Grundy AITC Teaches about Pollinators

During the month of May, students across Grundy County have been learning about pollinators and the important role they play in our everyday lives. They are discovering how bees, butterflies, birds, and even the wind help pollinate plants and support the food we eat everyday.

Students are then introduced to different ways they can help support pollinators, including planting pollinator friendly plants in their yards. To wrap up the lesson, students create a coffee filter flower craft, filled with Illinois native wildflower seeds to plant. It has been a great hands-on activity that allows students to take what they learned in the classroom and share it at home!
