

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

Dear Fellow American,

On behalf of my Administration and the American people, congratulations on becoming a citizen of our great and glorious Nation.

America has always welcomed those who embrace our values, assimilate into our society, and pledge allegiance to our country. By taking this oath, you have forged a sacred bond with our Nation, her traditions, her history, her culture, and her values. This rich heritage is now yours to protect, promote, and pass down to the next generation. Our history is now your history—our customs are now your customs—and our Constitution is now yours to safeguard, honor, and respect.

The United States is now your homeland, and you stand as a part of one Nation under God. You have pledged your heart to America—and in return, she offers the boundless promise of freedom and opportunity.

We applaud your devotion to our country, our people, our history, and our great American story. As long as the American people continue to love our country and uphold our values, there is nothing that our Nation cannot achieve. Our communities will flourish. Our people will prosper. Our traditions will endure. And our future will be brighter, more radiant, and more hopeful than ever before.

Once again, congratulations and welcome. May God bless you, and may He continue to bless the United States of America.

Sincerely,
