since a nine-game rivalry streak 1973-81.

2007: With a loss to Auburn, Alabama would finish the season with less than 10 wins for the first time since 2007.

Prediction

Alabama 24, Auburn 17

Who knows which Alabama team we'll get Saturday. It could be the team that looks like a championship contender or the one that resembles a Mike DuBose version. Fortunately for Alabama, this isn't a road game. Anything can happen in the Iron Bowl, and the Crimson Tide better be ready for it.

Tennessee at Vanderbilt

When: 11 a.m. Saturday

TV/radio: ABC/FM-92.9, AM-920

Records: No. 7 Tennessee (9-2, 5-2 SEC), Vanderbilt (6-5, 3-4)

The series: Tennessee leads 80-32-5.

Four-down territory

1. Vandy dandy: Tennessee faces a big threat in Vanderbilt QB Diego Pavia. If you don't pressure him, he'll make completions. If you do pressure him, he'll take off running for big yards. It's a dilemma Vols coach Josh Heupel is concerned about. "He's a dynamic player and you can't let him sit back in the pocket," he said. "You have to apply pressure, but while you are doing that, you have to maintain your lane integrity and make plays." Pavia leads Vandy with 671 rushing yards and six TDs. He also has 2,029 passing yards and 16 TDs.

2. Stay on point: The message to the Vols last week is the same as it is this week. With a playoff spot on the line, Tennessee has to handle business against Vandy. "We have to focus on the task at hand and be our best on Saturday," Heupel said. "We have to understand that we are going to get their best, and their best is really good. And we have to be at our best, too."

3. Perfect storm: Tennessee lost both its games this season on the road. Vanderbilt has been a tough opponent in Nashville and has won some big games at home. Saturday has all the makings of a trap game for Tennessee, especially given the playoff stakes. "You go on the road and a lot of environments make it more difficult if you are not communicating at a high level," Heupel said.

4. Going out on top: Running back Dylan Sampson leads the SEC in rushing yards (1,307) and touchdowns (22) and should finish the regular season on top. He's also got a chance to set the school record for rushing yards in a single season (1,464 by Travis Stephens in 2000). Sampson can tie the school mark for career touchdowns (35) with two against Vandy.

Key matchup

Tennessee QB Nico Iamaleava vs. Vanderbilt QB Diego Pavia

You know what you are getting with each of these offensive leaders. Iamaleava is a quiet, but effective leader who is good at spreading the ball around to a solid core of receivers. Pavia is energetic and good things happen when he runs the ball, and good things happen when he throws the ball.

Player of the game

James Pearce Jr., DE

Big games call for big players to step up. Pearce is one of the best defenders for the Vols, registering 7.5 sacks and 11 tackles for loss. The semifinalist for a handful of national awards will have to have his best game against an elusive QB in Diego Pavia.

By the numbers

4: Tennessee has four straight wins against Vanderbilt. Before that, Vandy won three straight.

4: For the fourth time in the Heupel era, the Vols have topped 2,500 rushing yards — a first in school history.

10: The Vols have held 10 of their 11 opponents to under 20 points. Georgia scored 31.

10: With a win Saturday, Tennessee will have its second 10-win season under Heupel and third since 2007.

Prediction

Tennessee 32, Vanderbilt 21

It's been an agonizing time for Tennessee the past few years. All that can be wiped away with a win, which would guarantee the Vols a spot in the playoffs. With that much at stake, it shouldn't matter that Vandy is a road game or that Diego Pavia is at quarterback. Tennessee will take care of business and get Tennessee back to competing for championships.

Texas State at South Alabama

When: 2:30 p.m. Friday

TV: ESPN+

Records: Texas State (6-5, 4-3 Sun Belt), South Alabama (6-5, 5-2)

The series: Texas State leads 5-4.

The lowdown: South Alabama, with a win and a Louisiana-Lafayette loss at Louisiana-Monroe, will advance to the Sun Belt championship game. The Jags would tie the Ragin' Cajuns for the Sun Belt West championship, but USA owns the head-to-head tiebreaker. ... USA reached bowl eligibility for a third straight season with last week's 35-14 win at Southern Miss. ... Jamaal Pritchett had 102 yards receiving at USM, marking his fifth 100-yard game of the season. ... Pritchett also crossed 1,000 for the season. He's the fourth Jag in five years to reach four digits. ... USA's Fluff Bothwell has 11 rushing touchdowns this year. Among FBS freshmen, he's tied for second with Old Dominion's Colton Joseph and one behind Louisiana-Monroe's Ahmad Hardy. ... The Bobcats had a seven-game winning streak snapped with a 52-44 home loss to Georgia State last week. ... Texas State led 21-14 in the second quarter before surrendering 31 straight points. ... The Bobcats scored three fourth-quarter touchdowns, the last with 2:52 remaining, before Georgia State ran out the clock. ... TSU's Jordan McCloud, with three TD passes last week, set a school record with 28 this season. He has 2,671 yards this year.

SEC

Records: Mississippi State (2-9, 0-7 SEC), Ole Miss (8-3, 4-3)

The series: Ole Miss leads 67-47-6.

The lowdown: Ah, the Egg Bowl, always good for a post-Thanksgiving fight. ... Since 2000, neither team has won more than three consecutive games in the series. Ole Miss did so from 2002-04, while Mississippi State's turn was from 2009-11. ... The last time Mississippi State went winless in the SEC was in 2002 when Jackie Sherrill was the coach. It's one of 10 such seasons for Mississippi State. ... The Rebels fell out of contention for a spot in the College Football Playoff after an ugly 24-17 loss at Florida. Ole Miss went into that game with the No. 9 spot, ahead of Georgia, Tennessee, Boise State and SMU, which all won their games.

Georgia Tech at No. 6 Georgia

When: 6:30 p.m. Friday

TV: ABC

Records: Georgia Tech (7-4), Georgia (9-2)

The series: Georgia leads 71-41-5.

The lowdown: This rivalry is called "Clean, old-fashioned hate." ... Georgia Tech has likely done plenty of hating because it hasn't been winning much in the series. The Yellow Jackets' last victory over Georgia was 2016, a game in Athens. ... The Bulldogs, despite their two SEC losses, have already clinched a spot in the league's championship game.

This season has really grabbed Kentucky by the facemask and not in a good way. [ERIC GAY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

They'll play the winner of Texas-Texas A&M. ... Both Georgia Tech and Georgia enter the matchup on a two-game win streak. It finished 9-4 that year.

No. 16 South Carolina at No. 12 Clemson

When: 11 a.m. Saturday

TV: ESPN

Records: South Carolina (8-3), Clemson (9-2)

The series: Clemson leads 73-43-4.

The lowdown: Clemson has owned the Palmetto Bowl in the last decade.

Devonte Ross, left, is closing in on being Troy's first 1,000-yard receiver since Chip Reeves in 2012 and that could mean more congratulations from Peyton Higgins. [TROY ATHLETICS]

The Tigers have won eight of the last 10 meetings. ... This is the first time since 2013 the rivalry will feature a top-25 matchup. South Carolina won that season 31-17. It capped a five-year win streak for the Gamecocks, their longest in the series. ... Clemson is still holding out hope of playing for the ACC title. The Tigers need Miami to lose to Syracuse. If the Hurricanes win, Miami will play SMU for the league crown. ... South Carolina is looking for a fourth straight win over a ranked opponent. The Gamecocks beat Texas A&M, Vanderbilt and Missouri before taking care of Wofford last week.

Louisville at Kentucky

When: 11 a.m. Saturday

TV: SEC Network

Records: Louisville (7-4), Kentucky (4-7)

The series: Kentucky leads 20-15.

The lowdown: Kentucky has kept the Governor's Cup — the rivalry game's trophy — in Lexington since 2018. ... Louisville was ranked No. 10 in last year's meeting. The Cardinals tied the game with 2:33 left in the fourth quarter only for Kentucky running back Ray Davis to score the go-ahead touchdown with 1:02 remaining. The Wildcats won 38-31. ... Kentucky enters this season's meeting having lost five of its last six. Its win was against FCS Murray State on Nov. 16. The Racers ended the year with one win. ... Louisville is 3-2 in road

Southern Miss at Troy

When: 1 p.m. Saturday

TV: ESPN+

Records: Southern Miss (1-10, 0-7 Sun Belt), Troy (3-8, 2-5)

The series: USM leads 8-5.

The lowdown: Troy's Devonte Ross, with eight catches for 95 yards last week, ranks 15th nationally and second in the Sun Belt with 973 yards this season. ... Ross is on the cusp of being the first Troy receiver to reach 1,000 yards since Chip Reeves hit 1,050 in 2012. Last year, Jabre Barber totaled 999. ... The Trojans' single-season receiving record is 1,169 yards set by Rufus Cox in 1984. ... The school has had five 1,000-yard receivers: Cox, Jerrel Jernigan (1,101 in 2009), Reeves, Vince Green (1,030 in 1970), Danny Grant (1,002 in 1968). ... Southern Miss has dropped nine straight, including the last four by a combined 162-35 since hanging a "help wanted" sign outside its head coach's office. ... The Golden Eagles have been regularly plucked by opposing offenses. USM ranks 122nd in the FBS in total defense, getting trampled for almost 449 yards per game. ... Troy's Gerad Parker needs a win to avoid being the losingest first-year coach in school history all by himself. He's already sure to tie. In 2015, Neal Brown debuted 4-8.

Elijah Drinkwitz and Missouri will be wondering if they will continue their recent trend of flipping between wins and losses. [ROGELIO V. SOLIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Records: Texas (10-1, 6-1 SEC), Texas A&M (8-3, 5-2)

The series: Texas leads 76-37-5.

The lowdown: Hello, again, Lone Star Showdown. ... What was once a vicious rivalry gets rekindled for the first time since 2011. ... The teams haven't played since Texas A&M bolted the Big 12 for the lush pastures of the SEC and, if you haven't heard, the Longhorns joined them in the SEC this year. ... Texas won the last meeting 27-25 and, a week later, A&M fired coach Mike Sherman. ... Both schools ridicule the other in their own fight songs. The Aggie War Hymn: "Goodbye to Texas University. So long to the Orange and the White." Texas Fight: "And it's goodbye to A&M." ... A&M students used to build an immense on-campus bonfire before each year's game against what they derisively call the "teasippers" to represent their "burning desire to beat the hell outta t.u." (Capital letters not allowed.) The tradition ended when the bonfire collapsed during construction in 1999, killing 12 and injuring 27. ... This year's winner advances to the SEC championship game to play Georgia. The Aggies have never played for an SEC title. Neither, of course, have the Longhorns.
