The State Corporation Commission's records indicate that the Commission did not receive on or before the automatic lapse date an acceptable annual report for the corporation identified above and, accordingly, pursuant to Virginia law, the corporation's existence as a Virginia corporation has been automatically terminated, or, in the case of a foreign corporation, its certificate of authority to transact business in Virginia has been automatically revoked, as of the automatic lapse date.

For a Virginia corporation, this termination means the corporation is no longer authorized to transact business and its properties and affairs have passed automatically to its directors as trustees in liquidation.

For a foreign corporation, this revocation means the corporation is no longer authorized to transact business in Virginia.

As there may be other consequences resulting from the termination or revocation, it is suggested that the corporation and its directors and officers seek the advice of counsel.

Under Virginia law, the corporation may obtain a Commission order reinstating its existence or its certificate of authority to transact business in Virginia within five years after the automatic lapse date. To reinstate your business today, go online to the Clerk's Information System at cis.scc.virginia.gov. You will need the Personal Identification Number (PIN) for the business you wish to reinstate.
